THE ANNUAL CRUSH

At OUR STORE

When Christmas Day is drawing nigh,
Amid the shopping crowds you'll sigh,
And vow next year that forth you'll go
More early, by a month or so.
And when, next year, the time comes round
The self-same sorrow will be found,
And you will make the self-same vow
And break it as you break it now.

The Store is Ready for Christmas

And back of this sentence is the combined work and judgement of our whole working force. For months we have been busy getting in the stock We had to go Christmas Shopping for all Peterborough and that was a gigantic task. Then after this part of the work was done the goods must be received and placed so that they would show well. But we have forgotten the work and trouble it took us to get ready (just as on Christmas morning you will forget your work and worry in the pleasure you have caused) and we are proud of the store and all it contains, so proud that we want every Christmas shopper to come out and see it. Let this be your invitation.

MRS. G. MONCRIEF WAS INJURED

Street Car Struck Her Cutter at Corner of George and Dublin Sts.

DOUBTS AS TO HER RECOVERY

She Sustained a Comminuted Fracture of Collar Bone, Had Her Head Cut, and There is a Fracture at the Base of the Skull—How the Accident Happened.

The first serious accident which has taken place in connection with the Peterborough Radial Railway occurred this afternoon about one o'clock, when Mrs. Geo. Moncrief was seriously injured at the corner of George and Dublin-sts.

Just how the accident occurred is not known, as no one seemed to have been an eye-witness of it. It is supposed that Mrs. Moncrief was driving west on Dublin-st. and attempted to cross the street car track on George street. Car No. 13, coming down George-st. at a fast rate, crashed into the vehicle, and Mrs. Moncrief was thrown out and badly injured.

Mr. J. Robson, who lives on Dublin-st., near the corner where the accident occurred, was not a witness of the collision, but was one of the first on the scene. He states that on coming out of his house he noticed the cutter and horse lying near the corner, and hastened to the scene. At the corner he saw Mrs. Moncrief lying unconscious. He helped to carry her into Warne's grocery, and the ambulance and Drs. Carmichael and Greer were soon on the spot. The unfortunate woman was taken to Nicholls Hospital.

Mrs. Moncrief is the wife of Mr. G. Moncrief, of the Dickson Co's farm in Otonabee. Enquiry of one of the doctors in attendance shows that her injuies are of a very serious character, and that it was impossible to ascertain this afternoon whether she would recover. Her head is badly cut, there is a comminuted fracture of the collar bone, and also a very slight fracture at the base of the skull. She is receiving every possible attention at Nicholls Hospital.

Car No. 13 was in charge of Conductor Connors and Motorman Londerville. The statement received from officials at the Street Railway Company's office is that, as they understood the circumstances, Mrs. Moncrief's horse was attempting to run away, and as the animal rushed out from Dublin-st. onto the track, the car could not be brought to a standstill in sufficient time to avoid a collision. Mrs. Moncrief was thrown some distance as the result of the shock.

STOLE SOME CLOTHES.

J. Carney, of Gravenhurst, evidently is of the opinion that clothes make good stealing these days. He was in police court this morning charged with stealing a suit of clothes from his uncle M. Carney, and he is wanted in Gravenhurst on a charge somewhat similar. The magistrate remanded him until to-morrow. The man that would appropriate bad clothes or any other kind these days is in a bad way. The delay in dealing with the case is caused by the necessity for attendance of important witnesses.

LADIES OF ST. LUKE'S.

Held Successful Oyster Supper and Bazaar—Good Attendance.

The Mothers' Guild of St. Luke's church held a successful oyster supper and bazaar in the Sunday School rooms last evening.

There was a good attendance and the proceeds will result in a neat sum for the ladies. The luscious bivalves were served in toothsome style and enjoyed along with coffee, cake and other delicacies. The various booths were well patronised and during the evening a pleasing programme was rendered. Mrs. W. J. Scott gave several excellent pianoforte solos. Mr. Joseph Legg sang some of his popular songs, while Mr. R. A. Sutcliffe was heard to decided advantage. The accompanist was Mr. John L. Armstrong. The numbers were rendered at intervals and those present had plenty of time for social intercourse.

Those in charge of the candy booth were Miss Edna Rogers and Miss Vivian Bennett; fancy goods Mrs. T. B. Maniece, Miss Alice Dawson, Miss Alice Carter and Miss Quirk.

Those supervising the oyster department were Mrs. H. Bennett (in charge) Mrs. John Strain, Mrs. John McLean, Mrs. Wm. Hartley, Mrs. James Ballantyne, Mrs. W. Whittaker, Mrs. A. Waterman, Mrs. George Long, Mrs. Colquhoun.

One of the fancy booths, presided over by Miss Carter was gotten up by the Girls Auxiliary of which Mrs. Walter Boswell is president. The popular rector, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt and Mrs. Langfeldt endeavored to make every one feel thoroughly at home. Rev. J. C. Davidson was also in attendance.

The officers of the Mothers' Guild under whose auspices the bazaar and oyster supper were held, are Mrs. H. Bennett, pres., Mrs. Geo. Long, vice-pres., Mrs. T. B. Maniece, sec'y, Mrs. A. Waterman, treas.

COMPENSATION FOR HOTELS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir:—Much is being said throughout the township in favor of compensating the hotel men for the loss they will sustain if no licenses are granted this coming year. In this regard it must be distinctly understood that the by-law to be submitted Jan. 2nd. will in no case close hotels. These can still be run for the accommodation of the tourists and the travelling public, who ought to be, and I believe are, willing to pay for such accommodation to the extent that a reasonable profit can be realized by the proprietors. Local option would simply remove the "bars" and the treating system, which have proved themselves, beyond doubt, injurious to the morals and the general prosperity of the community.

Personally, I believe in compensation, provided that such compensation goes where it justly belongs. It cannot go to the hotel-keepers, because they know when they began the traffic that their licenses were granted for one year only and could be, and would be, withheld any time the electors saw fit. Again, when the licenses were reduced a few years ago, those effected, received no compensation, on the ground that their license was issued from year to year. And still again, the hotel-keepers have already reaped an abundant harvest and have received large returns for the capital invested. And once again, the hotels still remain and can be run, without the "bar", for public accommodation.

If compensation is to be given, that it go to the drunkards' wives, who, though innocent, have been deprived of proper support and caused to suffer because their husband's earnings have gone over the "bar" to add to the luxury of the saloon keeper's home. I would compensate the children that have been deprived of a trade, or an education, or any other preparation for life's work because their fathers have squandered their money in strong drink. I would compensate that child in Toronto whose father staggered home drunk Nov. 24th last, and cruelly beat his wife, who lay sick with an infant child, because she had not prepared the dinner. Then as though he had not yet exercised enough of his "personal liberty" he seized this little boy and held him on the hot stove until his back was burned to a crisp. To-day that child lies in the hospital a cripple for life. Should not he, and the thousand other similar victims of this blighting, damning curse receive the compensation asked by those, who for long or short periods have received enormous gains from a traffic that has proved a curse to our national and domestic life? The drunkards, the drunkards' wives, the drunkards' children, and not these men, should be the objects of our sympathy as we mark our ballots on Jan. 2nd 1904. Yours, etc.,

The Daily Review
WEDNESDAY, DEC. 14, 1904

READY FOR THE FRAY.

The expected has happened. Yesterday came the announcement that Premier Ross, unable to command a majority in the House, afraid to face the bye-elections, and desirous of cutting short the North Grey election trial, and the consequent exposure of Hon. A. G. MacKay's crooked election methods, had decided to go to the country.

Now, the free and independent electors of Ontario will have a splendid opportunity to oust Mr. Ross. The head of the Liberal party in Ontario, so fond of power, so greedy for office, and so unscrupulous in his record, has been doing everything to bolster up his waning cause. He made a miserable attempt at Cabinet reorganization, secured the services of two men, had a lot of wishy-washy resolutions drawn up at a convention of contractors and office holders and, having put on all "the front" possible, he has decided to take the plunge. But the better class of the Premier's hitherto ardent supporters take no stock in his would-be lightning change acts and are getting out before the fall. They recognize—as do scores of the 8,000 officials of the Province—that the reign of corruption and deception is at an end, and refuse to carry the stained banner of Liberalism in this Province.

Mr. Ross has had great difficulty in securing suitable candidates, nearly twenty retiring and refusing to have anything further to do with him and his government.

On the other hand, the coming fight finds the Conservatives in the Province, under the able leadership of Col J. P. Whitney, thoroughly united, harmonious and aggressive.

The stand taken by the grand old party for decent, clean, upright government has enlisted in its ranks many independent men and Liberals of the better class, who do not desire to see the fair name of Ontario any longer traduced by such acts and practices as have kept the present administration in power.

Never were stronger, cleaner representative men placed in the field than during the past few weeks. They are to be congratulated on having such a capable and high minded leader as Mr Whitney and he, in turn should feel gratified that the sense of public duty and public spirit has led these gentlemen to freely offer their services in the great work of carrying forward the banner of purity and progress and ushering in a better and brighter day in the history of the Province.

It's time for a change.

PEN POINTS.

Col. J. P. Whitney, "the man Ontario wants."

Premier Ross was afraid to face the bye-elections.

January 25 will be a cold day—for the Ross Government.

Mr. Ross is announced to make a tour—his farewell one.

Mr George Washington Ross will find his alleged reform platform not strong enough to support him.

Political uncertainty ends in dissolution says an exchange. Yes! it will end in utter rout of the Rossites.

Go to the Conservative committee rooms in the opera house block tonight, and cheer for the popular candidate, Mr. Bradburn.

With Christmas shopping, the municipal elections, Sunday School festivals, annual meetings and the provincial contest there promises to be plenty of excitement for the next month.

"Skated into a hole and was drowned." We find that story in almost every exchange we pick up these days. Two lads perished at Port Colborne on Saturday and one at Rice Lake. Boys, be careful!—Hamilton Times.

So Mr. McWilliams has really and truly decided that he will not be a candidate for the mayoralty. Well! it is a shame that he can't aspire for more offices. He wanted the Federal nomination in West Peterborough, he was going to take a try at the mayoralty and he finally winds up by consenting to immolate himself on the altar of Rossism. As a want medium Mr McWilliams beats the advertising columns of a newspaper to a standstill.

By Mr. J. Lockie Wilson a serious charge is brought against the Toronto Globe. Mr. Wilson attended the Conservative conference the other day, and spoke in favor of a clean ballot and an honest count. The organ at once pronounced him a disappointed office seeker, and alleged that he had twice asked the Globe to boom him for a railway commissionership. Now, Mr. Wilson gives his explicit denial of the organ's statement, and charges the editor with falsehood. Everybody who knows Mr. Wilson believes him at once. He is assailed by the organ solely because he is against the ballot-stuffing machine.—Mail and Empire.

At the last convocation of the Glasgow University, the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon the Duchess of Argyll, better known in Canada as the Princess Louise, fourth daughter of Queen Victoria, and wife of the Marquis of Lorne, now Duke of Argyll, who was Governor-General of Canada from 1878 to 1883. The Princess has the reputation of excelling in art, music and sculpture. The bronze statue of her mother, Queen Victoria, now in the officers quarters of the Argyll Light Infantry Belleville is her work presented by Her Royal Highness to the Regiment in acknowledgment of her husband becoming Hon. Col. of that Regiment

The Board of Trade municipal committee met last night and endorsed the names of fifteen well known and progressive citizens who will be requested to allow their names to go on the ballot paper. The selections made are excellent ones and it is hoped that the gentlemen thus honored will stand for election. They are needed. Several good men are retiring this year after long periods of service and it is of vital importance as has already been pointed out in these columns, that equally capable, public spirited and active men should fill their places. It is a hopeful sign to see the Board of Trade taking such energetic interest in the coming contest and using its best endeavors to see that the representative character of the municipal council is kept up to a high standard.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Mrs. W. R. Sutherland, St. Andrew's, Man., writes:—"I was stricken with paralysis and lost power of the tongue and left leg. For six months I obtained no relief either by doctors' prescriptions or other medicines. My husband got me Dr Chase's Nerve Food, which has revitalized my nerves and given me full power of the paralyzed parts. I am strong and well now, thanks to this great medicine."

CLYDESDALE NEWS.

Winter has set in in earnest. We have very good sleighing for the past week, and many are enjoying it by the look of all the new cutters flying up and down the street.

Clydesdale cheese factory settled on the 4th very satisfactorily, paying $19.01 per standard clear of expenses.

Messrs. Campbell and Manogue have turned up after ten days' absence to the Toronto conference, looking braver than ever after their vacation.

We are all pleased to see Mr. Blackburn making return trips from Apsley to Coe Hill with mail, a want that has been greatly felt.

We are pleased to notice Miss Sarah Gerrard is able to be around to visit her friends once more.

Miss Stella Hynes has been the guest of Mrs. Gerrard for a few days.

Mrs. Gerrard and family spent a very pleasant evening at Mr. A. Trotter's last week. Mr. Kelly, of Bancroft, and Mr. Nugent passed through here last week on business. Mr. Fred Remington went to Coe Hill last Saturday. Mr. James Mahoney, our storekeeper, has a big stock of goods.

Mr. James Trotter is able to be about again. Mr. John Trotter is now ready to run for Reeve for the coming year.

Mr. Joseph Trotter is running a lumber camp in Anstruther. Mr. Max Hilson is trapping and hunting this season. He is not making a success of it.

Mr. Harry Fletcher paid a flying visit here last Saturday. Mr. Jas. Scott is running a camp near Coe Hill.

Fowl and hogs are catching grief this week preparing for Xmas.

A number of the Peterborough young ladies are expected here for Xmas.

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS.

Bank Changes—Two Young Men Marry—Musical Gossip—Others Notes.

Mr. S. B. Gammoret, of Milverton, has taken charge of the cash department in the Sovereign Bank here

Mr G. B. Clark, of Montreal, is acting as junior clerk in the Sovereign Bank, replacing Mr P. Lannigan, who goes to Stirling

Miss A. Armstrong and Miss H. Shaunessy, of Hastings, were the guests of Mrs. Chas Armstrong on Friday of last week.

Mr Thos. Fraser was in town on Friday last on business

Miss Mary Dineen spent a couple of days visiting friends in Peterborough last week

Mr. William Dineen was in town on Saturday

Mr. W. Wilde, of this place, and Miss Brown, of Trent Bridge, were quietly married on Wednesday of last week.

One of our genial young men, Mr Geo. Anderson, took unto himself a wife in Napanee last week

Election for County Commissioners is to take place this year, and some little interest is beginning to spring up. Mr. T. Curtis, Mr H. G. Buck and Mr. Jas. Andrews, are the only names mentioned so far in this locality.

It is said there will be quite a contest in the Township of Belmont this year for the Reeveship. Mr. Jas. Peoples and the present Reeve, Mr. Joseph Johnston, are the likely opponents.

In the village matters are pretty quiet, although it is thought municipal honors are likely to be sought by quite a number who have not heretofore aspired.

Miss M. Renzin spent Sunday visiting her friend, Miss L. Robson, at Tweed.

Mr. D. L. Somerville is working very hard in order to make the school concert on the 21st a grand success.

The three assistant teachers of the Public School staff have resigned.

Mr. Thos. Smith, son of Mr. Baldus Smith, while working in the yard here on Monday morning met with a very painful accident. It seems he was engaged in shunting a van on one of the tracks, and in passing in front of the moving car, his foot caught in one of the switches, throwing him on the rails, one of the car wheels passing over the right leg near the knee. Dr. Holdcroft was called and accompanied him on the morning train to the Nicholls Hospital in Peterborough, where he is doing as well as can be expected

We are pleased to learn that Miss Nellie McAllister, daughter of Mr C. B. McAllister, conductor on the local from Tweed to Toronto, is doing as well as can be expected. Dr. Holdcroft who operated on her for appendicitis on Saturday, is to be congratulated on his success in this line.

According to the Toronto Star, Winchester will play goal, and Harold Armstrong rover for the Marlboros. The Star says, concerning the latter: "Armstrong, who has been ill, made his first appearance last night at practice and made a fine impression. He is a fine stick handler and a very speedy all-round player."

Waverleys and Marlboros meet in a city championship game Saturday night, when it will be shown whether Waverleys are of senior calibre. However, it might be well to first ascertain whether or not the Dukes are up to the mark. When you weed out Eddie Geroux and Tom Phillips from last year's team, it doesn't look like a pennant proposition by any means. —Toronto Telegram. The Telegram seems to forget that Winchester and Mercer are available for goal, both of which could give Geroux points, and beat him at his own game; and if Harold Armstrong isn't at least as fast as Phillips, the latter must have wings.

A large number of players, senior and junior, were out at the rink last evening, and an hour's hard work was indulged in. Morgan and Cavanagh were out for the first time this season and showed good form, the latter's rushes being one of the features of the practice. Other players out were Graham, Parnell, Greene, Ford, Shaw, Ferguson, Kingsmote, McFarlane, Hall, Carmichael, Winch, Hamilton.

The Marlboros had a good turnout last night, when Harold Armstrong, the crack cover-point of last season's Peterborough team, made his first appearance. Armstrong will figure on the forward line until Dr. Wright goes away, and should make one of the best of the lot. The Marlboro team will likely be:

Goal—Not decided.
Point—Charlton.
Cover—Wright.
Forwards—(Winchester, Birmingham, captain; Armstrong, Hall, Redpath, Clemes

This will give the champions a good lot to choose from and when Dr. Wright leaves town, Armstrong will be moved up to cover.—Toronto News

Severe Cold in the Chest.

"My fourteen-year-old boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and he has not been troubled since."—Mrs. J. Provost, Renfrew, Ont.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS--1904.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received, at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognized agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully become accessories.

ADMINISTRATION

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandisement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to, pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st. The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd. The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localization of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,
Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

EX-M.P.P.'S REWARDED

Appointments By Moribund Government On Election Eve.

Liberal Doctrine Again Shattered—John Richardson Appointed Clerk of York County and Sam Russell Registrar of Deeds For Hastings—North Grey Charges Against a Cabinet Minister Burked By Premier Ross' Resort to Dissolution

Toronto, Dec. 14.—It had been expected by all parties that the announcement of the dissolution of the Legislature was to be made this morning, but the news from North Grey on Monday night proved to be so disconcerting that a hasty decision was taken to close off the investigation of Hon. A. G. Mackay's election campaign by immediate action. Further embarrassment is thus saved to the Government.

The Premier held a Cabinet Council in the afternoon yesterday, in the course of which John Richardson of East York received the reward for which he so long a time has patiently waited. Mr. Richardson is now clerk of the county court for York County. Samuel Russell, six years member for East Hastings, was appointed registrar of deeds for the County of Hastings, and Cawthra Mulock a trustee of the General Hospital, in place of G. H. Gooderham, resigned.

Mr. Ross stated that he had two meetings almost arranged for an early date, the particulars of which will be announced to-day. It is understood that he will address eighteen or twenty meetings during the campaign.

Both parties are fairly well prepared for the struggle throughout the province.

Mr. Whitney On Deck.

J. P. Whitney arrived at the Queen's from Morrisburg and was in council with his brother, J. J. Foy, K.C., and Dr. R. A. Pyne for some time. He stated that he would have no announcement to make until to-day.

Besides Messrs. Stratton, Russell and Richardson, the Hon. Elihu Davis, Jim Connee and J. R. Barber are among the Liberals who will not again sit in Queen's Park. The Conservatives all expect to return and bring a dozen more with them.

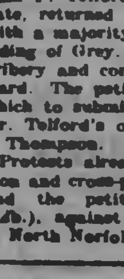
The Clerk of the House, Col. Clark, finds himself busy on the dissolution of the House, for on him devolves the charge of the machinery by which a new Legislature is assembled. He sends out official papers to the returning officers, and prepares the ballot papers.

Now Three Protests.

Toronto, Dec. 14.—There was only one protest received yesterday by Registrar Holmstead. Four o'clock was the time when period should expire for protests to be filed, and those who expected several to come in at the last moment were disappointed.

Early in the day, however, James Baird, acting for the petitioner, John Agar, County of Grey, appeared with a protest against the election of William P. Telford, the Liberal candidate, returned in the recent contest, with a majority of 23, for the north riding of Grey. The usual charges of bribery and corruption were put forward. The petitioner has a week in which to submit his specific charges. Mr. Telford's opponent was Thomas I. Thompson.

Protests already filed are the petition and cross-petition in Wentworth, and the petition of Hal Donley (Lib.), against Col. Tisdale (Con.), in North Norfolk.



That Whoop!

Have you had it in your house? It's cough and cough and cough, and then that terrible whoop! Don't upset the stomach more by giving nauseous medicine. Just let the child breathe in the soothing vapor of Vapo-Cresolene. It goes right to the spot that's diseased. Relief is immediate, and in a very few days the cure is complete. You can't say the same of any other treatment. For asthma, catarrh, and colds it's equally good.

TRAINS BLOCKED BY SNOW.

Storm Raging On Atlantic Coast Seriously Impedes Traffic.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 14.—The snowstorm which began Monday seriously impeding trolley traffic and steam railroad business during the night, raged yesterday morning with apparently unabated strength. Up to 8 o'clock eleven inches of snow had fallen in this city. On all the lines of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad in the northern part of Connecticut the morning trains were all behind their schedule, in some instances two to four hours late.

Worst Storm in Years.

Wood's Hole, Mass., Dec. 14.—The snowstorm which raged here all night was one of the worst that has struck Cape Cod in recent years. Cable communication with Nantucket was cut off, and telegraph and telephone lines on the Cape were working badly.

Schooner Goes Ashore.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Dec. 14.—A three-masted schooner, lumber-laden, went ashore during the night on Squash Meadow Shoal, off this port, and it is believed to be in a dangerous condition. A high wind and a tremendous sea prevented tugs from venturing out.

Crew of Ten Drowned.

Glasgow, Dec. 14.—A small steamer was driven ashore in a gale yesterday morning near the mouth of the Spey. The whole crew, numbering ten, were drowned.

Gale Sweeps Gulf.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 14.—The worst gale in fifteen years swept this island Monday night. The barque Fanny and the schooners Hibernia, Tidal Wave and Harold Parks were driven ashore and totally wrecked. Many other vessels were damaged. A number of ships, including the steamers Sicily, Neptune, Algerine and Damara, and several sailing craft have been delayed by the storm.

MAN BLOWN TO PIECES.

Charge of Dynamite Explodes in Shaft of Power Company.

Niagra Falls, Dec. 14.—At 1 p.m. yesterday a serious explosion of dynamite occurred at the top of one of the shafts of the Toronto Power Company's construction on the Douglas contract, near Parke River power house, blowing one man to pieces, more or less injuring eight others, some seriously. One of the injured men is Patrick Mullin of this town. Several of the injured are colored men and Pollock laborers. The man blown to pieces was the man handling the dynamite. He was known as the "Powder Monkey." A full box of dynamite exploded; cause unknown.

Killed By M.C.R. Express.

Niagara Falls, Dec. 14.—Samuel Axleby, employe of the Ontario Silver Works, was killed by Michigan Central, No. 4, eastbound express, about 7.25 yesterday morning. He was about 65 years of age.

Secret of Admiration.

"I have a great admiration for the Moors," declared Miss Elderly.

"I think I can tell why," from her best chum. "Their women never celebrate a birthday and make it a point of honor not to tell their ages."

A Little Mixed.

Reggie, inspecting a new arrangement of Nannie's hair, exclaimed: "Nannie, you don't look like yourself with your hair that way. But" (admiringly) "you look better when you don't look like yourself than when you do."

ON WAY TO CLEVELAND.

Mrs. Chadwick Left New York Tuesday Night At 8 O'Clock.

New York, Dec. 14.—Mrs. Chadwick started for Cleveland on the Buffalo Limited, which left the Grand Central Station, on the New York Central, at 8 o'clock last night.

Before leaving she made a statement, in which she declared that she would pay all her obligations and that her sole purpose in going was to face her creditors. She said that she could have obtained bail here if she wished to, and that one of the most prominent men in the country had offered yesterday to go on her bond.

Mrs. Chadwick left here in custody of U. S. Marshal Henkel and Deputy Marshals Kumb and Kelker. Marshal Henkel said that he would leave the train at Poughkeepsie, but that the other marshals would go on to Cleveland with the prisoner. The train is scheduled to arrive in Cleveland at 10 minutes before noon to-day.

Carnegie Has Lumbago.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 14.—District Attorney Sullivan last night received word from Andrew Carnegie that he was suffering from lumbago and would not be able to attend the grand jury investigation which commences to-day. Mr. Carnegie will, however, attend the trial of Mrs. Chadwick when it comes off.

Child Murder Case.

Sherbrooke, Que., Dec. 14.—In the La Patrie-Foquet child murder case, where the accused was arrested for the alleged murder of his step-daughter over a year ago, the examination of witnesses was completed on Saturday afternoon, after lasting fourteen days. The addresses of the defence to the jury started Monday, and yesterday the Crown lawyers began. The jury retired late yesterday afternoon for the consideration of their verdict.

Curzon Re-Assumes Office.

Calcutta, Dec. 14.—Lord Curzon reassumed office yesterday morning as Viceroy of India. There was a brilliant gathering in the Council Chamber to witness the ceremony.

More Russ Ships Seen.

Lisbon, Dec. 14.—Twenty-one vessels of the Russian second Pacific Squadron have arrived at Mossamedes, Portuguese West Africa, bound east.

Thirteen Nova Scotia Protests.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Word comes from Halifax that thirteen protests against members-elect in the recent Dominion elections are to be entered in Nova Scotia on grounds of general wholesale corruption. It is said to be settled that protests will not be entered in Digby, Annapolis, Guysboro and Hants.

Their Seats Protested.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Messrs. Gallery, M.P., Liberal, of St. Anne's, and Ames, Conservative, in St. Antoine, are the two seats in this district that have been protested.

Another Protest.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—It is learned that the election of Mr. Hunt, Liberal M.P. for Compton, has been contested.

Protests in the West.

Regina, N.W.T., Dec. 14.—Three petitions were entered at the Court House here yesterday afternoon against the return of Conservative members to the Dominion House. They were directed against the elections of R. S. Lake in Qu' Appelle; Maitland S. McCarthy in Calgary, and John Heron in Alberta. The charges made are the usual ones, and the court has directed that Justices Sifton and Penredgrast will sit on the Alberta and Qu' Appelle cases, while Justices Whitmore and Newlands will try the Calgary case.

Fire in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 14.—Fire broke out shortly before midnight in the wholesale house of O. H. Peck & Co., furnishers, and is spreading rapidly. Relief from St. Paul has been asked. The loss, it is feared, will be heavy. There is a strong wind blowing from the north, carrying the flames toward the retail district.

That $2 Tax

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The case of Gardiner, the student of Guelph Agricultural College, who was taxed $2 at Detroit on his way to the World's Fair, has been submitted to the Deputy Minister of Labor, W. L. MacKenzie King, who will report upon it without delay.

Soda and Magnesia Lakes.

The soda and magnesia lakes of Wyoming are estimated to cover an area of 1,028 acres. They are found in Albany and Carbon counties and represent the beds of natural basins now nearly dry. The lakes containing sodium sulphate have an area of 708 acres, with an average depth of about five feet, which means a holding of 4,900,000 tons of soda.

Looking Ahead.

The Senior Partner—I don't see how you can charge the money you've spent on that impecunious young fellow up as business expenses. The Young Lawyer—That's simple enough. He has a rich uncle that is sick, and there's going to be a lovely contest over his will.

Pretty Solemn.

Father (who has been called upon in the city and asked for his daughter's hand)—Louise, do you know what a solemn thing it is to be married? Louise—Oh, yes, pa, but it is a good deal more solemn being single.

The Next Train.

Traveler—When is the next train out? Station Master—Twelve o'clock, sir. Traveler—What! Isn't there one before that? Station Master—No, sir; we never run one before the next.

No man ever yet got his sidewalk shoveled off by sitting down and pondering the depth of last year's snow.—Boston Globe.

EARL GREY IN OTTAWA

His Excellency the Governor-General, Heartily Welcomed.

During the Afternoon the City Council Presented An Address to His Excellency—Earl Grey's Reply Was Inspiring and Advised Canadians to Keep Their Characters High and Morals—Basis of Nation's World Influence Stated.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The new vice-regal regime opened in Ottawa yesterday under most favorable circumstances. His Excellency Earl Grey and party arrived in the capital at 11 o'clock in the morning and were given a right royal welcome by hundreds of citizens. The trip from Halifax to Ottawa was greatly enjoyed and was made in the record time of 35 hours. It was an ideal winter day, cold but bright and bracing. Flags and bunting in profusion made the station platform very attractive. As the train pulled in sharp on time, a detachment of the Second Field Battery thundered out a salute of 19 guns. Earl and Lady Grey and party, on stepping off the train, were greeted by a royal salute from the band and guard of honor, and by enthusiastic cheers from the assembled throng. After inspecting the troops the vice-regal party took their seats in the comfortable fur arranged carriages and, accompanied by the mounted escort of dragoons, drove to Rideau Hall. Among those at the station to extend a welcome were: Brigadier-General Lake, Lord Aylmer and the officers of the headquarters staff, Sir Elzear Taschereau, Sir Richard Cartwright, Acting Prime Minister; Hon. Sydney Fisher and Hon. R. W. Scott representing the Cabinet, the Mayor, aldermen and civic officials.

Address of Welcome.

Yesterday afternoon, the Mayor, aldermen and officials drove to Rideau Hall and presented a civic address of welcome. They were received by Col. Hanbury Williams, military secretary; Capt. Newton, A.D.C., and Capt. Toller, A.D.C., and were assigned a position to the right of the raised dias. Shortly after their Excellencies, with their daughters, Lady Sybil and Lady Evelyn, entered. Col. Williams presented the Mayor, who read the civic address, which was handed to His Excellency in illuminated book form, by City Clerk Henderson. His Excellency made a patriotic reply, expressing appreciation of the cordial welcome which he said he did not take as personal, but because he came as a representative of His Majesty the King. His Majesty, he said, remembers with pleasure his visit to Canada, in 1860, and is pleased at the remarkable development taking place in the Dominion. In conclusion, he said:

Canada's Influence.

"If you will keep the character of your people high, strenuous, virile, imaginative, heroic, and imperial, no one can venture to set a limit to the degree of the influence which will be exercised on the future of mankind by the great Canadian nation composed as it is of all that is best in England, Scotland, Ireland and France, and privileged as it is to be a factor of ever increasing importance in the British Empire. There is no reason why the sons of Canada should not, in the life-time of your children, by reason of their numbers and of their character, exercise an all powerful, and in time to come, perhaps a controlling influence on the development of the majesty and destiny of the Empire whose standard is righteousness and whose path is duty."

Refreshments were then served and the aldermen were presented to the members of the vice-regal party. Last evening the party attended the Russell Theatre.

Boston Men For Reciprocity.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—The probability of the British-American joint high commission being reconvened to consider reciprocity between the United States and Canada is increasing daily. Pressure in this direction is being brought to bear from all sides. Negotiations are in progress looking to a determination as to whether anything could be accomplished by a meeting of the commission. It is desired that an understanding be reached in advance. A delegation from Boston, comprising Messrs. Hill, Webster and Andrews, after seeing the President, called on Senator Fairbanks yesterday. He promised to take the matter under consideration.

Traveler Ends His Life.

London, Dec. 14.—Rufus Cobleigh, a traveler, committed suicide at his home, 58 South Euclid avenue, London, yesterday morning by cutting his throat with a razor. Cobleigh was 55 years of age, and one of the oldest employes of Frost & Wood, implement manufacturers. His accounts were straight. No reason whatever can be assigned for the act. Cobleigh left a note, saying that he was afraid he was going insane.

Gendarmes Fire On Mob.

Madrid, Dec. 14.—During the feast of the Virgin at Valencia, a procession of 600 women, bearing lighted tapers to the cathedral, came in conflict with a Republican demonstration, and a general fight ensued. Gendarmes fired several rounds from their carbines into the mob. Many persons, including women, were wounded.

Von Plehve's Assassins Sentenced.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 14.—The trial of Sasonoff, who assassinated Interior Minister Von Plehve in July last, and of Sikerifsky, his accomplice, took place yesterday behind closed doors before the Court of Appeals, and resulted in the sentencing of Sasonoff to penal servitude for life and Sikerifsky to 20 years' penal servitude.

EARNEST PLEA FOR MISSIONS

Conference Held in St. Andrew's Church Largely Attended.

STIRRING ADDRESSES GIVEN.

Searchlight Turned on Conditions and Needs of Foreign Fields, and How They are Being Met—Rev. Dr. McKay, Rev. Dr. McTavish and Rev. Mr. Gandier Present.

An important feature in connection with the meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery yesterday was the missionary conference held in the evening. Three prominent clergymen of Toronto attended, Rev. Dr. McKay, Foreign Mission Secretary; Rev. Alfred Gandier, B.D., of St. James' Square, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. McTavish, of the Central Presbyterian Church. Prior to the conference, the members of the Presbytery attended an enjoyable luncheon served by the ladies of St. Andrew's in the Guild room. The Moderator, Rev. C. S. Lord, was in the chair, and besides the ministers of the Presbytery there were present Mayor Roger, Ald. McWilliams, R. E. Wood, W. C. Forman, Alf. Johnston, F. E. Kerr, G. E. Gillespie, Robt. Harrison, Wm. Fowler, Jas. Girven, Thos. Petrie, J. D. Tully, Warden Hunter, Alex. Skene, Thos. Eason, J. S. Ferguson, Wm. Stephens, David Anderson, Michael Barr, Jonathan Smith, J. H. Taylor, Jas. M. Drummond, John Mathieson, H. M. Lloyd, Thos. Bourke and others. A vote of thanks was tendered the ladies on motion of Rev. Mr. Gandier and Rev. Mr. Beattie, of Cobourg. Short addresses with reference to missions were made by Rev. Mr. Gandier, Rev. Dr. McKay, Rev. Dr. McTavish, and welcoming sentiments were expressed by Mayor Roger, R. E. Wood and Ald. McWilliams.

Rev. D. D. McDonald, of Keene, presided at the Conference. There was a large attendance, and enjoyable vocal selections were given during the evening by St. Andrew's choir, Miss Florence Miller and Miss Bryce, of Keene.

FOREIGN MISSION NEEDS.

Rev. Dr. McTavish, pastor of the Central Church, Toronto, was first called upon, and he explained that the Conference was called to consider the interests of Foreign Mission work, in order to get a clear view of its conditions and its needs. These were becoming more manifest since light by missionary enterprise and exploration was being turned upon new lands. They were lying in darkness and illustrations were cited in explanation of this fact, giving also glimpses into sorrowing, saddened humanity of heathened lands. There were 800,000,000 people on earth in this 20th century, the great majority of whom knew nothing about Christ.

With meetings, Bibles and privileges such as they had, men and women of Christian lands could not be indifferent to these things. They had the remedy in the Word of God, and the present was the opportunity. By the result of modern facility these places were now at the door as compared to years ago, and were accessible. In India, where missionaries were persecuted 25 years ago, and likewise in China, they were now welcome. The equipment was available and men and women were stating their readiness to go. In view of these facts there was an obligation upon all Christian people in the sight of their fellow-men and in the sight of God.

WORK OF CHURCH.

Speaking with regard to the work in connection with the Presbyterian Church, the speaker said there were nine distinct fields, three of which, New Hebrides, Trinidad and Corea, were under the jurisdiction of the Northern churches, and there were six under the charge of the Western Church, the Northwest, the 20,000 Chinese in Canada, the field of Macao, China, Central India, in Formosa and in Honan. All occupied signally important positions. The difficulty was that the Church was not able to make desirable extensions or to take advantage of opportunities. On the other hand, some retrenchment had been necessary. The Foreign Mission Committee did not want to do this, yet there was a deficit of $30,000. The Honan Mission had been destroyed by the Boxer rebellion and emergency work had involved additional expense. The Church was standing by the work. The speaker questioned whether the Church at home was doing enough; he was sure he could shame the people with figures. In 14 Presbyteries of the Western Church only four were giving sufficient to support one missionary. In the Presbytery of Peterborough there was paid only 25 cents per communicant, or 50 cents per family for carrying on this enterprise. He was sure that if an enterprise promising large dividends were the cause, there would be hearty response. The people could do better for this great work, if they realised the importance and responsibility of it. Men in the Presbyterian and other churches had given their lives for it, and prayers, sympathies and means were asked of the people at home.

HONAN MISSION.

Rev. Mr. Gandier, pastor of St. James Square Church, Toronto, was introduced. He explained that his part was to tell the story of the origin and growth of the field at Honan, thus affording a concrete illustration of the demands of the work. There was no doubt that out of the great religious revival in Britain there had come the interest in Foreign Mission. Spiritual quickening had been the cause of the opening of the field of Honan. The students who had enlisted in the work had created a religious revival, and there were enquiries as to what possible means were available to advance missionary work, young men pledging to support one of their number to enter the field on behalf of the Church in Canada. Dr. J. F. Smith was the first to take up the matter, and at Knox College he met Jonathan Goforth. Before they parted they agreed to place themselves before the Association of their own college. The result was an amount raised by subscriptions among the Alumni of Knox and a successful start was assured. J. F. Smith now brought the question before Queen's University, offering himself for mission work. The students pledged themselves to support him in the field, and that winter they subscribed $600.

The Missionary Society agreed to the proposition that these two men be sent to Honan. In that province of 15,000,000 there was not then one settled missionary. There were now no other Protestant churches represented there, and the Presbyterians were responsible for the work. Dr. McLure offered himself as a medical missionary and was despatched thither. He was soon followed by several others, who were supported mostly by congregations. Thus had spiritual quickening among the students of colleges had the effect of giving the foreign mission work a marked impetus. The Presbytery of Honan represented a genuine church of Christ.

DIFFICULT YEARS.

The first years in Honan had been marked by hostilities. In 1894 the work was making good progress, but here appeared a period of trial, the band being depleted largely by illness, and there were many conditions that caused great difficulty. Again there was another revival—these having been home on furlough returning, bringing others with them. The Boxers rebellion had the effect of making it necessary for missionaries to leave. In two years, however, they were able to return. They found that their houses had been destroyed, but the seed of God's Word still remained, the result being a changed attitude of the people which made up for all suffering and loss. It was now possible to extend the field and strong centres of work had been established. The spirit of heroism was not dead in the church, and if there were men who could dedicate their lives, could not the people more generously support the work? One of the young men on the ground had volunteered to give $2,000, his inherited patrimony, to the cause. Did not the Presbyterian Church in Canada consider the investment a good and a worthy one? His opinion was that the people would deem it a privilege to contribute their share.

THE MISSION SECRETARY.

Rev. Dr. McKay, Secretary of Foreign Missions, made a strong appeal. About three years ago he said a minister and elder from Ailsa Craig came to the committee and stated that their church was not doing enough for missions. They pointed out, further, that if they were given a missionary they would give $500 a year. Mr. Bruce volunteered for the work. Recently the sum had been raised by $100 by Norwood congregation. Mr. Bruce was now laboring in Honan. What missionaries asked was that their be one of their number to every county, or from 200,000 to 300,000 souls, one-fiftieth of the whole. He was sure that the Presbytery of Peterborough could be responsible for 12 missionaries in foreign fields. The world was lying open, and possession must be taken for the cause of Christianity. The wealth of civilized countries was growing geometrically. In the last eleven years there had been donations for benevolent and educational purposes in the United States of $610,000,000, and two-thirds of it came within the last five years, counting contributions only of $5,000 and over. The tide was coming that way, and the men being available and strategic points opened, the day was approaching when the Gospel would be preached to every people. Multiply the missionary staff to-day by six and this result would be realized. Dr. McKay said the world was on the eve of a revival that would claim it for Christ. He urged the importance of the responsibility of the work. He referred with pleasure to the fact that Dr. McDonald's congregation in Keene had been the first in the Presbytery to undertake a missionary. It was a glorious privilege to be a partner in such a work.

The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Gaudier and the benediction by Rev. Dr. McDonald.

TO-NIGHT'S MEETING.

Number of Important By-laws to be Considered by Aldermen.

The Town Council will meet this this evening to consider a number of important by-laws. The Aldermen will meet the representatives of the power companies in committee for the purpose of further discussing the by-law providing for the regulation of pole and wire lines on the streets. An open meeting will follow, and it is likely that the by-law will pass. Ald. Mason's by-law for the appointment of a sanitary inspector, Ald. Adams' measure, which, if passed, will give the people an opportunity to say whether a change is desirable in the manner of paying for granolithic walks, and Ald. Morrison's by-law, which will call upon the people to say whether they desire application made for the incorporation of the town as a city, will also be brought up. The session will therefore be a long one.

The statutary meeting of the Council will be held to-morrow evening.

THEIR TERMS ARE UP

Eight Members of the Board of Education Reach the Limit.

The terms of several members of the Board of Education expire with this year. Mr. Robert Fair and Mr. Vincent Eastwood, who were appointed by the Council, have reached the limit, as well as Mr. J. J. McBain, representative from Ward One; Dr. Burnham, Ward 2; Mr. Wrighton, Ward Three; Mr. Wm. Pringle, Ward Four; and Mr. R. B. Rogers of Ward Five. The terms of Mr. L. M. Hayes, representing the Separate Schools, will also expire with this year. It is likely that all of these gentlemen will seek re-election.

TAXES STILL COMING IN Comparatively Small Amount Still to be Collected—A Good Record.

The total amount of collectable taxes for Peterborough during 1904 was $108,607,54. Of this amount Mr. J. W. Green, the collector, has taken in about $100,000, and still returns are coming in very well. Mr. Green wants to hand in his books by the first of the year, and those in arrears should call and pay up, as it is desirable that the books for 1904 be audited this year much earlier than has formerly been the case. By the coming in of Ashburnham there is an extra amount of $8,843.76 to be collected. The record of the year is one on which Mr. Green, as the collector, is to be complimented on. It emphasises the fact that, in him the town has a very efficient official.

PROGRESSIVE ENTERPRISE

Mr. Herb. Kendry's Hennery is Meeting with Great Success.

Mr. Herb. Kendry is evincing a commendable policy of progressiveness in connection with his extensive poultry-raising establishment in North Monaghan. There is just now being completed a building 198 feet in length, which will answer practically the same purpose as the green sward did in the summer time, for the colony houses. This building has now for its occupants some 1462 pullets and cockerels from two to three months old. The buildings now on the farm represent a length of 370 feet. There are at present 296 chickens fattening for the market, the plan being to place the birds in crates, four to each, and feed them until they have developed the qualities which bring good prices. This process takes twenty-one days.

The hennery is a great producer of eggs, there being 300 laying hens, all about five months old. An incubator house has also been built, and a heating system is being installed by McPherson and McGregor.

The raising of squabs is another department of enterprise on the farm, and it bids fair to become a most profitable one. There are some 220 of these birds now ready for market, and there are over 160 old birds.

Mr. Kendry, a few days ago lost a valuable hound from his kennels. The animal walked out on the thin ice of the river. It was not strong enough to sustain him and, going through, he was swept away by the current. Monk was one of the best and considerable regret was felt at his loss. One of the finest partridge dogs in the country is Pete, a cocker spaniel, for which Mr. Kendry is repeatedly receiving offers, but he would hardly part with the animal for its weight in gold.

It is pleasing to note that Mr. Kendry is realizing that his hennery has been an excellent investment.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF.

In the Case of Wilson & Co. Against John Mann.

A session of the County Court was held yesterday afternoon with his Honor Judge Weller presiding. The only case on the docket was that of Wilson & Company, manufacturers of bakers' machinery, Toronto, against John Mann, baker. Some time ago plaintiff sold defendant a dough moulding machine, for which a contract was duly signed. Upon delivery, however, defendant claimed it was a different kind of machine to what he had ordered and refused to accept. The Court, however, held that when Mr. Mann signed the contract, he understood what he was signing and so held him liable for it. Judgment of $460 and costs was given for the plaintiff. F. W. Medd and W. S. Davidson for the plaintiffs D. W. Dumble for defendant. The case began at one o'clock and was concluded at eleven.

The general sessions of the County Court are being held in the Judge's Chambers to-day for the selection of jurors.

RINK TO OPEN.

Radial Railway Company's Big Sheet of Ice Will be Ready by Friday.

The Radial Railway Company's rink will be opened on Friday night next and special preparations are being made for the event. Over 100 lights have been installed, each covered with a Chinese lantern. They will radiate from a high pole in the centre of the 2,500 square feet of ice, and the effect will be a brilliant one. The car service will be a good one. In addition to George-st. cars, the Canadian General and Jackson Park cars will run down to the rink, and at 10.30, when the rink closes, all will be lined up in order to permit people for different parts of the town to reach their destination without transfer. The opening will be a grand affair and doubtless a large number will attend. Passengers by street railway are admitted free.

NEW MORTUARY CHAPEL.

Thos. Gilburd, Esq., Uncle of Wm. Salisbury Presents One to Cobourg.

The dedication of the new mortuary chapel, at the Union Cemetery, Cobourg, took place on Friday last and was attended with appropriate ceremonies. The donor of the chapel, Mr. Thos. Gilbord, is the uncle of Mrs. Wm. Salisbury, of town. The Cobourg World says:—

"Through Mr. Gilbord's generosity in its erection, a long-felt want has been met and one which will tend greatly to the health and comfort of citizens. The inscription to be placed on the front of the chapel is as follows:—

"To the glory of God, this Chapel was erected, A.D., 1904 by Thomas Gilbord, Esq., of Cobourg, in loving memory of his only sister, Jane Gilbord Small, who died at Orono, June 12, 1880; and of her only son, William Thomas Small, who was cruelly murdered in his own home at Eskridge, Kansas, U.S.A., Nov. 9, 1903. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." Following is an extract from a resolution expressing public appreciation:—

"Mr. Gilbord's action in presenting such a suitable and artistic building is appreciated to the very greatest possible extent and we hereby beg him to accept the sincere and heartfelt thanks, not alone of those now and here assembled, but of all the citizens now residing in this locality and those who may come after us in the days that are to come."

GIFT TO REV. J. G. POTTER.

These are the days of Christmas gifts, and Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's church, is not immune. The other day he was the recipient of a very handsome fur-lined overcoat, the gift of Mrs. W. J. Maxwell, of Brock st., who for many years has been a member of his congregation, and took this means of expressing her appreciation toward him. As the gift is calculated to impart warmth so, too, does it inspire in its recipient a deep feeling of gratitude for the very kind-hearted action on the part of one of St. Andrew's members.

BOYD ON NEW TACK.

Looking for Woman to Assist Him on Dairy Farm.

Mr. C. J. Boyd, of Coldwater, the man in quest of a wife, states that he has not yet succeeded in making satisfactory arrangements looking towards matrimony. The trifle which seems to stand in the way at the present time is that he has not found it possible as yet to find the woman who measures up to his ideal. He however, intends to take up a new line very soon. It is understood that Mr. R. H. Jackson, of the [illegible] has offered Mr. Boyd a position as manager of a large dairy farm near Peterborough. The only obstacle that seems to hinder the winding-up of the deal is the lack of a proper female assistant, and such a person Mr. Boyd is now anxious to secure. He would be obliged to receive any information that would make him acquainted with such a one.

Keeping Up Your Courage.

There is first the belief that we are well and capable of continuing so. That is nothing more than faith in our own human powers. It is a faith that every self respecting person should have. Do not abuse the organs of the body, and then there will be no necessity of thinking of them and wondering if they are working all right. By dwelling too much upon some weakness we can always aggravate it through nervous reaction. This in some cases can become such a confirmed habit that serious troubles will be induced. There are many patients in the world today who might be up and around, enjoying good health, if they but willed that they should do so. They are invalids through lack of force of character, for will makes character of one sort or another.

A Victim of Small Beer.

A correspondent sends to the London Public Opinion the following quaint epitaph on what is known as "Thetcher's Stone" at Winchester, England: "In memory of Thomas Thetcher, a grenadier in the North regiment of Hents militia, who died of violent fever contracted by drinking small beer when hot the 12th of May, 1764, aged twenty-six years. In grateful remembrance of whose universal good will toward his comrades this stone is placed here at their expense, as a small testimony of their regard and concern.

"Here sleeps in peace a Hampshire grenadier
Who caught his death by drinking cold small beer.
Soldiers, be wise from his untimely fall
And when you're hot drink strong or none at all.

"An honest soldier never is forgot.
Whether he die by musket or by pot."

The Sikh's Five K's.

General Gordon, a British officer who has written a book on the Sikhs, the celebrated fighters of India, says that the signs by which you may know a Sikh are these: He never cuts his hair, but wears his beard looped up over his ears; he never smokes nor touches tobacco, because that is the privilege of the Mohammedan, but he is allowed to drink spirits and is a great consumer of opium. Finally, he must have about his person the five K's, which General Gordon thus enumerates: Kes, long hair of the head, as the Sikh must never cut his hair or beard; kangi, comb to secure the hair tied up in a knot on top of the head; kaceh, breeches reaching to the knee; kard, knife, and kirpan, sword.

The Bird's Superior Eye.

The sight of birds is extraordinary, and the simple fact that the eye of a hawk and a pigeon is larger than their whole brain gives some idea of what their powers of sight must be and of how easily they can fly hundreds of miles if they have marks to guide them. Very little attention has yet been given by eye surgeons to the eye of the bird and other animals, from which so much is to be learned.—London Mail.

Croup Comes Suddenly.

HENCE THE WISDOM OF KEEPING IN THE HOUSE THE MOST EFFECTIVE CURE.

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE.

Slight hoarseness in the evening is the only warning of croup.

About midnight the child awakes—coughing—that peculiar metallic—cough called croupy, which strikes terror to the mother's heart.

Then begins the struggle for breath, and if relief is to be obtained treatment must be prompt and effective.

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine as a cure for croup will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success.

It is wonderfully prompt in loosening the cough, clearing the air passages of the head, and soothing the excited nerves.

People who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on, and the danger which accompanies it, usually keep some of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house for use in case of emergency.

For bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma, and every form of throat and bronchial trouble, this great family medicine is a quick and certain cure.

Mrs. E. H. Robinson, Tupperville, Kent Co., Ont., writes:—"My husband and baby had very bad colds and coughs, and seeing Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine advertised I decided to try it. The result was highly satisfactory, as both were promptly cured."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto. To protect you

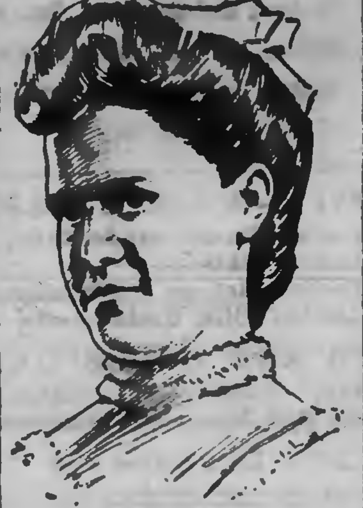
MISS LOTTIE SULLIVAN.

A Clever and Talented Girl, Though Deaf, Dumb and Blind.

One of the most remarkable girls in the world is seventeen-year-old Lottie Sullivan of Denver, whose marvelous powers have been developed through her wonderfully delicate sense of touch.

This girl, who can read and write with proficiency, operate a typewriter and sewing machine, play a piano, dress a doll, cook a dinner, besides numerous other things, may be said to be a rival of Helen Keller, the most remarkable afflicted girl our country has ever produced.

Stricken with disease when she had not yet attained her third year, this girl was deprived of her three most valuable senses, but years of patient training have brought her to a degree of such proficiency in many respects that she goes through life without feeling greatly the loss of speech, sight and hearing.



MISS LOTTIE SULLIVAN.

The home of her parents is in Denver, but during the past seven years Lottie has been under the instruction of Mrs. G. W. Verditz, a teacher in the school for the deaf and blind at Colorado Springs. It has been through the patient and careful training of Mrs. Verditz that Lottie has been taught to read and write and do other things in a perfectly natural way.

So susceptible to concussion is the girl that a person may enter the room in which pupil and teacher are at work without creating vibration enough to attract the teacher's attention, and Lottie will instantly detect the outsider's presence.

Perhaps no greater evidence of her skill has been shown than her use of the typewriter. After becoming familiar with the arrangement of the keyboard she was at once able to write on the machine and has acquired great speed. So acute is her sense of touch that she is able to read the Braille writing through twelve thicknesses of ordinary linen.

Their First Experience.

A day or two ago a Brooklyn clergyman received an evening call from an elderly man and woman, who expressed a wish to be joined in the bonds of matrimony as quickly as possible.

"Have you ever been married before?" asked the clergyman of the man, a good natured, weather beaten person of seafaring aspect.

"Never, and never wanted to be before," was the prompt reply.

"And have you ever been married before?" the question came to the woman.

"No, sir," she replied with equal promptness. And with a touch of humor that appealed to the clergyman at once she added, "I never had a chance."

The marriage ceremony was speedily performed, and the clergyman refused to take any fee, telling the bride, with a twinkle in his eye, that it had been an unusual privilege to officiate.

Valuable Queen Bees.

Just as there are valuable strains in horses, cattle and other stock, so there are varieties of queen bees which are worth many hundred times their weight in gold. The most valuable strain is the Italian, and many Italian bee farmers demand and receive without question prices ranging from $50 to $200 for a single queen bee of a certain kind. Such bees are sent all over the world. The owner of a bee farm near Ottawa, Canada, goes to Europe annually and brings back with him bees of an aggregate value of thousands of dollars. He is enabled through the agency of an Italian firm to effect an insurance upon the most valuable of his queens.

Internally All Right.

A country sexton in England officiated at a funeral clad in a red waistcoat. At the conclusion of the obsequies the vicar gently remonstrated with the old gravedigger, saying: "Robert, you should not wear a red waistcoat at a funeral. You hurt the feelings of the mourners." Robert replied, placing his hand on his breast, "Well, what does it matter, sir, as long as the heart is black?"

The Head of the Family.

"It has come to my ears that you are calling me 'the governor,'" said the old man sternly. "Are you?"

"I might as well admit it," said the young man contritely.

"You ought," continued the old gentleman

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

She could not recover her composure as quickly as he had done; she was trembling. The very knowledge that he had always loved her, that his estrangement even had been part of his love—his jealous love—filled her heart with the deepest emotion. Sir Ralph evidently wished to talk of other things, but she could not.

"And these girls," she said, "Miss May—have you seen her lately?"

"I have had a letter from her," answered Sir Ralph, with a little shrug of his shoulders. "I know where to find her, and I shall call her strictly to account for the mischief she has done."

"That is only right—and yet—"

"Do you not wish me to do this?" asked Sir Ralph quickly.

"I do wish it; but I was thinking—we met, you see, here as strangers—perhaps more mischief might come of it."

"I understand what you mean; but it was such shameful conduct, and to allow her to go unpunished—"

"Still—" hesitated Laura.

"I shall cut her, at all events," said Sir Ralph, grimly; "and she won't like that."

"I suppose—she must like you?"

"She wishes to marry me, I believe," answered Sir Ralph, scornfully, and with a contemptuous shrug.

But by this time they had neared the house, and Sir Ralph did not offer to accompany Laura any farther.

"I will go round by the gun-room," he said. "But we will meet at dinner; and—and—I shall never forget what I have heard to-day."

Laura made no reply to this. She knew also that she would never forget what she had heard that day, but she knew also that she must make no sign. She made haste, therefore, to go into the small drawing-room, where she found quite a large party drinking tea, and otherwise refreshing themselves. Some of the sportsmen had come in, and among them was George Gifford.

"Why, Laura," he said, going up to her as she entered the room, "I've been wondering what had become of you. Lady Danvers said you had gone out to walk in the woods, and I was just going to start out to seek you."

"I have had quite a long walk," answered Laura; "the woods are so beautiful."

"Yes, aren't they jolly, we must go for a walk in them some day."

"Yes."

"But, Laura, I've had a letter from my father by this afternoon's post, and I find that I shall be obliged to go back to Suffold to-morrow on some important business, but I could leave you here and return for you on Friday, if you would like that. Lady Danvers asked you, you know."

Laura was silent for a moment or two, and then she said, slowly:

"No, I think not, George. I think I should rather go back with you."

"Well, just as you like, my dear. Of course I shall be very pleased if you will go back with me, only I did not like to shorten a pleasant visit for you."

"I think I will go with you," answered Laura, with a wistful look in her dark eyes. She was thinking. "I am better away; better out of his sight." But George Gifford could not read her thoughts, and was pleased that his young wife was ready to give up a pleasant visit for his sake. He went and brought her some tea, and he was still standing beside her when Sir Ralph Woodland entered the room, and at once approached the husband and wife.

But he said nothing about his meeting with Laura in the woods. He asked George Gifford about the day's shooting, and the extent of the bag; he spoke, in fact, more to George than to Laura, and presently Laura left them, and went to talk to Lady Danvers and tell her that she proposed to return the next day to Suffold.

But Lady Danvers would not hear of this.

"No," she said, in her pretty way, "I will not allow Mr. Gifford to take you away. I want you to get 'copy'—is that the word?—for your next new novel in the Danvers woods. Mr. Gifford, come here!" And she beckoned to George, who crossed the room to speak to his hostess.

"Mr. Gifford, here is this charming wife of yours telling me that you are beginning to act the tyrant, lord and master already; that because you have to go away to-morrow on [illegible]

George laughed.

"It was Laura's own proposal, Lady Danvers, not mine," he said.

"Well, you see, George, I thought—" began Laura, with a blush.

"You must not think of it any more, then, Mrs. Gifford; your husband will come back for you. Why, you've seen nothing of my mother, nothing of Sir Richard, nothing of me!"

"You are very kind, Lady Danvers, but—"

"I will listen to no 'buts.' Let us settle it for her, Mr. Gifford. When do you propose to return?"

"On Friday," answered George, good-naturedly. "You had better stay, Laura, until then."

They settled it thus. George was to leave for Suffold the next day, Thursday, and return to the Park on Friday, and their visit was to terminate on Saturday.

Laura could scarcely help assenting to this arrangement without rudeness to Lady Danvers, whom she liked so much. She therefore gave way, and glanced half-timidly across the room to where Sir Ralph stood as she did so. He was talking to some men, and he went on talking to them; and after dinner it was the same thing.

He, in fact, made no attempt to speak to her again during the rest of the evening. But Laura noticed that he talked a good deal to George, and George was evidently pleased by this.

"That's a very nice fellow, that Sir Ralph Woodland," he said to Laura afterward; "he's got plenty of common-sense."

"He talks very well," answered Laura.

"Yes; and they say he has a large fortune, so I suppose he'll be getting married soon."

And these careless words gave a fresh pang to Laura's heart. What if he were to get married soon? Would it be better, be happier for them both? Laura knew that it would be, and yet she shrank from the thought as a patient shrinks from the knife. She might keep out of his way, but she did not care to think that another woman should come between them.

She did not see him again until after George was gone. George left early, and there were some fresh arrivals expected during the morning at the Park, Sir Richard and Lady Danvers entertaining during the autumn a continual succession of guests. So Laura sat with her hostess and her venerable mother during the morning in Lady Danvers' boudoir, which was one of the prettiest rooms in the house, with a bay window looking toward the west. Mrs. Lynton, white-haired, aged and dignified, did not say much, but the other two women touched on most of the subjects of the day, chiefly on those vague yearnings which induce many to seek to pierce the veil which wraps the hidden things from our ken.

"It is all such a mystery—such a mystery!" said Laura, rising in some excitement, and going to the bay window which overlooked part of the terrace. "We are born, and we can not help ourselves, we die, and we can not help ourselves; and in life it seems to me that we can not help ourselves either."

"My dear," said Mrs. Lynton's gentle voice, "in one way we can help ourselves, we can lay all our troubles at the feet of our Heavenly Father, and ask his aid to help us to bear them."

"But why have we troubles?" asked Laura.

"I believe to prepare us for the untroubled land hereafter," answered the white-haired lady, whose own lot had not always been a smooth one. "'Who going through the vale of misery use it for a well.' But it is easier for the old to feel this than the young."

Laura made no answer. On the terrace below at this moment appeared the tall gray-clad figure of a man whom Laura instantly recognized—recognized with a sudden tumultuous throbbing at her heart, and a deep flush on her oval cheeks. It was Sir Ralph Woodland, and he found the ladies in the small dining-room when the luncheon hour came.

"Then you are not with the rest, Sir Ralph?" said Lady Danvers, smiling, when she saw him.

"No; I have been in the house all the morning, except for half an hour's smoke on the terrace. I have been writing business letters and returning a love-letter," answered Sir Ralph; and he looked at Laura as he spoke.

"Returning a love-letter?" repeated Lady Danvers, with a laugh. "What an extraordinary proceeding."

"Quite a necessary one, I assure you," said Sir Ralph.

"And the poor girl—are you breaking any one's heart, Sir Ralph?"

"No; I am quite sure I am not. The young lady in this case has no heart to break."

To be continued.

—At this season of the year storekeepers should be on the alert for parties who are in the habit of taking things and not paying for the same. On Saturday afternoon a woman visited a well-known jewellery store in this city, and after looking around, was about to depart, when a silver-plated bon-bon dish was found to be missing. The proprietor of the establishment suspected the woman had the article, and asked her if such was not the case, when she admitted that she had taken it, but must have done so by mistake. The article was then given back and the merchant made no charge against her.—Belleville Intelligencer.

WHY DOES A BABY CRY?

Because it is either hungry or in pain. Properly nourished it will usually grow up right and be comfortable—that's the principal thing for a baby. If its food lacks strength and nourishment add Scott's Emulsion at feeding time. A few drops will show surprising results. If a baby is plump it is reasonably safe. Scott's Emulsion makes babies plump.

OPPOSITION IN CONTROL.

Drove Out the Premier's Guard and Wrecked the House.

Buda-Pesth, Hungary, Dec. 14.—Violent as have been the scenes at past sessions of the Hungarian Parliament, they have been entirely overshadowed by the wreckage effected by members of the Opposition party yesterday morning in their successful effort to prevent the opening of Parliament. Not one of the Government's supporters had arrived, and the Opposition had the House to themselves, with the exception of the personal guard of forty men provided for the protection of the President of the House. The presence of these guards, who occupied the approaches to the Presidential platform, seemed to inflame the Opposition Deputies, who shouted opprobrious terms at the "Hungarians who could perform such shameful service." The Deputies then approached the platform, and a scuffle with the guards ensued, and Deputies fought their way to the platform, tore it to pieces, scattered the debris over the House, tore to atoms the codes of law occupying the President's tables, smashed the tables and chairs, and destroyed the platform and distributed the broken pieces among the Deputies, who, thus armed, attacked the guards and after a brief fight, drove them from the House. The desks were then torn down and the interior of the House was practically completely wrecked. None of the Liberal members ventured inside the House, and the Opposition members, after completing the ruin, established themselves on the site, erstwhile occupied by the Presidential rostrum.

Revolutionists Triumph.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 14.—A treaty of peace between the Government of Paraguay and the revolutionists was signed Monday night by President Escurria and Gen. Ferreira. The treaty marks the complete triumph of the revolution, and is based upon the resignation of President Escurria and election of Senor Gauna, a supporter of the revolution, to the Presidency. Minister of the Interior Emilio Perez and Minister of Justice Cayetomo Carreras, both members of the present Government, will be nominated by the revolutionists. The present army will be dissolved to be reorganized later by officers of the military school. The revolutionary forces will be dispersed only after the constitution of the new Government and army and the amnesty of political offenders.

Big Fire in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Dec. 14.—Fire broke out in the building occupied by Macdonald & Fleming, hardware merchants, 528 Main street, yesterday morning and for a time threatened to assume as large proportions as the Bulman-Ashdown fire. The building and the stock of Macdonald & Fleming were almost completely destroyed, with a loss of nearly $25,000.

Toronto Carnegie Library.

Toronto, Dec. 14.—The Board of Control of the City Council decided yesterday to report to the Council to-day for ratification a site for the Carnegie library on the north-west corner of St. George and College streets to cost $75,000. The lot has a frontage of 234 feet on College street.

Will Meet Dec. 20.

Paris, Dec. 14.—The International Commission to enquire into the North Sea incident is expected to meet here Dec. 20 and proceed with the selection of a first admiral to complete the commission, and arrange the procedure. The real work will begin early in January.

WHAT IT IS.

The Mucous Membrane and the Important Part it Plays in the Health or Sickness of the Body

The Mucous Membrane is the inside lining of the body, and of all its vessels and organs. The moment this mucous membrane becomes out of condition, ever so little, illness, follows swiftly in some form or other.

In ninety-nine cases of a hundred disease has its beginning in some derangement of this Mucous Membrane.

It is very delicate and extremely sensitive and consequently very liable to disease.

If you are not feeling well you may be sure that the Mucous Membrane of some organ is sick and requires immediate treatment.

There is one medicine that is intended to act, and does act, directly and curatively on the Mucous Membrane. It is Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Constipation disappear as soon as Dr. Leonhardt's Anti-Pill has restored the Mucous Membrane to its natural healthy condition. 50 cents a bottle, at all Druggists or The Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont. Sole agents for Canada. 116

TRIAL BURKED BY DISSOLUTION

The North Grey Case Comes to Sudden End.

CHARGES CANNOT BE PROBED

Counsel for the Petitioner not Surprised at the Move—An End to the Proceedings, and the Court is Adjourned.

Owen Sound, Dec. 14.—After the judges had resumed their seat at the court house yesterday morning, Chief Justice Moss was seen to have in his hand a telegram which bore the following words: Toronto, Dec. 12, 1904.—Lieutenant-Governor has dissolved Parliament to-day, Dec. 12. (Signed) Charles Clark, clerk Legislative Assembly."

The Chief Justice explained that he held in his hand a telegram stating that the Lieutenant-Governor had been pleased to dissolve the Legislature.

"What is the effect of that, Mr. Blackstock?" asked the Chief Justice.

"It is quite impossible that we should affect any surprise when met by any move of that kind," replied the Conservative counsel. "We have been threatened with it, and told that the proceedings were not to be allowed to go on. In the first place there is no evidence before the court to act upon."

"Don't you admit this telegram?"

"We are not here to admit anything. We submit that the court ought not to act upon information of this kind. Unless some legal evidence is forthcoming this investigation ought to go on. In addition to that, we think that dissolution does not affect these proceedings." Mr. Blackstock further argued that the fact of dissolution stopping proceedings was based on the old procedure, when election cases were tried by the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which was dissolved by the dissolution of the House. Further, the seat being vacant by the acceptance of office, dissolution does not make the seat vacant. There was thus an anomalous position. It was a case where the court could only act upon evidence which was strictly legal in its character. The petitioner had at great expense on two occasions been prepared for trial, and on one occasion five weeks ago it had been suggested that dissolution would take place. Now they were in the middle of the trial, when it was said to have taken place.

Court Demurs.

Chief Justice Moss said that the only thing to do would be to adjourn until they were satisfied of the facts. They could not ask the court to proceed when there was doubt of their having proper authority.

"Unless your Lordships are in possession of legal evidence of dissolution," said Mr. Blackstock, "we submit that you are bound to treat it as though there was no evidence."

"You can hardly say there is no evidence," returned the Chief Justice. "Isn't there enough to justify the court in saying that the proceedings should stand to give opportunity for the production of proper proof?"

"We submit not," Mr. Blackstock replied, and the Chief Justice added that the court did not want to stultify itself by proceeding without any authority.

Judge Street said the telegram was from the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly.

Mr Blackstock admitted there was some evidence, but wanted to go on until there there was some legal evidence. In addition he contended that the dissolution did not affect the proceedings.

Mr. Watson, for the respondent, said there could be no doubt of the dissolution. The evidence before the court was of the highest character—from the highest and one of the most honorable officials of the Assembly. It was important the information should be given, so that the court would not be proceeding without authority. "My learned friend," he added, "thinks this is a move to put an end to the proceedings."

"We must not drift into politics," corrected the Chief Justice gently and there was a laugh.

Mr Watson pointed out that dissolution had been contemplated for some time. At the same time the election they were investigating had taken place nearly two years ago, and it was six months after the filing of the petition before application had been made, so that the delay arose from the petitioners' default. "And one can concede—"

Chief Justice Moss—There is a good deal of inconsistency in this matter.

Mr Watson—That the petitioner did not wish to proceed.

An End to the Proceedings.

The decision of the court on the matter was then given by the Chief Justice. Assuming that dissolution has been ordered, they had no difficulty in coming to the conclusion that the dissolution would put an end to the proceedings. The Legislature act was silent on the point, but the trial of petitions having been transferred from committees of the House to Judges and dissolution having put an end to trials before committees, they saw no reason why they should not be bound by the old rule of Parliament which affected the committee. The same view had been taken by the Supreme Court in the Halton case and he thought also in the Lisgar case. He was not aware there was any difference on this point between the Dominion and the Provincial acts. The question was, then, simply one of fact as to the dissolution. The telegram from the Clerk of the House was not legal evidence, but it certainly was something they could not disregard or pass by and treat as waste paper or mere idle words. The case should stand adjourned until absolute proof could be made. If it could not be made, of course the trial must proceed.

Mr. Blackstock further objected, and the court adjourned till 11.35, when he said he had learned, though not from an official source, that the dissolution was a fact.

"It being now taken," said the Chief Justice, "that the dissolution has occurred, the result is, as we have already said, the petition is dropped and nothing remains for us to do in the matter here."

Mr. Blackstock asked if the court would make an order for the return of the petitioner's deposit, to which the Chief Justice replied that that might be made by one of the judges of the Court of Appeal in the usual way. The court then adjourned.

AUSTRALIA'S DIFFICULTIES.

Premier Deakin Does Not Want to Make a Bargain.

London, Dec. 14.—In the resumed discussion of Premier Deakin's preferential resolutions in the Australian Federal House, Premier Reid said he foresaw a difficulty in extending their exchanges with the Mother Land, and at the same time protecting their own productions. British statesmen at one time thought the welfare of the Empire lay in restriction of the colonial trade, yet, in spite of the great liberty given to the self-governing colonies, the feeling of loyalty was worth many armies, and had grown. He did not wonder at Premier Balfour and the labor members showing horror at the taxing of food.

Referring to the increased cost of Imperial defence, he said: "We are bound to look at the responsibilities of the Empire in the face, and must not forget the only thing between us and invasion is the British fleet. We should not, however, mix such feeling with the desire of making a bargain. The question is, what we are prepared to give in exchange for the British market. If nothing, we are face to face with a spectacle which doesn't command admiration."

The motion authorized the Government to offer preference for preference. This was impossible in the present state of politics in Great Britain. He favored Mr. Balfour's idea of a conference. If the British favor a preference, his objection would go. If a preferential tariff were to be avoided, he was in favor of making the Australian tariff as nearly as possible a revenue tariff as against the Mother Land. The debate was adjourned.

STARVED TO DEATH.

Our text to-day is the story of the miser who taught his ass to live on straw, of which he gave him a smaller portion every day.

Just as the miser had got him so trained as to eat one straw a day —the poor ass died.

He is an ass who starves himself to death—as thousands are doing, misled by foolish teachers—because their stomachs have become too weak, through neglect or disease, to do the work which nature has provided for their stomachs to do.

Because the engine is out of gear, would you consign it to the junk heap?

Why, no! Mend it!

Commit slow suicide because your digestive organs leak?

Certainly not! Take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

One thing is sure as shooting.

You can never get a new stomach.

You must mend it, or it will lead you a miserable existence.

The only way to mend it is to take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

This has been practically and scientifically demonstrated by the many thousands whom Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have positively cured, after every other treatment of medicine, mineral waters, pills, and slow, suicidal starvation, had failed.

These methods are all unscientific—therefore false.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are scientific—therefore, true and successful.

Having cured so many thousands—many of whom doubtless have suffered more than you do—do we claim too much when we say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will surely do good to you?

Especially when we make it plain that no promise is made to cure more than one disease—Dyspepsia?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a positive cure for just this one disease.

They are a scientific combination of ingredients which search out the weak spots in all the digestive organs and make them strong and well.

They have an immediate digestive action on undigested food, and thus, while curing weak organs, they at the same time help them to do their work.

They thus stand for all that is good in the medical treatment of Dyspepsia, and for nothing that is bad.

They are not a fad, but a fact.

They are safe, pleasant, certain and permanent, and can be taken by the most delicate invalids without fear of harmful results.

ORDINANCE OF BAPTISM.

The Ordinance of Baptism was observed at Park-st. Baptist church on Sunday last. The pastor was assisted at the evening service by the Rev. E. Bosworth, Field Secretary of the Grand Ligne Mission. He gave a very interesting account of the work in Quebec province. The College has nearly 200 students. A revival spread through school last year when 70 of the students were converted. A French Protestant church has just been organized in Ottawa with bright prospects of growth. Offerings will be taken for this mission on Sunday next.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

Colonies Protective.

London, Dec. 14.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Hugh Cecil, speaking at Henley, said that though a majority in Great Britain who were in favor of free trade, the colonies were protective so that each approached the preference question from a different point of view. If German and American imports were an injury to Great Britain, then British exports were an injury to Canada. Canada was thus being asked to submit to an injury which was a very poor way of showing her Imperial regard.

Gives $15,000 to Varsity.

Toronto, Dec. 14.—E. C. Whitney of Ottawa has handed over to the trustees of Toronto University the sum of $15,000, as a nucleus of a residential building for the college. It is hoped that about $200,000 can be secured for the erection of four or five halls to accommodate fifty or sixty students in each.

Kidney Disease for Twenty Years

Mrs. Caswell Reid, Orrville, Muskoka, Ont., writes:—"For nearly twenty years I was troubled with kidney disease, and have recently been completely cured by using three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I have tried a great many remedies, but never seemed to get anything to do me so much good, until I used these pills."

Picked With a Purpose.

"Did you ever notice," asked the hotel clerk yesterday, "how many men there are who make it their business to pick little things, such as threads and specks, off your clothes while standing talking to you? Well, sir, there are lots of them, and that picking is a habit with them. They do it unconsciously. No matter how well brushed you are the man with the habit will begin picking at you when he meets you."

"I've noticed them many a time," said a traveling man standing near, "but I have quit letting them pick at my clothes. I once had an experience with one of those fellows that wasn't pleasant. I had known him slightly and chanced to meet him on the street one day. He began picking specks of dirt and such things from my coat, and he kept it up all the time we talked. A couple of minutes after he had left I missed a $200 diamond pin. That cured me of letting people pick things off my clothes. Nowadays I simply ask the man who tries it to desist. If necessary I hold his hands."

ANOTHER YEAR OF ADVANCEMENT

Y. M. C. A. Review the Good Work of 1904.

REPORTS OF DEPARTMENTS.

All of These Point to Great Progress—A Large Number of Members and Their Friends Attend the Meeting—Lieut.-Col. Edwards Again Elected President.

Last night was annual review night at the Y.M.C.A., and a large number of the active members of the Association and directors sat down to an elegant repast arranged in the association hall under the direction of Mrs. Wm. Madill, convenor of the Social Committee, assisted by a good delegation of members of the Ladies Auxiliary, including all the officers.

The tea was a source of pleasant social contact, and at the close a hearty standing vote of thanks was tendered the ladies for their splendid effort.

The company then adjourned to the Parlors, where the chair was taken by Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards, the popular and enthusiastic President of the Association. After devotional exercises, conducted by Mr. Madill, the President made a short address, emphasising some of the salient points of the year's work, notably the employment of a graduate physical director and the beginning of the agitation concerning dormitories. He said that we should pass on the good things we enjoyed to others. On closing he paid a tribute to the memory of the generous donor of the building, the late Charlotte J. Nicholl's. He then introduced Mr. Richard Hall, one of the trustees of the Nicholls estate, who had much to do with the securing of the building, and who, with Mr. Chas. McGill, are the present trustees of the building for the association.

ADVANTAGES COMPARED.

Mr. Hall compared the advantages young men have today with those of over forty years ago, when he first came to this town as a young man from the country. Mr. Hall said that while he had no serious objection to dormitories, yet he felt that the claims of the younger boys for a separate building on the south side of the present building, were more pressing. He wished the association every success in the extension of their influence and increase in their membership.

Five minute reviews of the different features of the work were then given in turn by the heads of the different departments.

RELIGIOUS WORK.

The report of religious work was was presented by Mr. Geo. Robertson. This work, he said, was the essential work of the association, for it had as its ultimate object the salvation of young men.

The report of the Physical Committee was presented by Mr. James Connal. Mr. Connal emphasized the obligation resting on the members to see that the forward policy of the Board in regard to the physical department was taken hold of by the members.

The Educational report was presented by Chas. D. McFarlane, chairman of the Committee.

Mr. G. L. Galley, chairman of the Boys Committee, gave a telling review of that department. He stated that the last year was the banner year in the boys' work. At the close of this review Mr. Harding and Mr. Bennett emphasized the value of this work.

Mr. R. J. Dormer, whose untiring work has meant much to the membership of the Association, then gave the report of the Membership Committee and urged upon every member of the association the necessity of increasing the membership to 1,000.

1. We are able to report a slight increase over last year, in spite of very heavy losses by removal and from other causes. The Committee is yet hopeful of reaching the 1,000 mark. The co-operation of every active member is needed. 2. The state of the roll is, Honorary members 10; sustaining, 60; senior, 280, full; limited, 225; intermediate, 105, boys 115, making a total of 795. Of these 256 are active and 550 associate members.

3. Forty-six members were transferred to other associations, Y.M.C.A. memberships being almost universally honored the world over.

4. The young men of Peterborough have better facilities for less money, we believe, than anywhere on the continent; for this reason the membership should be larger.

The review of the Social Committee, of which Mr. Johnston is chairman, was given by Mr. R. E. Harding, in the absence of the former.

WORK AMONG STRANGERS.

Mr. Harding then presented the review of the Stranger's Fellowship Club work, which has been such a large contribution to the work of the association, under his most capable leadership. He referred to the need of dormitories, and said that an investment of $5,000 would yield more dividends than the investment of a similar sum in any other way he knew of. At the close of Mr. Harding's review, three members who came to the association as strangers, in strong terms gave personal testimony to the value of this work.

The treasurer, Mr. W. D. Campbell, gave his report for the year ending October 1, 1904.

The receipts of the year were as follows — Subscriptions $2,117.19; membership fees, $1,406; outstanding liabilities $150, offset by unpaid subscriptions to that amount; balance $25.84.

All the reports were adopted.

A SUMMING UP.

A summing up of the work was then given by the General Secretary, Mr. Williamson, who pointed out that this was the twenty-third year of the association's history. It should always be kept in mind that the work was for young men by young men, and it was just whatever the members made it. He believed that only the outer fringe of the possibilities of this work had been touched, and that the keynote should be "Greater Things." Among these he mentioned an attendance of 300 at the men's meetings, instead of upwards of 100, and 200 men in Bible study. He said the physical work was encouraging, yet an even larger number of men should avail themselves of the valuable services of Mr. Holmes. The association should have a couple of hundred men in the Educational Classes and also a well-equipped laboratory for scientific work. He said association night school was the poor man's college and more money should be put into it. The goal for boys' work should be a separate building, and if the members co-operated as they should, they would have a membership of 1,000.

A few pointed remarks were then made by Mr. Percy K. Holmes, the the popular physical director, in which he made a strong appeal to the active members to stand by the physical work. The following resolutions were then enthusiastically carried.

First—That in consideration of the fact that the present date of closing the year's work is inconvenient and unsatisfactory, be it resolved that the date be made May 1st. The carrying of this resolution means that the 24th annual meeting will be held on May 1st, 1905.

Second—Resolved, that the officers and active members of the association assembled in annual meeting desire to place on record their hearty appreciation of the services of the Ladies' Auxiliary in connection with this work.

The last resolution was one of confidence in the General Secretary and other executive officers of the Association, which was also enthusiastically carried.

The report of the nominating committee was presented, recommending the re-election of the old officials who are as follows:—

President—E. B. Edwards.
1st Vice Pres.—J. C. Shook.
2nd Vice-Pres.—J. J. Howden.
Treas.—W. D. Campbell.

The following directors were elected for a period of three years—G. M. Roger, J. H. Connal, R. F. Ackerman, W. D. Scott, J. J. Howden, R. J. Kidd.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

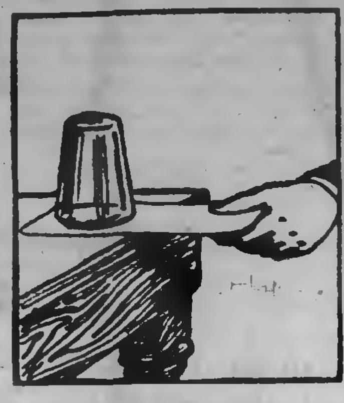
A GLASS FULL OF WATER.

One That Cannot Be Lifted Without Spilling It All.

Here is a very simple way to quell a boaster or any one who is "showing off," as some youngsters are prone to do when a party of several are together.

You start the thing going by declaring that you do not believe many of those present can lift a glass full of water and carry it five feet in five seconds without spilling most of it. Of course several will at once claim the ability to perform the feat, and the time for your trick has come.

Fill a tumbler with water and completely cover the top with a stout sheet of writing paper. By pressing the paper firmly against the top of the glass you may safely turn the whole thing "upside down," or invert it. Rest it on a table, and the top of the table will press the paper so firmly against the edges of the glass that not a drop of water will come out.



WITHDRAWING THE PAPER.

Now you carefully withdraw the paper, as shown in the picture, and the water is still kept in the glass, this time by the table top alone. When any one tries to lift the glass the water will at once come out, and you have made good your statement at the expense of all those who claimed the ability to lift the glass.

FIREFLIES.

The Heating and Lighting Power of These Little Insects.

The Smithsonian institution, while making inquiries into the cheapest forms of producing light, experimented with Cuban fireflies, among other things. The insects were placed in the center of concave mirrors, and the most delicate instrument in the government observatory was employed to measure the amount of heat radiated by them.

A sperm candle was used for comparison, and a flame spot from it which was just as big as the firefly was thrown into the mirror. The instrument recorded the heat from the candle at once, but no movement was caused by the insect, although the instrument was so delicate that had the firefly produced even as little as one eighty-thousandth part of the heat produced by the tiny spot from the candle it would have shown on the records.

It was different with light. Comparing the flame spot of the candle and the light from the insect, the instrument showed that the firefly gave one-eighth as much light as the candle, size for size.

About Berries.

Probably many people have wondered as they were eating gooseberries what connection there was between the berry and a goose. There is none. "Goose" is a corruption of "gorse," a prickly shrub. The cranberry, on the other hand, has something to do with a bird, for it is named from a fanciful resemblance of its slender stalk to the legs of a crane. Strawberries do not grow on straws, but strawed or strewn along the surface of the ground. "Mulberry" in the Anglo-Saxon was the "murberie," and the "mur" is allied to the Latin "morum" and the Greek "moron," a mulberry tree. The bilberry, which grows in such profusion on some of our moors, is really the blueberry.

The Sponge Animal.

Aristotle was the first man to venture an opinion that the sponge was an animal. But up to about the middle of the eighteenth century most naturalists considered sponges to be plants. Some, indeed, supposed that they were merely condensed foam of the sea, others a sort of shell formed by a kind of sea worm often found residing in a live sponge. As a matter of fact, the sponge is now classed as an animal, but it is an animal of such simple type that in many ways it is below some plants.

The Kitty.

There was once a kitty—from Cheshire he came—
His paws they were white and his whiskers the same;
He was very polite, and he bowed all the while
As he greeted his friends with a beautiful smile.

A jealous old rat who chanced to drop in
Growled out, "Oh, you silly, to wear such a grin!"
So kitty stopped smiling and bit off his head.
"I'll teach you to have better manners," he said.

Collar and Cuff.

Little Esther, aged six, had once broken her collar bone. One day while swinging she slipped and hurt her wrist. Immediately she ran crying to her mother and said:

"Mamma, please see if I have broken my cuff bone too."

Indians' Nose Breathing.

An English scientist thinks it unnecessary that children should be taught to breathe through the nostrils only and maintains that they cannot do so under the stress of active exertion. London Hospital thinks otherwise. Among the North American aborigines at a time when they were capable of extraordinary physical exertion the precept "to shut your mouth" was enforced upon the young by the most severe discipline.

Catlin founded upon his experiences among the American tribes a curious book upon the subject. After depicting open mouthed men and boys in every variety of ugliness and stupidity, he says that he refrains from giving illustrations of the fairer sex and would only remind them, while counseling them to be careful about closure of the mouth at night, that "idiots asleep cannot be angels awake."

The scientist declares that not all nostrils are sufficiently wide to permit of breathing being conducted through them to the exclusion of the mouth, but it is certain that nothing would tend more than breathing through them to promote their development.

Why He Waited.

On a certain occasion Henry Ward Beecher's church was crowded to the doors. But Beecher unexpectedly had been called out of town, and in his place in the pulpit there sat a beardless, black clad youth—a youth who is today one of the most powerful preachers in America. But this youth, fresh from college, was unknown then, and the great congregation had come to hear Beecher and not him. Consequently as soon as he arose and announced that he was to preach in Beecher's place the people began to drift out. First one went, then two, then a half dozen, and the young man stood watching this dispersal from the pulpit. It was a trying moment, and yet there sat on his youthful face a smile singularly composed. Out the people tiptoed, and he waited, saying nothing, for almost five minutes. Then he said, as if in explanation of his silence, "We will not begin this public worship until the chaff blows off."

Witchcraft.

Three centuries ago the great statute of James I. came into operation. It made felons without benefit of clergy all who "shall use, practice or exercise any injuration or conjuration of any evil and wicked spirit, or shall consult, covenant with, entertain, employ, feed or reward any evil and wicked spirit to or for any intent or purpose, or take up any dead man, woman or child out of his, her or their grave or any other place where the dead body resteth, or the skin, bone or any part of any dead person, to be employed or used in any manner of witchcraft, enchantment, charm or sorcery, whereby any person shall be killed, destroyed, wasted, consumed, pined or lamed in his or her body or any part thereof." Under this act witches were executed for more than a century.

Ways of the Irish Jarvey.

A good story, which illustrates the absolute genius with which an Irish jarvey extracts money from his victims, is told in an English journal. A commercial traveler wanted to take a side car in Belfast and, aware of the rapacity of the average jarvey, insisted on knowing the exact fare before getting on the car. The following dialogue ensued:

Commercial Traveler — What's the fare to C——, jarvey?

Jarvey—Ach, that's alroight, sorr. Just get on.

Commercial Traveler — Now, look here, what's the fare to C——?

Jarvey—Shure, it's alroight, sorr. Just jump up.

Commercial Traveler—I insist on knowing the fare before I get on.

Jarvey—Bedad, sorr, I'm that hard up I'll drive you for nothing at all, sorr.

Needless to say, when the commercial traveler finally got to his destination he was mulcted of an amount much larger than the legitimate fare, an amount he had to pay to save his face.

One Address Enough.

The clerk in the express office was just about to toss the package back of the counter when he noticed that it was addressed on both sides. "It's good I saw that. Charges might have been collected twice," he said. "That's funny," remarked the shipper. "I just paid the charges, you know." "Yes," responded the clerk, "and I marked it paid, but the second address might have caused them to collect at the other end. You see, I checked it off paid on one side, but when it reaches the other office it might be that the prepaid mark would be on the bottom. That would bring the other address up, and, seeing no check mark there, the receiving office would mark it collect and the party to whom it was addressed would pay the second express charges." "And I thought I was doing something to expedite matters in putting the address on both sides," commented the shipper.

The Word "Blackmailing."

The word "blackmailing," derived from the Anglo-Saxon "mal" (tax) and the old French "maille" (a coin of small value), was originally applied to rents paid in kind, in order to distinguish them from payments made in silver or "white" payments. About the sixteenth century it was applied to money paid as the price of protection from freebooters. This was declared illegal by Elizabeth, but flourished in the highlands of Scotland until after Culloden, in 1745.

"Blackmail" is mentioned in Archbishop Hamilton's Catechisme (1552). One of the most picturesque leviers of blackmail was Rob Roy, who grew famous in this connection about the year 1730. In its modern use blackmail is the extortion of money by threat of public exposure.

THE ANNUAL CRUSH

At OUR STORE

When Christmas Day is drawing nigh,
Amid the shopping crowds you'll sigh,
And vow next year that forth you'll go
More early, by a month or so.
And when, next year, the time comes round
The self-same sorrow will be found,
And you will make the self-same vow
And break it as you break it now.

The Store is Ready for Christmas

And back of this sentence is the combined work and judgement of our whole working force. For months we have been busy getting in the stock. We had to go Christmas Shopping for all Peterborough and that was a gigantic task. Then after this part of the work was done the goods must be received and placed so that they would show well. But we have forgotten the work and trouble it took us to get ready (just as on Christmas morning you will forget your work and worry in the pleasure you have caused) and we are proud of the store and all it contains, so proud that we want every Christmas shopper to come out and see it. Let this be your invitation.

HE WILL STAY IN THE FIELD

Ald. Best Denies Making Overtures to Mr. W. H. Moore

REGARDING MAYOR'S CHAIR

Ald. Best Has Acceded to the Request of His Friends and is Not Going Back on His Pledge---A Popular Candidate for Chief Magistrate.

The "big shuffle in municipal politics," "that Ald. Best proposed to withdraw from the Mayoralty contest at the last minute, and Mr. W. H. Moore would be elected by acclamation" is the text of a highly sensational story published last night in our evening contemporary. Mr. W. H. Moore denied all knowledge of the matter, and the query naturally arises why was not Mr. Best offered the same opportunity to either confirm or deny the report.

When seen to-day by the Review he remarked "There is not a word of truth in the story. I never saw Mr. Moore about the matter, and had no such proposition under consideration. I never spoke to Ald. Morrison about the Mayoralty, except to remark that I would prefer to remain in the Council, as several good men were withdrawing. Now, sir, I have acceded to a largely signed request. In justice to my friends I could not go back on the answer I have given them, and I do not intend to. I am in the field to stay in spite of all stories that may be circulated to the contrary. It looks as if certain reports were being spread broadcast to get up some kind of opposition against me. Whether there is opposition or not I want it distinctly understood that I am in the race to the finish, and that under no circumstances will I retire. I have been a member of the council since 1892, and I think my record and experience entitle me to the position which my many friends are now anxious to see me occupy."

MR. MOORE'S DENIAL.

Mr. W. H. Moore remarked today: "in reference to the item which appeared in the Examiner, I think in the interest of the ratepayers, I should say that I have not one thought of accepting nomination for mayor. I am not in the field for that office and do not intend to be. I may further say that no overtures of any kind whatever have been made to me by Mr. Best on the subject, that we have not discussed the matter in any form, if I except a joke passed on the street which did not occupy half a minute."

"Did Mr. Best or anyone in his behalf approach you," was asked.

"No, they did not," replied Mr. Moore. "The only reference made about my running was, as I have said, a joke passed on the street, when Mr. Best and Mr. Jas. Murty were having a chat and I passed."

ALD. MORRISON SPEAKS.

Ald. Morrison today said that Mr. Best asked him after the Council meeting if he (Morrison) was out of the contest. "I took it to mean," continued Mr. Morrison, "the mayoralty and I replied, 'yes.'" Mr. Best then said that he would prefer to remain in the Council, as several good men were retiring and he (Best) had been speaking to Mr. Moore about coming out for mayor.

Ald. Best says he meant, when he asked Ald. Morrison if he was out of the contest, not the mayoralty, but retiring altogether from the Council. He then made the remark about several good men withdrawing from municipal life, but declares positively that he has no recollection of mentioning Mr. Moore's name in connection with the mayoralty.

This is the reference wherein Ald Best and Ald. Morrison differ in their version of the conversation.

However, the matter is immaterial, as both Mr. Best and Mr. Moore declare no mention was ever made of the mayoralty by them, except on the street corner in a jest.

Ald. Best is in the field to stay, no matter who opposes him, and there ends the whole matter, as Mr. Moore has no intention, nor did he have, of aspiring to the civic chair.

Opportunity will be given at all of these meetings for the opposition to state their reasons for opposing the by-law to be submitted on January 2nd. As men have been secured who are thoroughly acquainted with such temperance legislation, it will be a good opportunity for the electors of Smith to learn the merits or demerits of Local Option. These will be the best temperance meetings held in the Township.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

We have used "Sunlight Soap," and we want to tell you that it is the best soap made, that's why we are writing. We found out that the Sunlight way is the best way to wash with "Sunlight Soap." At first we used to wash with Sunlight Soap in the old way as we did with common soap, but after we washed according to directions printed on the package, we would never wash the old way again. We first soap the articles, leave them to soak and then rub out lightly on the wash board. Not much to do and it makes the clothes white as snow.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, DEC. 15, 1904.

THE JIG IS UP.

A deeply significant feature of the present Ontario fight is to be found in the number of Grit members who have this time refused to face the music, says the Brantford Courier.

Some have withdrawn on the plea of ill-health and others because of alleged press of private business, but the real reason undoubtedly is their knowledge that Ross and his utterly discredited Ministry are doomed to certain defeat.

Two Cabinet Ministers have this time refused a renomination. Stratton disappears on the plea of personal interests requiring his entire attention.

Hon. Mr. Davis also disappears. His political record in the courts is likewise bad, but the withdrawal of the pair of them is not going to restore public confidence as long as the chief sinner still remains.

James Conmee is another man who is out of it. He is a pretty long-headed customer, and, seeing the breakers ahead, he wisely took to cover by accepting a seat in the Dominion House.

Mr. John R. Barber, member for Halton, during six years, has also withdrawn. So has Mr. Samuel Russel, for six years member for East Hastings, and Mr. O. Guibord, of Russel, and many more.

Others like Mr. Burt, in North Brant, are running against their expressed desire to step out.

The whole truth of the matter is that the jig is up for Rossiam, and that he and his cause are to-day as dead as the proverbial door nail.

PEN POINTS.

Bradburn is a winner.

Rossiam is not Liberalism

Whitney and Bradburn.

Where did the money come from?

West Peterborough will be redeemed.

Support Bradburn and Honest Government.

Organization has started Let the good work go on.

The Ross Government is now in a minority, and is likely to stay there.

Ald McWilliams says he has retired from the mayoralty race. Pray, who asked him to run?

"Clean your own doorstep."—Rev Mr. Tapscott, Liberal, of Sault. Ste. Marie, to G. W. Ross, Minority Premier.

Here is a good sporting bet for some sporting friends: "Which will fall first, Port Arthur or the Grit Government?"

The Ross Government must be in pretty bad shape, when Hunter and Crossley, evangelists are out against it.

The opening gathering at the Liberal-Conservative committee rooms last night was a hummer. The enthusiasm was great, and the spirit of unity evidenced on all sides.

What crooked work was done in North Grey that was so bad that the announcement of a dissolution was hurried on in order to forestall the evidence?

Colonel Clarke, Clerk of the Assembly, was real kind to go to the trouble of telegraphing the judges at Owen Sound that the House was dissolved.

Tuesday's Globe quoted from a recent issue of the Telegram something degredatory to Mr. Whitney. The statement quoted was printed seven years ago, 1897. This is a sample of the Globe's fairness.

If the judges at the Owen Sound election trial had decided that as the seat of Mr. MacKay was vacated by his acceptance of office, and therefore the trial could not go on, there would have been no announcement of elections for another week yet.

Since 1886 the Grit majority in the Ontario Legislature has been going down. In 1886 it was 25, in 1890, 23; in 1894, 8; in 1898, 8; in 1902, 5—then finally reduced to three and then to nil. Yes, Mr. Ross, your moving day is at hand.

They are running to cover—seeking shelter before the storm. Mr. Richardson, of East York, has at last been rewarded by the moribund Ross Government, in being made clerk of the county court for York, and Samuel Russell is translated from newspaper work into the snug berth of registrar of deeds of Hastings county.

A Liberal friend asks why we think the Ross Government would announce the elections in order to head off the election trial at Owen Sound. Let us tell our Liberal friend that there is no act under heaven, legal or illegal, that the Ross Government would not commit if, by so doing, they could get a further lease of power

The Globe insinuates that Mr. Whitney has not the material out of which to form a Cabinet. "Wouldn't that jar you?" If he couldn't get three distinctly separate cabinets out of the personel of the late Opposition, each one as good as Mr Ross' present Cabinet, then we are prepared to turn Grit right now. Think of MacKay, Latchford and Evanturel as superfine Cabinet material. Ye Gods!

This argument was strongly used by Grits in the late election—vote for the Grit candidate and elect a supporter of the Government. Do not be in Opposition. This same style of argument will do service very well in the present contest. Vote for Mr. Bradburn, who will support Mr. Whitney, our next Premier. There is no Grit, who is not steeped to the eyes in bigotry or blinded by malice, but who quietly admits that the Government is a goner, that Ross' days are over. Vote for Bradburn and honest government

If Mr. Whitney is not a better man than Mr. G. W. Ross, and has not a better idea of what is right for Ontario, how is it that he polled 7,000 more votes than Ross polled at the last election, and this without the aid of ballot-box stuffers, or of any of the numerous swindles with which the name of the Ontario Government is associated? If Mr. Whitney is not an abler man than Mr. Ross why does not Mr. Ross allow the people to defeat him, instead of maintaining a criminal machine for that purpose? The truth is that of the two leaders, the greater is Mr. Whitney.

The Birmingham, England, Weekly Post, says: "How clumsy are the finest schemes of unscrupulous English electioneers, compared with the ingenious ballot-box whose existence has been revealed by a lucky mishap to Canadian authority! By a turn of the handle, the ballot papers of known supporters were switched into a secret compartment, henceforth to be dead and buried; by another turn an equal number of Liberal papers were switched in, to be counted and credited. The United States never did anything cleverer, and at sharp and unscrupulous electioneering tactics they take some beating. But the success of such cute obliquities depends upon freedom from discovery, which, if the users were only as far-sighted as cunning, they must have seen was not to be expected in the long run. The scandal is altogether a very pretty one.

Kidney Disease for Twenty Years

Mrs. Caswell Reid, Orrville, Muskoka, Ont., writes:—"For nearly twenty years I was troubled with kidney disease, and have recently been completely cured by using three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I have tried a great many remedies, but never seemed to get anything to do me so much good, until I used these pills."

ROSS CALLING NAMES
(Galt Reporter)

Not very long ago the Hon. George W. Ross referred to some of his political opponents as "pusillanimous pussy cats."

He might as well have called each of them a putrid parallelogram and called all bets off

But Premier Ross sees Liberal friends on the fence and he now expresses his detestation of "a pusillanimous pussy cat Liberal partizan."

Funny language that for a man who has just buried the bad things of his past and emerged from the cemetery decked in spotless white.

He should be in the best of humor and quite confident of holding all Liberals in the coming elections. On the contrary his language shows that he has detected opposition in his own camp.

And the garrulous old gentleman has started in to call names, reckless of the impression his anything but dignified attitude will create among the electors.

"Pusillanimous pussy Liberal partizan" is good. Wonder how many of the breed can be found in South Waterloo?

MRS. BRADLEY CAN EAT AND SLEEP

She Was Rescued from a Terrible Condition by Dodd's Kidney Pills and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I am thankful to say I can eat most anything, and sleep comfortably." These are the words of Mrs. James Bradly, of Smith's Cove, Digby Co., N.S., but only those who know Mrs. Bradley's previous condition can appreciate all those words mean, or how much she owes to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and Dodd's Kidney Pills. Let Mrs. Bradley tell of it herself.

"I had Dyspepsia for over nine years," she says. "I tried the best doctors and never got relief. I had to starve myself from eating. I had given up all hope of ever having any help. No tongue can tell what I suffered. Six boxes of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and six of Dodd's Kidney Pills completely restored my health."

If Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure extreme cases of Dyspepsia like that of Mrs. Bradley, how much more easily will they cure your indigestion?

METHODISM IN PORT HOPE.

Anniversary to be Held Next Year Rev. Dr. Crothers a Former Pastor.

According to Rev. Dr. Cornish, Methodism in Port Hope was born in 1805, so that it will be in order for the Methodist friends there to hold their centenary anniversary next year. At that time the place was known as Smith's Creek, so called from the name of a stream running though the township of Hope and emptying into Lake Ontario. The stream now bears the more dignified title of the River Ganeraska.

Methodism became well rooted under the fostering care of the holy men and women, devout pastors and teachers, and it has grown and strengthened itself with years until now it is a comely tree, with outspreading branches filled with most attractive and luscious fruit.

The pulpit has been filled with some of Methodism's choicest sons. Many of them have gone to their reward. The names of Ashabel Hulburt, Wm. McFadden, S. S. Nelles, George Goodson, Richard Whiting, E. H. Dewart, J. Hunt, G. R. Sanderson, John A. Williams, I. B. Howard, John Shaw, T. W. Jeffrey, J. B. Clarkson, E. B. Harper, and others, though numbered with the dead, enshrined themselves for ever in the affections of the people. Of late years Revs. E. N. Baker, W. J. Crothers and Rev. W. R. Young ministered with great acceptability. The present pastor is Rev. E. B. Lanceley, who fills the office with great credit to himself and great satisfaction to the people.

The magnificent property, both of church and parsonage, is the pride and joy of the people. The auditorium seats fifteen hundred people, and is filled with attentive listeners every Sabbath day. Just now a large and commodious Sabbath school and lecture hall is being built, which was opened on Sunday last. The value of the church and parsonage property is placed at $50,000.—Christian Guardian.

MECHANIACL ENGINEERING.

This week the class is Mechanical Engineering Devices and the patent chosen is one for a process for treating iron or steel sheets.

It relates to a continuous process for annealing and oxidizing sheets of iron and steel. The sheets are conducted through a furnace by means of a plurality of revoluble shafts, situated a few inches part. At one point these shafts lead down underneath the surface of the tank of boiling water. The furnace is divided into three compartments, the first one being filled with steam, which is superheated, the steam at the front of the chamber being heated at a higher temperature than at the rear. The second chamber contains a tank of boiling water, and the third a hot air drying chamber. The temperature of the superheated steam in the first chamber varies from 900 degrees at the front to two hundred and twelve degrees at the rear. The steel sheets being let in, first encounter the high temperature of 900 degrees. They are then gradually cooled down until they reach the boiling point of water, 212 degrees Fahrenheit. At this point they dip below the surface of the water. They then pass into the drying chamber and are dried. The theory of the operation is as follows—The metal coming suddenly in contact with the steam at a high temperature expands and opens its pores which admits the subtle steam, which is an oxidizing agent of a high order, so that the steam enters in the pores and oxidizes the metal to a considerable depth. Dipping below the water cools off the metal and prevents further oxidization, as the metal when brought to the drying chamber is below 212 degrees, too low a temperature for oxidization. It will be noticed that at at the same time as the steel is being oxidized it is also being annealed, as the temperature is gradually reduced from 900 degrees to 212 degrees, which constitutes the process of annealing. The great advantage of this method is that any polish the metal may have at the beginning of the process remains at the end, thus avoiding the necessity of a second rolling.

HALL'S GLEN HAPPENINGS.

Foxes Busy in the Poultry Yards—Village May Have Cement Walk.

Mr and Mrs. W. S. Hamblin, of Warsaw, were in the village last week.

Messrs. D. and H. Crowe have been very busy hauling out their grain to Lakefield market.

The quilting bee at Mrs. W. Carveth's last Monday was fairly well attended by the ladies of the neighborhood.

We extend a hearty welcome to our new resident, Mr. Geo. Zinstine, who moved here early this fall, and is now open for engagement.

Mr. F. Darling, of Peterborough, a former resident of this place, was cutting wood for himself here last week.

The foxes are playing havoc with the poultry yards this fall, one farmer losing several fine, fat geese.

The Rev. H. McQuade, of Warsaw, who has recently concluded a series of revival services at Bethel appointment, has commenced a pastoral visitation at Zion.

Mr D. Little, employed an inexperienced hand to dehorn his stock of young cattle this fall, but declares the operation satisfactorily executed.

A small gang of hunters, after traversing the vicinity in search of game last week, returned home discouraged and weary, being obliged to leave most of their game behind. They will have better luck next time we trust.

We believe that if the general merchant of this village would join us in the agitation for cement sidewalks, the village council could not refuse to grant sufficient means for their construction the coming summer. And it is believed that it would add considerably to the financial interest, not only of Mr. D. Madill, but to the villagers in general.

Mr. Wm. Carveth, on visiting his timber limits on the 9th line, preparatory to his winter's work, reports everything in a fair and satisfactory condition, so that he will commence operations at once.

Mr. F. Jory is at his old trade once more and finds plenty to do. It will be late this fall when he gets all his engagements filled.

The Massey Harris agent is as busy as usual. As he cannot give proper attention to his farming duties, he has been advised to sell out, and give his entire attention to the company's service, in whose employ he has so faithfully labored for the past few years.

Mr. F. H. Payne has again commenced his winter's work taking out cedar, and judging from the number of teams and men in his employ, will doubtless carry on the most extensive business the season. His financial income will exceed by far that of previous years. Good men will receive ready employment and the highest wages going on presentation and civil enquiry at his office during the proper hours.

Severe Cold in the Chest.

"My fourteen-year-old-boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and he has not been troubled since."—Mrs. J. Prevost, Renfrew, Ont.

NEW CHURCH FOR PORT HOPE

Presbytery Makes Nominations for Chairs in Montreal College.

There were fourteen ministers and four elders at the quarterly meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough in St. Andrew's church yesterday. Rev. C. S. Lord, Moderator, presided.

The following visiting members present were invited to sit as corresponding members:—Dr. McKay, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Committee; Dr. McTavish, of Central Church, Toronto; Rev. J. J. Wright, of the Yukon, and Mr. Andersen, minister without charge.

The Rev. Geo. Yule, of Springville, was chosen Moderator for the next six months. Rev. John McDougal, of Spencerville, was nominated for the chair of Apologetics and Church History in the Montreal College, and Rev. Dr Ramsey, of Ottawa, for the chair of Practical Theology in the same college.

After a lengthy discussion on the report of the Committee on the Reconstruction of Stations in the district lying between Omemee and Port Hope, it was agreed that the Omemee and Springville fields remain as they are at present. It was agreed to recommend that Millbrook put forth effort to become self-sustaining, and that then Garden Hill, Oak Hill and Knoxville should become a pastoral charge.

The next quarterly meeting of the Presbytery will be in St. Paul's church, Peterborough, on the first Tuesday in March, 1905, at 9 o'clock a.m.

Rev. Dr McKay and Rev. Dr McTavish addressed the Presbytery on the claims of foreign missions. These gentlemen received the hearty thanks of the Presbytery for their earnest and inspiring addresses.

Reports were given in as to the visits made to congregations paying less than $800 and a manse with a view to increase of salary. The report showed that increase is likely to be made in every case.

Leave was granted to First Church, Port Hope, to build a new church and to dispose of the old one

CONSERVATIVES WELL ORGANIZED

Heated Period of Campaign to Come After Holidays.

PREMIER ROSS IS BUSY

Mr. Whitney, Leader of the Opposition, Characterizes Globe's Story as a Silly Lie and Gives Specific Denial to the Meredith-Robertson References.

Toronto, Dec. 15.—The leader of the Opposition, J. P. Whitney, K. C., is viewing the political situation from the historic parlors of the Queen's. No more cautious and well-assured politican ever makes a pronouncement in Ontario politics, and Mr. Whitney's evident satisfaction at the present juncture speaks volumes for the chances of his party in the approaching election.

Asked last night if he had any announcement to make in view of affairs, he replied:

"Oh, no, the Government has succeeded in getting a dissolution and the campaign is now on, with all that that implies."

"Did you read The Globe's attack upon you yesterday, Mr. Whitney?"

"About the Meredith and Robertson matter? Yes. Of course one cannot be expected to deny specifically every silly lie that is levelled against one. But I may say that no suggestion such as appeared with reference to the gentlemen was ever made to me directly or indirectly, at any time or place, by any person or persons. Under the circumstances I feel bound to say this."

"The Globe seems to find pleasure in nagging at you personally, Mr. Whitney?"

"Well, yes. But I will not reply to anything of that kind. A large majority of the people of Ontario have already replied to the reverend editor and to his masters in the Queen's Park on that point, and will very likely do so again."

"Have you decided anything about the campaign meetings, or have you arranged to hold any?"

"No doubt I will do so, but I have not considered the matter at all as yet."

Mr. Whitney will leave the city tomorrow or Saturday, but will return early in the week. From present appearances, the heated period of the campaign will not be reached till after the holidays. Mr. Miscampbell, the Conservative organizer, considers the party in excellent shape for the fray.

R. R. Gamey arrived in Toronto yesterday morning. He is busy arranging to address meetings during the campaign and promises to be one of the leading factors in the situation.

Premier Ross was busy all day with callers and correspondence and had not time to conclude his preparations for his first campaign meetings, two of which will probably be held next week.

PETERS DEFEATED.

Premier of Prince Edward Island Goes Under in "Special Votes."

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 15.—The Provincial election in Prince Edward Island has apparently resulted in the defeat of Premier Peters by one vote. Under the Provincial law a voter is entitled to vote in as many electoral districts as he may have property qualifications in, in addition to voting in the district where he resides. These votes outside of residence districts are called "special votes." The regular vote gave Premier Peters in his district of St. Peter's a majority of six, but when the special votes were counted yesterday the Premier was left one behind his opponent.

Protests in Quebec.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—A despatch from Sherbrooke says: "Three election protests have been entered in this district, namely, Lovell, Liberal, Stanstead; Compton and Worthington, Conservatives, Sherbrooke. Protests have also been filed in the Federal elections in Terrebonne, Nicolet and Maskinonge. The defendants are Dr. Desjardins, Terrebonne, Hon. R. Lemieux, Nicolet, and Mr. Mayrand, Maskinonge. All are Liberals."

NOMINATIONS ON WEDNESDAY.

Parry Sound—D. R. Best, Prohibition.
Monck—Hon. R. Harcourt, Liberal.
Manitoulin—W. J. Tucker, Liberal.
South Norfolk—A. C. Platt, Conservative.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

Leonard Wallace, Son of Late Hon. Clarke Wallace, May Die.

Gun of Companion Discharged While Party Were Rabbit Hunting Near Woodbridge—At 20 Feet the Full Charge of No. 2 Shot Struck Wallace, and the Shot Entered Right Side Below the Breast.

Toronto, Dec. 15.—With but slight hope of recovery, Leonard Wallace of Woodbridge, second son of the late Hon. Clarke Wallace, lies in the Toronto General Hospital, shot through the liver. The tragedy occurred while he, with three friends, were out rabbit shooting yesterday afternoon, and the circumstances were purely accidental. After receiving local attention, the wounded man, on the advice of Dr. G. A. Peters, of Toronto, who was also called, was brought to the city, and late last night an operation was performed by Dr. Peters and Dr. I. H. Cameron. Several of the leaden pellets were removed. Some, it was found, had gone right through the body.

Thumb Slipped.

In company with W. W. Reid of the Inkerman House and the two Robb brothers, Mr. Wallace had gone out after rabbits. The party had a ferret, which Mr. Reid carried. Reaching the sixth concession, about three miles from Woodbridge, a rabbit burrow was found. The others having gotten into position, Reid loosed the ferret in the hole. Then he got his own gun.

When the ferret got the rabbit, there was some screeching and Leonard Wallace ran forward. He shouted to Reid to "catch him." Reid took a couple of steps forward and at the same time went to let down the hammer of the right barrel of his gun. His heavy gloves were wet from snow and the thumb slipped.

There was a report and at 20 feet range the full charge of No. 2 shot struck Wallace. The shot entered his right side, below the breast. He staggered and fell, but raised himself and walked part of the quarter of a mile which had to be traversed to the nearest house. There a rig was procured and he was driven to his home in the village. He was able to walk from the rig to the house, but Dr. P. D. McLean, who was sent for, realizing that the injury was very bad, had Dr. Peters sent for.

A General Favorite.

The accident came as a great shock to the people of Woodbridge and surrounding country, where the Wallace family is so well known. Leonard and Capt. Tom Wallace compose the firm of Wallace Brothers, who conduct the general store. The injured man is 23 years of age, and is most popular among all classes. He has always taken great interest in athletics and has been prominent as a lacrosse player.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH.

And Another So Badly Injured That He Will Die.

Quebec, Dec. 15.—The death of the 3-year-old daughter and 22-months-old infant and the 9-year-old son so badly burnt that he can hardly pass the night, is the awful tragedy of a fire which leveled the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Plante, at Montmorency Falls Tuesday night. The daughter was burned like a rat in a hole and the remains have not yet been recovered. The boy and infant were saved from the burning building, the latter dying yesterday morning, after suffering indescribable agony all night long, and it is feared the boy would die last night or today. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Plante and their little family was on the main road on the heights and near the Kent House. The children were left alone in the house while the mother went to the grocery store near by. The father works at night in the cotton factory.

Mrs. Moncrieff May Die.

Peterboro, Dec. 15.—About one o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mrs. G. Moncrieff was driving west on Dublin street when her horse became frightened and dashed across the track on George street, just as car No. 13 happened along. It struck the rig and Mrs. Moncrieff was thrown some distance. She sustained a comminuted fracture of the collar bone, a severe cut on the head and a fracture at the base of the skull. Doubts are entertained of her recovery.

Barney McGroity Killed On C.P.R.

Toronto Junction, Dec. 15.—Barney McGroity, 60 years of age, a resident of Woodbridge, was instantly killed in the C.P.R. yards at Toronto Junction yesterday morning by No. 4 express from the west, which reached the Junction at 8.15 a.m. McGroity was discharged Tuesday night, and was on his way to the yard office with his time-sheet when the accident happened. He failed to notice the approaching train, and was struck just as he was stepping on the track. There are no marks on his body. McGroity leaves a widow and a family of grown-up sons and daughters.

Mrs. McMaster's Escape.

Kingston, Dec. 15.—Mrs. William McMaster, widow of the late Senator McMaster of Toronto, had a thrilling experience with a spanking pair of horses owned by her son-in-law, Captain W. A. Grant of Roselawn, Kingston. The horses dashed up Princess street, turned down Barrie and Stuart streets towards the water. To save them going into the lake the coachman endeavored to turn the carriage, and it upset. Mrs. McMaster was badly bruised and Miss Alice Grant was severely shocked.

Three Firemen Killed.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 15.—Three firemen were killed, three others painfully burned, and property valued at $727,000 was destroyed by a fire which began late Tuesday night and was not under control until yesterday. The dead are: Jacob P. Miller, insurance patrolman; H. J. Buckley, insurance patrolman, and John Fellows, pipeman. The fire broke out in the photographic supply house of the O. H. Peck Co., and spread to adjoining buildings.

PRESTON SUSPENDS CLERK.

C. F. Just Charged With Insubordination—Others Heads May Fall.

London, Dec. 15.—Owing to differences regarding administration of the Canadian emigration office, W. T. R. Preston has suspended C. F. Just, the chief clerk, pending inquiry. Mr. Just is a Britisher and has been in the employ of the office for ten years.

Other Heads May Fall.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—The Department of the Interior is not surprised at the news of Mr. Just's suspension. When Mr. Preston was here two weeks ago it was noised abroad that his presence was in connection with the administration of the Canadian emigration office in London. Some stories of irregularities had reached the ears of Mr. Sifton, and Mr. Preston's mission was to explain, suggest remedies and get full powers to use his discretion to the limit.

It is stated in well-informed circles that other heads in the Canadian office in London are about to fall, or, at least, other feet are due to walk the carpet. Alfred Jury and Wm. Griffiths have been the subject of much correspondence between London and Ottawa, and revelations of a more or less startling character may be made in a few days. The suspension of Mr. Just is but the first step in a reorganization of the Canadian emigration office in London.

REAPING THE WHIRLWIND.

Mrs. Chadwick Received At Cleveland With Jeers and Hoots.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 15.—Five times indicted by the United States Government at the exact minute that her train rolled into the station, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick came home to Cleveland yesterday. She was greeted by jeers, hoots and hisses by the crowds that gathered in the depot when her train arrived, howled at by hundreds gathered in front of the Federal Building. The last sound that reached her from the outside world, as she passed into the stuffy, ill-smelling office of Sheriff Barry, in the county jail, was the hoot of derision from the people massed in front of the doorway. She made no attempt to give bail, and after a brief stop in the office of the clerk of the United States Court, was taken to jail. She was held last night in cell 14, and her palatial residence in Euclid avenue, of which the furnishings alone are valued at $200,000, is occupied by her maid.

Her courage held to the last, but her body failed her, and when she had mounted to the three flights of stairs leading to the tier of cells in which she is to remain, she fainted.

"OFFERED WITHOUT REPLY."

What the Manchester Courier Thinks of Canada and Great Britain.

London, Dec. 16.—The Manchester Courier, commenting on Mr. Asquith's speech, says: It could hardly be called "disloyalty" on the part of Canada if, after granting a 33 per cent. preference and offering every able-bodied man in the Mother Country 100 acres of free land in vain, she turned to the United States for reciprocal trade.

Good Work of Y.M.C.A.

Since the emigration advice department of the Lancashire Y.M.C.A. was formed 2,000 letters of introduction have been given to young men going to Canada and a large number of unsuitable men have been prevented from undertaking work they were totally unfit for.

Doctors Find Him Insane.

St. Catharines, Dec. 15.—On Sept. 29 the barns and driving sheds of James H. Walker, near Beamsville, were burned. A tramp named Isaac Ziebler, who was found nearby, was arrested and charged with the crime. At first he admitted that he had set the barn on fire because the Walkers had refused him food that morning. Afterwards he denied all knowledge of the fire. His looks and actions clearly indicated that he was out of his mind. Yesterday afternoon in the sessions Ziebler was put on his trial upon a charge of arson. He pleaded not guilty. Doctors testified that he was mentally unsound. The jury found him not guilty. He will be taken care of at an asylum.

Killed His Stepdaughter.

Sherbrooke, Que., Dec. 15.—The Patrie murder case was concluded yesterday, when the jury returned a verdict of "guilty" against the accused, Napoleon Foquet. Foquet was charged with having murdered Amore Dubois, his stepdaughter, aged 23 months, on Oct. 11, 1903. It was shown in the evidence that the man had given the child brandy to drink, and that he had also beaten her and thrown her to the ground. It was also shown that he had admitted that he was the cause of the child's death. He will be hanged Jan. 27.

Kingston, Dec. 15.—At the county court yesterday, three of the convicts who recently escaped pleaded guilty to the charge of attempted escape and robbery. Biddle pleaded not guilty. Judge Price adjourned the trials till next June, to let the men secure counsel.

Dead By Her Own Act.

Toronto, Dec. 15.—Coroner Crawford last night concluded his enquiry into the death of Mrs. Annie Patterson of 16 Grove avenue, whose body was found on the lake shore Dec. 7. The jury brought in a verdict: "That she came to her death by drowning. We believe her death was due to her own act."

Soap That Floats.

A floating soap is produced by the means of soap being "beaten" while it is cooling, just as we beat eggs or batter. This incorporates air into the soap and makes it float. A given bulk of floating soap weighs much less than the same bulk of soap that does not float. One hundred pounds of soap beaten will make many more cakes of a given size of floating soap not beaten. It is due to no ingredient. Any soap will float if beaten. A soap is no better because it floats. This is no sign of a good soap. The only advantage is in being able to find the cake more easily if it be dropped into the bath or wash tub. In soap factories the soap is beaten by machinery.

Routing Burglars.

"You can't lose my wife."

"No?"

"Well, listen. I was away from home for three days last week. One night she heard burglars, the same burglars that she has been hearing ever since we were married. 'I'll make them think there's a man in the house,' she decided. So she put on a pair of my shoes and tramped about on the hardwood floors for an hour to scare them away. My wife is a diplomat."

Bent Water Pipes.

It is calculated that one right angle bend in a pipe through which water flows will make necessary 9 per cent more pressure for a given flow than is required for a straight pipe of like size and structure. With three sharp bends at right angles the pressure needed is 13 per cent more than that which is used in a straight pipe.

A Careful Judge.

This story is related of an old time judge: During a session of court there was so much talking and laughter going on that the judge, becoming angry and confused, shouted in great wrath: "Silence, here! We have decided half a dozen cases this morning, and I have not heard a word of one of them!"

Dangerous.

Binks—That long tunnel on the P., D. and Q. is a very dangerous place.

Jinks—Why, there hasn't been an accident there for years.

Binks—But within the past week four young couples have started through it free as air and come out engaged.

Arms and Their Uses.

Jessie—What made you remain such a long time in the conservatory with that young lieutenant? Bessie—Our conversation turned to war, and he was showing me how an officer should use his arms.

Medical.

A Rochelle physician was called to attend a boy who swallowed a couple of pennies. When he returned a friend asked, "How is your patient?" "No change yet," was the reply.—Mount Morris Index.

TWO CLAUSES WERE WITHDRAWN

And the Franchise By-law Went Through Council.

POWER OWNERS PRESENT.

They Stated Their Views With Regard to the By-law, and These Were Noted by the Aldermen—Conduits and Expropriations Objected To.

The Town Council did not hold a lengthy session last evening, but an important measure was put through—the by-law regulating the poles and wire lines on the streets. There were present at the meeting His Worship Mayor Roger, Aldermen Morrison, Johnston, Mason, Hicks, Scott, Adams, Clinkscale, Adams and Best.

Prior to the meeting the Council met in Committee and had a conference with Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, and Mr. W. Larmonth, representing the Peterborough Light & Power Co., and Mr. R. R. Hall, Mr. W. G. Ferguson and Mr. Adam Hall, of the Otonabee Power Company. The result was the elimination of clauses 10 and 13, of the by-law, which were as follows:—

10. If the said Corporation shall hereafter lay down ducts or conduits, or if ducts or conduits sufficient for the purposes should be laid down by any person or company authorized by the said Corporation in that behalf on any of the streets of the town on which the poles of any person or company authorized to erect and place the same are erected or placed, then if the same is required by the said Council, such poles shall within one year after such ducts or conduits are ready for use to be removed from said streets on which the said ducts or conduits are laid, and the said wires shall be laid in such ducts or conduits and the expense of such removal shall be borne by the person or company then owning or controlling the said poles, and the charge for the use of such ducts, if not agreed on by the parties shall be settled by arbitration in the usual way.

The great objection to the above was the impossibility to adapt it to the many circumstances which would arise out of the great variety of wires that would from time to time require to be placed in conduit, and that it was difficult to foresee in the by-the problems that would attend individual cases.

RIGHTS OF CORPORATION.

13 Any person or company authorised hereunder to erect and place poles on the streets shall if required by the said Corporation at the expiration of the term of occupancy granted by the by-law of agreement giving such right, sell, transfer and convey to the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough the whole or any of the poles then on the said streets for the then value thereof, such value to be ascertained and fixed, if not agreed on by the parties, by three arbitrators to be appointed in the manner provided for, and with the authority and powers of the arbitino appointed under section 450 of The Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, and sections 450, 454, 455, 457, 458, 459, 460, 463, 464, 465 and 466, so far as they are applicable, and sections 9, 10, 11, 12, 15, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 41, 42, 43 and 44 of the Arbitration Act shall apply to any arbitration to ascertain and fix such value, the arbitrators shall ascertain and fix the actual value of such property, having regard to what the same would cost, if constructed at the time of entering in such arbitration, making due allowance for any deterioration and wear and tear and by reason of the system or appliance having become in whole or in part obsolete, and making all other allowances, and shall not allow anything for prospective profits, franchises or street a pole rights.

The Otonabee Power Company, which at present has no franchise, particularly objected to the above on the ground that the rights reserved by the Council might prejudice possible investors. They asked to be placed on the same footing as the Peterborough Light & Power Company.

COUNCIL MEETS.

Upon going into session the Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the by-law, Ald. Johnston in the chair. The by-law went through its second and third readings and was passed.

A communication was received from R. M. Dennistoun asking for a resolution to release the cheque for $5,000 placed in the hands of the Treasury as security for the operation of the Street Railway by Sept. 1st, as the bank was charging interest upon it. This was referred to the Finance Committee and will be dealt with tonight at the statutary meeting.

BAD STREET.

Mr. Larmonth, in answer to a statement by the Mayor, said that the street railway line on Park-st. had been built according to grades given in instructions given by the Board of Works. The Railway Company had placed McDonnel-st. in a better condition than before, he said, having reduced the grade by 3 feet, widened the road and done all necessary filling in. He did not think the Street Railway Company should be held liable for something done according to instructions. They were willing to place filling in and material on the ground, provided the Council permits a spur to be run into the town gravel pit.

The Mayor replied that this was a very fair offer. In the meantime, he considered Park-st. from Cedar-st. to the G.T.R. tracks to be in a dangerous condition.

The Council adjourned.

MR. HILL WILL RUN AGAIN

As Water Commissioner—Board Holds Regular Meeting.

The water commissioners held a meeting on Tuesday and passed the accounts. Nothing was done in reference to the new dam. It is expected that Supt. Henderson's report will be ready for the next meeting. Mr. W. H. Hill is the water commissioner who retires this year. He will seek re-election, having rendered the citizens good and faithful service, along with the other commissioners, Messrs. Matthews and Moore.

THE CAMPAIGN HAS STARTED

Rousing Speeches at Conservative Committee Rooms.

THE PARTY IS CONFIDENT

End of Rossism and the Machine in Sight---Corrupt Record of the Government---Mr. Bradburn Assured of Hearty Support---Got Great Reception.

The Liberal Conservative campaign in West Peterborough got fairly under way last evening when a large number of adherents and friends of the party attended an organization meeting in the committee rooms in the Opera House block.

For the opening meeting of the campaign the attendance was remarkably large and great enthusiasm was displayed. Judging from the gathering, the old stalwarts are once more rallying round their candidate and a victory for Mr. Bradburn seems to be assured.

Before the organization was commenced several short snappy speeches were delivered by some of the prominent Conservatives present.

Mr. James Kendry was in the chair. He was very glad to support Mr. Bradburn. There was no gentleman in Peterborough more deserving of support. He thought that Mr. Bradburn would be able to redeem West Peterborough. There was no doubt but that Mr. Whitney would be elected, and this riding should continue to be represented by a member on the Government side.

Mr. L. M. Hayes was next called upon. He was pleased to see such a large number of the friends of the party present. For thirty-two years the Liberal-Conservative party had fought a long, grim and apparently hopeless battle. But they were on the eve of better days, and the swing of victory was in the air. In Mr. Bradburn the Conservatives had the very best man that could be brought out. He was known and respected throughout West Peterborough. He would not only get the solid support of the Conservative party, but would obtain the votes of many Liberals. The Conservatives had a leader esteemed by all, with colleagues against whom no charge of corruption had been made. Mr. Hayes closed by urging upon his hearers the necessity of working hard and faithfully.

GET OUT THE VOTE

Lieut.-Col. Miller was the next speaker and was warmly received. He said that it looked good to see the old faces once more. There was a hard fight coming and he warned his hearers against being too confident. They wanted to see Mr. Bradburn elected by a large majority He said that every vote should be got out. He impressed upon his hearers the necessity of seeing that every man was registered. At the last election this had not been done, and the result was a good many Conservative votes were lost. He thought the great bulk of the work should be done in the town for it was there that the election would be lost or won. He regretted the fact that there were men in town whose votes were purchaseable. The coming election was one of the most important ever held in Ontario and he again urged the necessity of getting to work and assisting in placing in power a clean, honest administration, one which would give the province decent and honorable government. In Mr. Whitney they had a leader of whom they should feel proud and who, in the election two years ago, captured 7,000 majority in the total vote of the province.

Mr. E. A. Peck next addressed the meeting. He said that he represented the Fifth Ward. That division had registered a majority against Mr. Kendry at the last election, but he could assure a Conservative majority this time. The success in this election was in their hands; they had but to grasp it. Registration was a matter that should be carefully attended to and an effort should be made to see that every one registered. They had a fine candidate in Mr. Bradburn, who was a good, practical business man. Mr. Whitney was going to be elected and West Peterborough should send him a supporter to Parliament.

He said there was nothing personally against Mr. McWilliams, who was an honest young man, but thought that his policy would not commend itself to the electors. He said that he had studied Mr. McWilliams manifesto about which he had noticed several things. It was an entire endorsation of Mr. Ross' policy. This rather surprised him for he had read not long ago a statement issued by Mr. McWilliams to the electors in which that gentleman had said that he was prepared to support Mr. Borden's railway policy and would also act as an independent, no matter which party was returned to power. Another thing about the manifesto was there wasn't a single piece of progressive legislation advocated in it.

He said that the electors could not support Mr. McWilliams if they believe in purity in political life, as a vote for him was a vote for the Ross Government and the continued malfeasance of office.

Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald said that he thought the work in the country should not be neglected. There were about 2,000 voters in the rural districts. He thought he was safe in predicting a majority for Mr. Bradburn in the country. He intended to get out and work for him, and would do his utmost to see him elected.

MR. BRADBURN'S RECEPTION

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, the popular candidate was received with great enthusiasm, said he wasn't much of a speaker, but he had done a great deal of work in the past. He supposed, however, that this time things were different, and he would have to take his turn at speaking. He advised them to get to work as soon as possible. There was a fine opportunity of capturing West Peterborough, but no candidate could win without strong support from his party.

He had met with encouraging success in his canvass and believed if they would unitedly support him he would carry the riding in the interest of business, progressive Government and as a supporter of Mr. Whitney.

The meeting then proceeded to form into ward committees and the rest of the evening was spent in hard work. The committee rooms in the opera house block will be open every evening until January 25th. All friends and supporters of Mr. Bradburn should make it a point to be in attendance and carry on the work of hard, earnest, effective organization.

The Funeral of W. J. Hall Was Attended by Friends From Far and Near.

The funeral of Wm. W. J. Hall, son of J. W. Hall, treasurer of South Monaghan, who was drowned by skating into a whole in Rice Lake, took place on Sunday from the family residence, near Bensfort, to St. Paul's church cemetery, South Cavan. The last sad rites were attended by friends from all over the surrounding country, including Bobcaygeon, Peterborough and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mills were among those present from town.

The services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. W. C. Allen, of Millbrook. As the cortege passed through Baillieboro the English church bell was tolled.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

POLICE COURT WAS BUSY

J. Carney Committed for Trial—Fine of $25.95 in Case of Assault—Other Cases.

The familiar face of Frank Meehan once more loomed up before Police Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning, in answer to the same old charge of vagrancy, and as usual was not guilty, and would go to work again if discharged. The Magistrate rather than add one more to the list of boarders at the jail, allowed him to go, warning him that the next offence would mean a term in the Central.

J. Carney, had to answer to the charge of stealing a valise, a suit of clothes, a pair of boots, two suits of underwear, a pair of rubbers and a hat from his uncle, William Carney, Simcoe street. The latter is back somewhere in the lumbering districts. The prisoner's defence was that he was going to take the articles to his uncle, with the authority of the latter. The Magistrate thought there was sufficient evidence to commit Carney for trial and did so.

John Dundas was charged with assaulting two women employed at the Oriental Hotel. Their story was that they were returning from the S.O.E. banquet about one o'clock on Tuesday morning. As they neared the corner a hack came along and a man jumped out and accosted them. He used very insulting and profane language to them and laid hands on one of them. On their stating that they would report him to the police he drew something—whether handcuffs or revolver, they were not certain—and said, "Here's one right here." Then he permitted them to go. The Magistrate said that the offence, a very serious one, had been proven, and imposed a fine of $20 and costs, amounting to $25.95, or twenty days in jail.

George Doig was charged with assault by Mrs. Lucinda McMaster, who lives in the rear of 190 Murray street. The two are neighbors, but do not seem to possess the sociable spirit that one would naturally expect from people living so close together. A dispute over the right of way of a lane between the two houses was the cause of all the trouble. Doig alleged that the lane was his property and Mrs. McMaster was equally as confident that she had the right of way through it.

The other day the defendant had sent some of the men in his employ to shovel the snow out of the land and put it along the fence and at Mrs. McMaster's gate. The latter objected to this in rather strenuous language, and chased the men away with a broom. Doig came out of his house, and the mix-up became general. The language used on both sides was much more spirited than polite. The defendant said that Mrs. McMaster had tried to hit him with a broom, threatening to knock his brains out. It was proven that Doig had laid hands upon Mrs. McMaster. The magistrate imposed a fine of $2 and costs, amounting to $4.65.

GOOD PLATFORM WAS DRAWN UP

Trades and Labor Council Endorse Three Men for Council

GOOD PROGRESSIVE POLICY

Ald. Johnston, Joseph Crowe and T. J. Begley are the Candidates—Approval of Public Ownership of Lighting Plants and that Cement Walks be Paid by Frontage Tax.

One of the largest meetings in the history of the Trades and Labor Council was held last evening. Three candidates were endorsed for election to the Town Council—Alderman W. J. Johnston and Messrs. Joseph Crowe and T. J. Begley, and these gentlemen have consented to stand. Every Trades Union in town had its representative at the meeting, and the session lasted until midnight.

TOWN'S BEST INTERESTS.

The platform on which the candidates will present themselves to the electors was fully considered, and its different planks commended themselves to the meeting as being in the best interests of the town. During its discussion the unsatisfactory condition of the streets, in spite of large expenditures of public money, was condemned. Several speakers referred in terms of praise to the very satisfactory manner in which the Canadian Machine Telephone Company had performed the work of installation in connection with the new system.

The candidates not only appeal to the workingmen, but also to the ratepayers. They stand for no discrimination against any section, but for a general, progressive policy, looking to the upbuilding of the town, the improvement of streets, and the encouragement of industries.

THE MAYORALTY CONTEST.

The feeling is that the industrial classes should have a fair representation in the Council. No reference was made to the Mayoralty contest. A question that came up for considerable discussion of a favorable character was the purchase by the municipality of property on the boundary of the town, suitable for industrial sites. The matter was fully explained, and was considered to be a policy that would be in the best interests of the town. Some further consideration will be given to this item at another meeting.

The unsatisfactory condition of the local post office for distribution of the mails was also considered, and the establishment of a free postal delivery in Peterborough seemed to be a very popular step, which should be undertaken very soon.

The Peterborough press came in for a vote of thanks for the manner in which everything of interest to the working classes had been reported.

GOOD GRASP OF QUESTION.

It will be seen by a glance at the planks of the platform that the members of the Trades and Labor Council certainly must have a good grasp of municipal affairs, and the representatives whom they propose for the Council, will, by standing together, do much to bring about reforms that must commend themselves as being in the best interests of the town. The gentlemen have always taken a prominent part in industrial affairs, and it goes without saying that in that in their election the progress of the town will be well taken care of.

THE PLATFORM.

Following is the platform:—

1st. Abolition of present assessing, appointment of an assessment commissioner.

2nd. That the corporation limits be so regulated that permits should be applied for when buildings are being erected.

3rd. The appointment of a building and plumbing inspector.

4th. That cement walks be paid for by frontage tax.

5th. Public ownership of public and commercial lighting.

6. A general progressive and economic policy tending to the upbuilding of the town by encouraging industries to locate in our town.

7th. A reform in the present unsatisfactory condition of our streets after public improvements, and the encouragement of beautifying and placing our thoroughfares in proper condition.

MRS MONCRIEF MAY DIE

Was Very Low at Three O'clock this Afternoon—The Motorman's Story.

The report from Nicholls Hospital at three o'clock this afternoon was that Mrs. Moncrief, who was injured in yesterday's street railway accident was very low. The nature of injuries received were such that her recovery is despaired of.

The report of the motorman on Car 13, which was involved in the accident, has been received at the office of the Street Railway Company. He states that he saw the horse approaching the track and slowed up but Mrs. Moncrief appeared to have the animal under control. He continued on his trip, but just as the car was about to pass the horse, the latter plunged across the track and the collision resulted. It is stated that the car was no going very fast at the time.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

HE FORGOT ABOUT ROSS

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—We have another voice crying out in the wilderness, "Consistency, thou art a jewel!" This gentleman writes to the Examiner wanting to know why Messrs. Lindsay and others, not named, are not not battling for the temperance cause, as they were two short years ago. Is there any such a thing in existence now? Did not "Consistency" and other Grit temperance workers kill the cause two years ago by supporting a gentleman who was not, to say the least, in favor of any temperance measure at the hands of a government of which he was a member. They had a chance to support an out and out temperance candidate, but voted with their party. "Real progress will never be made till some of the friends of temperance become as honest in practice as they are blatant in profession."

Consistency's own leader, Mr. Ross, promised to go as far towards prohibition as the law would allow him, but when confronted with his promise, his oft-reiterated promise, he tells his temperance friends that the party would lose some elections if they embodied a measure of prohibition as a plank in the party platform.

"Consistency," bless his dear soul, will still vote for Mr. Ross, although he has thrown down the object so dear to his heart. Unfortunately, these bogus friends of temperance, when political schemes are to be served, are found at the front and they generally have plausibility enough to hoodwink honest temperance people and draw them in their wake. You hit them, "Consistency," and you are describing yourself with both eyes on the looking glass.

By the way, "Consistency," why have you raised this question within 24 hours of the announcement of the election. No temperance organization has had time to meet and air its views.

Yours,
ANTI-HUMBUG.

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, DEC. 15, 1904.

The Day of the Doer.

Time was when "Has Been" was accepted and respected for the sake of what he had done. Not so today.

"Am Now" has introduced himself and is the lion of the hour.

No one cares what has been done. The world is too busy keeping in touch with the "Doer" to bother about the "Done."

Maybe you composed an opera yesterday. No one cares. What are you composing now?

You tell us that your last year's picture was the success of the day. Yes, of that day, but that day is gone. What are you painting now?

Nor does the world care for promise. It accepts not the bud, but the blossom.

The "Will Be" is no more welcome among the world's workers than is the "Has Been."

You may be about to sing a beautiful melody which promises to ring down the ages. Nobody cares. Sing it. The world cannot afford to think about unsung melodies.

The world has room for the "Doer" only; the "Nower" is the rage.

This is an age of "Do, we must be shown!"

It is an age of now, an age of today. It recognizes no yesterday. There is no tomorrow.

Bolivian Runners.

"Every one who has read the histories of the Incas," writes an Englishman, "has marveled at the tales of the native runners who were a feature in the civilization of that period. Some of this race of men still remain. When in Bolivia I have often had a telegram delivered at the station, forty miles away, and an answer received and brought back by the same man, all, including the journey of eighty miles, not occupying more than eighteen hours. The man was well content to receive two Bolivian dollars, or 75 cents in American money, for the service. I saw a man who delivered a message 200 miles away and brought an answer back, covering within six days and nights 400 miles. As he did this work for a native, his charge was five Bolivian dollars, about $1.87 American, out of which he provided his own food."

Can't Afford Ill Health.

Cure is Cheap at any Price—Benefit Certain if You Use

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Only the wealthy can afford to be invalids.

They alone can bear the expense of constant attendance by doctors and high salaried nurses.

Your time is your capital, and, whether your daily task is in the home or abroad, you must make every day count or prove a burden to yourself and friends.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is well suited to the needs of a multitude of people because it overcomes weakness, first weakness of the blood and nerves, and through them the weakness of the organs of the body.

It may require a dozen or more boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to make you strong and well and send the thrill of health through your shrivelled arteries and wasted nerves.

Because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a creator of blood and nerve force you can be positive that each box of it is at least doing you some good. Prove this by noting your increase in weight as new, firm flesh and tissue is being added to the body.

Mrs. Cross, 148 Rubidge street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—

"I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in my family, and have found it to be a great nerve builder. One of my children had been troubled with nervousness for a couple of years and suffered greatly from dizzy, nervous headaches. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has entirely freed her of these symptoms, and today she is real strong and healthy. We do not lose an opportunity of recommending this splendid medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Then why should Mamie be putting on

For Mamie is a dimpling girl.
Her cheeks are soft and sweet.
And there's a wee, distracting curl

And crimsoned finger tips.
When of her redness I speak
She only turns and dabs a streak
Of gory red upon my cheek.
Then in her color dips.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

Lady Danvers laughed, and turned away to receive some fresh visitors who had just arrived at the Park—a Colonel and Mrs. Vanhurst. The colonel was a fine gray-haired old soldier, and his wife a pretty little woman who easily went into ecstasies. She went into ecstasies now on the beauties of Danvers Park and its surroundings, and occupied Lady Danvers' attention. Then Sir Ralph crossed over to where Laura was standing.

"You know to whom I returned my love-letter," he said, smiling.

Laura also smiled.

"You will only get a more tender appeal in return, and a demand for an explanation," she answered.

"Which I shall also return. I shall never speak another word to her."

"I think it would be the wisest plan," said Laura, lowering her voice.

"What are you going to do this afternoon?" then asked Sir Ralph.

"What the others do, I suppose," said Laura.

"Probably that gushing little woman yonder will want to see over the grounds. Would you like a row on the lake?"

"We must leave Lady Danvers to decide how her guests shall amuse themselves."

When luncheon was over Mrs. Vanhurst entreated them to go over the place, "and explore the lovely woods!" she cried, clapping her little hands together in her well-feigned enthusiasm.

"We will all go, then," said Lady Danvers. "Mrs. Vanhurst, allow me to present Sir Ralph Woodland to you."

"And will you be my guide through the woods?" said the pretty little woman, raising her fine eyes to Sir Ralph's face with a look of pathetic appeal and innocence.

"I should have been charmed," he answered, grimly, "only I have already promised to row another lady on the lake."

And he looked at Laura as he spoke, who turned her head away and affected not to hear what he had said.

"And can I not row, too," asked Mrs. Vanhurst, sweetly, who did not wish to lose the company of the most distinguished-looking man in the room.

"The woods are well worth seeing," answered Sir Ralph, turning away. "Do not forsake me in my trouble," the next moment he half-whispered in Laura's ear. "You promised, remember, to row with me on the lake."

Laura could not help smiling, but Sir Ralph got his own way.

"I am going to row Mrs. Gifford," he said, calmly, when Lady Danvers approached them; and little Mrs. Vanhurst was forced to start to explore the woods in the—to her—wearisome company of her husband and Lady Danvers; for she was tired of her husband, and always tired of all women.

In the meantime the two who were going down to the lake were smiling over her discomfiture.

"You behaved very badly to that little lady, Sir Ralph," said Laura.

"I hate gushing women," he answered; "it was awfully good of you to come to my rescue."

"You gave me no choice."

"I wished you to come so much."

They did not say much after this. They walked together over the smooth greensward down to the shining lake, by whose margin the tall reeds reared their graceful heads. There was a small island in the centre of the lake, and this was inhabited by a great quantity of water-fowl. A peaceful scene; silent, beautiful, and well suited to the mood of the two, who stood looking at the blue depth of the sunlit water, round which the willows drooped, and the breeze softly stole. There were two boats moored to the shore, and one of these Sir Ralph presently drew in, and, having assisted Laura into the boat, pushed off, and began to row across the lake. The rhythmic dip of the oars, the romantic beauty of the scene, seemed to cast a sort of spell over Laura's soul. The last few months seemed to pass away from her mind. She was a girl again, listening once more to her lover's voice. Yet no word of love came from Sir Ralph's firm lips. He knew if he had spoken such he would have frightened her; that he would have destroyed the charm of that tacit agreement that bound their hearts.

But it was a perilous hour to both; deepening the strong passion in the man's heart, and filling the woman's whole being with a vague sense of happiness she had never felt before. And not until the sun began to dip into the west, and a chill breeze crept over the darkening water, did Laura recall herself from that blissful trance.

"It must be getting late," she said; "you had better row in, Sir Ralph."

"So soon," he answered.

Ah, it was too soon for him; too soon for her! Time had rushed on in that golden hour as it flies to cheat us of our joy. Yet he did not disobey her wish, nor attempt to detain her. He rowed slowly back to the landing-place, he assisted Laura from the boat, and then both, as if by mutual consent, turned round to look at the now shadowed lake.

"I shall never forget it," said Sir Ralph, in a low tone.

"I shall see it in my dreams," thought Laura; but a moment later she roused herself.

"Come, Sir Ralph, let us make haste; they will think we are lost," she said. And so the two turned and went away.

CHAPTER XIX.

They walked quickly back to the house, and did not encounter any of the other guests on their way there, and when Laura reached her own room she felt glad that they had not done so.

Yet she had done nothing wrong, she told herself. It was all so beautiful, she added; and then, with a sigh, she commenced to dress for dinner, unfastening her long brown hair, which was remarkable for its beauty and thickness.

What made her look at herself so earnestly in the mirror as she did so; was she pleased at the new beauty in her face, at the glow on her oval cheeks? She was not a vain woman, but what woman is there who would not look fair to some eyes? It might be wrong, but she chose to wear her prettiest gown, though she did not clasp the diamonds George had given her round her slender throat.

She looked like a beautiful girl when she went into the small drawing-room where the guests were assembled before dinner. She was dressed in white, with some crimson roses that Lady Danvers had asked one of the gardeners to cut for her in the morning in her hair and at her breast.

Sir Ralph Woodland was leaning against one of the walls of the room as she went in, and his eyes scarcely left her face after she entered. Never had he seen her so beautiful, he thought. The richness and glow of her coloring was so different to when he had met her in town. He recalled at this moment the young artist he had first admired sitting at her work; the grave girl who had raised her dark eyes to his with such proud indifference.

Ah, there was no indifference in them now! Presently their eyes met, and something in that shadowed glance, for her eyelids fell, made Sir Ralph cross the room and approach her side.

"You are not tired, I hope?" he said. "But I see you are not," he added, and he smiled.

"No, I am not tired," answered Laura, softly.

At this moment, however, pretty little Mrs. Vanhurst also drew near. She had found the walk in the woods very tiresome, and she did not see why "that Mrs. Gifford" should have Sir Ralph Woodland all to herself.

"Had you a charming row on the lake?" she said, addressing Sir Ralph. "Ah, I quite envied you."

"It was very nice down there this afternoon," replied Sir Ralph, in an indifferent tone.

"I love the water," continued Mrs. Vanhurst. "If the morning is fine, will you give me a row, too, Sir Ralph?"

"Too proud," he answered, with a slightly sarcastic ring in his voice, but Mrs. Vanhurst was by no means thin-skinned.

And, to Sir Ralph's great annoyance, he was presently requested to take her in to dinner, while her husband, Colonel Vanhurst, escorted Laura.

Mrs. Vanhurst was one of those little women who try to make every man they meet in love with them. But it was simply her vanity she wished to gratify. She therefore did her very best during dinner to make Sir Ralph first in love with himself and then with her. She flattered him; she looked at him with her fine eyes, and played with them unceasingly. She admired Sir Ralph; admired his dark, distinguished face, in which lingered, she afterward declared, "one tinge of sadness, one touch of scorn."

"You look like a hero," she told him. "Have you ever done anything heroic; I believe you have."

"Never," truthfully affirmed Sir Ralph.

"Ah, come now; when you have been out after big game in India or Africa, have you not saved some comrade's life by your bravery? I feel sure you have."

"My biggest game has been the red rover of the furrows," laughed Sir Ralph.

"I could fancy you a great sportsman, you look so brave, so strong. I love courage in men, you know, though I am such a frightful little coward myself."

"Pray say a charming little coward."

"You know what I mean! How naughty of you to laugh at me. But you must not be naughty any more, as I feel sure we shall be friends. I know by instinct those I shall like; do you?"

"And how do you know those you shall like?" parried Sir Ralph.

"By their faces, by their eyes; I read their souls."

Japanese Catarrh Cure

Cures Catarrh after all else has Failed.

It is remarkable how many times Japanese Catarrh Cure completely cures catarrh after all other treatment was a failure. We have on record hundreds of testimonials from prominent people, telling us of their experience with specialists, tablets, tonics and blood purifiers. They tried everything they ever heard of—spent hundreds of dollars in a vain effort to get relief. But it was not until Japanese Catarrh Cure was used, that they began to mend. Let this experience guide you.

"I had been a great sufferer from Catarrh for over fifteen years, during which time I tried a score of doctors, and every remedy I thought would relieve me, but the result was only temporary. About a year ago, I used six boxes of Japanese Catarrh Cure, and since completing this treatment, have been entirely free of catarrh. I can recommend it with every confidence."

TRY TO POISON LAWSON.

Boston Millionaire Makes Serious Charge Against Standard Oil.

New York, Dec. 15.—"Thos. W. Lawson's attacks on the stock market have caused me to lose $1,500,000 the last two days trying to protect the stockholders of my Greene Consolidated Copper Mine," said Col. W. C. Greene, president of the company, Tuesday night. "It was this loss that enraged me and made me publish this open letter denouncing Lawson as a liar, a fakir and a charlatan."

Greene seemed to regret that he had published the letter. He did not go to Boston to denounce Lawson in his own office, as he had promised he would. Lawson waited all day for him, then sent him a letter calling him a liar and inviting him to come and bring his pistol with the notches in it.

Lawson also intimated that the Standard Oil party had tried to bribe a servant to put poison in his coffee.

Orders 25,000 Tons.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has faith in the satisfactory quality of Canadian-made steel rails. Some time ago he caused a careful technical inspection to be made of the quality of steel rails now being made at the works of the Algoma Steel Company of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and as a result the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has placed with the Algoma Steel Company, Limited, through the latter's sales agents, Drummond, McCall & Co., Montreal, an order for 25,000 tons of 80-foot rails for prompt delivery.

Billy Boyd Arrested.

London, Dec. 15.—Billy Boyd, a sprinter, known far and wide in Canada and the United States, has been arrested at Chatham at the instigation of ex-Ald. C. N. Douglas of this city. Boyd, who belongs to Woodstock, was a competitor at the Olympic games at the World's Fair, and, it is alleged that, with another sprinter, named Hugh Anderson, he conspired to defraud Douglas by getting the latter to wager a large sum of money on him (Boyd) and then throwing the race. Douglas is said to have lost $10,000 on the event. Anderson has not been located.

Civic Ownership Pays.

Kingston, Dec. 15.—The municipality-owned waterworks closed the year with a surplus of over $3,000. There were 3,640 consumers, to whom 629,059,829 gallons were provided during the year. The revenue of the department for 1904 was $44,864.12; working expenditure, $14,128; capital account, $6,348.66; expiring debentures and interest, $11,154.21; balance on hand, $3,038.25. The city gets $9,000 worth of water per year. It allows $4,750 for taxes, thus receiving $4,250 as a gift for backing the works debentures.

Jews Corner Bread Market.

Kishineff, Dec. 15.—The district zemstvo has voted $105,000 to purchase bread and to open warehouses for the sale of flour and grain to the distressed at cost price, as the Jews are buying up all the grain in the villages and reselling it at three times its cost.

Spanish Cabinet Resigns.

Madrid, Dec. 15.—The entire Cabinet has resigned owing to a disagreement over the proposed military reforms and the refusal of the King to confirm nominations presented by the War Minister.

FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Not an Unusual Instance

"I used Pyramid Pile Cure and have not had any trouble since. I have been a sufferer with piles for twenty years. I think it is the best remedy on earth for piles. Hoping this may help others to use this remedy," Mrs. J. D. Teller, R. F. D. 20, Sparta, Mich.

It is a singular fact that although many women suffer from piles or hemorrhoids, they frequently do not have proper treatment because of a delicacy women have in mentioning such a subject. Especially is this the case with those who have no husband or brother in which they can confide; and a physician is seldom consulted until the pain and agony incident to piles becomes unbearable.

Thousands of women have suffered longer than did even Mrs. Teller, always experiencing slight or temporary relief, if any, from the various remedies used and finally settling down to the conviction that a cure in their cases was impossible. Pyramid Pile Cure has come as a boon to all such, as it seldom, if ever, fails to effect a permanent cure. It is sold by druggists for fifty cents a package, or will be mailed by the makers to any address, upon receipt of price. Absolute secrecy is guaranteed, and no name is ever used without the consent of the writer.

It is suggested that those interested write to Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book describing the causes and cure of piles, as it is free for the asking.

OKU CROSSES THE HUN

Japs Under His Command Are Raiding Russian Villages.

Burn Three Villages Which Were Occupied By Cossacks—Left Division of the Jap Army, Manchuria Way, Shows Signs of Successful Activity—Bombardment At Port Arthur On the 13th Was Very Fierce.

Tokio, Dec. 15.—A despatch from the Manchurian army, dated the Sha River, Monday at midnight, announces that the left wing of Gen. Oku's army crossed the Hun River on its westerly side north of the Sha, and burned three villages which were occupied by Russian Cossacks. After three hours of fighting the Japanese division was able to capture an entrenched hill held by three battalions of Russian Infantry and two batteries of guns. Forty-six Russian dead were left on the field and 14 prisoners taken. No report comes of any movement by the centre or right army, or if such a report has come to Tokio it has not been made public by the Imperial army board. It is believed here that the entire Japanese army is advancing and is receiving both men and heavy guns from Port Arthur.

ADMIRAL TOGO REPORTS.

Torpedo Flotilla Began Attack Monday Night On Sevastopol.

Tokio, Dec. 15.—The report of Vice-Admiral Togo was received Tuesday night. It is as follows:

"Capt. Kasado, commanding the torpedo flotilla, on Monday night at midnight attacked the Russian battleship Sevastopol, lying outside Port Arthur. The result of this attack has not been ascertained. Subsequently two torpedo boats under Commander Masade attempted several attacks, facing the enemy's vigorous fire. The shock of the explosions of torpedoes was felt, but the next day the Sevastopol remained in the same position. None of our vessels were damaged. On Tuesday at 2.30 a.m. another torpedo flotilla under Commander Arakawa attacked the Sevastopol, but the result of this attack was not learned. In this attack a shell from the enemy struck the funnel of one of our torpedo boats. Another struck the engine-room, disabling the vessel, and she lost her freedom of action and was towed away by her comrades. There were no casualties.

"Again, at 6 a.m. of the same day, a torpedo flotilla under Commander Seki attempted an attack, but was exposed by the enemy's searchlights and, being subjected to a heavy fire, was unable to accomplish its purpose.

"Simultaneously Lieut. Adachi, commanding two torpedo boats, approached the enemy's ship and discharged two torpedoes, which were seen to explode, but with what effect is not known. These attackers were also exposed to a heavy fire and both were hit once and three men injured."

The Russian battleship Sevastopol, the only Russian ship that escaped destruction, being docked when the other vessels were sunk after the Japanese captured 203-Metre Hill, escaped from the dock and harbor Tuesday night and is now anchored under a protecting mountain. Some torpedo craft are also outside of the harbor.

The tremendous price in life paid by the Japanese for the capture of 203-Metre Hill has been redeemed by the utter destruction of the Russian fleet.

The Japanese fleet will now go into dock.

Fierce Firing.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The Japanese Legation has received the following cablegram from Tokio:

"Commander of naval artillery reports that bombardment on the 13th was principally aimed at the arsenal and the torpedo depot at Tiger Tail, and at steamboats in its vicinity. The torpedo depot was ablaze one hour. Three ships were destroyed and one was sunk. The buildings were greatly damaged. Indirect bombardment upon the Sevastopol, staying outside the harbor, was suspended owing to the bad weather, which prevented observation. Togo reports that the torpedo flotilla attacked the Sevastopol twice on the night of the 13th. The result is uncertain. Each time they met the enemy's fierce fire and one of our torpedo boats was disabled, but was towed back, while three received one shot each. Our total casualties were only three men wounded.

Havoc From Dynamite.

Before Port Arthur, with the third Japanese army, via Fusan, Dec. 15.—The work of removing the dead from the slopes and crests of 203-Metre Hill had been completed on the north side. The south slopes are still covered with bodies buried under the debris of trenches and bomb proofs. The long lines of Japanese dead laid out on the top of the hill and the slopes previous to interment, presented an awful appearance. The effect of dynamite used as an offensive weapon in the form of hand grenades is instanced in an appalling manner by the condition of the dead bodies, which are torn and almost unrecognizable masses of flesh and bones. Fragments of hundreds of killed unearthed from the filled-in Russian trenches, presented a scene of awful horror. The heavy timbers and steel plates of the bomb proofs were torn to splinters by shells and dynamite.

Shell-Swept.

Headquarters of the Third Japanese Army, via Fusan, Dec. 15.—Every part of the city and harbor of Port Arthur is visible from 203-Metre Hill. The streets of the city are deserted and but few soldiers are doing patrol duty. Many buildings have been burned and others shattered. The shelters of the harbor present a strange appearance, with the turrets, masts and funnels of warships showing just above the water. There is not a vessel afloat in the harbor. The docks and buildings on the waterfront are torn and burned. The Japanese shells reach every part of the city and harbor.

Sevastopol Torpedoed.

Tokio, Dec. 15, noon.—It is reported that the Japanese have successfully torpedoed the Russian battleship Sevastopol.

300 Japs Drown.

London, Dec. 15.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Che Foo gives a rumor of the sinking of a big Japanese warship off Port Arthur on Nov. 30, three hundred persons being drowned, and of two Russian torpedo boat destroyers by Japanese on Nov. 25. The first of these reported disasters is probably only another version of the sinking of the Japanese cruiser Saiyen.

WANT BALLOTS INSPECTED.

Mr. Avery of Frontenac Would Proceed in Bogus Ballot Case.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—The next move in the celebrated bogus ballot box case will be made in Ottawa. To-day, at the opening of the High Court, a motion will be made before Mr. Justice Anglin, asking for an inspection of all the ballots cast at poll No. 2, Clarendon and Miller, in Frontenac riding, at the last general election. This is the poll at which Hawkeye, the Chicago wrestler, had his say, and at which one of the "phoney" ballot boxes was used. The purpose of the inspection is to ascertain how many genuine and how many bogus ballots were placed in the box. The inspection is asked for on behalf of the successful Conservative candidate in the riding, Mr. Avery, who had as an opponent W. J. Shibley, whose name figured so prominently in the recent investigation at Belleville. The examination, if granted, will be made before Henri G. Lamothe, clerk of the Crown in Chancery, who has charge of the ballots cast in the election.

DO NOT WALK ON THIN ICE

If You Have Catarrh You are in Danger —It Breeds Dyspepsia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Aside from the extreme offensive and odious nature of the disease, catarrh is also very dangerous if left to run its course unchecked. The constant droppings into the throat, which are mostly swallowed during sleep, cause poisonous disorders of the throat, stomach and lungs, which rapidly develop into dyspepsia, laryngitis, bronchitis and consumption. When these diseases become established, especially the latter, the result is too well known to need pointing out.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a certain and absolute cure for catarrh in all forms and all stages. Catarrhal conditions are always of the same nature, whether they exist in the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder, and these tablets act on all alike. They cleanse, renovate and purify the entire system of all catarrhal poisons and by thus going to the very root of the disease, effect thorough and permanent cure. This is the only way to treat catarrh, as local applications, such as sprays, ointments, inhalations, etc., afford only temporary relief, and the malady takes hold again with increased vigor.

An Indianapolis physician says "I prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets on all occasions because I find they are most thorough and effective in their work. I have tried a great many prescriptions, my own and others, during 30 years of practice, but have never found anything quite so satisfactory in all respects as these tablets. I have known the most stubborn and virulent cases of catarrh to yield time after time to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and I do not hesitate to prescribe and recommend them."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle. It will pay you to give them a trial and get away from the suffering, humiliation and danger caused by catarrh.

THE NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL

(Ottawa Citizen.)

The people of Ottawa extend a hearty welcome to His Excellency Earl Grey, on his arrival to assume the duties of Governor-General of the Dominion. Previous to his appointment as his Majesty's representative in Canada the distinguished nobleman has had considerable experience, colonial and imperial, which should well fit him for the position he now holds. He comes to Canada under the happiest auspices, for the people of this country have heard so much that is admirable of his previous career that they are frankly prejudiced in his favor, and regard with confident expectation the prospect that he will add to his reputation there as a capable, tactful and popular administrator. His Excellency also comes to Canada at an important period in our history when the immediate future is likely to be fruitful in events effecting the relations of the Dominion with the mother country and our status in the great imperial movement which is now slowly taking shape. Both Canada and the Empire are fortunate in having at this juncture a vice-regal representative of such experience, ability and sound views on imperial questions to aid in the solution of the difficulties that may arise in bringing into effect the changes that are contemplated.

His Excellency, the Countess of Grey and their family have the assurance of a hearty welcome from the people of Ottawa and their best wishes that their stay at the Capital may be in every respect pleasant and agreeable.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age.
Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

Want Canadian Wheat.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Secretary of the United States Treasury Shaw yesterday conferred with representatives of leading flour mill interests regarding the proposed regulations allowing drawback on exported flour, made in part from imported wheat. Afterward the Secretary stated that the only proposition over which any controversy has arisen relates to the manufacture of flour composed in part of Canadian and in part of home-grown wheat. This has not yet been passed on.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Mrs. W. R. Sutherland, St. Andrew's, Man., writes:—"I was stricken with paralysis and lost power of the tongue and left leg. For six months I obtained no relief either by doctors' prescriptions or other medicines. My husband got me Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which has revitalized my nerves and given me full power of the paralyzed parts. I am strong and well now, thanks to this great medicine."

A Story of Napoleon.

Napoleon invariably refused to remove his hat when he received kings and sovereign princes under the rank of emperor. He uncovered his head only in the presence of the emperors of Russia and of Austria. One day Napoleon received the king of Bavaria and of Saxony at St. Cloud. As the two kings removed their hats the emperor acknowledged their salutations by merely touching the brim of his cocked hat with his forefinger. He then drove with the two kings to Malmaison and, getting out of his carriage, casually remarked: "I am going to see the empress. Would you mind waiting for me?" The royal pair seemed to have been forgotten, for they sat in silent expectation for nearly an hour. Finally they noticed some of the imperial footmen playing cards. The king of Bavaria then laughingly remarked to the king of Saxony: "What a pity we haven't got a pack of cards. Since he treats us in this way we might at least follow the servants' example and pass the time playing piquet."

ORDINATION OF REV. J. A. WILSON

Impressive Ceremony in St. Andrew's Church, Hamilton.

INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESSES

The New Minister Given Some Sound Sound Advice and a Bright Future Predicted for Him—Those Who Took Part in the Service.

Hamilton, Dec. 14.—St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was crowded to the doors last night by members of the congregation and their friends to witness the ordination into the ministry of Mr. J. A. Wilson, late assistant pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, and his induction into the pastorate of St. Andrew's. Previous to the congregational meeting the Hamilton Presbytery met in the Sunday school room, where Mr. Wilson was examined in accordance with the rules of the Presbyterian church. Rev. John Young, the Moderator of the church, conducted the public services, and Rev Mr. McDermott of Locke Street Presbyterian church, preached the ordination sermon, choosing for his text, Rom. viii. 15, "For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father." He said the context showed clearly that the apostle endeavored to make clear the wide gap between those who walked after the flesh and those after the spirit of adoption. The law of the flesh was life, the law of the spirit was life. He spoke on the nature of the bond from which the believer is delivered—the bondage of sin. The slave received nothing for the sweat of his brow, but the lash. The hope that comes to all he must not entertain. His emancipation comes with death. Spiritual bondage is more degrading than bodily bondage. Another kind of bondage was slavish fear of God. They all had it more or less. The first conviction of sin is generally caused by alarm for the future. They give up certain bad habits, but that will bring them no peace or happiness. Through the spirit of adoption comes the spirit of love, not fear, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. The speaker then told how this spirit was to be obtained—by believing the Gospel and carrying out its precepts in their daily lives. Christ, and Christ alone, is the only way. They were to live a life of self consecration.

Rev. Mr. Young here recited the various steps that had led to the call of Rev. Mr. Wilson to be pastor of the church, and the service of ordination and induction was then proceeded with, Rev. Mr. Young leading in prayer while the members of the Presbytery joined in "the laying on of hands," while Mr. Wilson knelt and the brethren placed their right hand on his head.

Rev. J. H. Ratcliffe, of St. Catharines then addressed the newly ordained and inducted pastor. He said two principal things that should concern him were the minister and the message. The minister should be under the power and the dominion of the Holy Spirit. He should watch the inner life. There were many temptations that were peculiar to the minister. He would be much before the public in preaching and visiting. A minister's life was a busy one, although some people did not think so. There was danger that he would give more heed to the outer than to the inner life. He should cultivate his soul and his mind. Take time for prayer, for study, and the reading of the Bible. It is his text book. His message—it is contained in the Bible. Preach the Word. Regard it as the Lord's message to a lost world. It requires careful preparation and study. Preach positive truth—not speculative theories. He should find his sermons in his flock—in their troubles and necessities. The end of his ministry should be the salvation of souls.

Rev. D. Anderson, of the Presbyterial church, Burlington, addressed the congregation. He said Mr. Wilson was their own choice, not the choice of a bishop nor a stationing committee. They should be regular in their attendance at the church services. They should attend in a proper spirit, and when opportunity offered speak a word of encouragement to him. It does a person good. They should not find fault with the sermon, if it was not helpful to them, before their family or those who did not go to church. What may not have pleased you may have been especially helpful to someone else. Perhaps the fault was in you and not in the sermon. Give the pastor considerable liberty as to his plans and ideas of work. Everybody has ways of his own, and the minister has ideas too. Do not expect him to visit too often and if anyone is sick let him know as soon as possible.

The meeting was a pleasant and successful one, and everybody seemed pleased that the choice of the congregation had at last been settled in their midst. Rev. Mr. Young spoke very hopefully and kindly of Mr Wilson's pastorate, and the addresses were all interesting and impressive. At the close the new pastor was introduced to the members of the congregation as they passed out of the church by Mr. Leckie and Mr. Croal. Rev. Mr. Wilson comes to a united and progressive church, with great possibilitiees for the future on account of its location. With a young, energetic and eloquent minister such as he is, St. Andrew's prosperity is assured.

During the evening a telegram was read from Rev. Mr. McWilliams and Mrs. McWilliams, of St. Mary's, the former pastor and his wife, bearing their congratulations. This evening a reception will be tendered Rev. Mr. Wilson by the congregation.

ROBERT PARKER DEAD

He was the Father of Mr. Alfred Parker of Town.

Mr. Alfred Parker received word, yesterday about noon, of the very serious illness of his father, Mr. Robert Parker, of Ottawa. He left for the Capital on the midnight train, but, unfortunately his father died before it was possible for him to reach there.

The late Robert Parker was born in England. He was 72 years of age and came to this country 56 years ago. About six years after his arrival he started what has since proved a very successful dye works, and on his retirement seven years ago, these were conducted by his two sons, Jas. and William, of Ottawa. He had been in poor health during the last three or four years, and the stress of old age contributed to the decline of his vitality. Mrs. Parker is living, and the following children:—Mr. Alfred Parker, of town; Mrs. Gemmell, of Guelph; Mrs. Allan, of Ottawa, and Messrs. James and William, of Ottawa.

For Stout Folk.

A good many custom tailors who think they know how cannot design—cut or tailor suits to fit stout men.

They recognize a variation from the regular type, but the difference in the details of the various measurements puzzle them.

Instead of regarding the type as a whole and designing their patterns on comprehensive lines they lose themselves in minutiæ.

The result is a suit that makes one feel like the side of a house or a Chicago alderman!

Semi-ready suits for stout men are designed to minimize their portliness and to fit.

They are tailored out of particular fabrics to assist in producing the effect of slimness.

They can be tried on and forejudged before being purchased, and you are under no obligation to buy.

Then your purchase money is refunded for any cause whatever!

THE ANNUAL CRUSH

At OUR STORE

When Christmas Day is drawing nigh.
Amid the shopping crowds you'll sigh,
And vow next year that forth you'll go
More early, by a month or so.
And when, next year, the time comes round
The self-same sorrow will be found.
And you will make the self-same vow
And break it as you break it now.

The Store is Ready for Christmas

And back of this sentence is the combined work and judgement of our whole working force. For months we have been busy getting in the stock. We had to go Christmas Shopping for all Peterborough and that was a gigantic task. Then after this part of the work was done the goods must be received and placed so that they would show well. But we have forgotten the work and trouble it took us to get ready (just as on Christmas morning you will forget your work and worry in the pleasure you have caused) and we are proud of the store and all it contains, so proud that we want every Christmas shopper to come out and see it. Let this be your invitation.

In all the Thousand Holiday Handkerchiefs

you will not find a single one that is not worthy of the price mark attached to it. Handkerchiefs are a "Gift in Need," they are universally wanted, a donation of them is universally appreciated. "When in doubt give handkerchiefs" is a wise woman's summing up of the situation.

HERE IS A LIST THAT TELLS THE STORY:

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy and Kergan, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. He wrote them and got the New Method Treatment for me. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

THE CONSUMPTIVE HOSPITAL.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I was disappointed to see no replies from the doctors to the enquiries of "Citizen" in Tuesday's Examiner on the subject of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst.

I know very well that the doctors of Peterborough approve of the Institution, because they have sent numerous patients there at different times during its history. There were no less than six patients from the Town and County of Peterborough at the two institutions at Gravenhurst at one time last spring.

The writer was himself a patient at the Cottage Sanitorium in 1902, and can bear testimony to the beneficial effect upon all who go there in the incipient stage of tuberculosis. Since the Cottage Sanitorium was opened some six years ago, a large number of patients from all parts of the Dominion have been sent out apparently cured, and it is very gratifying to learn from the many letters received by the Medical Superintendent, who keeps in close touch with former patients, that those who leave as apparent cures are still living and well and earning their livelihood in their respective occupations, with one or two exceptions.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives is run upon exactly the same lines as the Cottage Sanitorium. The terms of admission are different, however; in the former one may become a free patient, or pay anything up to $6.00 per week, according to the financial ability of the individual, while at the Cottage Sanitarium the rates are $12.00 and $15.00 per week.

Such cities as Hamilton, Ottawa, and Stratford have, after a careful consideration of the merits of the institution, given the Free Hospital very handsome support, and it would seem that the very least Peterborough can do in the meantime is to pre-empt one or two cots, which, if not taken advantage of by patients from Peterborough, will be available for patients from some other section of the land.

At the present time I believe, sir, that the effort now being made is only a make-shift so far as the interests of our Town and County are concerned, because there must be a great many cases of incipient tuberculosis amongst us that should be receiving the open air treatment, which, particularly at this season of the year, can only be successfully carried on at a Sanitorium where there are proper facilities.

If this general information is not sufficient to give "Citizen" confidence in the work at Gravenhurst, there are many more details that can be furnished which would put the matter beyond all question of doubt

Yours, &c.,
J. W. BENNET.

A DISGRACEFUL WALK.

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—Will you kindly give publicity to my protest against the slipshod work that is being done on the streets in some parts of the town, as, for instance, on the board walk on Hunter street, leading to and on the bridge across the river. The work on the bridge is perfectly disgraceful. What little repairing was done last summer was done with old lumber which was to narrow to fill the spaces from where the planks had been removed. The old flooring has also worn so thin that when stepped on, it moves up and down. The consequence is that the snow falls through the cracks between the planks and leaves the snow in the centre of each plank, making, as it were, a series of logs to walk over: the pleasantest thing in the world to walk over, especially at night.

Again, a few days ago the town tinker was repairing this walk and he did it with old plank that had been previously used in sidewalks, but had become so rotten that it has been taken up. This plank was actually so rotten that it would not hold the nails, and one can break the rotten ends off this plank with his fingers. The plank are not even long enough, so at the end, to cover up the holes pieces of inch board are nailed across. This state of affairs can be seen by anyone today, and is a disgrace to a town that talks about becoming a city. I can't understand why the aldermen from Ashburnham would allow the residents on the east side of of the river to be treated in such a manner. If the town is too poor to have a proper walk over this bridge, why do they not close it up and make the people walk on the roadway. It would be more economical to do so, for as sure as gun is iron, some one will be hurt before the winter is over, and the town will have another one of those lovely lawsuits, which will cost more than enough to keep this walk in proper repair for years. Anon for the present. Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain.

Yours truly,
MARIA.

COUNCIL CONSIDERED IMPORTANT BY-LAWS

with immediately as the best time to act.

Mayor Roger said he did not suggest delay in Ald. Adams' by-law, but he pointed out that unless a change in the General Act appeared imperative, the Legislature might not be inclined to consider the matter.

Ald. Best, referring to the pavement by-law, pointed out that the advisability of a change should have been considered long ago, but unfortunately no more was known now than then. The compensation of those people who were now paying for walks would have to be considered.

The Mayor said that a number of important money by-laws were to be submitted and these should not be hampered.

Ald. Morrison explained that there appeared to be a feeling that Peterborough should become a city, but if the Council saw fit to defer action, he had no objection. His opinion was that the Council of 1905 would deal properly with the question.

Ald. Johnston expressed the opinion that the town might very soon incorporate itself naturally, and he favored some delay in order to ascertain what the growth of the town would be.

In reply to Ald. Hicks, the town solicitor stated that there would have to be a special census taken in the event of incorporation. It would cost more for a special census than for a special act.

Ald. Best saw no objection to submitting the incorporation by-law, and if the people decided to have city government they should certainly be given it. The by-law called for a plebiscite vote, and would not be binding on next year's council.

Ald. Morrison's by-law was read a first time. In Committee of the Whole the Mayor urged that a mistake was being made in submitting the question. He feared that it would be injurious to the money by-laws.

Ald. Best said the people would be able to discern the difference between a plebiscite and a money by-law.

Ald. Johnston said the people would be dubious about the expense in connection with city government, and held that the matter should be explained at the meeting preceding the elections.

On motion of Mayor Roger, seconded by Ald. Adams, the committee rose without taking action on the by-law.

AN IMPORTANT BY-LAW.

Ald. Adams introduced a by-law to provide for the taking of a vote at municipal elections, as to whether a change is desired in the method of paying for granolithic walks from the present system to a general tax.

Mayor Roger said this was a more important by-law than the other, involving many questions, and he doubted the advisability of submitting it at the present time.

Ald. Hicks considered the present an opportune time to submit such a by-law.

Ald. Johnston agreed with this. The town's liability to furnish proper walks was increased at the present time by the fact that the ratepayers retained the initiative in the matter to say whether or not a sidewalk should be laid in this place or that.

Ald. Best urged, on the second reading of the by-law, that some provision be placed in it, compensating people who were already paying for walks, before starting out with general tax.

Ald. Adams held that the objection was not a good one. If such a by-law was passed, the ratepayers would have to hand over less under a general tax at 10 cents a foot for 20 years than they would under the present system if they continued paying 11 cents a foot for 15 years, at the end of which time the debentures would expire. The amount charged to all improvements met by frontage tax up to last year, would, under the new system, only increase the rate by about half a mill.

After a lengthy discussion and on going to the vote, approval of the by-law was expressed by four to three and the second reading was declared carried.

Ald. Adams suggested that, as the attendance was slim, and as the question was an important one, the third reading be left over until a meeting to be held at a later date. This was embodied in a motion, which carried.

SNOW PLOWING.

A by-law was passed authorizing the execution of contracts for snow plowing in pursuance of recommendation of the Board of Works.

THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Ald. Adams pointed out that he had charge of the treasurer's statement for the year. According to figures shown the operations of the year had been so conducted as to leave a surplus of $1,492.77. This was in spite of increases made in some departments. The surplus could properly be considered as in the vicinity of $2,500, since the payment of $1,000 for property in the north end to be used as a street had been considered in the expenditures, but did not appear in the assets, since no regular by-law had been passed to meet the outlay.

Mayor Roger stated that congratulation was due the Finance Committee for the very satisfactory report. It was a pleasing fact that the town had the lowest rate of any town of its size, and that the affairs of the year had been so conducted as to leave a large amount to the good.

The report was received and ordered to be printed.

THE ASSESSORS.

It was moved by Ald. Johnston that the assessors, Messrs. Aldridge and Thompson, be given $30 additional for extra work done in the East Ward.—Carried.

THE DICKSON BRIDGE.

Ald. Johnston brought up the matter of the old bridge at the foot of London street. It was desirable for the convenience of the public that action be proceeded with at once, if possible, to put it in repair.

Mr. Best stated that a request had been made to the Cereal Company in the matter, but no reply had been received. In case of a favorable reply the matter would be proceeded with and necessary repairs made.

Ald Adams moved and Ald. Johnston seconded, that the $5,000 deposited by Mr Robert Stuart as a guarantee for the construction and operation of the street railway be released.—Carried.

Ald Best moved that the Treasurer be authorized to return the cheque for $500 deposited by the Cement Company as security for execution of contract. This was seconded by Ald Adams and was carried.

Mayor Roger pointed out the necessity for a public meeting for discussion of local questions. This was also important in view of the money by-laws to be voted on. He will make arrangements for such a meeting.

The Mayor advised the Council that the District Superintendent of the C.P.R. would likely be here to-day to confer with the Council in regard to the siding to be laid on Simcoe street, near Meldrum's mill, and to the filling in of the bridge at the rear of the Dawson property.

The Council adjourned.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN AND THE COLONIES

Addresses Meeting of London West-Enders.

SHOULD GRASP OPPORTUNITY

It is Inconceivable That Ties of Sentiment Will be Enough in the Time of Crisis—Tariff Reform.

London, Dec. 16.—(C. A. P.)—Joseph Chamberlain addressed a meeting of London east enders last night. C. A. Pearson, the well known newspaper proprietor, presided. The hall was filled to overflowing and an immense gathering outside showed a disposition to create a hostile demonstration of the unemployed, who paraded in front of the building and greeted Mr. Chamberlain on his arrival with groans. This was offset by the reception of the audience in the interior of the building. Mr. Chamberlain, who was greeted with cheering, which lasted several minutes, when he rose, devoted his speech largely to a discussion of the fiscal question. Mr. Chamberlain spoke two hours.

Most Urgent.

Dealing with the Imperial question, Mr. Chamberlain asked "what were our future relations with the colonies to be?" He felt most deeply because he believed it was most urgent. If we did not grasp the opportunity then the sceptre of our dominions passed from our hand, and we should be held responsible by our descendants. Sixty years ago the colonies were in their infancy; they were so far distant that they were almost out of the minds of the statesmen of the day. The idea that they should ever combine into one great Empire would have been laughed at as distinctly impracticable; now the great majority of the people of the land have no dearer wish than to bring all the men of British race into one great organized union.

He went on to say that Great Britain, great as she is, is not great or rich enough to bear alone the whole burden of the vast fabric of the Empire built up by our ancestors. The Empire was now supported by the ties of sentiment alone. It was inconceivable that the ties of sentiment would be enough in the time of crisis which was contingent with new Empires springing up. His opponents seemed absolutely incapable of understanding the colonial question. It was not a question of the loyalty of the colonies which he sometimes thought "were more loyal to us than we were to them." It was a question of organization.

Should Be Bound Together.

The colonial Governments considered this to be the great problem, and had come to the conclusion that while the union which has existed for the last 50 years was sufficient in the infancy of the colonies, especially if the whole question of union was to prepare the way for a separation it was altogether insufficient if Britons throughout the world are to rise to the splendid conception of a united family of kin-[illegible] states. It was necessary for the existence of the Empire that every part could count on the support of the others when mutual interests were threatened. He was disappointed in Lord Rosebery, who did not [illegible]et up to his speeches, but retired [illegible] his tent in the time of crisis and [illegible] at those doing the work. If [illegible] Rosebery had been willing to [illegible] us effectively he would have [illegible]d no more loyal follower than himself.

During his long stay at the colonial office he had more opportunities [illegible] most men of meeting distinguished colonial statesmen. The [illegible]ion of closer union was one [illegible]ich interested them, and most of [illegible] showed their sincerity by offering a preference on most articles we [illegible]red to send them voluntarily and without asking any return. It was [illegible] contemptible and unworthy [illegible] some members of the opposition [illegible] say now they are seeking gain at [illegible] expense of Great Britain. Some [illegible] advantage for themselves. [illegible] of that they gave us all that [illegible] thought was fair to their own [illegible] without seeking anything in [illegible]urn.

Laurier's Offer.

[illegible] than that, they had made [illegible] offer. "I use the word ad[illegible]" proceeded Mr. Chamber[illegible] "because there had been some [illegible]temptible quibbling on the part [illegible] some Opposition speeches as to [illegible]ther there was an offer or not—[illegible] which, though childish, is insulting to the colonies, and may promote mischief. I will give the offer in the words of Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself, whom now forsooth, the free importers are claiming as a supporter of their own selfish policy. Just before the recent elections he said, 'My vindication of our preference policy was given not at Ottawa, but in the heart of the empire, when I declared that I and my Governmental colleagues were ready to make a trade treaty.' What Sir Wilfrid Laurier said was, 'we are willing to discuss with you the articles on which we can give you a preference, and the articles on which you can give us a preference.' That was Sir Wilfrid's offer and it has been confirmed by other Premiers.

Will Never Die.

Mr. Chamberlain went on to say that Great Britain should not have lost a moment in accepting this offer, at the same time warning his audience that there were other nations not so pedantic, waiting to step into our place. He said the Prime Minister was as anxious as himself to secure the objects for which he was working. He welcomed a free and unrestricted conference to discuss the question of preference or any other subject the people of the colonies may desire to bring up. In conclusion, Mr. Chamberlain said he was told his policy was discredited and defeated and he himself demolished, pulverized and smashed. He refrained from prophecying, but whether the Liberal party was victorious or not at the next election, the question of tariff reform once raised would never die.

Australian House Prorogues.

London, Dec. 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Australian Federal League has been prorogued and the debate on preference consequently lapsed.

Medal For Boy Hero.

London, Dec. 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Royal Humane Society has awarded its medal to Edwin K. Debeck, a school boy, for rescuing two boys in Duncan Bay, B.C.

DOUBLE DROWNING.

Two Brothers Named Lecompte Lose Their Lives.

Valleyfield, Que., Dec. 16.—A double drowning accident occurred in the rapids here, just below the Canada Atlantic bridge. The victims were Pierre and Alexander Lecompte, aged 19 and 20, respectively, who were engaged in drawing wood in a scow from Isle aux Pommettes. They were crossing, but unfortunately they had on too heavy a load to handle the scow properly, owing to the quantity of flow ice. Before they could reach the shore the icy water had done its work. Both became so benumbed that they were unable to row. Two young men, Charles and Bid Lavallee, who went to their rescue, only got near enough to see them embrace each other as their boat went into the rapids.

Crushed Beyond Recognition.

Walkerville, Dec. 16.—The badly mutilated body of a colored man was found on the Grand Trunk tracks, three miles east of here, yesterday morning. His head was so badly crushed that it is impossible to estimate his age. He was probably stealing a ride.

Two Dead, Five Injured.

Charlestown, W. Va., Dec. 16.—Two persons were killed and five others seriously injured yesterday by the collapse of the suspension bridge across the Elk River, which connects East and West Charlestown. On the bridge when it went down were six children on their way to school and other pedestrians, together with six teams. Those who went down with the wreckage fell 40 feet into the ice cold waters of the river.

The Cost of Living.

According to the annual report of the commissioner of labor, for incomes of under $1,200 a year the increase in the cost of living has been 15 and a fraction per cent in the last eight years. The general increase in the income of wage earning families has been a trifle over 16 per cent.

To get the averages the labor bureau secured the income and expenses in detail of over 2,500 households in thirty-three states of the Union. The average family consisted of five and one-third persons. Food claimed 42.54 per cent of the total expenditure, rent 12.16 per cent and clothing 14.04 per cent.

Canada At St. Louis.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—William Hutchison, Commissioner of Exhibitions, has returned from St. Louis. He states that the Canadian pavilion, which cost $30,000, was disposed of for about $1,105. This is proportionately about double the amount realized for the buildings of other countries.

Fisheries Conference.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—The fisheries conference between Mr. Bastedo, Ontario Commissioner, Prof. Prince and the representative of New York State to secure uniformity in the regulations for fishing in the St. Lawrence will likely be held to-day.

School Inspector Resigns.

Simcoe, Dec. 16.—James J. Wadsworth, M.A., M.B., who for more than thirty years has been inspector of public schools in the County of Norfolk, has resigned his position in consequence of long continued ill-health.

Canada Buys 15,000 Feet.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—The site purchased by the Canadian Government at the Liege Exposition grounds upon which to erect a Canadian pavilion, amounts to 15,000 feet. It lies between the Ourthe and Meuse River.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 16.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier, has been summoned to Ottawa on political business, and Saturday will leave for the east.

BANKER BECKWITH PLEADS.

With Mrs. Chadwick in Her Cell But Without Result.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 16.—Mrs. Chadwick's first day in the county jail was a busy one for her. She received several visits from her attorneys, held long conferences with them, conversed with newspaper men and for 15 minutes stood face to face with President Beckwith of the Oberlin Bank. The meeting was dramatic. She met him at the entrance to the corridor of her cell and shook hands with him cordially.

After some general conversation Mr. Beckwith referred to their business relations by saying: "Mrs. Chadwick, you have ruined me, but I am not so sure yet you are a fraud. I have stood by you to my last dollar, and I do think now that the time has come for you to make known everything in relation to this thing." Beckwith's voice betrayed deep emotion as he spoke. Mrs. Chadwick did not reply directly to the words of Mr. Beckwith, but her manner and the look on her face were not conciliatory. She made no reply to the appeal.

EXPLOSION ON BATTLESHIP.

Five Men Killed By Boiler of Massachusetts Blowing Up.

Philadelphia, Dec. 16.—Three men were killed yesterday and two others were so badly injured that they died an hour later by an explosion of a boiler on the U. S. battleship Massachusetts at League Island navy yard. There were half a dozen men at work in the boiler-room when the explosion occurred.

The gasket on one of the boilers blew out, and the force of the explosion closed the automatic door, thus preventing the escape of the men from the compartment.

Naval Tug Sinks.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 16.—The United States naval tug Mohawk sank at her mooring at the navy yard yesterday. One of the deck hands who stuck to the whistle cord, blowing signals of distress until the vessel went down, was rescued with difficulty.

FORGED BY USING CARBON PAPER.

Martineau On Stand in Government Suit Against Banks.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Action was begun here yesterday before Justice Anglin by the Dominion Government to recover $75,000, which had been paid by banks on forged cheques drawn in the name of the Militia Department by Abondeus Martineau, a clerk in the Department.

Martineau, who is serving a seven-year term in Kingston, was called by the Government and told how he had made the forgeries by using carbon papers under a genuine signature to get an outline carbon signature on the cheque, which he then filled out with ink. Martineau said he lost about $60,000 of the proceeds of the forgeries in stock speculations.

The case will probably last several days. The Bank of Montreal is the defendant, but the Quebec, Sovereign and Royal Banks are made third parties, as they accepted the forged cheques as deposits.

Diet Turbulent As Ever.

Budapest, Dec. 16.—The Parliamentary truce has been short-lived. The session of the Lower House yesterday witnessed a repetition of the turbulence which has marked most of the recent sittings. The Opposition members declined to recognize the new rules of procedure, and greeted the Premier's attempts to speak with a storm of invectives and other noisy interruptions. Premier Tisza stood for thirty minutes appealing for a hearing, but was finally forced to desist by an unceasing chorus of "resign" from the members of the united Opposition.

Coast Schooner Ashore.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 16.—The schooner John R. Halladay, from New York for Norfolk, went ashore on the point of Cape Henlopen early yesterday, and is still aground. A wrecking tug went to her assistance and in an attempt to launch a surf boat the craft capsized in the heavy sea and one of the crew was drowned.

McDougall Case Again.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—The case against Alfred McDougall was called in the sessions yesterday, but defendant was still too ill to attend. He is said to be declining. This is the 9th adjournment.

Fears She Has Foundered.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 16.—The steamer Sicily, which sailed from Halifax for St. John's, seven days ago, has not been yet reported, and it is feared she has foundered.

The Most Popular Pill.—The pill is the most popular of all forms of medicine, and of pills the most popular are Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, because they do what it is asserted they can do, and are not put forward on any fictitious claims to excellence. They are compact and portable, and are easily taken, and do not nauseate nor gripe, and they give relief in the most stubborn cases.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Miss Olive Ray, met with a very serious and painful accident the other day which has been the means of confining her to her room. It was feared at first the mishap would prove fatal. She was cleaning a pair of gloves with gasoline, and while damp put them on her hands and held them over the stove. The heat ignited the gasoline and caused frightful burns on her arms and hands.

The remains of Mr. Jas. Spence arrived on the noon train on Wednesday. The funeral took place from the residence of his father, Mr. Wm. Spence, Alma street, on Thursday.

Wood is selling here at $5.00 for good hard wood.

WESTWOOD HOME BURNED

James Robb Loses His Residence—Only Slight Insurance—Other News.

Between nine and ten o'clock last Saturday morning fire broke out in the house of Mr. Jas. Robb on Front street. The house was situated directly opposite the post office, and next to the grist mill. It was a red brick veneered structure owned, and for the last few years occupied by, Mr. Jas. Robb and family. Mrs. Robb was about her usual work in the kitchen on Saturday forenoon, when she happened to smell smoke. Upon looking upstairs she was startled to see flames. Sending a child to the blacksmith shop for her husband, they, with several neighbors, tried to save as much furniture as possible, but little was saved, as the fire had gained such headway upstairs that the building soon collapsed. Mr. Robb had $400 insurance on his property which covers a small portion of his loss. He will build again in the spring of 1905.

Miss Lettie Blezard was calling on her many friends in Westwood on Tuesday. Miss Lettie has spent the past summer visiting friends in Manitoba, the N. W. Territories and the Pacific coast.

DELIVERY RIG STRUCK BY CAR

James Downing, of Auburn, Had Close Call.

BADLY CUT ABOUT THE HEAD

His Neice, [illegible] Escaped—Accident Occurred at Corner of George and Edinburgh Streets—Driver Declares He Did Not See or Hear Car.

An accident occurred yesterday between three and four o'clock which was nearly a repitition of the one in which Mrs. Moncrief was fatally injured on Wednesday. Fortunately, this mishap was not attended with any serious results, though two lives were nearly lost.

The accident took place at the corner of George and Edinburgh-sts., just a block from where Mrs. Moncrief was injured. Mr. Jas. Downing, of Auburn, who drives Mr. T. Lush's bake rig was driving down the east side of George-st. and attempted to cross over to Mr. D. Sullivan's grocery, not noticing a south-bound street car. Mr. Sullivan, who saw the accident, said it looked as if the sleigh would be struck fairly in the centre, but just as the car was upon it, the horse bounded forward and the car caught the rear of the vehicle, knocking it off the track. Mr. Downing was thrown out of the side door of the sleigh, and badly cut about the head and neck. In the sleigh with Mr. Downing was his niece Miss Florence Downing who escaped without injury. The horse and sleigh also received no damage from the contact with the car, which was not going at a high rate of speed.

Witnesses of the accident state that it was only by a miracle that the two escaped serious injury. Mr. Downing declares that he did not see nor hear the car and did not know what had struck the sleigh until he had picked himself up after the collision. The motorman of the car was J. Gordon. The injured man was able to walk to his home and will soon be none the worse for the accident.

Street Railway Rink opens on Friday night. Free Skating for all who ride down on cars.

MRS. MONCRIEF EXPIRES

Victim of Trolley Car Accident Never Regained Consciousness---The Funeral.

Mrs. Joseph Moncrief, who was so severely injured on Wednesday on George street, corner of Dublin, at noon, by a collision between a street car and the cutter which she was driving, passed away in the Nicholls Hospital at 12.30 o'clock this morning, never having regained consciousness.

The deceased, who was 54 years of age, was born in Ireland, her maiden name being Mary Ann Brecken. She came to this country with her mother, now Mrs. John Frost, of Roseneath, when about five years old, and settled in Fife's Settlement, Otonabee, in which township she always resided. She leaves no children.

About thirty years ago she was married to her now sorrowing husband. Mrs. Moncrief was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and her untimely passing away in such a tragic manner will be learned with the greatest regret, and general sympathy will be extended to the grief-stricken husband.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Dickson farm, Ashburnham, on Monday afternoon at two o'clock, and proceed to Little Lake cemetery, where interment will be made.

The services at the house and grave will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Torrance, of St. Paul's church, assisted by Rev. J. G. Potter.

NO INQUEST.

Dr. Gray, coroner, stated to the Review at noon to-day that after making full enquiry into the circumstances causing Mrs. Moncrief's death, he deemed an inquest unnecessary.

The coroner believes the affair to have been purely an accident, and says the railway company, so far as he can learn, exercised every reasonable precaution to prevent the mishap. The doctor is of the opinion that the unfortunate fatality was due to Mrs. Moncrief's horse getting frightened at the car, and becoming uncontrollable.

STORES TO KEEP OPEN

But Will Observe Provisions of By-law---Some Distinctions Made.

Next week the stores will take advantage of the by-law which permits them to keep open four nights preceding Christmas. The clothiers, the dry goods and millinery merchants, and hat, cap and fur dealers will therefore do business on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and as usual Saturday night. Some of the merchants advertised that they would keep open every night next week, but this was a misunderstanding of the by-law. The grocers intend keeping open nights right up to Christmas, they being exempt from the four-night by-law. The boot and shoe dealers and hardware merchants can only keep open one night before Christmas under the by-law.

COUNCIL CONSIDERED IMPORTANT BY-LAWS

Two Readings Given to Measure Changing Method of Paying for Walks.

By-law Incorporating the Town was Left Over--Pleasure Expressed with Regard to Fact that Town's Operations Closed with Balance in Treasury--Snow Ploughing Contracts Provided For--Statutory Meeting of the Council.

It is a pleasure to note that the municipal affairs of the past year were so conducted that the chairman of Finance Ald. Adams, is able to report a surplus amounting to $1492.77. The year's financial report carefully prepared by the Treasurer, Mr. Felix Brownscombe, was presented at last night's Council meeting, and the satisfactory ending to the year was the subject of much commendation directed towards those who had charge of financial affairs during the year.

It was the statutory meeting which was held last night, and besides the Financial statement, several other important matters were considered. The by-law to submit to the people the question of incorporation as a city, was introduced, but was set aside, the feeling being that it could be dealt with by an incoming Council and it was also felt that to submit it at the municipal elections might have an injurious effect on the money by-laws to be submitted.

Ald. Adams' by-law to give the ratepayers an opportunity to say whether they desired a change from frontage tax to general tax in the payment for pavements was discussed at some length, and was finally given two readings. It will, however, stand over until another meeting for the benefit of further discussion.

A report recommending a conditional agreement of purchase of lots Nos. 109 and 111 in the east ward, for outfall sewer purposes was adopted. A by-law to authorise the borrowing of $3,000 to pay for new heating apparatus in Central School was given its necessary readings, but will have to be confirmed by the Legislature.

The execution of contracts for snow plowing was also authorized under a by-law which was passed.

There were present Mayor Roger presiding, Aldermen Best, Hatten, Adams, Mason, Rush, Morrison, Hicks, Edgcumbe, McWilliams and Johnston.

The minutes of last meeting were confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Superintendent of Barnardo Home claiming exemption from taxation for that institution. On motion of Ald. Adams seconded by Ald. Johnston the taxes were ordered to be remitted.

From the Town Engineer reporting with regard to the carrying out of the Street Railway Company's contract for construction and operation of their line.—Received.

From the secretary of the Board of Trade enclosing resolutions passed by that body.—Received

FINANCE REPORT.

Ald. Adams presented the following report::

Gentlemen,—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the accounts from Nichols Hospital and from St. Joseph's Hospital for treatment of indigent patients of the contagious disease ward be paid when certified by the local Board of Health.

The report was adopted.

SNOW PLOWING.

Ald. Best presented the following report:

Gentlemen,—Your Board of Works beg leave to report that they advertised for tenders for snow plowing for this winter, and awarded the contract to the lowest tenderer for each district as follows: southern district, Robert Nicholls, $118; western district, N. Rusaw $150; northern district, Z. Blodgett, $170; south eastern district, Albert Valois, $100; north western district, B. Bovoy, $87.50.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

OUTFALL SEWER.

Ald. Adams presented the following report:

Gentlemen,—Your special Sewer Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the Chairman of this Committee and the town solicitor be authorized to negotiate a conditional agreement of purchase of lots Nos. 109 and 111, north of Maria street, for outfall sewer purposes, subject to the making of suitable arrangements for connection through the Canadian Pacific Railway and Grand Trunk railway rights of way, and that they also be authorized to arrange with said railways for such connecting rights.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

HEATING APPARATUS.

Ald. Adams introduced a by-law authorizing the borrowing of $3,000 required by the Board of Education for alterations in the heating apparatus of the Central School. The by-law received its necessary readings but is subject to confirmation by the Legislature.

INCORPORATION.

Ald. Morrison introduced a by-law to provide for the submission to the electors of the question to incorporate the Town of Peterborough as a city.

Mayor Roger suggested that it might not be wise to put too many by-laws before the people in view of other important measures that are to be submitted at the municipal elections.

Ald. Adams thought the Mayor's objection held good. The question referred to in the by-law could be easily taken up by another Council, whereas the by-law providing for a change in the method of paying for granolithic walks should be dealt —The choir of George-st. Church are making preparations for Christmas music under the direction of Prof. Milner.

—Miss Murphy, organist of St. Paul's Church, Norwood, has resigned after some years of service. She is going to Campbellford to reside.

—The Young Conservatives will hold a meeting in the Forester's Hall, 408 1-2 George street this evening to transact considerable business

—Rev. J. A. Wilson, writing to a friend in town, from his new home in Hamilton, says: "I am delighted with the prospects here. We have a hearty and united people, and it is a pleasure to labor among them."

—Why not get one of those pretty Lift Lock Booklets to send to your friends at a distance instead of some little Christmas card that will be thrown aside and forgotten once the season is past? Only 25 cents, and on sale at the bookstores and at the Review office. All ready for mailing.

—A number of the wood piles in town have disappeared lately under cover of darkness. We are informed by one of the victims that he has loaded sticks in his wood pile and that should the thefts continue, someone may chance to visit another land where heat may be had in plenty.—Hastings Star.

—The Young Conservative Club are having their new rooms over Dutton's store fitted out in handsome style. On the second floor there will be a committee room, and a reception room. On the third floor will be a large reading room, a billiard table, and an assembly hall. The various apartments will be elaborately furnished, and about the middle of January the quarters of the club will be open night and day.

—The new open air skating rink of the Radial Railway Co. at the south end of the town will be opened this evening. The 57th Regiment band will be in attendance and there will be a special car service. The rink is in good shape for skating, and the management expects to have even better ice next week than it has now. There will doubtless be a large crowd at the opening this evening, and a pleasant time is looked forward to.

—At this season of the year, it is pleasing to hear of laudable effort towards the comfort of those who have not been blessed with that plentitude which makes for contented existence. The King's Daughters of St. John's Church are doing a good work irrespective of denomination and are anxious to receive clothing for distribution or sums of money that would assist. Friends having such are asked to drop a card to Miss Ruby Burnham or Miss Halliday.

Street Railway Rink opens on Friday night. Free Skating for all who ride down on cars.

THEY SPOKE WELL OF MAYOR ROGER

Aldermen Pass Resolution Expressing Their Appreciation.

GREAT GOOD WILL-MANIFEST

Mayor Refers to Hearty Co-operation on the Part of the Aldermen During His Two Years in Chief Magistrate's Chair.

A very pleasing affair took place after the Council meeting last evening, when a resolution was passed expressing appreciation of Mayor Roger, who is retiring from the chair of Chief Magistrate. The citizens will be delighted to learn of the cordial relations evidenced in the resolution, and very few there are who will not heartily endorse its sentiments.

THE RESOLUTION.

It was moved by Ald. Best, seconded by Ald. Adams: That as His Worship Mayor Roger has expressed his intention to retire from the Mayoralty, at the close of the present year, and as this is the last regular meeting of the Council for the year, this Council desires to convey to him and place on record the appreciation of his diligent labors on behalf of the town and his close attention to its interests during the time he has been a member of the Council, and to acknowledge the unvarying courtesy and tact he has manifested as presiding officer during the two years he has been the head of the Council

EXPRESSIONS OF GOOD WILL.

Ald. Best said he took pleasure to move the resolution for several reasons. He had always found Mayor Roger's intentions to be good, and he was always convincible of error, whenever it existed. Ald. Best said he had ever been treated courteously by Mr. Roger as Alderman and Mayor, and he pointed also to his active efforts in the best interests of the town. In parting with him, the speaker hoped that Mayor Roger would always experience success.

Ald. Adams, as mover of the resolution, said he had always found Mayor Roger approachable. He had no axes to grind and was always alive to the advancement of the town.

Ald. McWilliams, Ald. Johnston, Ald. Hicks, Ald. Edgcumbe, Ald. Mason, Ald. Batten and C. H. Mitchell, on behalf of the press, reiterated the sentiments expressed in the resolution, and endorsed what had been said by former speakers.

The resolution was carried by a standing vote, and an outburst of applause was evidence of hearty approval.

THE MAYOR'S REPLY.

Mayor Roger expressed his appreciation of the good-will made evident by the resolution. One of the greatest pleasures of his official career had been the co-operation of the Aldermen, and this had made more possible the carrying out of affairs in the interests of the town. If he had had any success, it was largely explained by this fact. His feeling had always been one of indebtedness toward those who had sat with him in Council for the very great courtesy shown him. They had been always faithful in the duties constituting their responsibility whether in Committee or Council.

Referring to the future constitution of the Council, he said it was important that the people should remember that it was necessary for an alderman to be in the Council for at least one year before he could give best service, and in view of that fact he urged, without disparagement to others, that as many old Councillors as possible should be returned. There was great compensation, in the acquirement of experience, for services rendered by Aldermen.

In the administration of affairs he suggested a number of changes. Now that he was out of the Council, he thought it advisable that a Mayor should receive an allowance of about $1,000 or $1,200 in order that he might be in a position to consider it more possible to give up his time for the affairs of the Municipality. He thought some recompense should also be made to the Aldermen—if it was only a nominal affair of $100. He did not wish to be considered as speaking in his own interests, but he had determined, when opportunity offered to refer to the matter.

Mayor Roger expressed his desire that a group picture be taken of the Council of 1904 and in conclusion again expressed his appreciation of the very kind words spoken.

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 16.—The scrutiny of the ballots cast at Poll 2, Clarendon and Miller, Frontenac County, where Hawkey was D. R. O., was held today before the Crown in Chancery.

The result showed slight irregularity, but there was nothing to show that "switching" had been resorted to. The official returns showed Avery 40, Shibley 33. 74 ballots were found in the box, one more than returned. This ballot was marked for Avery, leaving the scrutiny count Avery 41, Shibley 33. A New Multiplex Telegraph.

The invention of new methods for sending a number of messages simultaneously over the same wire continues, and one of the most recent of these is due to Professor Mercadier of the French High School For Post and Telegraph. In this method an alternating current is employed whose frequency depends upon a tuning fork having a certain definite number of vibrations. The current of such an interrupted circuit can be broken by an ordinary key and signals transmitted over the line wire by an induction transmitter. On the line at the distant station are a number of so called monotelephones which respond to current of one frequency and are tuned to the forks in the circuits at the sending station. Thus each particular circuit has its own telephone, which is connected by tubes with the ears of the receiving operator and responds to the signals made at the sending station. In all twelve circuits are provided, so that twenty-four messages may be sent over the line simultaneously.—Harper's Weekly.

White Shoes For Women.

While in a manufacturer's office the other day the writer chanced to hear an argument about colors in shoes for new styles. The outcome, or what both agreed upon, was this: More tans than anything else, then patents, then whites. The sale of white goods will discount last year's sales.

The women next spring and summer will wear more colors than ever before. Just to illustrate what is coming, last summer in Philadelphia the fad of dressing in colors reached such a degree that some women who dressed in light green would wear nothing but green shoes to match their clothes. Next summer white footwear will be in vogue as much as, if not more than, it was about eighteen years ago.—Shoe Retailer.

Kidney Cells Destroyed

BY REPEATED ATTACKS OF DISEASE—SURPRISING RESULTS OBTAINED BY USE OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Because it is sometimes a slow and lingering malady, people are prone to overlook the destructive tendencies of kidney disease.

They forget that the wasting process brings about a change in the cellular tissue, which practically renders the kidneys useless as filtering organs.

Continued paleness and loss of flesh, pains in the back and loins, dry, harsh skin, severe headaches and backaches; scanty, highly colored urination; stomach troubles and irregular bowels are among the symptoms of kidney disease.

As a cause of downright suffering few diseases are to be compared with kidney disease, and the results are frequently, the end coming suddenly and unexpectedly.

By their direct and wonderfully prompt action on the kidneys, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills call a quick halt to the advance of kidney disease.

By their combined action on kidneys, liver and bowels they prove effective in complicated cases, in which ordinary kidney medicines bring little or no relief.

Mr. H. Trollope, 850 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., states: "I have used two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and found them an excellent medicine. I had very severe pains across the back which came from my kidneys being out of order, and since using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for a time, I began to feel a wonderful improvement in my health.

"I have no more pains in my back now and am feeling as well as ever I did. Consequently, I am glad of an opportunity to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have thoroughly proven their genuine and indisputable merit, and you can use them knowing of a certainty that you will receive all the benefit that would be derived from attention of the most skilful physician. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

INDOLENT PHILOSOPHY.

I dislike to roam and ramble
Through the weeds and reeds and grass,
Through the hazel brush and bramble,
Through the muck of the morass,
Hazel nutting. It seems funny
Joy from this some folks derive—
Still, the bee that gets the honey
Doesn't drone around the hive.

Much I love to watch sweet Nancy
When she's on the tennis court.
She's a creature to my fancy.
I don't care for games and sport,
And for me her looks are sunny
Only when I sweat and strive.
Well, the bee that gets the honey
Doesn't hang around the hive.

Hazel nuts and tennis maiden,
Both are sweet and tempting too.
Nancy, fair and mischief laden,
Will insist that I must do
Deeds absurd. It's really funny
What odd things she does contrive.
Well, the bee that gets the honey
Mustn't hang around the hive.

Now I rather think that hanging
Round the hive is just my forte.
Better far it suits than banging
Up and down a tennis court.
Let who thinks the thing is funny
Break his neck and blindly strive,
Woo the maiden, cinch the honey;
I will hang around the hive.

Where Money Fails.

Well, is it, after all, worth while
To be a millionaire?
A man can sit and watch his pile,
But even that is care.
His money cannot purchase joy,
For when with pain his limb
Is racked he cannot hire a boy
To have the gout for him.

For raiment and a palace grand,
A phaeton and pair,
He only has to wave his hand,
They come as from the air.
But when he has a jumping tooth
His money cannot gain
The service of a modest youth
To grin and bear the pain.

It really would be worth the strife
To pile up bales of wealth
If it could buy a peaceful life
And great red gobs of health.
While it may bring exalted rank
And lots to eat and wear,
Yet all the money in the bank
Can't buy a head of hair.

Cause For Grief.

"What makes Bilkins look so downhearted?"

"He has just had his salary increased 10 per cent, and now he figures that his wife will spend double the amount that she has been doing."

It's Coming.

Chill the sky and scant the starlight,
Damp and dank the night air is,
And I feel a dull foreboding
Which I know is rheumatiz.

"Did you hear that Jenks had quit drinking for good?"

"No, I hadn't heard. Poor man! When is the funeral to be?"

Lower Still.

"Not coming at all."

"They did, but they afterward dropped me into the basement."

Just Her Way.

And he hasn't any more,
Then this sign hangs out his honey,
"Nothing doing," on the door.

Falling Off.

"I lost 5 cents in weight this morning."

"You mean five pounds."

"No. I dropped a nickel in the slot of a weighing machine that was not working."

Of Course a Mistake.

"They elected an honest alderman from the Steenth ward this spring."

"Strange what accidents will happen!"

Often Happens.

It really seems a pity
That after many moons
A youth so full of promise
Should turn out full of prunes.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

"I hope not," devoutly said Sir Ralph.

"Ah, what a naughty, naughty man you are! I shall have to scold you, and keep you in order. How long are you going to stay here?"

"I am not quite sure."

"We are asked for three days. I do hope you will stay all the time I am here, and then I shall see something more of you."

"What, when I am so naughty?"

"Well, you know I rather like naughty men, to tell the truth." Here the fine eyes made tremendous play. "Not too naughty, you know."

"I will take the risk."

Sir Ralph gave a grim little laugh. This pretty woman did not even amuse him—she bore him, and he was watching Laura across the table all the time she was chattering folly into his ears.

"Do you admire that Mrs. Gifford, the lady you rowed so long with this afternoon?" now inquired Mrs. Vanhurst.

"She is good-looking," he answered, coldly.

"They say she is a bride; and that her husband is a country lawyer, or something of that sort. I wonder at Lady Danvers having her here."

"I believe Lady Danvers admires her extremely?"

"Indeed! And does Sir Ralph Woodland admire her extremely?"

"I certainly admire her," answered Sir Ralph, repressively.

"Then I do not. I own I do not. There is something about her. I do not know what it is—perhaps her class—that seems to me underbred."

Sir Ralph made no reply to this. He looked across the table at the handsome, clever face, so full of life and beauty, and he heartily wished the flattering little woman by his side was anywhere but where she was. And she irritated so greatly that when the ladies left the table, Mrs. Vanhurst giving him a parting smile and glance, he determined that he would not exchange another word with her during the evening.

But Mrs. Vanhurst was an old campaigner, and stationed herself on her return to the small drawing-room on a charming couch just opposite the door of the room she concluded the gentlemen would enter by. Presently her husband and Sir Ralph did enter by it, but looking up smilingly she found Sir Ralph's head was high in the air, and his eyes fixed over her own pretty head, and he strode past her couch with a very determined air indeed.

There was nothing left, therefore, for Mrs. Vanhurst but to smile on her husband, which she did with a very bad grace. And when she looked round after Sir Ralph she found he was standing talking to Mrs. Gifford.

"It is disgusting the way that woman goes on," she thought. She grew restless; she rose from the side of her gray-haired husband, and crossed the room in the direction of Laura and Sir Ralph. But as she did so Sir Ralph offered his arm to Laura, and the two proceeded toward the large conservatory at one end of the room, and disappeared from Mrs. Vanhurst's view among the palms and orange trees.

"I am positively afraid of that woman," Sir Ralph was saying.

"It is very ungrateful of you," smiled Laura.

"She bored me so fearfully at dinner."

"I am sure she was looking at you most sweetly."

"It's horrid—a woman like that talking to you when you want to think of something else. Will you sit down here?"

He pointed to a seat under a spreading palm as he spoke, but Laura hesitated.

"Do, for once," he urged.

He had a strange influence on her, it was almost as if he willed her to do a thing that she could not resist his power. She sat down, she leaned back, and breathed the fragrant air. There was a hum of voices in the distance from the drawing-room beyond, but they were alone in the conservatory. Laura sighed softly, and Sir Ralph turned around and looked in her face.

"What is troubling you?" he asked.

"Nothing, only—"

"Only what?"

"I was thinking of my ordinary life—so different to the life here; and as I return to Suffold to-morrow—"

"You return to-morrow?" asked Sir Ralph, quickly.

"Yes; Mr. Gifford is coming for me to-morrow, and we return by an early train."

Sir Ralph did not speak for a moment. He put out one of his strong sinewy hands nervously, and broke off a shining orange-tree leaf as if unconscious of what he was doing. Then suddenly he bent forward and looked in Laura's face.

"Are you glad that you came here?" he asked in a low tone. "Glad that you know now how shamefully I was deceived?"

"Yes, I am glad to know," answered Laura; and she moved her fan restlessly as she spoke.

"I can not forgive myself for being such a fool, but I have paid a bitter price for it."

"Best not to speak of it," half-whispered Laura.

"Only to think of it—that is hard, very hard!"

He rose as he said this, and going up to a beautiful white moss rose tree, he plucked a bud, and returned with it in his hand and laid it on Laura's lap.

"Take that for the sake of old times," he said.

She did not refuse, her hand stole down to the rose, but at this moment Lady Danvers and Mrs. Vanhurst entered the conservatory.

"Is that a flirtation?" asked Mrs. Vanhurst of her hostess.

"No, certainly not," answered Lady Danvers, decidedly. "That is a young married woman, Mrs. Gifford. She hardly knows Sir Ralph Woodland; they only met here a few days ago."

Mrs Vanhurst shrugged her shoulders, airily. She was not as a rule spiteful to other women, but she was spiteful now because Sir Ralph Woodland had twice left her to the society of her husband for Laura's sake. Yet she disguised her feelings, and smiled as sweetly as ever when she approached the spot where Sir Ralph and Laura were. Laura covered the white rose-bud under her fan as Lady Danvers and Mrs. Vanhurst drew near, and Sir Ralph noted this little action before he turned to speak to Lady Danvers and compliment her on the beauty of her flowers.

They all returned to the drawing-room together, and during the rest of the evening Laura had no further conversation with Sir Ralph. He went to play billiards, and when she went down to breakfast the next morning he was nowhere to be seen.

"The gentlemen are all off to Lord Redver's place early this morning," explained Lady Danvers; and Laura felt a chill, cold feeling at her heart that Sir Ralph had not stayed to bid her good-by, when she had told him she was leaving the Park early in the day.

And during the morning George Gifford arrived, and immediately after luncheon the husband and wife started on their return to Suffold. Lady Danvers was exceedingly kind in her manner to Laura, and pressed her soon to return to the Park. But all the same this clever woman had begun to feel that perhaps she had not done the wisest thing in taking Laura from her home. She had noticed Sir Ralph Woodland's attentions, though she had not chosen to admit this to Mrs. Vanhurst. And she knew also that Sir Ralph was a very different man to George Gifford, and without knowing anything of Sir Ralph's former acquaintance with Laura, she thought him a somewhat dangerous friend for the young wife.

But during their journey home together Laura tried hard not to let George see that she did not look forward with pleasure to her return. It seemed so dull and dreary, this quiet country town, after all the beauties and excitement of Danvers Park, and the strange meeting and explanation of Sir Ralph was naturally foremost in her mind. She could think of nothing else. And when she once more found herself in Red House, and looked round at its somber walls, the last few days seemed to have been a glimpse of another life.

Old Mr. Gifford welcomed her back with kindness and pleasure. Anna Landsay with secret malice and an uncharitableness. She had ordered a very good dinner to show how much better a housekeeper she was than Laura, but Laura did not seem to have any appetite, and scarcely noticed all the delicacies she had prepared.

"You are not eating much, Mrs. George," she remarked, looking disapprovingly at Laura's plate.

"Oh, please do not call me Mrs George, Miss Landsay," said Laura, with a smile.

"Oh, I did not know you did not like your husband's name!" said Anna Lindsay, with a little toss of her head.

"It is not that, of course, but Mrs. George sounds so—"

"Well, of course, I'm not accustomed to the fine company and ways of Danvers Park," said Anna Lindsay, as Laura paused before the word "common" had passed her lips.

George, who was thoroughly enjoying the good dinner that Anna had ordered, now looked up from his plate with a smile.

"What nonsense, Anna," he said, good-naturedly. "Of course Laura is not Mrs. George, but Mrs. Gifford. If my poor mother had been alive it would have been different, but I think between near relations you might drop the Mrs. and Miss altogether."

"I have not been asked to do so, George," replied Anna Landsay; and Laura did not speak. [illegible] woman irritated her more than usual; perhaps, as Anna had taunted her, it was so after the different atmosphere of Danvers Park.

And so the next two days passed drearily enough away. Mrs. Brentwood called on Laura to ask all about "dear Lady Danvers," and her visit to Danvers Park. Mrs. Masterman also called on the same errand. No little jealously had indeed been created in the minds of the vicar's family by Lady Danvers' invitation to Laura.

"She never would have seen her but for us," they said to each other; and somehow they felt themselves injured. But still they wanted to hear all about it, and asked Laura many questions as to the number of the guests, and their names, to which Laura gave somewhat reserved replies.

"She quite gives herself airs on the subject, I declare," Mrs. Masterman said to her mother, and Mrs. Brentwood almost agreed with her.

"I wonder if she will be asked again?" she speculated, and Laura sometimes wondered this too, and would sigh as she did so.

To be continued.

HE MEANS SCOTT'S

Your doctor says you must take cod liver oil. Probably he means Scott's Emulsion because you cannot take the clear oil; no one can take the clear oil who needs cod liver oil. The doctor understands that and doubtless means Scott's Emulsion of cod liver oil which everybody can take because it is emulsified and prepared so that it can be very easily digested by the most sensitive stomach. Most everybody likes it.

A Nerve Trying Ordeal.

Some years ago the students at the Japanese Naval academy were accustomed to attend an annual banquet. They sat at a circular table around a slowly revolving cannon loaded with a ball and trained to the level of their heads. The trigger was so arranged that it could be touched from a hidden source outside of the banquet hall. That at some time during the banquet the cannon would be fired every one at the table knew, but just when or in what direction it would be pointing was a mystery.

Of course there was a possibility that the ball might crash harmlessly between the heads of two banqueters, but it was equally probably that it might carry off the head of some student. Yet no one flinched. The chances were equal to all.

The picturesque object of destruction revolving during the jovial hours of the banquet, pointing from student to student and ready at a given moment to blow any one of them to pieces, was considered in Japan admirable training to steady the nerves of a fighting man.—Success.

JAPS' DEED OF DARING

Officers Inspiring Bravery in Torpedoing of Sevastopol.

Flotilla Attacked Independently in Bitter Cold, Heavy Seas and Driving Snow Storm—The Attack Partially Successful—Did Not Attempt to Cut the Protecting Devices of the Sevastopol, But Forced the Russian Openings.

Tokio, Dec. 16.—The partially successful torpedo attack on the Sevastopol was made in the face of almost insurmountable obstacles, and writes another inspiring story of the splendid bravery of a number of officers. The entire crew of the torpedo boat destroyers and torpedo boats volunteered for the attack on the only floating Russian battleship at Port Arthur. Facing a driving snowstorm and heavy seas, the flotillas separated, and under individual commanders the vessels attacked independently. The decks of the destroyers and torpedo boats were coated with ice and the men suffered acutely from the cold.

The Russians resorted to the utmost precautions to protect the Sevastopol. They dropped torpedo nets, which shielded the bows of the warship, but the Sevastopol was further protected by a specially constructed wooden boom of logs and cables and heavy chains. From the surface of this boom hung a deep curtain made of torpedo nets taken from the sunken vessels.

Forced the Openings.

The Japanese refrained from attempting to cut the net or jumping the booms, but evidently forced the openings the Russians left so as to allow communication with the harbor. At 3 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 14 (Wednesday), Commander Otaki, leading a flotilla of torpedo boats, and Lieut. Miyamoto, leading another flotilla, began attacks against the Sevastopol and the transports. Otaki's flotilla failed to accomplish its purpose, owing to a snowstorm. Miyamoto's flotilla succeeded in reaching the intended spot by taking advantage of the fact that the enemy's searchlights were exposing Otaki's fleet. In the thick of the snow, while Miyamoto's flotilla was searching for the enemy's ships, one torpedo became lost from its comrade ships.

At 4 o'clock Lieut. Nakamuda's torpedo boat independently attacked a military transport. Another torpedo boat, under Miyamoto, discharged and exploded a torpedo against the Sevastopol. Both returned safely, but failed to meet the missing torpedo boat and crew. Yesterday the watch tower guardship reports that the stern of the Sevastopol appeared to have lowered 3 feet.

Second Squadron Sails.

Jibutil, Dec. 16.—The vessels of the Russian second Pacific squadron, which had been coaling here, sailed Wednesday night.

Fever At Harbin.

Harbin, Dec. 16.—Gen. Kaulbars, commander of the third army, met with a hearty reception on his arrival here yesterday. There are twenty-two hospitals, each with 180 beds, here. There are many cases of typhoid fever.

Too Cold to Fight.

Mukden, Dec. 16.—The Japanese column on Gen. Oyama's right, which Gen. Rennenkampff recently drove back to the Taitse River, is again reported to be moving northeast and strongly holding the Siaodagai-Sianchan region. The extreme cold keeps things quiet along the front.

Reforms in Russia.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 16.—A special council was held yesterday at Tsarskoselo, under Emperor Nicholas, at which President of the Ministeral Council Witte, Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky and Minister of Justice Muravieff discussed the question of reforms. It is understood that the Emperor advised with them on the subject of a manifesto, which will be published on Dec. 19, on the occasion of His Majesty's name day. This document, it is believed, outlines a policy of cautious conservative reform.

[illegible]

Berlin, Dec. 16.—Telegrams received here are to the effect that the agitation in Warsaw continues, and that anti-Government street demonstrations occur daily. The movement extends to the highest military circles, and many officers participants in the revolutionary propaganda were recently arrested and imprisoned in a fortress.

WILL INSPECT BALLOTS

Scrutiny of Those Cast in No. 2, Clarendon and Miller.

Wrestler Hawkeye Heard From—Writes a Letter to the Press Denying Use of Improper Methods—Tells How He Held and Conducted the Frontenac Poll, and Is Prepared to Swear to His Statements

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—In Chamber, before Judge Anglin yesterday, upon application of George F. Shepley, K. C., representing the Dominion Government, an order was issued allowing Commissioner Sherwood of the Dominion Police and counsel for the Crown, to inspect all ballot papers returned from polling sub-division No. 2, Clarendon and Miller, after the Parliamentary election, held on the 3rd November last in Frontenac. These ballots are now in the hands of the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery at Ottawa. The judge's order directs that the production and inspection of the ballots shall take place in the presence of the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, and of counsel of such of the Parliamentary candidates in this same election as may desire to be present. The examination of the ballots will probably be made to-day in Ottawa.

HAWKEYE HEARD FROM.

Writes From Chicago About Conduct of Frontenac Poll.

Kingston, Dec. 16.—The Whig prints the following letter from Joseph Hawkeye, the Chicago wrestler who had charge of the poll at Clarendon and Miller, No. 2, which is is stated a bogus ballot box was used, on Nov. 3:

I came from Chicago of my own accord, and paid my own way and expenses, and for the purpose of wrestling a match in Gananoque on Nov. 1. I never knew anything of my appointment as a D.R.O. until I came from Chicago.

Again, on election morning at Ardoch, when I opened the poll, I gave the gentlemen present every chance to examine my box. In the evening, when I closed the poll at 5 o'clock, after I took the ballots out I took the box off the table, turned it upside down, and said: "Gentlemen, you see the box is empty." If Mr. Tapping got information, as he claims he did, that I was using a bogus box, why did he not examine my box more carefully? From the time I put the box on the table, until it was sealed, no man ever looked inside of it or moved it, because it was dark, and we only had a small oil lamp, sitting on the table, which was not nearly as high as the box. After we were through, George Hamilton, my poll clerk, said to Tapping and Thompson, "Well boys, are you satisfied?" and Mr. Thompson said, "Yes." I do not understand what they are kicking about now.

I can see nothing peculiar about our movements around Clarendon. As far as the private room was concerned, Mr. Sproule did invite Taylor and I up to have a drink, and to change his collar. He had a bottle of wine and one of whiskey. I wish to say right here, that I will give any man $100 who can prove that I took a drink of whiskey on that trip, for people who know me know that I never indulge.

It has also been insinuated by certain papers that I have bought and sold wrestling matches in Canada. I also understand that certain parties swore that I am a professional wrestler. Such is not so, but I am wrestler enough for anything in Canada, and I have from $100 to $1,000 that says so.

I had no intention, whatever, of contradicting any statement made in regard to myself by those implicated but when they begin to shove it on a little too hard it is time to call a halt. I am prepared to swear to these statements. I remain, yours respectfully, Joseph Hawkeye, 3618 Lake avenue, Chicago.

EXPECTS A LANDSLIDE.

Mr. Gamey Has Had Strenuous Time and Knows the Country.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—R. R. Gamey, who has been staying at the Walker House, goes home to-day, but will return after Christmas, and may address meetings in the province during the last week of the year. He desires to consult with the workers in his own riding before making any engagements for outside meetings, but will spend about ten days in the province during the campaign. He has addressed 80 meetings in Ontario during the past 18 months. Mr. Gamey from his experience through the country is very sanguine of the results of the election and expects 15 of a majority for his party. He considers his own constituency safe, and says the Conservatives will carry West Nipissing and the Sault.

"I know that from 10 to 15 of a majority are expected, but I would not be at all surprised if there was a landslide. Liberals are going to vote against the Government that they have no suspicion of.

A Minister of Mines.

"Mr. Whitney told me to-day that if he came into power one of the first things he would do would be to pass legislation creating a Minister of Mines. This would be in accordance with the resolution of the conference. The Liberals will do nothing in this direction, and it is a matter on which the northern constituencies are largely interested. In my own riding we have two of the largest nickel mines in the country, and the mining interests all through New Ontario are most important."

J. P. Whitney is still at the Queen's, and is expected to remain until to-morrow.

The Province's Cash.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—Provincial Treasurer Ross reports a balance to the credit of the Province of cash in the banks amounting to $2,952,272.

NOVA SCOTIA LIBERALS WIN.

Result As Expected Though One Independent Beat Government Candidate.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 16.—By-elections to fill the vacancies in the Local House were held in five constituencies in Nova Scotia yesterday, and, as was expected, all went Liberal. There were seven vacancies in all, but in Lunenburg and Guysboro, C. W. Mader and Dr. J. F. Ellis, respectively, were elected by acclamation.

The only comfort the Opposition has from yesterday's election is the fact that Boyd, the Government candidate in Richmond, was defeated by the Independent, Bissett, by 350 majority.

In Pictou, R. H. McGregor had a majority of about 100 over A. C. Bell, and in Colchester Capt. John Suckling was defeated by H. A. Laurence by 150. In Cumberland, E. B. Paul, ex-minister of Springhill, defeated Mayor Day of Parrsboro by over 500.

In Cape Breton the fight was between the Government and the Labor party, the Conservatives taking no part, and it resulted in Dr. Kendall being elected over James Boyd, the Labor candidate, by about 2,100, the greatest majority ever rolled up in Nova Scotia.

As a general thing the vote polled was a small one, and there is not the least doubt but what Pictou and Colchester would have gone Conservative had the party worked as they should have done.

WHAT DO YOU CARE? YOU'VE GOT YOUR HEALTH.

Great Natures Do Not Despair at Disappointment—They Look for Something Else to Do.

The broad-gauged man of to-day does not get blue just because things don't always come his way unless there is something the matter with him. If he "falls down" on one proposition he immediately starts to look up another. He always looks forward and keeps on hustling. A man with his health and faculties has plenty of opportunities and the man who gives up or even feels like it has either a small nature or some physical weakness.

Dyspepsia certainly puts the best of men out of condition for work of any kind. You cannot blame the dyspeptic for getting blue. The very nature of his disease is most depressing and calculated to deprive him of ambition, energy and hope. There is hope for him, however, certain and sure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as the one cure that's safe and sure. Their unbounded popularity—resulting from the thousands and thousands of cures they have effected, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt their greatness as a cure. Wherein lies their greatness? In the very fact that they are Nature's own simple remedy. They do the exact work in exactly the same way that the digestive fluids of the stomach do because they are composed of exactly the same elements and possess the same properties. They relieve the weak and worn out stomach of its burden of digestion and permit it without let or hindrance to rest and grow sound and well. The stomach will get well quick enough in its own natural way if it is let alone. That is what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do. They not only let it alone themselves but make the food taken into the stomach do the same.

You can satisfy yourself of the truth of this statement by putting the food you would eat into a glass jar with sufficient water and one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The process of digestion will be taken up and carried out just as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids would do it. Their action is natural and they cause no disturbance in the digestive organs. In fact you forget you have a stomach when they begin to do their work, so mild and natural is the operation. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50c. a box.

NEW NAVAL SCHEME.

Orders Received At Halifax to Close the Imperial Dockyard.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 16.—Orders were received here yesterday afternoon from the British Admiralty to close up the Imperial Dockyard, which, since 1770, has been the chief repair station of the North Atlantic squadron, and to pay off the employes. A week's notice has been given to all hands.

All the British ships of war will hereafter repair at Bermuda. This is part of the new scheme concerning the British squadron in Atlantic waters.

New Government Evades Law.

Sarnia, Dec. 16.—Because of the drowning of four persons from a small rowboat on Thanksgiving Day the Canadian Government wants to stop traffic across the river in such small craft at night. There is no law that applies, but it has been decided to do away with the night customs officer and then seize any rowboat trying to land passengers.

Mr. Inwood Is Secretary.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—The new General Reform Association of Ontario has chosen Fred G. Inwood, former [illegible] inspector of the city of Toronto, as general secretary. Mr. Inwood resigned the inspectorship on Wednesday. James Vance, secretary of the [illegible] Liberal Association, will continue his connection with the party a few weeks longer.

Receipts at Fort William during the same period were 12,500,000 bushels, as compared with 10,600,000 bushels last year, an increase of 17 per cent.

Shipments from Fort William were 11,728,000 bushels, as compared with 10,068,000 bushels last year, an increase of 16 per cent.

The balance of wheat left in the C. P.R. elevators at Fort William is 1,000,000 bushels.

Union Men Found Guilty.

St. Catharines, Dec. 16.—A jury in the sessions last evening found Edward Day, William Hodgins and William Beattie, members of the local union of the International Brotherhood of Decorators and Paper Hangers of America, guilty of a conspiracy to prevent Albert A. Clay, a painter, from working at his trade. The judge said he would not deliver sentence until Jan. 24, and the men were bailed out in $100 each.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Mrs. W. R. Sutherland, St. Andrew's, Man., writes:—"I was stricken with paralysis and lost power of the tongue and left leg. For six months I obtained no relief either by doctors' prescriptions or other medicines. My husband got me Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which has revitalized my nerves and given me full power of the paralysed parts. I am strong and well now, thanks to this great medicine."

Left Sixty Dead On Field.

Berlin, Dec. 16.—Lieut.-Gen. Von Trotha, commander-in-chief of the German forces in German Southwest Africa, telegraphing from Windhoek, says fifty or sixty dead Hottentots were found on the field after the natives fight with Col. Deimling's force, Dec. 5. The latter captured 3,000 head of cattle. Thirty-six settlers have been murdered by Witbois in the southern part of the colony since the rising and five settlers are missing.

Town Burning Up.

White River Junction, Vt., Dec. 16.—The business section of Hartford, two miles from here, is threatened by a fire which has already destroyed the White River chair works, and has extended to a nearby factory. Several stores, residences and a church are directly in the path of the flames, which the local fire department is unable to check. Help has been summoned from Lebanon, N.H.

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

THE CITY LEAGUE

An Executive Meeting Held—Much Business Done.

A meeting of the City Hockey League was held last evening in the Y.M.C.A. Great enthusiasm was displayed and judging from last evening's meeting, the success of the league is assured. Five teams were represented:—The Karnoks by H. Kingscote; the Furriers by W. Armstrong; the T.A.S. by M. Hickey; the Colonials by G. Rickerby; and the Earl Greys by P. McFadden.

In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Mr. J. A. Sharpe, occupied the chair.

It was moved by Mr. Armstrong, seconded by Mr. McFadden, that the time limit by which teams have to be entered be extended until Monday evening, when another meeting be held and the schedule for the season drawn up. Other teams are expected to enter.

Mr. Kingscote read the following letter:

Dec. 15th, 1904.

Mr. H. Kingscote, Secretary Peterborough Hockey League:

Dear Sir:—Being in sympathy with a City League and having a strong desire to assist in developing players for senior company and to help in some little way to create a strong rivalry for honors throughout the season we would be pleased to tender the winning team an oyster supper, providing it meets with the approval of the executive. Awaiting your decision, we remain,

Yours very truly,
LANG & MAHER.

A motion moved by Mr. Hickey and seconded by Mr. Armstrong to the effect that the offer be accepted with thanks, was carried. A second motion moved by Mr. Sharpe and seconded by Mr. Armstrong, that a vote of thanks be sent to the Examiner, was also carried.

It was also decided that the players of a defaulting City League team cannot play with any other team in a City League game during the season.

The following board of referees was decided upon: Messrs. R. M. Glover, George Lynch, F. Wasson, and W. Crowley.

The names of all players in each team must be handed in at Monday night's meeting, when players' certificates will be granted.

From present indications the league will be a success, and is deserving of patronage as it will doubtless be the means of developing many star players.

THE TURF.

A MATINEE.

The Turf Club propose holding a matinee Christmas week on the track at their grounds. Some good flesh is expected here. Looking Glass, Black Mack, Velma, and Blucher will appear in the free for all, and there is a big list for the '40 class. Purses of $100 each are offered.

AN ICE TRACK.

Little Lake is the scene of great activity these days. The enterprising members of the Turf Club have laid out a half-mile ice tract there, and every day some local speeders are having workouts. Martin Connors' two horses, Dr. Johnston's Donna Bell, Cook's Velma, and others are frequently seen there. The track at the grounds is also in good condition.

PURSES RAISED.

An announcement is made that for the winter meet on Jan. 17th and 18th, the purses have been raised from $150 to $250. The list is filling up well, there being entries from towns along the line from Montreal to Windsor.

CURLING.

Last evening two sheets of ice were in excellent condition, and two scratch games were played between rinks skipped by G. H. Giroux and C. N. Brown, and R. Neill and J. Stanger, Skips Giroux and Stanger winning handily. The following was the personnel of the rinks:—

W. D. Campbell	W. J. McCallum
S. Clegg	W. E. Talbot
Robert Kerr	Thos. Brightman
G. H. Giroux, skip...20	C. N. Brown, skip... 6
R. Matchett	G. F. Jackson
Wm. Smith	W. S. Dodds
David Hall	R. G. Bread
John Stanger, skip...14	Robt. Neill, skip... 6

SPRINTING.

The following letter received from the secretary of the C.A.A.L.L. speaks for itself:—

Toronto, Dec. 15, 1904.

Sporting Editor Review,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—Some time ago information was laid before the Canadian Association Athletic League that Mr. F. J. McGrath, of Peterborough, was a professional. We have taken very great pains to carefully investigate the matter, and find that statements made were untrue, and we would like very much if you would publish in the columns of your paper the decision of the Governing Committee, that Mr. McGrath is no longer under suspension, and I have sent him his medal won at the athletic meet here in October last.

Faithfully yours,
J. HOWARD CROCKER,
Secretary C.A.A.L.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Peterboroughs had a rattling practice last night, when over twenty players were out in uniform. The seniors lined up against a round dozen of juniors and played very fast hockey. For the first of the season Morgan, Graham and Parnell on the forward line played well together, and already a most effective combination is being formed. Morgan's shooting from right wing was a feature, and he scored numerous goals. Cavanah and Crowley on the defence played well and made many beautiful rushes. At this distance the team looks good and ought to have no trouble in winning this district. Among those out last night were Cavanah, Crowley, Parnell, Graham, Morgan, Ford, Cameron, Hall, Fitzpatrick, Ferguson, Kingscote, Sisty, Greene, Seymour, Hamilton, Carmichael and Long.

The T.A.S. had a good workout last night. A large number of players were out in uniform.

George street Young Men's Guild met last night and discussed hockey. It was not definitely decided to have a team, but a committee composed of Messrs. Mann, Cressman and Metheral was appointed to look after the matter and report to the Guild Executive.

There is a probability of the formation of a junior city league. A meeting is called for this evening to discuss matters. Several teams are willing to enter, including the Y.M.C.A., C.G.E. juniors and West Ends. It looks as if hockey would indeed indeed boom in town this season.

The annual meeting of the Trent Valley League will be held this evening in the Oriental Hotel, commencing at nine o'clock. There will be considerable business transacted. It is probable that there will be several changes in the list of officers. Mr. E. S. Clarry is resigning from the secretaryship and will likely be elected President. Mr. D. J. Devins will be a candidate for the position of secretary. He possesses the necessary qualification for the position, being thoroughly acquainted with hockey matters. If elected he will endeavor to carry on the league under the same principles of strict amateurism inaugurated by Mr. Clarry. Mr. T. J. Wallace may also be a candidate. He would make a competent official.

The following teams are asked to be present at the rink between seven and eight for a practice game:—

Goal
Ferguson...... Fitzpatrick
Point
Meagher...... Ford
Cover Point.
Cavanah...... Green
Rover.
Crowley...... Long
Centre.
Parnell...... McFarlane
Right Wing.
Morgan...... Winch
Left Wing.
Graham...... Cameron and Hall

SOLID BUSINESS MAN

Was Mr. Robert Parker, Who Died in Ottawa—Father of Mr. Alfred Parker.

The Ottawa Citizen, of Dec. 15th, referring to the death of Robert Parker, father of Mr. Alfred Parker, of town states:

By the death of Mr. Robert Parker, head of the Parker dye works, which took place at the family residence, 476 Cooper street, this morning, the capital loses one of its solid business men and progressive citizens. Mr. Parker was 72 years of age and died from a general breaking down of the system.

For 26 years he had been intimately associated with the business life of the city and his reputation for probity and straight business methods was an enviable one. While naturally conservative in disposition, he combined with cautiousness a keen business instinct, and always kept fully abreast with the progress of the city. Mr. Parker was born in Manchester, England, and when 27 years of age came to Canada, settling in Montreal, where he lived up to the time of his removal to Ottawa. He was twice married, his first wife dying 17 years ago. He subsequently married Mrs. Fenton, sister of Mrs. T. Birkett, ex-M.P., who survives him. Of the first marriage he leaves five children, three sons, Alfred Parker, Peterborough, and James and William, of Ottawa, and two daughters, Mrs. T. H. Gemmell, Guelph, and Mrs. J. S. Allen, Ottawa.

In religion Mr. Parker was a Methodist and a pillar in the church. He was practically the founder of the McLeod street church, previously having been connected with the Dominion church. As an official, he always brought the wisdom of his wide business experience and was one of the mainstays of the business administration of the church. As a class leader and worker he was devoted to the high principles which guided his life and in an exceptional degree enjoyed the respect and confidence of everyone who knew him, as a man of upright life. His death will prove a severe shock to McLeod street church and indeed to the church at large, for his interests were much larger than the confines of a single congregation. In his death a good man has been called to rest.

—Mr. John Bravis, of Asphodel, had three fine lambs killed by a dog recently. He captured the dog while the killing was in progress, but no owner ever inquired after the canine.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY'S YEAR

Reports With Regard to Very Commendable Work.

THE AGENT AND SECRETARY

Insight Into Operations Carried On—Many Cases Referred To—Large Amount of Ground Covered by Mr. Geo. Cochrane What is Being Done for Children.

Below are published the reports of the Agent and Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, which will hold its annual meeting to-morrow afternoon. These will be perused with great interest as affording an excellent idea of the commendable operations of the Society during the year.

AGENT'S REPORT.

Peterborough, 17th Dec., 1904.

To the President, Officers and Members of the Children's Aid Society of the Town and County of Peterborough.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have the pleasure to present my fifth annual report as agent of your Society, and will give a brief outline of the work done during the past year in my department.

The Shelter has been supervised by Mr. and Mrs. Henry, and I have pleasure in stating that they have performed their duties in a satisfactory manner. The large number of children admitted during the year were well looked after, fed and clothed by the matron. No complaint has been received with regard to the management of the Shelter, which speaks well for Mr. and Mrs. Henry.

The ladies of the town have organized a Sewing Society under the superintendence of Mrs. Birdsall, the Vice-President of our Society. They meet at the Shelter when occasion requires, and prepare warm clothing for the children who are admitted to the Shelter, and for many others who receive outside relief. The general public are once more reminded that we are always ready to receive cast-off children's clothing, and can make good use of the same.

During the year I have travelled over 1,200 miles throughout the county, and have paid 89 visits to investigate complaints. Needless to say, the persons who gave me information are never exposed, if they wish to remain unknown; persons need have no hesitation in sending in a complaint, as the Society undertakes to preserve their confidence. I visited during the year 145 children, and distributed 14 baskets of good cheer at Christmas time; 18 bundles of clothing were given to applicants, and 23 children who were not inmates of the Shelter were fitted out during the winter. The number of children admitted to the Shelter was 37, and the number now remaining in the Shelter is four. The work has been very evenly divided between the town and the county.

I propose at the coming Christmas season to distribute provisions, and toys on behalf of the patrons of the Society, and request that charitable friends will furnish me with either provisions, Christmas toys or money to assist in carrying out this part of our programme.

The plumbing which was recommended at the last annual meeting has been placed in the Shelter, and we now have a comfortable bath room, with hot and cold water, which is of great value to the matron and a luxury to the children. Details of the expenditure will be found in the treasurer's report.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE COCHRANE,
Agent.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Peterborough, 17th Dec., 1904.

To the President, Officers and Members of the Children's Aid Society of the Town and County of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I have the pleasure to present the secretary's report for the past year, and to give a brief review of the work which has been done.

In the first place it is our duty to express warm and grateful thanks to the County Council and to the Town Council for valuable contributions, without which the work could not be carried on. We also acknowledge the kind co-operation and assistance given by Mr. Dumble, K.C., Police Magistrate of the town, and Mr. Edmison, K.C., Police Magistrate for the County of Peterborough. Both these gentlemen have taken a deep personal interest in the work, and have not hesitated to make use of the Society when dealing with juvenile offenders. We also acknowledge our indebtedness to Chief Roszel and the members of the police force of the town of Peterborough. Their services have always been at our command, and which we desire to express our thanks.

THE LADIES THANKED.

To the ladies of the town we make our annual payment of thanks for much work done at the Shelter and for assistance given in other ways, and to the King's Daughters we pay tribute for the unselfish, charitable work they are doing, and for the assistance they have given this Society during the past year, in bringing to our attention a number of cases which required immediate action.

THE FAIR—Imperial Book Co.

As in years past we have received kind contributions from many sources, and in one particular from North Harvey, which was sent in through the agency of Mrs. Nathan Crowe, which gave particular pleasure, as it showed that the work of the Society is appreciated outside the limits of the town.

The following is a reference to the cases dealt with during the year. It does not include the numerous instances referred to in the Agent's report, where outside work was done by him. The following list refers only to the children who passed through the Society's hands:

Case. No. 1—Three little children aged 5, 4, and 3 years, were taken in to the Shelter while the mother entered the hospital for an operation. The father was away in the lumber shanties. After a few weeks the children were handed back to the mother on her restoration to health.

Case No. 2—This was a case from the Township of Smith. Father out of work and mother sick. Children were placed in the Shelter for two weeks, during which time the parents moved into town and secured work. The children were then returned.

Case. No. 3—Child of two years of age. Mother a vicious character. Child taken over by Society and placed with a most respectable family.

Case No. 4—Contrary to our general practice we were obliged to take into the Shelter in April an infant of four months old. The child had club feet and suffered from hereditary disease. It died in the Shelter on the 10th of July, and was suitably buried by the Society.

Case No. 5—A little girl of two years of age, deserted by its parents. Placed in good home.

Case No. 6.—After investigation by the Magistrate these two children, aged 7 and 5 years, were placed in the House of Providence, on the undertaking of their parents to reform and pay for the children while in the institution. The children were later on returned to their parents, and no further complaints have reached the Society.

Case. No. 7—A lost child found at the railway station. Returned to her friends after spending a night in the Shelter.

Case No. 8—An incorrigible boy of 10 years old. Run away from home on many occasions, placed in the Shelter at different times. Finally sent to the Industrial School, from which he escaped and has been lost sight of.

Case. No. 9.—A case from Havelock. Girl aged 16 years and extremely wicked. Placed in the Shelter after Police Court investigation, but she was too abandoned to remain there, and upon her escape no further effort was made by the Society, as she was too old to be influenced by a foster home, nor could any respectable family be induced to take her.

Case No. 10—Boy placed in Shelter charged with stealing, and after trial found guilty. Order made by Magistrate transferring him to Society, after which he was allowed to return to his parents, subject to good behavior.

Case No. 11—Three children placed in Shelter for a day until father and mother settled their differences amicably, after which the children were allowed to return to their parents.

Case. No. 12—A stirring boy of 8 was placed in the Shelter by his mother to cure him of running away from home. He then devoted all his energies to escaping from the Shelter and running towards home. This treatment proved a complete success.

Case No. 13—Two children placed in Shelter owing to death of the mother, and the absence of the father while in the hospital suffering from typhoid fever. These children are still in the Shelter.

Case No. 14.—An English boy of ten years old, sent out to his mother who is engaged as a domestic servant in town, and has no place to keep him. He is still in the Shelter.

Case No. 15.—A child of 1 1-2 years of age; the mother is weak minded and dissolute. The child is still in the Shelter.

Case No. 16.—A family jar resulted in the father making over his three children to the Society. The next day full of remorse and very penitent the husband and wife begged to have them back. This has been done for the present but they are being closely watched by the Society.

Case No. 17.—Mother a nice looking young woman deserted by her husband. Child two years old suffering from pneumonia. Mother refused to be separated from child. Procured board and lodging, also medical attendance for child, and finally had the mother sent to her friends at the expense of the Charity Board.

Case No. 18.—Three children cared for while mother in hospital undergoing an operation.

A SAD EVENT.

A very sad event which occurred on the 30th November last was the death of Annie May Williams who had been a ward of the Society for four years. The unfortunate child had a physical defect which seems to have preyed upon her mind. She was visited by Mrs. Harvey on 25th October last and found to be with kind people who did everything to make her comfortable and happy. She was buried in the Society's Lot in the Little Lake Cemetery.

By the death of Dr. Pigeon which occurred on the 8th December the Society lost a kind and valued friend, who for many years acted as our honorary physician; in which capacity he devoted much time and professional skill to the children under our charge. The physicians of the Town have all been kind to us, but Dr. Pigeon was particularly good to the children who needed his care.

In conclusion we are able to report a satisfactory and successful year, which has been largely due to the efficient work done by Mr. Cochrane, Agent of the Society. His work has been thoroughly and carefully done, in an intelligent and sympathetic manner. The Shelter has been managed in a satisfactory way by Mr. and Mrs. Henry.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. M. DENNISTOUN,
Secretary.

WEDDED IN KINGSTON

Sargeant William Borland Takes Unto Himself a Bride.

A military wedding took place at the residence of Capt. Henry Esford, Barriefield, Kingston, on Dec. 12th, at 8 o'clock, when Sergt. Wm. Borland, "B" Battery, formerly of Peterborough, was married to Miss Olive Esford. The bride was given away by her father, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Nimmo, of the Anglican church, in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride was tastefully attired in brown with cream waist and was assisted by a friend, while the groom was supported by Sergt.-Major McGowan, late of England, but now instructor in Kingston Battery. After the happy couple had received the congratulations of those present, a sumptuous wedding supper was served. The table was nicely decorated with chrysanthemums and smilax. Sergt.-Major McGowan made a speech and sponded to. The minister also spoke and groom, which was heartily re- a few words telling what an efficient proposed the health of the bride worker the bride was in his parish. Sergt. Borland, on behalf of his wife and himself thanked them for their good wishes. The presents were handsome and numerous. Mr. and Mrs. Borland left, amid showers of rice, for their home, 113 York street, Kingston. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Borland, Mr. and Mrs. F. Brownscombe, Peterborough, were present.

KILLED AT A CROSSING

Father Taken and Son Badly Injured Near Kemptville.

John McReynolds, Respected Farmer of Grenville County, Killed Outright—His Son, Andrew, in a Critical Condition—Man Shocked to Death At Brantford—Electrician Birkett Received 3,000 Volts and Instantly Died.

Kemptville, Dec. 17.—John McReynolds, an aged and respected farmer of Oxford Township, Grenville County, was killed yesterday on the St. Lawrence & Ottawa Railway, and his son, Andrew McReynolds, was seriously injured, and now lies in a critical condition. The accident occurred shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at that crossing on the St. Lawrence & Ottawa Railway, which is known as the Oxford Township line. The Messrs. McReynolds were crossing the track in a buggy when they were overtaken by the northbound passenger train, No. 91. The rear end of the buggy was wrecked and both men hurled from the rig. The elder was killed outright and the son sustained terrible injuries about the head. The train, which had been running at an unusually high rate of speed, was brought to a standstill and backed up. The bodies of the unfortunate men were taken aboard and brought to Kemptville, where the train was met by Corner Jones. An inquest will be held Monday morning.

She was removed to the hospital.

Risked Life, Saved Child.

Winnipeg, Dec. 17.—A heroic rescue of a child from in front of the east-bound express train was made here by Robert Mackay, a former Toronto fireman on the C.P.R. Risking his own life, Mackay lifted the child from danger as the engine dashed by, and a crowd cheered him.

Windsor, Dec. 17.—James Van Horne of Chatham called at Janisse morgue here yesterday and identified the remains of the colored man found cut to pieces on the Grand Trunk, near Walkerville, as William Watt of Chatham. Watt had been in this city in quest of work and was unsuccessful. He was beating his way home when he fell from a freight train.

Several Vessels Missing.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 17.—The steamer Algerine, which arrived here yesterday, reports having had a terrible experience. She was driven off the coast and was four days buffeting the sea and was partly waterlogged. The Daily Review

SATURDAY, DEC. 17, 1904.

THE WHITE PLAGUE.

The work being done by the National Sanitarium Association, a branch of which organization has recently been formed in Peterborough, has, like other worthy movements, met with criticism in certain quarters.

In spite of this unfavorable comment, which is happily confined to very few, the good work done at Muskoka is being more and more generally recognised and appreciated. New branches of the Association are constantly being formed, the latest being in Belleville.

The letter of Mr. J. W. Bennet, published in last night's Review, is a strong argument why one or two cots should be pre-empted and it is satisfactory to learn that local contributions are coming in almost every day to assist in the fight against this fell destroyer of humanity.

Anyone who has read the address of Rev. E. C. Parker, of Toronto formerly of Peterborough, cannot fail to be impressed with the strong claims which the Association has on the public. True, the first institution erected near Gravenhurst was largely in the nature of an experiment, but the success which has attended the undertaking must be a source of gratification, not only to its friends and supporters, but also a cause of thankfulness to the hundreds who have been benefitted and cured. The work has shown that a disease, once regarded as incurable, can now be successfully overcome. In this instance the following statistics will prove of interest—

In 1897, when the Muskoka Cottage was opened, the Provincial Board of Health began to collect statistics of deaths from tuberculosis. In that year they numbered 3,154, increasing the next three years to 3,291, 3,405 and 3,484. Since the year 1900 there has been a steady decrease, last year's returns showing that there were only 2,072 deaths from that cause, or 622 less than the preceding year, or a decrease of 1,412, as compared with the year 1900. This result has been obtained largely through the activity of the National Sanitarium Association.

ELECTION FRAUDS.

"The stock in trade of the Opposition," it is said, "is the election frauds, which have disgraced the records of both parties equally and alike." An anxious public would like to be informed, says the Toronto News, what part Mr. Whitney or any of his friends or supporters had in the West Elgin frauds, or the Minnie M. expedition or any of the other election scandals which have characterised Ontario politics. The election courts do not support the Liberal contention. Government supporters in North Perth, North Norfolk and Sault Ste. Marie were unseated for fraud and corruption, the last case being one of the worst in Canadian history. A protest against the new Minister of Crown Lands was shut off by dissolving the Legislature. On the other side, the petitions against Opposition members in Muskoka and Centre Bruce were dismissed, and Major Clark was complimented by the judges on the fairness and honesty of his election methods. It is simply dishonest to lay the burden of responsibility for election frauds on the shoulders of the Opposition. The Government and its friends are responsible for all of them; and the remedy is to defeat the Government. If similar crimes are committed by or on behalf of the new Government, apply the remedy again.

PEN POINTS.

One more week for Christmas shopping.

Vote to have a secret ballot and an honest administration. Support Bradburn and Whitney.

The good work of organization on behalf of the Liberal Conservative candidate goes steadily ahead. The organization is now well under way.

Ald. Adams is a good finance minister, and evidently knows how to keep a strong hold on the public purse strings.

The directory of the town is growing larger each year. That is a good sign. Peterborough welcomes new faces and new names.

It is generally remarked that the street cars run altogether too fast on George-st. between King and Smith. It would perhaps be as well for those in charge to slow up a little at the different crossings, even if the cars do not have to stop to let passengers off or take them aboard.

A most interesting feature of the daily newspapers these days is the holiday advertising. Needless to say, the advertisements are scanned by intending buyers for the Christmas season, with earnest attention. The reading matter that is put in a holiday ad. stands the best chance of [illegible]

"CANADIAN" RUBBERS

There is nothing slow about Smith township. It has every kind of campaign on, except a war campaign—a temperance campaign, a municipal and a political.

Mr. James Vance, the hero of the Soo and many other elections, in the interests of the Ross Government, has not yet been rewarded by the government, the same as Mr. Richardson, M.P.P., Mr. Russell and others. He will have to press his claims pretty quickly if he expects recognition from the party he has served so long and with so much notoriety.

In the selection by the Trades and Labor Council of Mr. T. J. Begley as one of the candidates for municipal honors, the association has made an excellent choice. Mr. Begley is an intelligent, upright and energetic young man, who has devoted considerable thought and attention to municipal problems. If elected—as he doubtless will—he will prove an admirable representative. Mr. Begley is a citizen who should be supported, and his many friends are assuring him that they will use every honest means in their power to secure him a seat at the Council board.

An interesting point of law has been raised in Brantford. In that city the market is sold to a market clerk each year, and he has the privilege of collecting fees from those who sell on it. Mr. Joseph Bowes bought it this year, out-bidding all competitors, and on account of dull trade asked the Council for a rebate of $175. This the Council granted, and it is now claimed the rebate is illegal. The question has been referred to legal gentlemen for an opinion. Brantford is not alone in acts of this kind. Belleville has had repeated applications of a similar character. Strange, is it not, that when a market clerk makes a lot of money he never offers any of it to the city, but if he loses he wants to be relieved.

Speaking at the East Kent Liberal Conservative nomination, Rev. J. E. Hunter, evangelist, said of the Ross Government:—"There were too many barnacles, and the people should rise in their might and clear away the barnacles. It was a duty every honest man owed to the cause of righteousness. Good men hang their heads in shame over the sad record revealed [illegible]

But mourning did little good unless there was reformation. It had been proved that it was dangerous and humiliating to leave either a Conservative or a Liberal Government so long in power. He hoped the Christian citizenship, irrespective of party, would rise in its might and purge the good name of Ontario."

The reports published yesterday indicate the splendid work which is being done by the Peterborough branch of the Children's Aid Society. Many children have been looked after and placed under good influences. The Society goes about its labors in a quiet way. Its effort on behalf of downtrodden, abused, neglected little ones is worthy of generous support. Its officers have been most faithful in the discharge of their duties, while the medical men of the town have been at all times ready and willing to bestow their services free of charge. The thanks of the community are due the Peterborough Children's Aid Society for its noble, self-sacrificing and altruistic work.

The Town Council has done well during its term of office. It is not many places of the size and importance of Peterborough that can boast of winding up the year's operations with a surplus of $1,500. It is generally the other way. Deficits are a common occurrence. The fact that the town's tax collector has also gathered in all the revenue of the present year, except about $6,000—part of which on the town buildings will be remitted—speaks volumes for the efficiency and business-like ability of that official. No one of the civic departments has been "starved" during the year, and a judicious expenditure, with few exceptions, has been made by the chairmen of the different committees. Next year an effort should be made to allow the Board of Works a more liberal allowance. The streets and walks should be the first consideration of the incoming Council.

Mr. Henry A. Moore, the Liberal Conservative candidate in East Peterborough, is conducting a vigorous canvass throughout the riding, and is meeting with encouraging success. Mr. Moore's many friends in all parts of the constituency confidently believe that he has an excellent chance of carrying the banner of purity and progress to victory. He is conducting an open, clean, straightforward campaign and is independent in his course. He has covered a large section of the district already, and has met with a splendid reception. Mr. Moore will not likely hold any meetings until after the holidays, but the people will see and hear him in all important centres before election day. Certain malicious reports have been circulated to the effect that Mr. Moore would not remain in the field, but the Review is authorized to give this a flat denial and to state that he will be very much in the contest until the last vote is polled.

It was pleasing to hear the words of appreciation spoken of Mayor Roger at the close of the Council meeting on Thursday night. His Worship has been a model presiding officer, always looking to advance the interests and progress of the town. The Council during the past year has worked harmoniously and unitedly to the best interest of the community, and it is regrettable that so many good men are retiring. The Review desires to congratulate Mayor Roger on the success which has attended his two years' occupancy of the chair. His recommendation that the honorarium of the mayor should be increased in order to re-imburse the occupant, in a slight measure, for the valuable time he is called upon to give to the municipality, and the social duties he has to perform, as well as the many other calls which are made upon him is one which the incoming Council should seriously consider.

✓ HELM—BURNHAM.

Fashionable Wedding Celebrated in Port Hope on Wednesday.

The marriage of Miss Florence Adele Burnham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Burnham, to Mr. Frank B. Helm, of the Union Bank, Calgary, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Helm, of Port Hope, took place at high noon, Wednesday, at the residence of the bride's parents, "Dumbarton Hall", Port Hope. Rev. W. A. Gustin, rector of St. Mark's Church, read the service under an arch of palms and lilies in the drawing room, which was also decorated with chrysanthemums and smilax. The bride was gowned in white crepe de soie, with Duchesse lace berthe and pearl ornaments, the bridal veil of Brussels lace caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Hazel Burnham was the bridesmaid, and wore pink with white chiffon trimmings. Mr. Hubert C. Francis, of Toronto, was the groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Helm left on the G. T. R. flyer for their future home in Calgary. The bride's travelling gown was of blue cloth, trimmed with black silk braid, touched with white cloth, blue and green hat, and mink furs. Among the guests not residents of Port Hope were: Miss Bradburn, Miss Perry and Miss Ruby Burnham, Peterborough; Mr. Morgan Cary, Millbrook; Mr. H. McMurchy, Bowmanville.

GIVEN HEARTY RECEPTION

Rev. J. A. Wilson Cordially Greeted by St. Andrew's Congregation, Hamilton.

Hamilton, Dec. 15.—As a sequel to the ordination and induction of the new pastor of St. Andrew's church on Tuesday night, the congregation last night tendered him an enthusiastic reception. Last night the Sunday school, which is the largest in the Presbytery, and one of the largest in the province, gathered to present three addresses, and welcome Rev. J. A. Wilson. The attendance at the reception this week must have been flattering to Mr. Wilson, and is but an indication of the enthusiasm prevailing.

Severe Cold in the Chest.

"My fourteen-year-old-boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly all the time and sometimes would spit up blood. I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and he has not been troubled since."—Mrs. J. Provost, Renfrew, Ont.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS--1904.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submi for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognized agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully become accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandisement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to, pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st. The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd. The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localisation of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,

Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

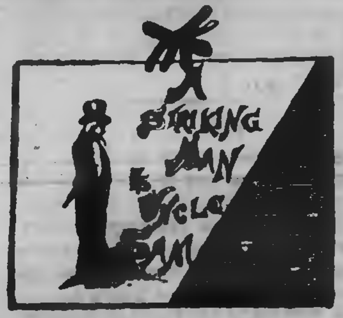
CHRISTMAS WORK.

HINTS FOR NOVEL VARIATIONS OF A FEW FAVORITE PRESENTS.

A Unique Match Scratcher of Patriotic Sentiment—An Attractive Chamois Case For Jewels—"A Yard of Pretty Girls" Picture Frame.

For any one who is at all clever with paint and brushes the match scratcher illustrated will prove a simple piece of work. Take a piece of water color cardboard eight inches wide by ten long and a piece of sandpaper and paste the sandpaper on the cardboard diagonally from one corner to the center. (See the dark part of the illustration.) The well known figure of "Uncle Sam" in the regulation red, white and blue costume is done in water color, with the words "A Striking Man Is Uncle Sam" in gold and black letters running through the center. If one is not able to paint, the figure of Uncle Sam could be cut from a magazine and colored and the words written in large, bold script in place of the printed letters.

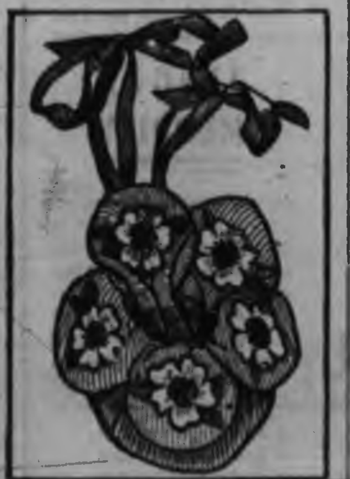


UNIQUE MATCH SCRATCHER.

The useful and pretty little bag for jewels, also illustrated, is made of five oblong pieces of chamois cut something the shape of an orange quarter. Each section is about six inches long and three inches wide at the middle. One end of each section is rounded and used for the top, and the pieces are then overhanded on the wrong side very neatly together, bringing all the points together at the bottom. Five slits are made in each piece for the ribbon to run through, as may be seen by referring to the illustration, and on each of the rounded portions is applied a piece of white kid that has been cut out in the shape of a rose and leaves and then delicately tinted. This may be fastened down with paste, or, if one cannot draw or paint, a single rose may be stamped on the chamois and then embroidered, or pieces of Persian work may be cut from material and couched down with embroidery silk. On a large scale this bag would be exceedingly pretty as a fancy work receptacle.

An attractive six piece picture frame is made of six rectangular tablets of cardboard, and on every other one a little descriptive line may be written in gold paint or inscribed in ink. The first is "A Yard of Pretty Girls," the third has the well known quotation, "In Maiden Meditation, Fancy Free," while over the fifth is traced "Queen Rose of the Rosebud Garden of Girls." Gold paint edges the openings and splashes of it shadow the surface of the frames. The other three frames are decorated with a water color design of forgetmenots and gold paint, but a pretty piece of wall paper with a design in which an opening could be cut would produce just as good an effect and would be very much less work.

The different pieces of cardboard are tied together with baby ribbon, a hanger of which completes the top card. The girls' photographs may be replaced by pictures of pretty babies, in which case the title would change to "A Yard of Babies," or it might be called "A Yard of Summer Reminiscences," and small views of seashore or country inserted, with appropriate mottoes.



A CHAMOIS CASE FOR JEWELS.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

Four Points In Making Tea.

The president of the American Tea association, writing in a well known trade journal, says: "There are four exact rules to be followed in making tea, and the neglect of any one of them will render the article valueless. Nearly every housewife neglects at least one." The four rules are these: The water must be freshly drawn from the faucet. It should boil hard for five minutes before pouring on the tea leaves. It should remain on the leaves not less than seven and not more than ten minutes and should then be poured off into another heated teapot. Use one teaspoonful of tea for each cup of water unless a weak infusion is desired.

The Woman Without a Home.

A woman advanced in life without a home and without occupation is a picture without a frame. A home of her very own is what every woman craves whose impulses have not been vitiated by a false motive in life. Despite the multiplication of boarding houses and the allurements of private apartments in well conducted flats, love of home is as inherent in woman's nature as the instinct of nest building in bird nature. It is all the better if there is a congenial husband to share it, but home and happiness for a woman are inseparable.

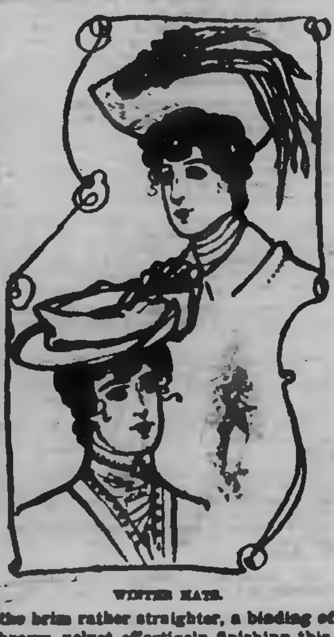
Old Walnut Furniture.

If you have any old walnut furniture keep it by all means. It is becoming rarer and more valuable all the time. Most of the pieces are ugly, because when walnut was in fashion taste was at a low ebb. An old bureau, table or chest of drawers may be made a thing of beauty with a little expenditure. In the first place the wood must be scraped of its disfiguring varnish and brass or glass knobs put on. Some pieces may have to be entirely remade, but this is frequently done with mahogany and other valuable woods.

ADMIRABLE HATS.

A Chic Winter Sailor, a Smart Toque and a Clever Motor Cap.

Exceptionally good style is a gray beaver hat following somewhat the outline of a French sailor, but with the brim rather straighter, a binding of brown velvet effectively finishing this. About the crown comes a broad band of the same velvet, above which appears an inner fold of yellow velvet, the two eventually forming broad draperies which, after being secured to the crown by a handsome steel buckle, disappears beneath the brim at the back. Everything is eminently sensible, and yet what a thoroughly smart little hat this is. White silk beaver is responsible for the smart toque, relieved by neat draperies of orange velvet and a plume of black cogs' feathers at the left side.



WINTER HATS.

Just a scintilla more dressy than the two hats illustrated is a silver gray beaver, the brim of which takes a graceful sweep upward to meet draperies of rich leaf green velvet and a floating tail of green pheasant feathers.

In the matter of hard wearing headgear for various sports there are cleverly devised tailor built novelties. An admirable instance is a motor cap of tweed with an appreciable flap at the back sufficiently soft to be pinned down to the hair, to which it offers a certain desirable protection.

Cream of Celery Soup.

For cream of celery soup use one head of celery, one pint of water, one pint of milk, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half saltspoonful of pepper. Wash and scrape the celery and cut into one-half inch pieces. Cook in one pint of salted water until very soft. Mash in the water in which it has been cooked. Place the milk and onion in a double boiler, cook ten minutes and add to the celery. Rub all through a strainer and return to the fire. Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the flour and stir until smooth, but not brown. To this add gradually the celery mixture and cook five minutes. Then add the seasoning and strain through a sieve.

SHE WAS IN BED FOR THREE YEARS

Pain-Racked Woman Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Strong Statement by Mrs. Jas. Hughes, of Morley, Ont.—She's Strong and Healthy Once More.

Morley, Ont., Dec. 16—(Special)—What Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing for the suffering women of Canada will never be fully known. It is only when some courageous woman breaks the secrecy that covers woman and her troubles that a passing glance of their great work is given. For this reason a statement made by Mrs. Jas. Hughes, of this place, is of more than passing interest.

"I was a great sufferer for four years," says Mrs. Hughes. "I was treated by five doctors and a specialist from the U.S. I tried nearly every medicine I could hear of, but none seemed to do me any good.

"I was in bed for nearly three years. I had pains up my spinal column, in my head, over my eyes, across my back and through my left side. I took fourteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now I am strong and able to do a good day's work, thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

—On account of the vacancy in the pastorate of the Church of England no services are being held in St. George's Church, Hastings. Mr. Forrester who has been in charge of this parish during the past four months has been relieved of these duties by the Bishop.

—A very pleasant event took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thomas, Asphodel, on Wednesday, Dec. 7th, it being the occasion of the marriage of their daughter, Lee, to Mr. Charles D. Viehahn, of Aitkin, Minn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. W. Pickford, Norwood, rector of Christ Church. The bride was ably assisted by Miss Roxie Raye, of Norwood, while the groom was supported by Mr. W. Puntney, of Aitkin, Minn.

SOURCE OF SUPPLY POISONED.

An Alarming Condition Present in many places in Canada. How best to correct it

Many people all over the Dominion are being poisoned slowly but surely, and that by their own carelessness.

The food may be pure but digestion is not complete and all that is not digested rots and ferments, giving off the most violent poisons. What was intended to sustain life really turns into that which destroys life.

The temperature of the body is a little over 98 degrees. Every particle of undigested food lies in the Stomach and Bowels, subject to this temperature, which is as high as in the sun on a hot summer day. It is not necessary to explain how quickly such heat will decompose dead matter, either animal or vegetable.

The stomach and Bowels must be set right—Anti-Pill will do it. Dr. Leonhardt made his Anti-Pill specifically to correct these conditions, it has never failed when given a fair chance.

GAME BIRD COOKERY.

Roast Duck With Trimmings—Prairie Chicken—Delicious Salmi.

When about to roast a duck, see to the fire first. A hot oven is the first essential. The old axiom, "Dress your duck and allow a slow cook to walk through a hot kitchen with it," gives the idea it is intended to do—that a duck well done is a duck spoiled. If the oven is very hot, twenty-five minutes will roast the duck an even brown; but, if your palate dictates, another ten minutes' roasting will do no harm.

The duck requires no dressing. A slice of lemon and a spray of parsley may be put into the body before it is placed in the oven. Some cooks rub the duck inside and out with a clove of cut garlic. Others place a spoonful of uncooked cranberries in the body of the bird. The berries will burst and give a delicious flavor to the meat. Dust the duck with a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of pepper, before placing it in the oven. Baste twice with a little stock or butter and hot water while it is cooking. With a canvasback serve a celery salad or celery mixed with sliced oranges and dressed with a French dressing.

Prairie chickens make good eating. If young and tender, roast them like ducks, but if old braise them. Pluck and draw and lard with thin strips of fat bacon. Brown them nicely in a pan and dredge with two tablespoonfuls of flour. Add to every three birds a pint of hot water, a small onion, chopped fine; a carrot, cut small; two outer stalks of celery, a teaspoonful of salt and a small bit of red pepper pod. Cover closely and let simmer one hour and a half to two hours. Remove the birds on to a hot dish, strain the gravy, add six pitted olives, give one boil and serve. Pass a tart jelly and hominy or rice croquettes with the birds.

For salmi of game use the breast and other nice pieces of roasted birds, cut in neat slices. Place the bones and other trimmings in a saucepan with sufficient water to cover. To a pint of water add half a clove of garlic, half a bay leaf, a spray of parsley, a teaspoonful of celery salt and a dash of cayenne. Let simmer half an hour, strain, add a few mushrooms or a chopped olive and a tablespoonful of butter rubbed with a tablespoonful of flour. When hot lay in the pieces of game and as soon as the sauce comes to a boil serve at once.—Boston Cooking School Magazine.

Soft Wood Floors.

Soft wood floors are now stained a rich dark blue, green or brown as a background for rugs, especially where there are very few rugs, as the attention will be distracted from the scarcity of rugs. Besides, the warmth of color tone helps to furnish wonderfully.

Are you always careful how the weight of your clothing is distributed? Have as much of it as possible suspended from the shoulders. Much energy needed for other purposes is expended in carrying about heavy clothes.

GENERAL TAX FOR PAVEMENTS

Ald. Adams Introduces Important Matter in Council.

ABLY PRESENTED ARGUMENT

Claims That There Would be No Necessity for Compensation—Contracts That Have Been Executed and Debentures Issued.

A question which will undoubtedly have great prominence in the municipal campaign just approaching, was that introduced by Ald. Adams at the last meeting of the Council. It was embodied in a by-law which, if passed, will give property owners of town an opportunity of saying whether they wish a change made in the method of paying for granolithic walks from frontage, as at present, to general tax. Ald. Adams spoke at some length in explanation of the by-law, and his arguments will be perused with considerable interest. He pointed out that there was great expense, such as advertising, Court of Revision, issuing of debentures, and other items in connection with the present system. The reason the Council had adopted the latter, was that the Statute did not provide any other method of constructing them, than by petition from ratepayers interested, and an issue of debentures to meet the cost, the ratepayers being responsible for 60 per cent. The frontage tax system, Ald. Adams considered, is very cumbersome, from the inception of the work to its completion, and added very materially to the work of the town officials.

EQUITABLE BASIS.

The object was to arrive, if possible, at some fair and equitable basis, on which the change could be made with regard to walks in future to be build by general tax. There would be no need for compensation to those now paying frontage tax. Taking the figures as submitted by the Treasurer up to the end of 1903, and comparing it with the cost of work now, the only man who might claim an injustice would be the one who had made five payments. The first year that the works were built the cost per contract price was 15 7-8 cents a square foot. One-quarter of these walks have been paid for, leaving some 11 7-8 cents per square foot still to pay. Ald. Adams contends that these ratepayers would, in the next 15 years, have to pay more than they would have to pay under general tax, provided the price of walks can be kept down to the figure at which they were built this year, 10 cents per square foot. Ald. Best states that, from his experience in the construction of walks by day labor, and on account of the low price of cement and other material, the walks next year should hardly cost more than eight cents a square foot.

DEBENTURES ISSUED.

The total amount of debentures issued, up to the 31st of December, 1903, was $58,685.09. Of that amount $32,183.87 is provided for by frontage tax, and $26,501.22 by general tax. If all this were changed, and a general system adopted, the additional rate to be levied would be 4-10 of a mill.

The great difficulty in connection with the general system would be that sidewalks to be built would have to be voted on by the people, unless a special act could be secured giving Council power to issue debentures to pay for them. At the present time the people who want pavements petition for them, but the law provides that it is not necessary to submit the question to the ratepayers, the petition giving sufficient authority to issue debentures. At present the town pays 40 per cent. and the property owners 60 per cent., and what was necessary was the authority to issue the debentures for the improvements without having the whole town to vote on the money by-law. Ald. Adams holds that such a system would be simpler and cheaper, but the thing is to get such a measure through the Legislature. He suggests that application be made to grant the Council authority, by a 2-3 or 3-4 vote to issue debentures up to a certain limit for pavements, —say $15,000 or $20,000—until the walks are laid throughout the whole of the town.

CONTRACTS EXECUTED.

The ratepayers will find much to interest them in the following list of contracts on pavements, which have been completed up to this year, the contract number, the contractor's name, the style of finish, the contractor's price and the assessment price being given respectively.

1. Dolan & Sheehy, granolithic .1898 (assessment price.)
2. R. Sheehy, granolithic, 15 7-8—.19848.

PRESENTED NEW PULPIT

The Special Gift of Fair Family to St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook.

A very handsome new pulpit has been placed in St. Thomas' church, Millbrook, as a memorial to the late Mrs. William Fair, mother of Mr. Robert Fair. It is the special gift of the family, and was dedicated last Sunday by the Venerable Archdeacon Allen, who was the first to preach from it. He referred in appropriate terms to the favor which had been done St. Thomas' church, and to the very graceful act on the part of those who held in loving memory one who recently departed. The new pulpit is of polished oak, with solid brass book rest and stair rail. Last Sunday the anniversary of St. Thomas' church was also celebrated.

STREET CAR MISHAPS

A Citizen Offers Some Timely Suggestions on How to Avoid Them.

A citizen called at the Review office to-day to state that two things alone prevent a recurrence of street car accidents. One was the ringing of the bell on approaching street crossings, and the other was starting from the near side instead of the off side of a crossing.

The citizen further stated that he had been a witness of many narrow escapes, due wholly to the criminal neglect of the motormen in failing to ring their gongs. He said that some day, judging from what he had seen, an irate driver having an unusually narrow escape would get out, and, if possible, administer the necessary punishment to the motorman. In Toronto cars start from the end of a block, not from the beginning of the next. He added:—"Surely anyone can see that a car getting under way is less dangerous at a crossing than one decreasing its speed.

PLEASING PROGRAMME

Miss Deannard's Excellent Paper on Goldsmith at T. A. S.

The Ladies' Literary Association of St. Peters' T.A.S. held their usual meeting last evening, when an excellent and highly instructive paper on "Goldsmith" was read by Miss Deannard.

Miss Deannard dealt with her subject in a very able manner, showing that she not only possessed a thorough knowledge of the matter, but that she also possessed in no small measure, the faculty of imparting her information in a most pleasing and effective style. The writer entered into a detailed account of the life of Goldsmith, from his early youth, and outlined his varied career so as to form a most interesting biographical sketch of the author. She also gave a very minute criticism of his work, making special mention of the "Vicar of Wakefield," "The Traveller," and outlined these in a very interesting manner. The essay was an exceedingly careful and comprehensive portrayal of the life, characteristics and productions of one of the most peculiar men found among literary characters. The paper, also, was read in an excellent manner, and was in every respect deserving of the highest appreciation of those present.

The following programme added to the entertainment of the evening:—

Instrumental Duet—Misses Hurley and Overend.
Recitation—Miss Alma Levasseur.
Song—Master James O'Brien.
Piano Solo—Miss Alma Levasseur.

The Association will resume its work early in the New Year. The next literary meeting will be held Friday, January 13th, when an essay on "Julius Caesar" will be read by Miss Coleman.

SUDDEN DEATH OF AARON COX

Well Known Citizen Expired in Mr. Roy's Studio.

HEART FAILURE WAS CAUSE

Sketch of His Business Career—Deceased was Brother of Senator Geo. A. Cox—Leaves Wife and Large Family—A Sad Scene in the Home.

The community was deeply shocked this morning by the very sudden death of Mr. Aaron Cox, brother of Senator George A. Cox, who while in Mr. R. M. Roy's photo studio, succumbed to an attack of the heart.

He and Mrs. Cox and his daughter, were arranging to have some work done at the studio. They were with him at the time, and had only been there about half an hour when Mr. Cox complained of a pain in his chest. Mr. Roy gave him a chair, and upon sitting down he sank very gradually, and in about two minutes death occurred. Dr. Carmichael, Dr. McClelland and Dr. Bradd were speedily summoned, but medical assistance was of no avail.

Thus passed away one of Peterborough's well known business men, who for many years has been a resident of the town. The late Aaron Cox was born in Colborne on May 1st, 1843, and came to Peterborough in 1859. The late Mr. Cox was twice married. There are eight sons and four daughters, Messrs. George, of Rochester, Edward H. of town; Mrs. P. H. Pearne, of town; Misses Margaret, Lillian and Emma; Messrs. Frank, of Cleveland, Alfred of Toronto, and Gordon, William, Ross and Harold at home.

For quite a number of years Mr. Cox was inspector of the Canada Loan and Savings Company. About five years ago he became district manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company. Yesterday he attended a meeting of directors of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, and he was also a director of the Toronto Loan and Savings Company and of the Peterborough Lock Company.

Although he has not been in the best of health recently, he appeared brighter than usual during the past few days, and Mr. Roy, who was with him in the studio this morning, remarked that he never saw him in better health. Hon. Senator Cox is the only surviving brother.

The funeral will take place Monday afternoon from the family residence, Scott street, to Little Lake cemetery, at three o'clock.

DR. CLUXTON DEAD

Was for Many Years Resident Here—Brother of Late William Cluxton.

Mr. Wm. H. Cluxton and Mr. Harold Cluxton have received word of the death of their uncle, Dr. Fred Cluxton, of Bradford, Pa., brother of the late William Cluxton. Friends here will receive this news with regret. Dr. Cluxton was for many years a resident of Peterborough, having received his early education here. About fifteen years ago he went to the United States and for some years has been living in Bradford. He had never forgotten his old town and though his visits hither were not frequent, he always manifested great interest in its progress.

The particulars of Dr. Cluxton's death have not yet been received, but it is gathered from the message that he expired very suddenly.

Mr. Wm. H. Cluxton, of town, has gone to Bradford to attend the obsequies.

THE LATE MISS McCARTHY.

Many friends in this community learned with deep regret of the death of Miss B. E. McCarthy, daughter of the late Jas. McCarthy, of Norwood, which occurred at Chicago, Ill., on Tuesday, 6th inst., after a very brief illness. She was taken ill on Dec. 1st, and on the 6th succumbed to a severe attack of pneumonia.

The remains were brought to Norwood for interment, and were conveyed to St. Paul's church, where requiem mass was conducted by the Rev. Father Conway.

The late Miss McCarthy was a sister of Sister Mary Teresa of St. Joseph's Convent, Toronto; Rev. Joseph McCarthy, S. J., Loyola College, Montreal; Rev. James A. McCarthy, S.J., St. Louis University, St. Louis; Chas. E. McCarthy, Norwood; John F. McCarthy, Peterborough; Mrs. Mary Murray and Lizzie McCarthy, Chicago, Ill.

The bearers were Messrs. D. J. McCarthy, Kingston; D. O'Shea, Peterborough; W. J. Webster, W. Foster, Keenan and Fred Lamey.

DEATH OF ALICE HASTIE.

The death occurred last night of Miss Alice Hastie, an inmate of the Barnardo Home. The deceased was seventeen years of age. Her death was due to consumption from which disease she had been suffering for some time. The funeral took place this afternoon from the Barnardo Home to Little Lake Cemetery.

NEW RINK OPENED

Big Crowd Present Last Evening—Band Was in Attendance.

The Street Railway Company opened their big open air skating rink last evening. There was an immense crowd present, and even with the special car service, the Company had trouble in handling it. Every car that went down, even as late as nine o'clock, was crowded.

The scene at the rink was most beautiful. From a pole in the centre, strings of incandescent lamps, encased in Chinese lanterns, radiated to the sides. A detachment of the 57th band discoursed sweet music. The dimensions of the dressing rooms were inadequate to accommodate the crowd, and many had to put their skates on outside. The ice was not in very good shape last night, but the Company promise good ice for next week.

Big Market and Big Prices — Poultry Somewhat Costly.

There was a very large market this morning, both buyers and sellers being out in force. The prices were high, but the buying was very brisk. There was an abundance of meat and poultry, although turkeys were scarce. The latter sold very high, chickens brought from 60c to 90c, ducks 70c to $1.00, geese from 60c to $1.60, turkeys from $1.10 to $2.25. Beef was sold at 5 and 6 cents and pork at 7 and 8 cents. CHURCH BURNED TO THE GROUND

St. Michael's Edifice in Belleville Destroyed This Morning.

LOSS WILL BE FULLY $80,000

Serious Blow to the Roman Catholic Population of Belleville—Only $30,000 Insurance—Beautiful Altar and Priceless Interior Decorations.

Special to the Review.

Belleville, Dec. 17.—St. Michael's church, the only Roman Catholic Church in this city, was destroyed by fire early this morning. How the blaze originated is not known, but it is supposed to have caught in the basement.

The building which was of stone was undoubtedly the best in this city and the altar was one of the finest in Ontario.

The church was built about 16 years ago and some of the interior decorations were almost priceless.

The total loss will be in the neighborhood of $80,000. There was an insurance of $30,000 on the building.

The Turnbull Co's 8 to 9 o'clock hour sales Wednesday, Tuesday and Friday evenings of next week, should be an assistance to Xmas purchasing.

TRENT VALLEY HOCKEY LEAGUE

The Annual Meeting Was Most Enthusiastic One.

CAPABLE OFFICERS ELECTED

Maurice Walsh, of Bobcaygeon, is President—Mr. Clarry Re-elected Secretary—Sub-Committee to Aid Executive—Oyster Supper Enjoyed.

The sixth annual meeting of the Trent Valley League was held last night in the Oriental parlors. It was in every respect both harmonious and enthusiastic. Everyone seemed to feel that the league had been a success and would continue to be so in the future.

Considerable business was done, several important amendments being added to the constitution of the league. Another feature of the meeting was the decision to form a sub-committee to aid the Executive in carrying on League affairs.

When Mr. Wm. Crowley, president of the League, called the meeting to order, eleven teams were represented. The teams and delegates were, Fenelon Falls, W. T. Junkin; Bobcaygeon, W. McIntyre, M. Walsh; Peterborough T.A.S., M. J. Hickey, A. Doris; Peterborough, H. Morgan, W. Fitzpatrick; Keene, T. J. Wallace, Dr. V. S. McWilliams; Port Hope, S. Lockington; Brighton, T. W. Byam; Cobourg, C. Dennis; Campbellford; H. A. Slee, W. Tate; Picton; F. Boulter, W. Yerkes; Belleville, M. J. Hutchinson, by proxy.

President Crowley said that he was not a John Ross Robertson, in so much as he had not a lengthy speech to make. He hoped that the success of the League would continue.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary E. S. Clarry, and a motion that they be adopted moved by Mr. Junkin and seconded by Mr. Walsh, was unanimously carried.

The Secretary-treasurer then read his reports for the season, which indicated the success and prosperity of the T.V.L. under his most capable management. The reports were as follows—

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Gentlemen,—In presenting my sixth annual report as Secretary-Treasurer of the Trent Valley League, it affords me much pleasure in stating at the outset that last season was the most successful in the history of the league. The number of clubs in the league was a great deal larger than during any previous season, the quality of hockey was, if anything, superior, whilst the interest was much greater.

For the second time, the T.A.S. team of Peterborough, carried off the A. H. Stratton trophy and the championship of the league. They defeated the Napanee team in the finals in a sudden death game, but the Napanee aggregation put up a plucky game throughout.

Only one club had to be disciplined throughout the season, the offending club being Brighton, who were found guilty of playing one, Moffat, of Cobourg, under an assumed name. Speaking generally, however, the rules of amateurism were pretty well observed and the various clubs had a successful season.

It is now six years since the league was first formed and since that time it has grown to be an important factor in developing hockey throughout the eastern portion of the Province. It has grown to greater proportions than the promoters of the league ever hoped for, until today it comprises eighteen clubs, and extends from Fenelon Falls to Deseronto. With the increased membership came increased responsibilities.

The Trent Valley League has outgrown its present crude constitution and it will be absolutely necessary that a revised constitution to meet the present requirements be adopted before starting out on the season's work of 1904-05.

There are several amendments to the constitution which should be made, the first of which I shall mention, being in regard to the membership fee of each club. At the present time this is only one dollar, a disgracefully low figure. With a membership of eighteen in the league, it practically means that the amount of of the revenue, of which we are absolutely certain, with which to run the league for a season is only eighteen dollars. However, there has in the past few years been an occasional tie match which has netted the league something, it being the rule of the league that all tie matches are under the league's management. In addition to this there should be some provision made whereby the league will come in for a percentage of the final games. An arrangement similar to this is in existence in the management of the O.H.A.

There should also be published by the league a constitution, and a copy of the constitution should be in the possession of every club in the league. Another matter that might be considered is the appointment of a sub-committee to deal with matters of perhaps not sufficient importance as to necessitate calling the entire executive together.

During my connection as secretary of the league for some years, it has been my pleasure to meet with many of the clubs throughout the district, observe the class of hockey they play, and the conditions under which the teams are maintained. A club that is deserving of the good opinions of the hockey loving public throughout the Trent Valley district is Keene. They have been in the Trent Valley League from the start, and while it has not been their good fortune to carry off a championship it has always been a matter for admiration the clean hockey they put up, and the determined fights they always waged.

A village the size of Keene that can maintain such a team as it has in the past, is deserving of the good praise of the officers and others connected with the league.

I am sorry to notice the withdrawal of the Norwood club from membership in the Trent Valley League. Norwood was one of the first to enter the league and has always occupied a prominent position in the schedule, having carried off the championship of the league one season. It is pleasing to note, however, the reappearance of Fenelon Falls to the membership, after having spent one year in seclusion.

Altogether the prospects of the league were never brighter, and we would welcome the addition to our membership of a team from Port Hope, one of the best hockey towns in Canada.

I have the honor to remain,
Yours faithfully,
E. S. CLARRY,
Secretary-Treasurer.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

The Treasurer's report showed receipts of $147.02, and an expenditure of $126.75, leaving a balance on hand of $20.27.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At the conclusion of his report Mr. Clarry announced his intention of retiring from the position of secretary-treasurer.

The election of officers was then proceeded with. Mr. Crowley having withdrawn from the presidency, Mr. Clarry thought that the League ought to show its appreciation of his services and moved that Mr. Crowley be made Hon. President of the league. This motion seconded by Mr. McWilliams was unanimously carried and Mr. Crowley was declared elected. Mr. Maurice Walsh, of Bobcaygeon, who for the past year has been vice-president of the T.V.L. was elected president by acclamation.

For the office of first vice-president there were two candidates, Mr. T. J. Wallace, of Keene, nominated by Mr. McWilliams and Mr. F. Boulter, of Picton, nominated by Mr. Morgan. The latter was elected by 13 votes to 4.

Three candidates were in the field for the office of second vice-president, Mr. Fred Woods, of Campbellford, Mr. F S Curtis, Port Hope, Dr. McWilliams, Keene. The latter received the majority of votes.

Mr. E. S. Clarry, having tendered his resignation from the position of secretary-treasurer, it looked as if another would have to be elected. However the meeting refused to accept the resignation. It was the opinion of all that Mr. Clarry was the right man in the right place and that the league could not very well do without him. Delegates from nearly all the teams represented expressed their appreciation of his services and urged him to reconsider his decision. Finally Mr. Clarry withdrew his resignation and was unanimously elected.

The election of executive members was next held. Five were nominated Messrs. A. Doris, Peterborough, T.A.S.; Clarke Dennis, Cobourg; Fred Woods, Campbellford; F. S. Curtis, Port Hope; and T. Lockwood, Brighton. The first four were elected.

The officers and executive of the League for the coming year will therefore be as follows:—

Hon.-President — Wm. Crowley, Peterborough.
President—M. Walsh, Bobcaygeon.
1st vice—F. E. Boulter, Picton.
2nd vice—V. S. McWilliams, Keene.
Sec. Treas.—F. S. Clarry, Peterborough.
Executive—A. Doris, Peterborough T.A.S.; Fred Woods, Campbellford; F. S. Curtis, Port Hope; C. Dennis, Cobourg.

A motion moved by Mr. Junkin to the effect that if any executive member ceases to be identified with any league team, he also ceases to be an executive member and the remainder of the executive shall have power to appoint his successor, was carried.

After considerable discussion it was moved by Mr. Junkin and seconded by Mr. McWilliams that a sub-committee be formed consisting of the president, secretary and a disinterested member to be appointed by them to carry on the minor affairs of the League.

This was carried.

It was unanimously decided that Mr. Clarry should be granted an honorarium of $50.

ANNUAL FEES.

The question of annual fees caused much discussion. All agreed that the present fee was too low, but what amount should be demanded was not decided without much argument. Finally it was moved by Mr. Lockington, seconded by Mr. McWilliams that the entrance fee be $3 and the annual fee $3. This motion was carried.

The question of defaulting teams was thoroughly threshed out and a motion moved by Mr. Lockington and seconded by Mr. Byam to the effect that visiting teams shall receive from home teams 3 cents mileage for 10 men and that defaulting clubs shall be suspended, was unanimously carried.

ENJOYED THE OYSTERS

This concluded the business part of the meeting and the delegates adjourned to McCallum's restaurant where an oyster supper had been provided by Mr. A. H. Stratton, a former hon.-president of the league. The supper was prepared in Host McCallum's excellent style and was greatly enjoyed. At its conclusion a short toast list was run off and the time spent in social intercourse.

SATURDAY, DEC. 17, 1904.

WOMAN IN JAIL AT LONDON.

Arrested On Initiative of Two Montreal Judgment Creditors.

London, Dec. 17.—Mrs. Helen J. Boelle was arrested yesterday afternoon and is now in jail. Thursday Justice MacMahon of Toronto, issued an order of arrest, which was served yesterday, by Sheriff Cameron. The arrest is made in the initiative of Dow & Gibson of Montreal, judgment creditors in the sum of $1,810. It is charged that she collected $3,000 insurance on the life of her husband and transferred it to her brother in Pontiac, Mich. She is now negotiating with her brother regarding her debt to the Montreal men.

Steel Rail Pool.

London, Dec. 17.—The Chronicle asserts that the fate of the international steel rail pool hangs on the report of J. Farrell, who has been in Europe for some weeks investigation and is now returning to America. "It is possible," said the mamamamma is possible," said The Chronicle, "that American hostility may wreck the scheme. Practically all the leading British firms have joined the combination, but the keystone of the whole edifice is the United States Steel Corporation, without whose support it must fall to pieces. If America joins, their preserve will probably be Mexico and South America."

Take No Risk With a Cold.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS MAY PROVE FATAL. THERE IS CURE FOR YOU IN

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AN TURPENTINE.

If you could depend on a cold passing off of its own accord it would be all very well to let it run its course. The risk is too great.

Consumption and pneumonia always have their beginnings in a cold.

If you take prompt means of curing every cold you will never be a victim of these or other fatal lung troubles.

Did you ever wait to think of it that way?

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is best known on account of its extraordinary control over croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma and severe chest colds.

As a means of overcoming ordinary coughs and colds throat irritation and the many diseases of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs it has made an enviable reputation for reliability.

Pleasant to take, thorough and far-reaching in action, and certain in its beneficial results, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine should have a place in every house as a safeguard against consumption and other fatal lung diseases.

Mrs. J. Provost, Renfrew, Ont., states:—"My fourteen-year-old boy had a very severe cold in the chest last winter, and I really thought he was going to die. He coughed nearly al the time and sometimes would spit up blood. We had about given up all hope of his recovery, when I heard of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Afte using one bottle there was a great change in his condition, and I can positively say that he was completely cured by two bottles, and he has not been troubled since. I never saw medicine take such quick effect and can sincerely recommend it."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

BULLET HITS STOESSEL

But Wound of Port Arthur's Commander Is Not Serious.

This Is the Second Time He Has Been the Billet of Enemy's Missiles, the First Being in November, When He Was Struck in the Head By a Splinter From a Shell—Russians and Japs Surprised.

London, Dec. 17.—Gen. Stoessel, the Russian military commander at Port Arthur, according to a despatch from Che Foo to The Daily Telegraph, has again been wounded, this time by a rifle bullet. The correspondent adds that the wound is not serious. Early in November General Stoessel was wounded in the head by a splinter from a shell while he was personally directing the repulse of a Japanese attack.

Both Sides Surprised.

Russian Headquarters, Mukden, Dec. 17.—There was considerable desultory firing on both sides yesterday. The Japanese made an advance, but it proved to be only a demonstration.

Night sorties continue. A curious melee resulted Thursday night from a simultaneous advance of both Russians and Japanese. Two columns of Japanese taking advantage of the darkness advanced on Russian positions, and at the same time a Russian column set out for the village of Nanganza.

The Japanese re-entered the village, where they were greeted with a tremendous explosion, which killed many of them. In the meantime the two Japanese columns operating in the direction of the Russians heard the explosion and thought they had been outflanked whereupon they retired. The Japanese and Russians met as each side was returning.

Both were utterly surprised, a hand to hand scuffle in the darkness ensued, but as it was impossible to distinguish friend from foe, probably little damage was done on either side. The Russian loss was only one.

On the night of Dec 14 fourteen Russian scouts penetrated to the village of Fanshen, where they destroyed a Japanese signal tower and carried off an old bell, which had been used by the Japanese to signal the approach of the Russian troops.

Escape From Port Arthur.

Che Foo, Dec. 17.—Seven Russians in civilian garb, but a military training, obvious in their bearing, arrived yesterday in an open sailboat carrying despatches. They were unwilling to talk and went immediately to the Russian consulate. A high wind enabled them to make a quick passage from Port Arthur.

Caldo Released.

St. Petersburg, Dec 17.—Captain Caldo, who was detached from Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron to appear as a witness before the North Sea Commission and who was arrested Dec. 9, for criticizing the Admiralty and Grand Duke Alexis, the High Admiral, has been released by order of Grand Duke Alexis, who considered that his punishment for infraction of the regulations sufficient. It was rumored last night that he had declined to appear before the International Commission unless the first charge is officially vindicated, taking the ground that his credibility as a witness has been impaired by his arrest. Captain Caldo received a great ovation on arriving at his residence after his release.

A DEBATE PROHIBITED.

Council of St. Petersburg Denounce Minister of Interior Mirsky.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 17.—An adjourned meeting of the St. Petersburg city council assembled last night for the purpose of discussing the advisability of endorsing the demand of the Moscow municipality for constitutional reforms. The president of the council announced that, owing to unforeseen circumstances, which he could not disclose, the debate could not proceed. The announcement then resulted in a noisy scene. Many councillors angrily protested and quitted the chamber and later held a private meeting, where Minister of Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky was denounced for prohibiting debate.

Finns Protest.

Helsingfors, Finland, Dec. 17.—A petition signed by a majority of the members of the Finnish Diet has been presented to the President of the Diet, protesting against numerous edicts and measures, such as the introduction of the Russian language in Government offices, the dismissal of Finnish functionaries, the new conscription law, etc., which have been enforced contrary to law and without the co-operation of the Diet, and which have created a condition of affairs resembling a state of siege, and urging that the Diet should, at the soonest possible day, bring forward measures for the re-establishment of legal administration and the restoration of legal order.

Lawyers Demand Reforms.

Kostroma, Russia, Dec. 17.—The lawyers of this city have sent an address to the Minister of Justice in support of the Bar Association's demands for a reform of the laws.

Encouraged the Rioters.

Gomel, Russia, Dec. 17.—At the trial of the anti-Jewish rioters Thursday witnesses gave testimony to the effect that the inactivity of the troops and police encouraged the rioters to proceed with the destruction of property of Jews.

Japan Reduces Budget.

Tokio, Dec. 17.—The budget committee of the House of Representatives completed its labors yesterday, and the measure will finally be submitted to the House to-day. The war budget has not been changed, but the ordinary budget estimates are reduced $7,000,000.

YOU CAN'T FIND ONE DYSPEPTIC

Who Has Used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—No Case of Stomach Trouble Too Far Gone for Them to Cure.

"Yes, Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured my Dyspepsia. I was a sufferer for seven years. I could not sit without suffering intense agony. I doctored some, but to no avail and I was given up to die. Five boxes of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured me completely. Now I am well and strong."

This story of a terrible disease easily and completely cured, is told by Mrs. John F. Sellars, of Western Bay, Nfld. It teaches several lessons, the most important of which are that no case of Dyspepsia is too far gone to be beyond the reach of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and that if Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure the most extreme cases of Dyspepsia, they will easily dispose of your indigestion.

The fact remains that you can't find a Dyspeptic who has used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, but you can find thousands of healthy, happy people in Canada who were once Dyspeptics, but who have used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

GLADSTONE AND CHAMBERLAIN.

Draws a Picture of Famine Prices Through Preference.

London, Dec. 17.—(C.A.P.)—Right Hon. Herbert Gladstone (chief Liberal whip), speaking at Birkenhead, said if Mr. Chamberlain's idea of a preference were carried out "we should see access to our markets curtailed and if anything happened to the corn crop of Canada, Australia or India, we would not get the corn we wanted and prices would reach famine rates. If a policy of preference expanded trade with the colonies and that of foreign areas shrank we should be depending on limited and fluctuating markets. If the preference did not expand our colonial markets, Mr. Chamberlain's scheme would fall to the ground like a burst balloon."

Call a Conference.

London, Dec. 17.—(C.A.P.)—Commenting on Mr. Chamberlain's speech, The Times says no one taking the trouble to study with any real impartiality the subject of colonial opinion can remain in doubt that what an overwhelming majority of our colonial fellow subjects desire is a more direct and closer political union and not content with desiring, they have already done so. The Opposition, however, ignores the existing preference and declarations of colonial statesmen like Sir Wilfrid Laurier. There remains only one way out of the impasse—to summon a conference as the Prime Minister proposed, in which the colonies will be allowed to speak for themselves.

DO NOT WALK ON THIN ICE

If You Have Catarrh You are in Danger—It Breeds Dyspepsia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Aside from the extreme offensive and odious nature of the disease, catarrh is also very dangerous if left to run its course unchecked. The constant droppings into the throat, which are mostly swallowed during sleep, cause poisonous disorders of the throat, stomach and lungs, which rapidly develop into dyspepsia, laryngitis, bronchitis and consumption. When these diseases become established, especially the latter, the result is too well known to need pointing out.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a certain and absolute cure for catarrh in all forms and all stages. Catarrhal conditions are always of the same nature, whether they exist in the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder, and these tablets act on all alike. They cleanse, renovate and purify the entire system of all catarrhal poisons and by thus going to the very root of the disease, effect thorough and permanent cure. This is the only way to treat catarrh, as local applications, such as sprays, ointments, inhalations, etc., afford only temporary relief, and the malady takes hold again with increased vigor.

An Indianapolis physician says "I prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets on all occasions because I find they are most thorough and effective in their work. I have tried a great many prescriptions, my own and others, during 30 years of practice, but have never found anything quite so satisfactory in all respects as these tablets. I have known the most stubborn and virulent cases of catarrh to yield time after time to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and I do not hesitate to prescribe and recommend them."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle. It will pay you to give them a trial and get away from the suffering, humiliation and danger caused by catarrh.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

But the third day after her return to Suffold something happened which filled her heart half with dismay, half with joy. George, as usual, had gone down to his office soon after breakfast, and about two o'clock a special messenger brought up a letter from him to Laura, which was as follows:

"My Dear Laura.—You will remember Sir Ralph Woodland, whom we met at Danvers Park. Well, I have had him at the office this morning about the purchase of the Harewood estate, which is four miles from Suffold. Young Harewood came into the property only three years ago, but he has been making ducks and drakes of his fortune ever since. Finally, he has got quite fast, and wants to sell Harewood, which ought to bring a good figure. There's a fine old hall, and it's a splendid game country, and in the old man's time was well kept up. However, Sir Ralph Woodland is after it, and I must try to make a bargain with him. And as we met him at Lady Danvers, and he was very civil, I thought I could do no less than ask him to dinner to-day. So, dear, will you order a good dinner at seven o'clock? Don't mind a little extra expense; and I think it would be as well to consult Anna Lindsay, as she is a good hand at entrees; and get a waiter. There's a good fellow at The George. At all events get some one, as I don't think your waiting-maid is quite up to her business.

"And I remain, dear Laura,

"Yours affectionately,

"GEORGE GIFFORD."

"P. S.—Sir Ralph promised to be at Red House seven sharp. I will be home in time to put out the wine.

"G."

CHAPTER XX.

As Laura read this letter the most varying emotions passed through her heart, and she trembled with excitement. But she had no time to waste. She hurried to Anna Lindsay's room, who was dressing for her afternoon's walk, and rapped at the door.

"Come in," called Anna; and Laura entered, carrying George's letter in her hand.

"Miss Lindsay, I've had a note from George," she began, "and he has asked a gentleman that we met at Danvers Park to dinner to-day, and he says he thinks I had better consult you about the dinner."

"Oh, indeed!" said Anna Lindsay, who was tying her bonnet-strings, and she turned round and looked at the agitated face of her cousin's wife.

"He wants everything to be very nice," went on Laura, nervously; "but perhaps you had better read his letter," and she put George's letter into her hand.

Miss Lindsay read it, and an undoubted feeling of triumph swelled in her heart.

"Sir Ralph Woodland," she said. "Is he a baronet? Naturally George wants everything to be very nice. Well, we must do our best—but perhaps you would prefer me not to interfere."

"Nay, I have come to ask your advice," replied Laura, with rather a forced smile.

It must be admitted that Anna Lindsay was a good housekeeper, and no doubt a better and more experienced one than Laura. In a few minutes she had dictated an excellent dinner, and the cook was sent for. Then Laura went out to buy flowers and fruit, while Anna proceeded to order the substantial part of the entertainment. They were both anxious that everything should go off well, and Anna was so proud that George should have thought of her on an especial occasion.

"He threw me over," she reflected, "but he's had to come back to me. I thought the dinner yesterday would disgust him; but young madam, I suppose, is above housekeeping after she has been at Danvers Park."

But even she was forced to admit that Laura decorated the table and rooms with very good taste. And all the time Laura felt in a state of suppressed excitement that it was very difficult to hide. Her hands were trembling, and her cheeks were flushed, but when George came in he never noticed this, but hurried to the cellar to bring out some of his best wine.

By the time, however, Sir Ralph arrived at Red House all the family were ready to receive him. Laura, looking very handsome in her moss-green velvet, held out a trembling hand in greeting as the waiter from The George threw open the drawing-room door and announced Sir Ralph Woodland.

"Are you not surprised to see me?" he asked, gravely.

"No," answered Laura, with downcast eyes and fluttering breast; "Mr. Gifford told me he expected you."

"It was very good of Mr. Gifford to ask me to dine with him," said Sir Ralph, turning to his host; and George, of course, expressed the pleasure it gave him to receive Sir Ralph, and then introduced him to his father and Miss Lindsay.

The dinner went off very well, and the guest did his best to make himself agreeable to every one at the table. He talked to old Mr. Gifford, and even to Anna Lindsay, and he said only a few words in private to Laura during the whole evening. She was showing him some valuable old engravings, and as she turned one over he said in a low tone:

"Will you be angry if I become your neighbor?"

She made no reply to his question. George came up, and the conversation once more became general. They began talking of Harewood, and George rather enlarged on the picturesque beauty of the place.

"I will go over it to-morrow," said Sir Ralph, "if it is convenient to you, Mr. Gifford. And perhaps the ladies will go too," he added, looking smilingly first at Laura and then at Anna Lindsay; "it will be a little excursion."

Laura smiled also, but shook her head.

"We should only be in the way," she said.

"Not in the least, I assure you," replied Sir Ralph. "I think Mr. Gifford and I have nearly settled the business part of the arrangement, and I only want to see about some repairs that may be necessary. Do come, Mrs. Gifford."

"Yes, Laura, you had better go, and Anna too," said George, pleasantly.

"It would be very nice," said Anna Lindsay, who liked the idea of being seen in the company of Sir Ralph Woodland.

"Let us settle it then, if Mrs. Gifford will give her consent," answered Sir Ralph, looking at Laura.

"Well, if you all wish it," smiled Laura.

"It's not a long drive, and I'll get a carriage," said George; "and you had better go with us also, Sir Ralph."

"I shall be very pleased to do so, Mr. Gifford. What time will suit you and Mrs. Gifford best?"

They finally settled that Sir Ralph was to come to Red House for lunch at half-past one o'clock, and that the carriage was to be ordered for half-past two; George promising to return from his office in time.

Shortly after this was arranged Sir Ralph Woodland went away, and George and Anna Lindsay spoke warmly in his praise after he had gone.

"He's a nice-looking, gentlemanly man," said Anna.

"He's a nice fellow, and doesn't put on any side like some of these young swells do," quoth George.

But Laura said nothing. She turned away her head. She began rearranging the flowers in a vase, and Anna Lindsay wondered at her silence.

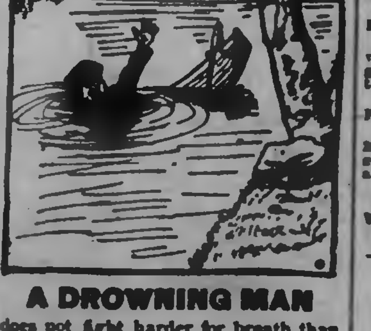
"Did you see much of him at Danvers Park?" she asked, addressing George.

"A good deal, and he was very civil all the time," answered George. "He doesn't seem much of a lady's man; but I suppose his day will come, like it does to the most of us," he added, with a laugh; and still Anna noticed that Laura did not speak.

"Perhaps he is thinking of buying Harewood to bring his bride there," she said.

"Oh, no. More as a kind of shooting lodge, I think," replied George. "He has a fine place of his own in Yorkshire, but he's a great sportsman, it seems, and I think Harewood will just suit him."

To be continued.



A DROWNING MAN

does not fight harder for breath than many sufferers from Catarrh. We meet people everywhere whose heavy breathing impedes their speech and distorts their features. The usual answer to their friends solicitations for treatment is that Catarrh is incurable, a mistaken idea so many people possess until they use the only reliable remedy that relieves suffering at once and absolutely cures after a short steady treatment. Prominent physicians in many cities recognize its value and recommend it to their patients.

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder

Dr. W. H. McDougal of Charleston, W. Va., writes:—"I have been using Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder for some time past, in my practice with most excellent results." —49

FUNERAL OF PAUL KRUGER.

Two Thousand Burghers Attend Burial At Pretoria.

Pretoria, Dec. 17.—Two thousand Burghers attended an impressive religious service yesterday prior to the burial of the body of former President Kruger. Several ministers of the Dutch churches spoke eulogizing the ex-president for his exemplary religious life, and as a lover of his people, and exhorting the Boers while remaining loyal to the new flag never to forget the principles of their late leader or their own language.

An immense crowd filed through the death chamber throughout the morning. The coffin was draped with the Transvaal and Orange Free State flags and on it were the tributes of Queen Wilhelmina, and the Queen Mother of Holland.

Unity White Races.

At Kruger's funeral yesterday Gen. Botha spoke. His speech strongly recommended the unification of the white races in South Africa, as that is the only means by which they can become a great people and realize Kruger's ideal.

CASHED WITHOUT SIGNATURES.

Government Scores On Bank in the Martineau Case.

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—Abondeus Martineau broke down again yesterday while giving evidence in the case of the Dominion Government against the Bank of Montreal to recover the amount of Martineau's forgeries. The banks are trying to prove that it was departmental laxity, and not the banks, that was to blame, and that many of the cheques bore genuine signatures, Martineau merely manipulating the amounts. While under a vigorous examination by D. E. Riddell, Martineau collapsed. The doctor said his pulse was above normal yesterday. The Government scored a point yesterday when F. W. Borden, Militia Department Accountant, produced cheques cashed by the bank without signatures.

Gaynor-Greene Case Again.

London, Dec. 17.—The appeal of the United States against the decision of the Justice of the Crown at Quebec in the case of Greene and Gaynor came up before the Privy Council yesterday. Sir Edward Clarke, K.C., who, with Donald MacMaster, K.C., of Montreal, represents the United States, opened the court, reciting the well-known facts. Mr. MacMaster continued and was speaking when adjournment was reached.

Many Kings Will Attend.

Copenhagen, Dec. 17.—The correspondent at Copenhagen of The Daily Mail says he learns that the Emperor of Austria will visit Copenhagen next spring to take part in an international conference of monarchs on the subject of peace. There is reason to believe, the correspondent adds, that Emperor Nicholas and King Edward have already agreed to attend, and Emperor William is also expected.

Dr. Sullivan Resigns.

Kingston, Dec. 17.—At the medical banquet in the city hall Thursday night, Hon. Dr. Sullivan announced his resignation as professor of surgery in Queen's College. Dr. Sullivan entered the medical school fifty years ago as student and has been connected with the school ever since. In 1885 Dr. Sullivan acted as purveyor general during the Northwest Rebellion.

Premier Tisza's Threat.

Buda-Pesth, Hungary, Dec. 17.—At yesterday's session of the Lower House of Parliament, Premier Tisza announced that unless the House recognized within three days, as required by the standing orders, he would be obliged to dissolve Parliament, as he desired to appeal to the electors to ascertain whether or not they approved of his course.

Will Have Surplus.

Mexico City, Dec. 17.—Finance Minister Limantour's budget for the coming fiscal year estimates the revenue at $88,104,000 and expenses at $85,474,000. The previous fiscal year showed the largest surplus on record, over ten millions.

To Dine Earl Grey.

Montreal, Que., Dec. 17.—Yesterday George Hadrill, the secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade, received a letter from His Excellency the Governor-General, in which it was intimated that the 24th of January would be a suitable date for the proposed dinner, and the executive of the board will accept the date set. This will be the first visit of Lord Grey to Montreal, and the function which the board will give on the evening of Jan. 24 will undoubtedly be one of great brilliancy, particularly as the board's building is so well suited to such a function.

Canadians See the Pope.

Rome, Dec. 17.—Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal was received in private audience yesterday by Pope Pius X., in the throne room of the Vatican, and presented to His Holiness a number of prominent Canadians, including Canons Roy and Cusineau, Judge Simeon Pagnuelo of the Supreme Court of Quebec; Miss Taschereau, niece of the late Cardinal Taschereau; Mrs. Drummond and daughters, Mrs. Girouard and Mrs. McMahon. The Pontiff spoke a kindly word to each and blessed them and their families.

What Sulphur Does.

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, researches and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins, while experimenting with sulphur remedies, soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers," will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers, a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

THE PREMIER A TRIFLER

The Dominion Alliance Issues Another Manifesto.

Justifies Charges Made Against Ross Government and Calling For Support For Proposed Temperance Legislation—Alliance Also Passes a Resolution to the Effect That Independent Nominations Should Be Made Sometimes.

Toronto, Dec. 17.—The executive committee of the Dominion Alliance for Ontario met yesterday in a three hours' session, and settled the terms of a reply to Premier Ross' pamphlet on their previous manifesto. G. F. Marter, who presided, and Secretary F. S. Spence performed his duties.

In addition to the adoption of the manifesto, a resolution was moved by W. H. Orr, seconded by Angus McDonald, and carried:

"That where both party candidates are unfavorable to temperance legislation, and it is manifest that the temperance cause can be served by an independent nomination, we cordially recommend our friends to take such action, after the fullest consultation and the adoption of wise plans to make the movement as successful as it can be made."

The Manifesto in Brief.

Sums up the Premier's objections.

Claims authority of executive committee to act as it was instructed.

Adheres to the charges of broken pledges by the Premier.

Discusses the arbitrary and unfair terms of the referendum in which the Premier departed from his own avowed principle of majority rule.

Admits qualified excellence of convention recommendations, but urges but for Government opposition they would have been better. They do not alter Alliance position.

Argues there was no more compulsion in the vote proposed in clause 3 than in referendum vote, and that if it was not important the Government would not have opposed it.

Justifies the charge of "trifling" brought against the Premier.

Retorts that the Premier, having complained that temperance men did not put principles above party, he cannot complain when the Alliance proposes the election of temperance members.

Appeals to Christian electors to unite in support of candidates who will strive for the legislation proposed by the Alliance.

That Ballot Inspection.

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—Before the Clerk of the Crown and Chancery here, yesterday, the ballot box used by the wrestler, Hawkeye at No. 2 Clarendon and Miller, Frontenac County, on Nov. 3, was opened and the ballots examined. G. F. Shepley, K.C., represented the Minister of Justice, and J. B. McKenzie of Toronto, the successful candidate, Mr. Avery. The poll book accounted for 72 votes, while 73 ballots were found in the box. The vote at this poll was 40 for Avery and 33 for Shibley. The ballot papers were shown to be or appeared to be genuine papers issued by the returning officer.

TORONTO STREET RAILWAY.

Appoints R. J. Fleming, a City Official, As Its General Manager.

Toronto, Dec. 17.—Negotiations were concluded yesterday morning between the directors of the Toronto Railway Company and Robert J. Fleming, city commissioner of assessment and property, whereby the latter will assume the general managership of the company at a salary of $10,000 per year. The announcement came as the greatest surprise in municipal circles, no one in the City Hall having had the slightest intimation of any such move being contemplated. Mr. Fleming has been getting $4,200 from the city.

Mrs. Chadwick Isolated.

Cleveland, Dec. 17.—Mrs. Chadwick will from now until the time of her trial or arraignment in court be rigidly excluded from all visitors, and her son and nurse will be denied permission to see her except on the written order of United States Marshal Chandler. Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock an order was received at the jail by Sheriff Barry directing him to deny all persons the privilege of seeing her, and he at once ordered that the nurse, Freda Swenson, who was in the jail with Mrs. Chadwick, be ordered to leave.

Steel Plant For Sale.

Belleville, Dec. 17.—The rolling mills and plant of the Iron and Steel Company of Canada were offered for sale by public auction yesterday morning. Only two bids were made, one of $26,000, made by S. Samuelweiss of Montreal, and another of this city. Col. Lazier announced that the bids did not reach the reserve bid.

Sooner Than Expected.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 17.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier left for home yesterday.

He told an old friend here of a political scandal which is brewing in Ottawa, and which threatens to come to a head much earlier than he expected.

DO NOT GO FROM BAD TO WORSE

Influenza Causes Bronchitis, Consumption Pleurisy and Pneumonia—A Certain Cure in Reach of All.

Influenza, coughs and colds, bad and distressing as they are in themselves, often lead to yet worse and more dangerous maladies. Very frequently bronchitis, or inflammation of the bronchial tubes, results, which in its turn is a forerunner of the fatal and dangerous disease of consumption. Pneumonia, or inflammation of the lungs, and pleurisy or inflammation of the serous covering of the lungs are also the direct effects of influenza. It is highly important, therefore, that influenza should not be allowed to run its course unchecked or fatal consequences may result.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a never-failing cure for influenza, coughs and colds, and are so recognised throughout the land. They go direct to the root of these diseases and thorough expel from the system all causes and thus render the disease impossible. Under their influence all poisons are carried away and the system is thoroughly cleansed, the blood purified and the diseased and wasted tissues and membranes are restored and rebuilt. The disease is conquered and destroyed and all danger of the fearful consequences are permanently removed.

The unparalleled success and popularity of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, both in England and America, conclusively prove the effective merits and virtues of this great remedy. Being in reach of all classes, they relieve the suffering and danger of rich and poor alike, and, as a consequence, their name has become a household word throughout the English-speaking world. The cures they have effected and the health and happiness they have brought to the people of these countries and the reasonable price at which they are sold have put them so far ahead of other remedies for these diseases that all attempts at competition have been given up.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents a box. Druggists don't dare to be without them for the people insist on having them and no other. Physicians are prescribing them throughout the land and if your doctor is real honest with you he will tell you frankly that there is nothing on earth so good for influenza, coughs, colds and all catarrhal affections as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

Billy Boyd's Case.

London, Dec. 17.—At yesterday's session before P. M. Lowe argument of counsel was heard in connection with application for bail on behalf of Billy Boyd and Hugh Stevenson, charged with conspiracy to defraud ex-Ald. Douglas of London out of $10,000. The case was adjourned till this morning.

Alfonso's New Cabinet.

Madrid, Dec. 17.—King Alfonso has approved a new Cabinet headed by Gen. Azcar-Raga as Premier and Minister of Marine. Premier Azcar-Raga will only act as Minister of Marine ad interim in the absence of Admiral Vineyre, who has accepted the portfolio.

Claims a Toronto Home.

London, Dec. 17.—Patrick Brogan, a youth, who claims Toronto as his home, was up before P. M. Lowe yesterday, charged with two thefts of overcoats. Brogan pleaded guilty and was sentenced to five months on each charge, sentences to run concurrently.

Algiers in Flames.

London, Dec. 17.—A despatch to a news agency from Paris says that a large part of the Mustapha suburb of Algiers is in flames. The whole garrison has been turned out to fight the fire. Damage to the extent of many millions has already been done.

Stricken With Paralysis.

Mrs. W. R. Sutherland, St. Andrew's, Man., writes:—"I was stricken with paralysis and lost power of the tongue and left leg. For six months I obtained no relief either by doctors' prescriptions or other medicines. My husband got me Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which has revitalized my nerves and given me full power of the paralyzed parts. I am strong and well now, thanks to this great medicine."

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Harold Armstrong was a find for the Marlboros, as he is one of the best men who has come to town in a long time. He can play either on the forward line or the defence.—Toronto News.

Pittsburg people must be hard to please. They are dissatisfied with the rulings of Referee Roy P. Schooley Hugh Jack, two of the best referees that ever officiated in the O.H.A..

The Karnet hockey team of the City League will play in Bobcaygeon on Friday, Dec. 30th.

The Guild League met on Thursday at the Y.M.C.A., but not much business was done. Charlotte-st., George-st., and All Saints' Guilds were represented. It was decided to bar all O.H.A. senior and intermediates, Trent Valley League, and also O.H.A. juniors, except those who are playing this present season. Messrs. Graham and Jolliffe were appointed a committee to draft the League's constitution, and it will be presented for approval at the next meeting of the league.

The Furriers will be strong factors in the City League Championship race. They will line up something like this:—Goal, Thornton; point, Black; cover, Squires; forwards, Smith, H. Long, A. Long, Nicholls.

At the O.H.A. meeting on Friday night Peterborough was placed in No. 2 district in both junior and intermediate series. The intermediates are grouped with Lindsay, Port Perry and Markham. Mr. Chris. Graham is convener, and a meeting to draw up the schedule for this group will meet at Lindsay. The juniors are grouped with Cobourg, Port Hope and Belleville. The convener is D. D. Kerr, Cobourg, where a meeting to draw up the schedule will be held.

The Peterborough's had a good [illegible] bam. Morgan and Ford.

Harold Armstrong and "Tough" Mercer are playing for the Marlboros against the Waverleys tonight.

Picton's delegates to the T.V.L. meeting report that the team will be very strong this year. Crofts, the point, and Giroux, right wing, of last year's fast intermediate O.H.A. team, will still be available. Doc Gilbert, captain of last year's Varsity team, will shine on the forward line, and Harriston, a former Picton star, who has been living in the States, will also be on hand.

Port Hope also reports a strong team. Jack McMillan and other Ontario stars, are getting into the game and the team will make a big bid for the championship.

Fenelon Falls, for a small place is a good sporting village. The management of the hockey club raised $175 by subscription lately, and this was used in improving the rink. Now they have $50 on hand, also raised by subscription, to purchase uniforms and sticks.

THE TURF.

We understand that a number of Lindsay's enterprising horse-lovers and sports have plans for a winter meet well under way, and that liberal subscriptions are being received. Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 16th and 17th, are the dates mentioned. It is a good many years since the horse-loving population of this County enjoyed a winter race meeting at home, and we predict a very large turnout and a successful event.—Lindsay Post.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

What is Taking Place in Peterborough and Its Vicinity.

—Men—Don't miss the Popular Men's Meeting on Sunday at the Y.M.C.A.;

—There will be a special meeting of the Ministerial Association in the Y.M.A.C. parlor on Monday at 10 o'clock, a.m.

—An Electrical Club and a Literary and Debating Club will be two new features in the Y.M.C.A. after the holidays.

The Y.M.C.A. boys' rink is nearly finished. Tickets can be had at the office. The rink is for the Boys' and Intermediate Departments only.

—In Ottawa private skating rinks are flooded by the city. A permit is obtained for $1, and the water is supplied at $2, each time the water is turned on.

—A farmer's team, frightened by a street car this morning, left the road and cut across the pavement at the Toronto Bank corner. Several people had narrow escapes.

—"The situation remains unchanged," is the only information available from the office of the Cereal Co. to-day. Mr. Stuart is expected to arrive from Chicago very shortly.

—The nominations for County Council will be held on Monday, December 19th, and the election two weeks later, Jan. 2nd. For village and town hte nominations will be held on Dec. 26th, and the elections one week later.

—Mr. Fred A. Clarke has a unique sign in front of his establishment. It is in the shape of a long brick chimney, with Santa Claus at the top ready to descend. The sign extends from the roof of the building to the upper part of the plate glass and is attracting much attention.

—Messrs. Lang & Maher, clothiers have received a reply from Mr. H. Kingscote, Secretary of the City Hockey League, acknowledging the receipt of the firms' generous offer of an oyster supper to the champion team. The thanks of the league are conveyed to Messrs. Lang & Maher for their timely action.

The patrons of Morganston cheese factory on Thursday, Dec. 1st, to meet W. J. McGrath, the Belleville cheese buyer, who was reported to have swindled the patrons out of $2,000 during the season of 1900. After addressing the meeting, Mr McGrath gave the patrons a bank draft for the entire amount, with interest to date.

—In September last, Mr. J. P. Hume, Principal of the High School made application to the Director of the Geological Survey of Canada, Ottawa, through our member, Mr. E. Cochrane, for an exhibit of the important minerals of Canada. A very was received on Tuesday, for the fine collection of some 100 specimens school.—Campbellford Herald.

—While out hunting on Dec. 5th, near Cloyne, Henry Vanness, of Arden, accidentally shot and killed his son, Archibald, and wounded James Parks, 26 years old. Vanness thought he saw a deer moving and fired, and the bullet pierced Park's side, went through at the back and flew into the breast of Archibald, killing him almost instantly. The injured man is now in Kingston —Reeve James McCluggott, of Douro, is retiring after years of faithful service. At a meeting of Douro Council this week he was tendered a hearty vote of thanks, and wished every success in the future. He has been a member of the Council off and on since 1876, and in all capacities has a good, clean record, and has proven to be a municipal legislator of experience and first rate ability.

—A prominent citizen says that street cars going north should stop at the south side of every street intersection, and those going south on the north side of street intersections. This, he says, is done in all large cities, and would, in his opinion, avoid many mishaps at crossings and minimize the danger of collision. He thinks the cars run at too fast a speed through the business part of the town.

—On Sunday last Rev. Father Keilty, parish priest of St. Joseph's church, Douro, was waited upon by his parishioners and presented with a well filled purse. The presentation was made by Councillor Allen, in the name of the Reeve, Councillors and municipal officers of Douro. The congregation was represented by Messrs. Martin McManus, and Wm. Condon of Douro, John O'Grady and James Devlin, of Otonabee, and Patrick Fitzpatrick, of Otonabee.

—On account of the uncertainty as to when the Provincial elections would be held, it has been deemed unwise to hold the supplementary meetings of the Farmers' Institutes until definite announcement was made. It is not likely that the meetings will now be held until after the elections.

—The electors of the fourth County Council Division, will meet at the town hall here on Monday next to nominate County Councillors for 1905-06. It is rumored that Mr. W. T. Buck is likely to be the next Warden of the County.—Norwood Register.

—An exchange makes these timely remarks: "Every line in a newspaper costs something. If it is for the financial gain of an individual or society, it should be paid for. If the grocer were asked to contribute groceries to one abundantly well able to pay for them he would refuse. The proprietor of the newspaper has to pay for the free advertising if the beneficiary does not, and it is one of the hardest things to be learned by many that a newspaper has space in its columns to rent. To give it away for anything less than living rates would certainly be as fatal as for a landlord to furnish a house rent free."

—The business men of Lindsay are evidently a hot headed lot who believe in the free and unadulterated use of tongue and fist. About a year ago in the police court in that town, lawyer Hopkins kicked the bosom of Magistrate Steers' pants; last summer Messrs. Cinnamon and Boxall, two hardware merchants, fell through a plate glass window during a fistic encounter which took place in the latter's store; and only last week Mr. J. D. Flavelle slapped [illegible] tleman having called the former a liar. Our City Fathers have often carried their discussions pretty far, but have not yet descended to the practice indulged in by the Lindsayites. We trust they never will—Port Hope Guide.

—An overheated stove, which was used for drying plaster in the second story of Andrew's new block, Havelock, caused damage to the extent of $500 on Wednesday night. The fire broke out about 6.30 o'clock, and a few minutes afterwards water from the C.P.R. hose was playing on the flames, which were entirely confined in the joints in the ceiling of Mr. Andrews' grocery store. The fire was quickly extinguished, but not before the building was damaged to the extent of $200. The loss on the stock by water will probably amount to $300.

—The services at the church of St. John, the Evangelist, Havelock, on the 22nd inst., will begin at 8 p.m. sharp and will comprise (1) the consecration of the church building, (2) Evening Prayer, and (3) confirmation. The Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., of Peterborough, and the Rev. A. J. Reid of Campbellford, have sent acceptances of their invitations to be present. Mr. Reid will be accompanied by Mr. Skey, bank manager, as a representative of the Campbellford laity.

Fit Insurance.

One thousand men 5 feet 8 inches high, 40 inches chest measurement, will be almost of identical proportions throughout!

They all belong to Semi-ready physique type B.

The other proportions of their figures may vary slightly—these variations usually puzzle the custom tailor, who endeavors to allow for them separately and ends by accenting them.

Our designers draft a coat pattern that will fit each of these thousand men—covering the variations instead of accenting them.

You can try on the coat and forejudge the effects of fabric—color—style—shape and fit.

As the seams are left with outlets and the inner parts basted only, the slight alterations necessary to insure perfection of fit can readily be made in two hours.

CAMPAIGN FOR LOCAL OPTION

Rousing Opening Meeting Held at Bridgenorth.

STRONG ADDRESSES MADE

Rev. J. G. Potter and Rev. G. R. Clare were the Speakers—Organization Started—The Evils of the License Act.

A magnificent meeting was held at Bridgenorth last night. There was a large turn out of electors and those interested, and an earnest consideration was given to the question of the proposed local option by-law in Smith.

Rev. J. W. Bunner was chairman of the meeting. The Rev. M. McKinnon and Rev. E. Bowerman conducted devotional exercises. The chairman called upon Rev. J. G. Potter to address the meeting.

Mr. Potter stated that it was hardly necessary to prove to them the evils of intemperance or the evils of the drink traffic. All were thoroughly convinced of that fact. The great difference of opinion was found as to the best method of dealing with the evil. By some prohibition was considered the only way, others thought the Scott Act, many others a more rigid enforcement of the license act, while very many felt that by strict Government inspection and control of sale the evil would be diminished. These were all more or less under the direction and manipulation of party control and the ordinary excuse would be given that the public opinion had to be educated up to any one of them. However, they were happily free from any political or governmental influence in seeking to carry the by-law. The Government had placed that upon the statutes years ago, and it gave every locality the privilege of doing away with the "bars" if they deemed it expedient and necessary to do so. Reference was then made to the fact that the law holds a man responsible for the injury or loss to life or limb by malice, or carelessness, or ignorance. It will never do for a chemist, on a train hand, or a light house keeper to say when tragedy or disaster has occurred, "I did not think," and the responsibility of every community was very great when we took into account the very large number of our fellow men who are annually, morally and physically destroyed. This fact was emphasized by examples. Mr. Potter referred to the good work being done in Nova Scotia. During the past summer he had enquired into the condition of things under the Scott Act, and in connection therewith read the following telegram from Rev. H. P. Grant, who is the field Secretary for the Temperance Alliance in that province:

New Glasgow, N.S.
Dec. 14, 1904.

"Scott Act not a failure. Vast improvement on license. Closed many bars. Intemperance greatly lessened." H. R. Grant.

He also referred to a letter which he had received from Mr. J. W. Bengough, who has been touring in the Maritime Provinces and who has seen much of the difficulty with which officers of the law have to contend in endorsement of the Scott Act, yet in closing his personal letter says "I am not sure that even a violated Scott Act is not better for the rising generations than legalized bars."

The speaker referred to the deliverance of Justice Greer of the U.S. Supreme Court when he said recently—"If a loss to revenue should accrue from diminution in the use of ardent spirits, America will be the gainer a thousand-fold in the health, wealth and happiness of her people." Smith Township receives $110 from license while it pays $392 for charities, assuming the ordinary percentage usually attributable directly or indirectly to the liquor traffic it is a losing business. He read a deliverance of the Harvey Council dated Thursday and duly certified stating that they fully sympathised with the efforts of Smith Township and would oppose any effort on the part of the liquor traffic to transfer their operations into Harvey. This was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

MR. CLARE'S ADDRESS.

Rev. G. R. Clare, pastor Millbrook Methodist Church and formerly pastor at Bridgenorth gave a most interesting and enthusiastic address. He referred to the work that local option had done in Mariposa where he had the privilege of helping to make it a success. They had found it in every way a great help to the township and merchants had assured him of their increased trade while the annual records of the township would prove the increased income of the municipality. In considering the rights of the individual, Mr. Clare contended that the law hedged us all around so that our rights were rights to do well. So soon as a man attempts to do injury our present law lays hold on that man. Moreover the prohibitive clauses in the present license act were such as curtailed the rights of everybody else save the very small few who were in the business. He emphasized the fact that under the present law any injury done to a man under the influence of strong drink purchased in a riding, the municipality is accountable, and proved this fact by an incident occurring recently where a widow received $1200 damages for the death of her husband, who while intoxicated had fallen into an open drain. Mr. Clare then dealt with some of the difficulties and bluffs that would be advanced upon the passing of the by-law. One notable feature would be the locking up of the hotel and stables. In Oakwood this was attempted and when approached as to his intentions proprietor [illegible] intimated that he could [illegible] tee arranged to have places of accommodation opened at once and this had the desired effect. He urged the people to be prepared for this and to have houses that would be suitable for the accommodation of the travelling public, in the event of any such attempt in Smith. An opportunity was given for questions, but no one responded. After singing "Throw out the life line" the meeting closed with the benediction. A meeting for organization was held at the close.

A COLD BATH

A Peterborough Young Man Immersed in the Otonabee, near Lakefield.

Three popular local young men recently undertook to skate to Lakefield, but, unfortunately, the ice was not as firm as their resolution, and one of them, Mr. Tim Dineen, found that however pleasant the waters of the Otonabee may be in the good old summer time, a bath in the same stream in winter is far from agreeable.

The trio had made good time and progress and were nearing Lakefield, when an ominous crack was hard, and Mr. Dineen found himself struggling in the icy waters of the Otonabee. He managed to haul himself out, however, with the aid of his companions. But the most trying part of his experience was to come, for he had to skate back to town, a distance of about nine miles, in his wet clothes. The next time he goes on an expedition of this kind he will likely "look before he skates."

Kidney Disease for Twenty Years

Mrs. Caswell Reid, Orrville, Muskoka, Ont., writes:—"For nearly twenty years I was troubled with kidney disease, and have recently been completely cured by using three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I have tried a great many remedies, but never seemed to get anything to do me so much good, until I used these pills."

VERY HANDSOME PICTURE

Mr. Whiten Has Taken One of the T. A. S Lacrosse Team and Officers.

Large crowds of people gathered in front of Darnley's gents' furnishing store this afternoon. The object of their admiration was a very handsome picture of the T.A.S. lacrosse team and officers. Mr. Whiten has excelled himself in the execution of this work. He states that it is one of the largest photos ever taken in the Province of Ontario, being 5 feet by 4 feet 2 inches and with deep gold frame. The players are lined up in front of the grand stand with their gear on, while the officers have also been artistically arranged with Rev. Dr. O'Brien, the Hon. President in the centre. It is evident that great care has been taken with the work, and the result is one on which Mr. Whiten is deserving of every congratulation upon the high standard of excellence to which he has attained. The picture is a marvellous production in the photographic art. It is worth over $100 and has been purchased by the friends of the T.A.S. lacrosse team, the undefeated champions of the Trent Valley League. [illegible]

ANNUAL REPORT.

The annual report was as follows:

Once more the time has come around for our annual report, and as it returns, each year we find ever increasing cause for thankfulness to God for His great goodness and kindness to us as a Band. The work has gone steadily on and a deeper interest is being manifested in the work than ever before.

Our meetings, which are held on the first Sunday of the month, at four o'clock, have been both interesting and profitable subjects were taken up, having relation to our work both at home and abroad. We have 76 members on our roll, with an average attendance of 50. We find at the close of this year that we have quite an improvement over the previous year, both in attendance and in the promptitude with which the fees have been paid.

In June the Peterbborough Association held their annual convention at Belleville, and we were able to send a delegate to represent the Park street Band.

On Sept. 1st our Band and Women's Mission Circle held their picnic in Jackson's Park, but it did not prove as successful as last year, as the weather was damp and showery.

During the year we have suffered the loss of several valued and useful members. Mr. H. Fair, who has removed to Toronto; Miss A. Brace, whose marriage in September was an item of interest to all, but proved a great loss to our Band. In October we also lost our Vice-President, Miss B. Mowry, who is now in training at Nichols Hospital for a nurse, and so is unable to attend. We feel this loss very deeply, as Miss Mowry's heart and hand has ever been ready for the work at Park street.

Amount of cash on hand at beginning of year $13.30; amount of fees for year $12.51; total, $25.81. Amount sent to Foreign Missions, $8.42; amount sent to Home Missions, $8.42; expenditures for year, $3.72; total, $20.76, leaving a balance on hand of $5.05.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was postponed until the first week in January.

We feel thankful to God for what has been accomplished during the past year, for the spirit of earnestness, enthusiasm and interest that has been instilled into the heart of each member, for missionary work And so we hopefully enter the coming year, praying that it will be one of zealous work and more earnest prayer; and, in closing, the Band wish you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

N HUDSON,
Secretary.

COTTON COMBINE.

Most Extensive Concentration of Capital Has Been Accomplished.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—The long-talked-of cotton amalgamation is now an accomplished fact. The deal in question is one of the most extensive concentrations of capital which has taken place in Canada for years.

Hereafter the Dominion Cotton Company, the Merchants Cotton Company, the Colonial Bleaching Company, and the Montmorency Cotton Company will be known as one industrial concern, with a capital of somewhere near $10,000,000, the whole representing bonds, preferred and common stock.

It appears that the consolidation of these respective interests has been brought about by a mutual desire to reduce expenses and put an end to cutting rates.

Paralysis Hits Chamberlain.

London, Dec. 19.—Joseph Chamberlain has resumed his campaign against English free trade, and the fact was revealed Saturday for the first time that he has recently suffered a stroke of paralysis. The secret has been wonderfully well kept, yet it is a fact that when Mr. Chamberlain and his wife were in Egypt the former had a stroke. It was not serious, but its character was unmistakable.

Escaped From Moving Train.

Oaklake, Man., Dec. 19.—A negro prisoner, Fred. Wilson, aged 23, being taken to Stony Mountain to serve a four-year term for horse stealing, jumped from the express near here Saturday morning. The train was traveling at a rate of 25 miles per hour. Later he was re-captured, and outside of a slight scratch, the prisoner was not injured.

To Improve the Canal.

St. Catharines, Dec. 19.—Navigation on the new Welland Canal closed Saturday night and preparations will be commenced immediately for the improvements which are to be made.

Raisuli Raids Caravan.

Tangier, Morocco, Dec. 17.—Raisuli, the notorious brigand chief, who captured Ion Perdicaris, an American citizen, and his step-son, Cromwell Varley, a British subject, in May last, boldly raided a caravan within the town of Tangier yesterday.

France Signs Treaty.

Paris, Dec. 17.—Foreign Minister Delcasse announced at a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday the signing of a Franco-Swiss arbitration treaty similar to the Franco-British agreement.

I BELIEVE

Red Rose Tea

is the best tea in Canada, and that a great many people who drink it say it is the best tea they ever used.

I KNOW

It is however easy to make statements about what we believe. I think it is better to give definite, positive reasons why an article is believed to be the best, and if any article has real merit, it should be easy to give convincing reasons.

This is just what I propose to do. In the successive issues of this paper I will publish a number of facts and reasons why I believe Red Rose Tea is the best tea in Canada, and why you should use it.

The reasons will be interesting and educative about tea—well worth reading.

Before you read many, I think you will want to try the tea and if you buy a pound, the tea itself will do the rest.

WALKS BY GENERAL TAX.

Conditions have changed so much since the town commenced laying concrete walks it is evident there is much to be said in favor of changing the system under which they have heretofore been paid.

When the plank walk was the one in common use, it was laid and paid for by general tax; the granolithic walk being the exception and being a much more costly walk when first introduced, was only laid under special circumstances, and was made the subject of a special tax. Now that the latter has become the standard walk and probably the cheaper one also, it seems a reasonable enough contention that it in turn should become the subject of general and not of special taxation, provided always that such a change can be effected with equity to those ratepayers whose properties are now frontage taxed for granolithic walks already laid, and who have been paying frontage taxes therefor for from one to five years.

It is understood, of course, that as to the unpaid portion of such frontage taxes, in the event of change, the property affected would be relieved and the town would assume the same. But whether justice requires the repayment of the proportion already paid, or not, is a point where there will be room for difference of opinion, and which if affirmative, sustained may impose considerable practical difficulty in the way of carrying out such a scheme.

Discussing this subject at Thursday night's Council meeting, Alderman Adams, who is advocating the change, contended that inasmuch as the first granolithic walks had cost upwards of fifteen cents per foot, and that only five payments, about one quarter the cost or less than five cents, had already been paid, there still remained unpaid about ten cents per foot, the present cost of building such walks; the property holders interested would thus be assuming no more than they were being relieved of; that therefore no injustice would result to them by the change; and that as the assessment and collection of general taxes is less complicated and costly than of frontage taxes, a general saving would be affected all round.

It seems to be generally assumed, however, that in the event of a change from the frontage to a general tax, the system of spreading the payments over a period of twenty years should still be retained, and that further legislation is necessary for the purpose of facilitating this.

It will be remembered that when plank was the standard material in use for walks, such walks were not only laid by general tax, but they were also paid for out of current revenue, and it is a matter for serious consideration whether if a return is made to the former system in one respect it should not be made in the other also.

Now that a substantial beginning has been effected and the most necessary and expensive walks laid, it would appear to a casual observer as if the town ought to be able to provide for further ordinary requirements in this respect out of ordinary revenue, and reserve its mortgaging powers for more special and extraordinary purposes.

PEN POINTS.

Remember West Elgin, the Minnie M., and the bogus ballot boxes.

One week from yesterday will be Christmas day

Peterborough has had many good mayors, but Best of all will be the man who will occupy the chair next year.

If you vote for a Rossite candidate you vote to endorse all the criminalities by which the Government has kept itself in power.

Mr. Ross and the Ontario Alliance apparently have about as much affection for each other as some of the old time Liberals in West Peterborough have for their present office-loving and ambitious young candidate.

The Globe evidently realises that Rossism is a lost cause and that there is no possible hope of saving the minority Government in the coming election, judging by the way it is abusing and decrying Mr. Whitney.

If a man who benefited by the frequent wrong-doing of an employee, still kept that man in his employ wouldn't he be just as guilty as the culprit? Of course he would. And that's why the Ross Government is just as guilty as its tools.

According to the official returns of the last Federal elections the Conservatives had a majority of the popular vote in Ontario of 4,441. The Conservatives polled 217,829 votes, and the Liberals 213,388. The Independents polled 2,808 votes. This does not look very encouraging for the Ross Government.

All the people of Ontario, irrespective of party, were entitled to news of the dissolution, and the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario was used, to the discredit of his high office, by the small calibre advisers who kept such public news for the benefit of their organ, the Globe.—Toronto Telegram.

No popular cause will be wounded, says the Montreal Star, if the Ross Government goes down. Nothing on earth will suffer save a few men who must by this time be weary of their desperate battle to keep a foothold on the edge of a precipice.

Since Ross assumed the premiership the Liberal majority in the province has steadily gone down, till he is now left in a minority in the Legislature. The figures are government 43, opposition 45, with ten vacant seats. Yet in face of this record he expects to be returned on January 25, with a considerable majority. How illusive is hope!

At a well attended convention of the Liberals of East Victoria, at Fenelon Falls, Mr. John Austin, County Councillor, was tendered and accepted the nomination. Mr J. Hilliard Carnegie is his opponent and will have no difficulty in defeating him by a large majority. Mr. Austin has about as much chance of success as Ross has of carrying the province.

Dr. Thompson, the Conservative candidate, has been elected for the Yukon seat in the house of commons over ex-Governor Congdon, by a majority of nearly 600. The vote was: Thompson, 1631; Congdon, 1076. The result is a striking rebuke to the "Young Napoleon," Hon Clifford Sifton, whose administration of the interior department has been a source of much dissatisfaction throughout the gold fields.

If everything was so pure in connection with the election of the Commissioner of Crown Lands in North Grey, why did the Liberals so readily offer to pay the cost of all the legal proceedings in order to have the protest dropped and when this failed, owing to the determination of the Conservative candidate who manfully stuck to his position, the Legislature prematurely dissolved. Why? For no other immediate object than to burk the inquiry and prevent a further expose of the working and corruption of the Grit machine, and the famous "Buffalo Gang" which Cap. Sullivan imported in the riding to secure Hon. A. G. MacKay's return.

Mr. A. C. McCallum, M. E., late of Peterborough, who is now in Los Angeles, California, sends the Review a copy of the Daily Herald, published in that city, which contains a lengthy editorial on the visit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who with Lady Laurier spent some time recently in the Golden state. The Herald says in part:—

This week Los Angeles will be honored by the presence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Premier of Canada and the chosen representative of a sister nation. We say "nation" advisedly. For, while the Dominion of Canada is a loyal colony of Great Britain and an integral part of the mighty British Empire, she is a nation to all intents and purposes. Practically, Canada is a republic * * * * For Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canada's able premier, the citizens of Los Angeles will show due regard, and, while respecting his wish to travel in a purely private capacity and to avoid all forms of public entertainment, they will nevertheless not forget that their city is harboring a great man and the chosen representative of a great people.

BEAR IN THE LOG.

Man in Somerville Comes Upon a Surprise Party While Cutting Wood.

The following story comes from Bobcaygeon:—

There was quite a little surprise party last Saturday up on the Somerville boundary. Wm. Hopkins was out that day underbrushing and cleaning up a bit of a thicket. Coming to a tree that had been blown down and the root turned up, he trimmed it off, and cut it into logs. When he got to the last end, next the upturned roots he noticed that quite a bunch of leaves had gathered in. He put his cut into the one side, and turning to the other the chips flew fast, for his axe was in good condition. William is an axeman and puts in a well turned cut, and clean, and he had stepped to one side of the cut, to give the finishing strokes that would let the log down into the leaves, when—great Caesars ghost! the whole wagon load of leaves upheaved and a bear's head with wondering eyes appeared. The last strokes were not given, the log did not fall, but William did, you bet. He jumped, and for a standing jump made a record that will not be beaten this year at any rate. While William was collecting himself together, the bear was waking up and getting his skates on, and when William finally got in shape for a charge, the bear was in shape for making a move, and did so just in time to escape the axe. William shouted, but the bear growled a defiant and disgruntled ex' my rump, will yer and disappeared in the bush. He was a fine one, large, and the fur black as jet. The pelt would be worth $30, but the bear does not want to part with it just at present, not till the weather gets warmer and the robins nest again.

WEDDED IN KINGSTON

Sergeant William Borland Takes Unto Himself a Bride.

A military wedding took place at the residence of Capt. Henry Esford, Barriefield, Kingston, on Dec. 12th, at 8 o'clock, when Sergt. Wm Borland, "B" Battery, formerly of Peterborough, was married to Miss Olive Esford. The bride was given away by her father, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Nimmo, of the Anglican church, in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride was tastefully attired in brown with cream waist and was assisted by a friend, while the groom was supported by Sergt.-Major McGowan, late of England, but now instructor in Kingston Battery. After the happy couple had received the congratulations of those present, a sumptuous wedding supper was served. The table was nicely decorated with chrysanthemums and smilax. Sergt.-Major McGowan made a speech and proposed the health of the bride and groom, which was heartily responded to. The minister also spoke a few words telling what an efficient worker the bride was in his parish. Sergt. Borland, on behalf of his wife and himself thanked them for their good wishes. The presents were handsome and numerous. Mr. and Mrs. Borland left, amid showers of rice, for their home, 113 York street, Kingston. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Borland, Mr. and Mrs. F. Brownscombe, Peterborough, were present.

Promoter Hooley is Free.

London, Dec. 19.—Ernest Terah Hooley, the world-famous promoter, whose spectacular promotions of stock concerns at last brought about his arrest on charges of obtaining money by false representations, was acquitted yesterday in the Central Criminal Court after a trial lasting three weeks. Henry John Lawson, Hooley's associate in many weird business ventures, was found guilty of a similar charge and sentenced to a year's imprisonment at hard labor. More than half a hundred peers and 130 members of the House of Commons figured as stockholders in the companies that had been promoted and floated by Hooley and Lawson. Hooley was really the chief of the two figures.

Decision Reserved.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Argument in the case of the Dominion Government v. the Bank of Montreal and the Sovereign and Royal Banks Co., defendants, was concluded on Saturday, and Judge Anglin reserved decision. The Government sued to recover $75,000 obtained by Martineau, Militia Department clerk, on forged notes. The arguments lasted five hours.

A Simple Cure for Piles.

Pile sufferers know that Ointments and other local treatments sometimes relieve but never cure. They don't remove the cause.

There is a little tablet that if taken internally removes the cause of Piles and cures any case of any kind no matter how long standing.

A month's treatment costs $1.00. Ask for Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid (a thousand dollar guarantee goes with every treatment.)

Hem-Roid is the discovery of Dr. Leonhardt, of Lincoln, Neb., one of the most distinguished and successful physicians in the Western States.

AN AVOWED SOCIALIST

Beautiful Lady Warwick Hits Present Conditions.

Declares For a Co-operative Commonwealth in England Before Democratic Federation—Says Chaos Reigns in England—Her Radical Declaration Uproariously Applauded — Workingmen Drag Her Carriage to the Hotel.

London, Dec. 19.—The beautiful Countess of Warwick has become an avowed Socialist. She has been elected a member of the Social Democratic Federation, and Saturday night the Countess addressed a meeting of the unemployed at Stratford, where she was introduced as "our comrade." The crowd cheered the Countess when she said she appeared at the request of her Socialist friends, and added

"The country is passing through strange times. Chaos reigns in Essex, as well as in the remainder of England. It is terrible to think that large numbers of men and women should starve because they cannot find work. I am afraid to be here, because those who point out the present social evils are called rebels, and surely it is time something should be done to remedy these evils.

"Workingmen must understand the necessity of organization and backing leaders. I agree with the chairman's resolution that under-capitalism and the lack of employment is the permanent condition of large masses of the working classes. This can only be remedied by the collective ownership of all means of production, distribution and exchange, and by the institution of a co-operative commonwealth."

The Countess' radical declaration was uproariously applauded by the crowd of workingmen who dragged her carriage to the hotel.

PORT SIMPSON CHOSEN.

The Pacific Terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—It is now definitely settled that the terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific will be at Port Simpson, on the Pacific. The chief engineer of the Grand Trunk has filed plans with the Railway Department providing for the terminus at Port Simpson.

The land which the company will require for terminals at Port Simpson belongs to the Indians, and the company will have to negotiate with the Dominion Government to get possession, since the Dominion Government holds the lands in trust for the Indians.

Plans have also been filed by the G.T.P. for terminals on the great lakes at Fort Williams and Port Arthur. At Fort William the land required lies west of the Kaministiqua and at Port Arthur east of the town.

Uncle Sam Vigilant.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 19.—As a result of the selection of Port Simpson as the terminal of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, army officers in this city state that the United States Government will without doubt construct a fortification opposite Port Simpson just across the international boundary line. With a railway terminal Port Simpson would be, it is said, in army circles, a wonderfully strong strategic point for Great Britain, and one that cannot be overlooked by the United States Government.

Sealey not to go on with the charges of bribery and corruption in connection with the last Wentworth election, but to stand or fall by the Judge's decision on the legal point as to whether or not the ballots in the Valens division should have been thrown out by Judge Snider because they were numbered.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MRS. MARIE DE HART.

A Cincinnati Woman Who Has Become a Master Mechanic.

A master mechanic in skirts! Who-ever heard of such a thing? No, not a man masquerading, but a real live woman of high birth, culture, education and refinement, plying her chosen vocation in Cincinnati.

With her sleeves rolled up to her elbows, dainty hands soiled with the grime and grease of a machine shop, Mrs. Marie Gregory De Hart, scion of an illustrious southern family and daughter of an ex-judge of the supreme court and United States senator from Indiana, prides herself on her skill in the manipulation of machine tools and knowledge of the all round practical workings of a shop.

MRS. MARIE DE HART.

Aside from her penchant for handling the cold chisel and operating the lathe, she is the patentee of a hollow tire for bicycles, carriages and automobiles which she claims will revolutionize the business.

Mrs. De Hart was born in Kentucky and at the age of twenty was left a widow with two children. Twenty years ago, at the death of her father, Judge Robert C. Gregory, who succeeded Senator Pratt of Indiana in the United States senate, Mrs. De Hart found herself with a small fortune at her command. Turning to art, literature and music, she spent several years in Europe in pursuit of her studies. On returning to America she took up newspaper work and has been employed on many of the leading dailies in the United States as a critic in music, art and the play.

Five years ago Mrs. De Hart conceived the idea of an airless tire. She at once took up the study of mechanics, became an expert machinist and opened a shop of her own, devoting her time mainly to perfecting her tire scheme. Where hundreds of men failed she has succeeded, with the result that after an expenditure of a fortune in development she has a commodity with which she hopes to revolutionize the tire business.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Saleswomen.

Unquestionably more women of capability and intelligence look upon salesmanship as a life work than was the case ten or even five years ago. A visit to any one of the better class of stores is sufficient to prove this to the satisfaction of even the casual observer. One does not get the impression that the salesgirl is simply working at a small salary until she can marry or find some other employment, but one sees thoughtful saleswomen, who are trying to make their occupations worth something, who intend to sell goods as a business and not as a transient occupation.

The result is that they get better pay than before, and many of them are earning better salaries than they could in any other way. The discrimination between men and women in salaries becomes less and less, for the modern tendency is to regulate the remuneration by the work done without reference to who does it.

Many women as heads of depart[illegible] get good salaries, and it is no uncommon thing to see a woman of fifty years or more in such a position.—Salesmanship.

Getting Into One's Clothes.

To get into one's clothes is an art. To stay in after the necessary number of pins have been put in place is a still greater art. To become efficient in these arts practice the following:

Dress slowly.

Use plenty of safety pins as near the color of the gown as possible. Let them vary in size.

When the blouse is adjusted, pin down in front, at each side of the back and on each side of the front if necessary.

Pin the skirt after hooking it firmly to the waist on each side of the back.

When the belt is put on take time to see that the band of the skirt is covered. Pin it if necessary, but this is not necessary if the belt is not too tight.

Be sure that the skirt is hooked up the back and that the bodice cannot come unhooked or unbuttoned at the front.

It pays to take a little more time and to use a few more safety pins and to have each garment stay where it is fastened.

Your Everyday Toilet.

Your everyday toilet is a part of your character. A girl who looks like a "fury" or a sloven in the morning is not to be trusted, however finely she may look in the evening. No matter how humble your room may be, there are eight things it should contain, namely, a mirror, washstand, soap towel, comb, hair, nail and tooth brushes. These are just as essential as your breakfast, before which you should make good and free use of them. Parents who fail to provide their children with such appliances not only make a great mistake, but commit a sin of omission. Look tidy in the morning, and after the dinner work is over improve your toilet. Make it a rule of your daily life to "dress up" in the afternoon. Your dress may or may not be anything better than calico, but with a ribbon or flower or some bit of ornament you can have an air of self respect that invariably comes by being well dressed.

Be Stylish.

It is the duty of every woman to make the best of herself. The question is how to do it, and, unfortunately, many fail. It is no good to be beautiful and have no style. A plain woman can often carry all before her. If she achieves style she is very apt to leave an ordinarily pretty woman miles behind. What is meant by a smart woman is generally one who develops, says the London Queen, her good points, with due regard to the fashions and the modes of the moment.

A Dry Salt Bath.

That salt possesses tonic qualities is well known, but it has remained for a woman suffering from nervous prostration to use a dry sea salt rub with beneficial results. She soaks a coarse wash cloth in a strong solution of the sea salt, then dries it. After her cold bath of a morning she wipes off the moisture with a towel, then rubs with the salty wash cloth till her skin is in a glow. She says she has found this to be far more invigorating than the more usual bath in salt water.

The Child's Room.

In the endeavor to secure beauty in the home it should never be forgotten that the room of every child should be made attractive with pretty chintz and rare photographs, so that on waking and on going to sleep the first and last sensation may be of pleasantness, and that the mother's room, which is, after all, the principal room of the house, should be rendered memorable with its loveliness and its aspect of peace.—Success.

Towel Markings.

Monograms on towels are smaller than they have been in former seasons, and the woman who can afford it has every towel hand embroidered in white linen on one corner. The plain face towel, hemstitched and embroidered, either with a monogram or with a single initial, all in white, is in good form.

The Lavatory Basin.

To free the pipe of the lavatory basin from soap and slime put two large handfuls of common salt at the bottom of the basin at night. This will gradually dissolve, and the first flush of water in the morning will clear the waste pipe.

The exercise of keeping the elbows straight and throwing the arms back until the back of the hands just touch below the waist line is good to straighten round shoulders.

The smart woman saves time and patience by keeping a shoe horn with the children's rubbers to make their donning easy.

The wax from dripping candles can be removed from table linen by a generous application of alcohol.

The afternoon nap is beneficial to those who would gain flesh.

Last of the Six Hundred.

Thomas Yates of Toledo, O., believed to be the sole survivor on this side of the Atlantic of the "noble six hundred" who made the famous charge at the battle of Balaklava Oct. 25, 1854, has just celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of that event immortalized by Tennyson in his "Charge of the Light Brigade." Mr. Yates, though eighty-one years of age, works every day and shows in many other respects the clear grit of the men who rode "into the jaws of death" on that famous and fatal day.

When History Repeated Itself

By INA WRIGHT HANSON

Copyright, 1904, by Ina Wright Hanson

Miss Eugenie Barnett looked discontentedly across the veranda at her blond cousin in the cushion piled hammock.

"You've no business to be so pretty, Julia Knox, and to look so absurdly young. You are just as old as I am, and that is twenty-s"—

"Hush!" The little widow sat up quickly. "You mustn't, Eugenie. If we think we are young and never acknowledge that we are not young we'll fool the people into thinking"—

"'A pocket edition of blue and gold,'" continued Eugenie morosely. "That's what Dr. Hunt called you, and it suits you too. I tell you, Julia, it's little short of tragedy to worship beauty as I do and be homely as a hedge fence myself!"

"The cypress hedge fence at the foot of my garden is beautiful, I think," said the widow, lying back among her cushions again. "Find another simile, Eugenie."

The girl turned away impatiently with smarting eyes. She was so tired of the continually booming breakers and drearily whistling buoy. She wished she hadn't come to California to visit Julia Knox. If Julia weren't a widow or if Dr. Hunt weren't spending his vacation here or if Julia weren't so pretty and she so plain or if"—

"Eugenie, dear"—Mrs. Knox looked out of half shut, baby blue eyes—"do you think it was prearranged for you and Frankie Hunt and me to play together as children and meet again at Santa Cruz as grownups? Don't you think that Dr. Hunt"—

"Who filches my good name?"

When a tall young man came around the porch corner he saw only Mrs. Knox. Her cousin had disappeared.

As Eugenie entered her room her cousin's clear tones floated through the open window.

"She is having one of her spells again because she isn't a Helen of Troy, and it reminds me of our school days. Do you remember when she cut off her hair in a rage because it was brown and straight instead of yellow and curly like mine?"

"Now, I call that mean of Julia," Eugenie thought, her face growing crimson as she heard them laugh. If she had not shut the window just then she might have heard the doctor's answer.

"No one but Eugenie thinks her face isn't good to look at."

By and by Julia ascended the stairs and tapped at her cousin's door.

"Dr. Hunt has his auto here and wishes us to ride with him. Get your hat and come on."

"Thanks. I have another engagement."

"All right," answered the widow sweetly. "I'll try to make up for your absence."

"I don't doubt it," observed Eugenie.

Mrs. Knox went down five steps and paused. She wrinkled her white brow unbecomingly, sighed and went back.

"Honey," she called softly, her pretty lips at the keyhole, "did no one ever tell you that along with the Barnett nose you inherited the Barnett trick of making folks like you?"

Eugenie's grim features relaxed. "Good little Julia," she sighed as the red auto puffed away.

Her mind trailed back into the past. She was a little, dark faced girl again, playing with Frankie Hunt, her sworn champion until her cousin, Julia Epps, came to school. Personified daintiness was Julia Epps, from the blue bow on her yellow curls to the black bows on her tiny slippers.

One miserable, lonely noon hour Eugenie peered around the beech tree where she and he had always played together and saw something the memory of which even after a dozen years made a green flame leap into the woman Eugenie's eyes. Frankie Hunt was putting on Julia Epps' finger the ring which he had been digging out of a black button for her, Eugenie Barnett.

Another day she and Julia sat on Julia's mother's porch eating cookies. With her free hand Julia smoothed her ruffled white apron complacently.

"He says he loves me the best of anybody," she announced coquettishly.

"Tomorrow is the last day of school," answered her cousin, "and my mamma says I may wear my lovely new dress. Then you'll see whom he likes best."

The fair Julia tossed her golden curls and answered grandly, "I think dresses won't make any difference in his love."

"You'll see," Eugenie replied darkly.

That night Eugenie braided her somewhat curtailed tresses into numerous tight little braids. Next day, arrayed in the new dress—how well she remembered the gay plaids—with fluttering ribbons, kinky locks and the mien of a conqueror, she entered the schoolroom after the other children were seated.

With cleverly assumed carelessness she glanced in Julia's direction. That young lady was wearing the same dress she had worn several times before, and, glory, that same old white apron! Eugenie wore no apron. She had been forced to start with one, but it was lying ingloriously under a stone in a fence corner. Retribution lay within its crumpled folds, but retribution could wait.

Just before recess she looked at Frankie Hunt. His eyes had been fixed upon her all the morning, and now he smiled entreatingly. Eugenie modestly lowered her eyes. At recess she stayed in her seat, being very busy with her geography. Frankie Hunt was tying a refractory shoe string. When the teacher was out of sight he jumped over four intervening desks to Eugenie's seat.

"You look awful nice, Genie. Will you be my girl?" he said.

And Eugenie answered solemnly, "If you'll cross your heart and hope to die you'll always love me better'n Julia Epps."

The woman Eugenie laughed and came back to the present.

"History sometimes repeats itself," she remarked. "I don't see now why Julia Knox"—

A half mile from Mrs. Knox's cottage the red auto, puffing back, came upon a surprising sight. A young woman, looking at once defiant and apologetic, her white dress mud spattered and blood stained, her brown hair blown about by a saucy sea breeze, stood by the roadside holding in her arms a dilapidated yellow mongrel, one leg swathed stiff in plaid silk bandages.

"Eugenie, where in the world are you going with that dirty dog?" shrilled the widow.

"Home," answered Eugenie laconically, turning toward a short cut across the hill.

"What's this?" and Dr. Hunt stepped out of the auto. "Broken leg, eh? Well, old fellow, you are in luck to get a capable surgeon in your hour of calamity. Silk bandages, too. I wonder if the splints are gold or ivory."

"I had forgotten my handkerchief, so I had to use my neck ribbon," she explained, starting to go.

"Get in here, Genie!" He used the pet name as in the old days. "This is better than walking."

"Oh, don't!" shrieked Julia Knox. "Don't get in here with that awful dog! I can't bear the sight of blood!" She closed her eyes shudderingly.

The little dog whined softly and tried to lick Eugenie's face. Her pulse leaped as she met the doctor's eyes.

"You did it scientifically, and you aren't a bit pale. Shouldn't you like to be a doctor?"

"Or a doctor's wife?" suggested Julia Knox, a trifle maliciously.

"Will you, dear?" he asked eagerly, watching the color flood her dark cheek. "Will you be this doctor's wife?"

"Well!" said the pretty widow explosively. "I guess I'm not needed here. Eugenie, if you can guarantee that little beast not to bite I suppose I can take him home for you."

"I can't," said Eugenie happily, starting for the third time across the hill.

"But," interposed the doctor, "you haven't answered my question. Will you be my girl, Genie?"

She looked back at him with radiant eyes and answered with mock solemnity:

"If you'll cross your heart and hope to die that you'll always love me better'n Julia Knox."

She Had Her Way.

The late Counselor E., chairman of the quarter sessions for Dublin, was so remarkable for his leniency to female culprits that a woman was seldom convicted when he presided.

On one occasion when this humane barrister was in the chair a prim looking woman was put to the bar of the commission court, at which presided the equally humane though perhaps not so gallant Baron S.

She was indicted for uttering forged bank notes. According to usual forms of law, the clerk of the crown asked the prisoner if she was ready to take her trial.

With becoming disdain she answered "No!" She was told by the clerk she must give her reasons why.

As if scorning to hold conversation with the official, she thus addressed his lordship: "My lord, I won't be tried here at all. I'll be tried by my Lord E."

The simplicity of the woman, coupled with the well known character of E., caused a roar of laughter in the court which even the bench could not resist.

Baron S., with his usual mildness, was about to explain the impossibility of her being tried by the popular judge and said, "He can't try you," when the woman stopped him short and, with an inimitable sneer, exclaimed:

"Can't try me? I beg your pardon, my lord; he tried me twice before."

She was tried, however, and for the third time acquitted.

Where Time Is Nothing.

Miss Mary E. Dunham in her book of travels through the Balkan states says she found that the idea of women traveling without a male escort in those countries struck the people whom she met as most singular. A Montenegrin was also astonished at an expenditure of money upon travel which seemed to him without an adequate purpose.

The English, he had been told, wanted to see and know everything. They traveled everywhere. It must be a very expensive habit. It had perhaps cost me £8, he suggested, to come this distance. I admitted that it had, and he expressed great astonishment at the lavish expenditure.

"And it takes not only money, but time," said my companion.

He laughed merrily. "Time! What is time? Time is nothing. You live and then you die." The idea of reckoning "time" amused him vastly.

"Time," said a Hungarian who was of the party, in order to show his superior knowledge, "is thought very much of by the English. I have been told that they have a proverb which says, 'Time is money.'"

We corroborated this report, to the astonishment of both men, for ever the Hungarian thought this was going rather far. The Montenegrin thought it one of the wildest statements he had ever met with and shook his puzzled head.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

North End Family Very Ill From Eating Canned Peas.

The family of Mr. William Duncan, who formerly lived on Hunter-st., but who now resides at 696 Water-st., had an experience on Saturday which they will not soon forget.

It appears that on Saturday a can of green peas was purchased at a local grocery, and the family, which consists of Mr. Duncan and three children, partook of them freely at tea. A little while after they became very ill, and symptoms of poisoning were in evidence. Emetics were administered and Mr. Duncan and his two sons were soon out of danger.

The emetics had no effect on Mr. Duncan's daughter. She did not grow any better, and yesterday Dr. McFaul was called in. He succeeded in getting the poison out of her system with a stomach pump, and she immediately began to recover. This morning she is as well as ever.

TRIP OF PLEASURE

Between Peterborough and Bobcaygeon by New Railway.

The railway connection is developing much more trade with Peterborough than was expected, says the Bobcaygeon Independent. The return fare is $2, the same as it used to be by stage. But instead of a day's travelling of discomfort, and exposure, it is now a comfortable trip in a luxurious room, and instead of two hours to do business, and get dinner, there is now over five hours in town. Leaving here in the morning the train reaches Burketon, where there is a delay that gives ample time for a good, comfortable breakfast at the Burketon hotel, and Peterborough is reached soon after eleven. Returning from town at five o'clock the run to Burketon on the main line is made on the Montreal to Detroit train, which has a cafe car, and either tea or dinner can be taken on the European plans. A four course dinner on this car, costing about $2, is entirely optional, and can be cut out of the programme by a 15 cent restaurant lunch package purchased in town. Compared with the old stage a run to Peterborough now is a trip of pleasure, giving plenty of time for business and the biggest amount of train travel for the money in the market.

PLAINTIFF WON VERDICT

Case in Which Dangerous Horse was Exchanged for Buggy.

The case, Roddick vs. Caldwell, was tried in the Division Court last Friday, before His Honor Judge Ketchum and a jury. Last summer G. E. Caldwell, of Perrytown and John Elliott, of Port Hope, drove into town looking for a horse deal. After vainly interviewing some of local horsemen, Caldwell came upon Mr. J. D. Roddick with the avowed intention of purchasing a rubber-tired buggy, but in a few minutes he offered to exchange a grey horse for one of Mr. Roddick's best turn outs. A visit was made to the stables of the Balmoral Hotel, where an inspection was made of the horse. In the presence of Mr. T. Chisholm, Caldwell warranted the horse to be quiet, well broken to double harness, and that he would not kick. A deal was made, and Caldwell was soon on his way home with his new buggy. The horse proved to be anything but quiet, and Roddick found his life in danger as soon as he attempted to put the harness on the animal. Caldwell refused to meet Roddick's demand for compensation, and action was taken. Caldwell swore that he had bought the horse in April for $120, but had forgotten the man's name from whom he purchased it, that he had never known the horse to kick except on one occasion, although he had been driven by different people, and at all kinds of farm work. The jury found in favor of the plaintiff for $75 and costs.

SPOKE ON LACK OF REVERENCE

Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen's Discourse in St. Paul's Church.

TOO MUCH COMMERCIALISM

All Worldly or Social Success is in Vain if We Forget our Duty to the Creator—What Constitutes True Greatness.

Rev. H. B. A. Ketchen, B.A., of Toronto, whom the congregation of St. Paul's church hope to secure as assistant pastor, in the place of Rev. J. A. Wilson, preached in the Mission on Sunday morning. and in St. Paul's at night.

There was a large congregation in attendance at the evening service, and Mr. Ketchen delivered a strong and impressive sermon, full of striking truths and impressive facts.

His text was: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."—Proverbs 9-10. With an intelligence almost amounting to genius the author of this book completes the mission of an analysis of life. To discover the highest good of man was his object. One of the striking things in this age of ours is the apparent lack of reverence. No evil is so insiduously baneful, paralysing national and individual life, and killing the truer instincts of our natures as this lack of reverence for God and sacred things. This age is intensely commercial in its spirit. Its horizon it limited by objects of marketable value or pleasures that die or kill in their passing, destroying that soul culture which is so necessary to all enduring work. We are forfeiting our heritage of God-fearing integrity and descending from the splendid religious conscience which marked the last generation. We are sacrificing life on the altar of selfishness, and there is no tyrant in all the world like the despotism of self. The speaker did not wish them to mistake this criticism as he was no pessimist. Material and moral progress came in tidal waves, and we are passing through a transitory period at the present time. We must therefore look below the surface to see the steady, resistless undercurrent of moral and Godly development. The tragic indifference of men to God, to whom we owe everything, is appalling.

REV. H. B. A. KETCHEN

Our spare hours—leisure moments—are very often given to projecting commercial schemes or to frivilous amusements, and almost unconsciously we are drawn into and so absorbed with these things that we too seldom stop to remember the Creator. Without reverence for God the foundational stone of the most brilliant career or successful life is merely wasted energy. Reverence is the key to true living and right thinking, which not only leads to worldly achievement, but all permanent success. Reverence is also the master key to knowledge. Those scientists, who have delved the deepest into nature's laws, business men, those who have shown true financial genius and have accomplished the most, the greatest historians, the most illustrious statesmen have been men of reverence. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and fear of the Lord means right heart relationship with God.

Carlyle said that no nation or individual ever amounted to anything that did not have reverence for God, and history has written many bitter and scathing satires on irriverence. True, deep, royal religion is the only satisfactory road to noble manhood and womanhood. What is needed in this age is robust Christianity and a spirit of reverence, being ever mindful of our duty to our Creator and thankful to Him for His manifold blessings.

Crossley and Rev. J. G. Lewis.

Pains in the Chest.

Mr. John Clark, Port Hope, Ont., states:—"Last winter I was so bad with a cold that I could not speak above a whisper, and had great pains in the chest. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and one bottle cured my cold which I believe would have proven very serious if I had not used this medicine."

DEATH OF JOS. CONLIN

Appendicitis Was the Cause—He Resided Here for Three Years.

Joseph J. Conlin, of 206 Smith-st., who has been a resident of Peterborough for about three years, died on Saturday evening at the Nicholls Hospital from appendicitis. He had undergone an operation at the beginning of the week. It appeared in every way successful, and the patient was recovering. On Saturday, however, there was a serious change and his life gradually ebbed.

The late Mr. Conlin came to Peterborough from Cobourg, and had been employed in the Peter Hamilton Company's foundery. There are surviving him a wife and three sons, Augusta, James and Arthur. His mother and two sisters reside in Cobourg. Mrs. A. Cooney, 164 Aylmer-st. is also a sister. During his brief residence here the late Mr. Conlin formed a large number of friends and they will greatly deplore his death.

The body was conveyed to Cobourg to-day by G.T.R. and the funeral will take place there to-morrow.

Stomach and Liver Troubles.

Mr. Alex. M. Finn, Inkerman, N.B., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for derangements of the kidneys and liver and stomach troubles, and can certify that they did me a good deal of good. I can heartily recommend them to anyone suffering as I did."

ROBERT B. McKEE PASSED AWAY

One of Town's Prominent Business Men for Many Years.

VETERAN HARDWARE MAN

Was Born in Peterborough and Started in Business in 1871 with Late R. S. Davidson—Was President of the Peterborough Hardware Company.

Peterborough has lost another of its prominent citizens in the death of Mr. R. B. McKee, which occurred on Saturday evening about eleven o'clock. Mr. McKee had been ill for about six months. The trouble was a general breaking up of health, under which he gradually sank.

By the death of Mr. McKee there has passed away one who was actively associated with Peterborough's business life for over thirty years. Born in 1845, the son of the late Wm. McKee, one of the very early settlers of Peterborough, he was educated in the schools here, and his business life began when he entered the employ of the late Robert Kingan as a hardware clerk. This store was situated in the building now occupied by the Review on Hunter-st. Later Mr. McKee was with Miller & Bertram, and again with the late John Bertram, when that gentleman opened a hardware store of his own. On the 10 of May, 1871, Mr. McKee became a partner with the late R. S. Davidson, and they purchased the business of the late Robert Hamilton, situated one door east of Madill's drug store. Here they were burned out in 1876, and later became installed in the corner building.

In the year 1890 Mr. McKee sold out his interest to the late R. S. Davidson, and Mr. V. Eastwood. The store was now situated in the building occupied by E. Brown & Company. On July 1st, 1892, the Peterborough Hardware Company was formed by an amagamation with Fortye & Pheland, and Mr. McKee returned to become President. They moved into their present handsome premises in February, 1893. Mr. McKee had, ever since, occupied the position of President. He was a director of the Peterborough Lock Company, and also of the Peterborough Water Company until a few years ago, when the system was taken over by the town.

Three years ago the Company experienced a great loss in the death of one of its members, the late R. S. Davidson. Under the able men at its head, the concern has been a most successful one, and the fact is explained in large measure by the business ability of the late Mr. McKee. He applied himself to his business and realized the reward of well-directed effort and of sound methods. His friends were very many, and universal regret will be felt at his death.

The late R. B McKee is survived by two daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) Wightman and Miss Edith. His wife was Miss Elizabeth Pentland, sister of Dr. J. B. Pentland, and she predeceased him by about 15 years. There are two brothers, Thomas, of Peterborough, and William, of Seattle. In politics Mr. McKee was a Reformer, and he was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, Rubidge-st., to Little Lake cemetery.

Quite a number of men prominent in the business world have had their start with the Peterborough Hardware Company. Two might be mentioned—Mr. W. H. Cottingham, general manager of the Sherwin Williams Company, and Mr. Samuel Kennedy, the present head of the Kennedy Hardware Co., Toronto.

Amateur sport had a great friend in Mr. McKee, and he was for quite a number of years President of the Peterborough Baseball Club.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

THE SEVEN SEALS.

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—In the name of Christianity, I protest against the profane use by Hon. Mr. Ross of the above words, taken from Chapter 5, of the Book of Revelations. He asks the electorate to forget all the iniquity of which his party has been guilty, to let it all be as a sealed book, "sealed with seven seals." When one considers the tremendous import of the words which the hon. gentleman quotes, he is staggered by the rank blasphemy of which Mr. Ross stands condemned by such a frivolous application of so sacred a passage in Holy Writ.

Where is the reverend editor of the "Globe" that he should allow such conduct to go unrebuked? Where is the noble army of Presbyterian Defenders of the Faith, of whom Mr. Ross is professedly one, that they condone such an outrage upon our Holy Religion? The Premier's attitude upon the temperance question pales into insignificance compared with this satanic utterance.

Yours &c,
RELIGIOUS.

The Treasurer, Mr. Peter Campbell, read the following report, which was adopted:—

	$944 25

The report of Mr. G. Cochrane, agent of the Society, already published, was read and adopted.

Mr. J. H. Burnham in regard to the report said he thought the Society was doing grand work.

A resolution moved by Mr. J. H. Burnham, and seconded by Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, thanking those parties who had so generously assisted the Society, was unanimously carried.

The election of officers was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:—

Hon. President—Hon J. R. Stratton.

Secretary—Mr. R. M. Dennistoun.

Dr. Torrance, Rev Mr. Potter, Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, Rev. Mr. Davidson, Rev. Dr. Crothers, Rev. Mr. Jolliffe, Rev. Mr. Major, Rev. Mr. Scott, Rev. Mr. Brace, Mr. K. Eardley-Wilmot and the Mayor-elect.

NEGLECTED CHILDREN.

Mr. J. J. Kelso, of Toronto, Superintendent of Neglected Children, addressed the meeting, expressing his pleasure at being present. He had always had high regard for the work and the officers in Peterborough. It was very important to get good officers. In some places the work had suffered because of the difficulty of getting the right kind of people interested.

The Children's Aid Act was passed in 1893. At that time a great many people were doubtful as to the advisability of passing such a measure. They said that it would destroy the authority of the parent over the child, and was unwarranted interference with the liberty of a subject. Before that there was no law by which the Society could step in between the parent and child. The work has gone on in a satisfactory manner. Between 10,000 and 15,000 children have come under the care of the Society.

It was impossible to estimate properly the good results of the work. The method employed was to try to keep the children in their homes and see that they were being properly brought up, and if they were homeless to have them placed in comfortable homes.

Most of the childen had been placed in country homes, where experience has shown that they got along very very well. Some people appear to think that they were worked too hard. Of course they had to assist in the work, which was but right. Children brought up in idleness eventually drifted into the prisons and reformatories. The children placed in country homes were very healthy; this was shewn by the fact that only a very small percentage of them die. The children were robust and ruddy, and had none of the ills and aches so common amongst city children. They lived to be industrious and respectful citizens. It was a fundamental principle of the Society to look after the children until they are eighteen, nineteen or twenty years of age.

CREDIT WHERE DUE.

Mr. Kelso said the country people who adopted the children from the Society, didn't get as much credit as they deserved. An interesting fact in connection with this was that over 800 children under 6 years of age were adopted into country homes, which precluded the idea that they were being taken for the work they might do. The people in the country were doing splendid work and should be encouraged.

In the work of the Society the principle of punishment was supplanted by that of kindness. The Society was taking a [illegible] in the gaols and reformatories. It was almost impossible to reform children in the reformatories because they become contaminated by contact with each other. There was a great deal in getting the boys away from bad surroundings.

Mr. Kelso closed by urging the officers to continue in the work. It was a beautiful work with many opportunities of helping boys and girls. There was not, however, much reward or gratitude in it.

THE BEST PLACE.

In answer to a question Mr. Kelso said that he believed that the country was the best place to send children. They were on terms of social equality with the rest of the family, where in town they would not be so.

He also was in favor of corporal punishment and believed it would be very useful in stamping out youthful crime.

At the conclusion of his address a vote of thanks, moved by Mr. Dennistoun, and seconded by Rev. Father McColl, was unanimously carried.

Mr. George Edmison spoke briefly, endorsing Mr. Kelso's remarks. He, however, did not believe in the system of corporal punishment.

The meeting then adjourned.

CARNEGIE GIVES $540,000.

Becomes Joint Founder With Benjamin Franklin of School.

New York, Dec 17.—Announcement was made Thursday night that Andrew Carnegie had given to the city of Boston the sum of $540,000, and had become the joint founder with Benjamin Franklin of an institution for industrial training. The new enterprise is to be managed along the lines of the Cooper Institute in this city.

Benjamin Franklin, in his will, left to the city of Boston the sum of $5,000, which was to be invested and kept intact for a century, at the end of which time it was to be used for the benefit of the apprentices of the city.

The board of selectmen and the ministers of three denominations were mentioned as trustees on which the expenditure of this fund should fall. The amount was invested in real estate soon after the death of Franklin, which took place in 1790, and it was found on the termination of the trust that the fund had increased to $270,000.

By Wire and Air.

An accidental experiment in the velocity of sound is recounted by a correspondent. He went to his telephone, and just as he put the receiver to his ear he heard the click of another telephone. Another receiver had been removed and the line was open.

Then he heard through the telephone the shriek of a locomotive whistle, and a few seconds later the sound came through the open window in the usual way. Looking up, he saw a locomotive half a mile away, passing the house of a friend.

The mystery was solved. The telephone that was open was that at the distant house, and the sound of the whistle had come through its transformation into an electric current quicker than it had traveled through the air.

To Perpetuate the Name.

Montreal, Que., Dec. 17.—It is understood in Grand Trunk circles that the port finally selected for the Pacific terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific will be called Laurier as a compliment to the Prime Minister of Canada.

Fixed For Next Tuesday.

Paris, Dec. 17.—The meeting of the international commission to inquire into the North Sea incident has definitely been fixed for next Tuesday morning at the Foreign Office.

Are Your Nerves on Edge?

ARE YOU SENSITIVE TO LIGHT, SOUND AND MOTION? YOU NEED

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Twitching of the nerves, sudden starting, tenderness of the scalp or spine, headache at top or back of head, noises in the ears, sparks before the eyes, sleeplessness, dyspepsia, pains and cramps, neuralgia, timidity, irritability, melancholy, physical weakness and general debility are among the symptoms of nervous exhaustion.

You may look well enough and still be a victim of nervous prostration, but can do little with either mind or body without becoming greatly fatigued.

Good food, pure air, suitable heat, and the regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will thoroughly overcome the most extreme case of nervous exhaustion and prostration.

We need only to refer you to such extreme cases as those of Mrs. James Miles sen., of South Woodslee, Ont., Mrs. R. W. Edwards, 33 Murray st., Brantford, Ont., of Mr. S. Cloutier of 110 Laguchetiere street, Montreal, cases in which regular physicians were entirely unable to render assistance.

Use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly, and it will not be long before the wasting process will be overcome and the work of reconstruction begun. Note your increase in weight as strength and vigor are being restored.

Mrs. J. Hatcher, 224 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, Ont., and whose husband is a moulder at the Hamilton Foundry, states:

"I had an attack of inflammatory rheumatism which left me in a very run down state of health, and in fact my whole nervous system seemed exhausted and worn out. I could not sleep, and at times the pains in my head were almost unbearable. As a result of these symptoms I was unable to attend to my housework, and I felt miserable most of the time. On the advice of a friend I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and can say that it has proved of very great benefit to me. I am able to do my own work now, and feel healthier and stronger than I have for years. I can truthfully state that this is due to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which I consider a great health builder."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

BURIED TALENTS.

If I but had the price, I know I'd be a howling swell,
A brilliant connoisseur and show just how to do things well.
To get the most enjoyment from the things of every day
You'd only need inquire of me to learn the latest way.

I'm quick upon invention, and I know a thing or two.
I like a front seat always and an unobstructed view;
I'm sure I could design a lot of most amusing things
Had I the inspiration that a half a million brings.

I'd have no halfway doings, and the plans
I would evolve
Should carried out completely be. I would the problem solve
Of universal happiness, an earthly paradise.
I'm sure that I could do it if I only had the price.

It very seldom happens, though, that he who's best endowed
With sense enough to make things hum is by stern fate allowed
To have the necessary funds, to simply have the price.
And so the things that I can do, you see,
don't cut much ice.

Getting Started Right.

In going on a journey the most important thing is to get started right. Suppose the boat leaves at 10:30. The man who comes strolling along at 10:45 is apt to miss some of the chicken lunch that the picnic party has along unless they throw a chunk back to him, and then the chances are that he will not catch it.

But there is one detail more important than being on time. The man who is hurrying down to catch the boat or the train should be extremely careful about being run over by a trolley car. There is nothing like an accident of this sort to mar a day's pleasure. Even though the man can still go, it is very awkward to play drop the handkerchief with one leg missing, and he must have considerable money if he can make an impression on a girl when he has three teeth gone. Whatever else you may do, always take a good dose of antistreet car accident microbe before starting out on a pleasure trip.

Greater Joy.

We hear of the joy of labor
As though it alone were blessed.
Although it's fine, give me for mine
The joy of taking a rest!

Doesn't Work Both Ways.

"Young man, you're late this morning. This will never do."

"But I overslept myself."

"Have you no alarm clock?"

"You told me yesterday that no man could make a success by watching the clock."

She Couldn't Be Good.

Mrs. Brutle—Really, you know, I do not believe in being too good to servants.

Miss Caustique—Ah, I see that you appreciate your limitations.

To Get Cured.

Some men who cannot capture
The voters in their mesh
Must journey up Salt river
Because they are too fresh.

Ignorance.

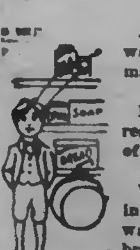
"I know no north nor south nor west!" shouted the orator.

"Poor man!" exclaimed the sympathetic old lady. "His early education was sadly neglected."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It would be easier to tolerate the man who knows it all if he did.

The most eloquent and wordy critic on earth cannot argue down gate receipts.



A real bright man always knows when a woman's no means no.

Love at first sight may really be called a species of second sight.

Would you naturally infer that horse sense was a little stronger brand than common sense?

Any one watching a small boy locate a jar of jam will come to the conclusion that lower animals are not the only ones that have instinct.

The wise man will not push a good thing along. He will chain it down.

To state an old truth over only a little more emphatic, no man is a hero in the eyes of his typewriter.

A bad actor may be a good man, but you don't see how.

It is a good deal harder to find money than to find the owner of it.

The man behind the slot machine thinks that pennies are just as good as any other kind of money.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

Then old Mr Gifford began talking of the late squire of Harewood, and lamenting over the follies of the present one, and the conversation drifted away from Sir Ralph Woodland. But naturally in the morning they returned to the subject. George went out early to order a carriage, and Laura and Anna Lindsay consulted about the luncheon. Anna was quite excited at the idea of the coming excursion, but Laura was unusually grave and pale. She was in the drawing-room alone when Sir Ralph arrived a few minutes before he was expected, and just as Anna Lindsay entered the room she overheard him say, in his somewhat deep voice:

"You were quite right about Miss Patty May. I have received such a letter from her, and have returned that also."

And there was something in his tone that attracted Anna's sharp ears. It implied an intimacy that their manner to each other before people did not indicate. He moved too rather quickly from her side as Anna entered, but then that was merely to go forward to shake hands with Anna.

But still a first suspicion that they were acting a part entered this woman's brain. She secretly watched them at luncheon, and she watched them as Sir Ralph and George sat opposite to them afterward in the carriage, and more than once she caught Sir Ralph's dark eyes fixed on Laura's face.

Then, when they reached Harewood, after going over the house, which looked dull and dreary, as all uninhabited houses do, the little party proceeded to the grounds, where the October sunshine was falling on the tall elms and grass-grown walks. Naturally they could not all walk abreast, and naturally, also, Anna fell to George's care, and Sir Ralph went on by Laura's side.

"George," said Anna, suddenly, "let us go and look at the fish-pond. Uncle was telling us last night about feeding the carp in it in the old squire's time."

"But the others have gone past it," said George.

"Oh, we will soon pick them up, and it will please uncle if we tell him we remembered about the carp."

"Very well," said George, good-naturedly, so the cousins went down to the fish-pond, while Sir Ralph and Laura proceeded onward towards the great belt of tall elms at the end of the grounds, amid which a colony of rooks were cawing and flitting from tree to tree.

"Well, what do you think of the place?" asked Sir Ralph, somewhat abruptly.

"It's a fine old place; but it looks rather desolate, does it not?" answered Laura.

"I like it, somehow; I think it will suit me."

"But, Sir Ralph," began Laura, nervously, "is—is it wise to come?"

"Why?" he replied, coldly.

This curt answer was so perfectly unexpected to Laura that her face flushed and then grew pale, and the two walked on in silence for the next few minutes.

"There is plenty of game, I am told, and it is a good hunting country," presently said Sir Ralph; "and the old house will look better when it is inhabited. You and Mr. Gifford must come and pay me a visit when I am settled."

"Thank you," answered Laura, mechanically. She had meant to ask him not to take this place, not to throw himself in her way, but Sir Ralph so ignored her in the matter that she felt it was impossible to speak on the subject.

"By-the-by," presently said Sir Ralph, "I was just going to tell you all about Patty May's letter when Miss Lindsay came in before luncheon. The girl is off her head! She entreated me—she implored me, with tears in her eyes, she wrote, to tell her how she had offended me. She said she must see me, and all sorts of insane folly."

"And did you write any answer?"

"Not a line; I simply put the letter into another envelope, and sent it back to her; and that was the rudest thing I could do, wasn't it? And she deserves everything she has got, and more."

"It was very treacherous."

"It was worse—" And then Sir Ralph, muttering something between his teeth that sounded very like an oath, turned away, and for the next few minutes preserved a gloomy silence, which Laura did not attempt to break.

His very walk showed the restless impatience of his mind. He was thinking, "She has spoiled two lives, this girl I was fool enough to believe," and his heart was very bitter toward Miss Patty May.

Presently, however, he roused himself from his moody reverie. He began talking of Danvers Park and Mrs Vanhurst.

"There is a woman," he said, "with an excellent husband of her own, yet who wishes and tries to make every man she sees in love with her. It is, however, only a happy delusion of her own that any man is."

"You are very severe on the poor little woman," answered Laura, smiling.

"Just severity. Ah, there is Mr. Gifford and Miss Lindsay; I wonder where they have been?"

When they met, George and Anna Lindsay explained. They had been to the fish-pond, and declared it was well worth seeing.

"It's a charming place, altogether, Sir Ralph," said Anna.

"It's a nice old-world place, I think," he answered. "When I am settled I hope you will all come and pay me a visit, Mr. Gifford."

"That would be delightful!" cried Anna Lindsay, instantly adopting the invitation.

"There's capital shooting about, so it would be a great treat to come," said George, highly pleased at the prospect.

"Well, then, I shall hope to see you ere long. What about the necessary repairs, Mr. Gifford?"

The two men then began to talk on business matters, and Laura and Anna Lindsay walked on together among the old-fashioned flower-beds, now choked with weeds. The leaves came floating down from the tall trees to their feet, in the air was the indescribable taint and tint of the fading year. A strange feeling of melancholy crept over Laura's heart, and she scarcely listened to or answered Anna Lindsay's lively remarks.

"He's evidently quite taken a fancy to the place," said Anna. "I wonder what his own place in Yorkshire is like?" And so on.

Sir Ralph had, however, apparently "quite taken a fancy to the place," for when the gentlemen rejoined them they found that the arrangements for the purchase of Harwood were practically complete.

"And I wish you joy of your purchase, Sir Ralph," said George, cordially.

"Thanks," replied Sir Ralph, without cordiality.

After this they started on their return to Suffold, and when they reached that town Sir Ralph took leave of Laura and Miss Lindsay. He was going to return that evening to Danvers Park, but before doing so went with George to his office to sign some necessary papers.

"I've done a good day's work," said George, with elation, when he returned home after parting with Sir Ralph.

"You have," thought Anna Lindsay, with malignant pleasure.

And just about ten days after this she felt sure that her suspicions regarding Sir Ralph Woodland and her cousin's wife were true. In the meantime George and Sir Ralph had written to each other twice about the repairs at Harewood, and in each George had shown Sir Ralph's letters to Laura and Anna Lindsay. They were, however, purely business ones, and he made no mention in them of any immediate intention of visiting Harewood. But one day, when Anna Lindsay came in from her afternoon walk, and was proceeding to the drawing-room for five o'clock tea, just as she reached the room door she heard a man's voice speaking within whose tone reminded her of Sir Ralph Woodland's.

She stopped and listened, and did not go into the room, but went to the top of the kitchen stairs and called the waiting-maid to her.

"Who is that in the drawing-room?" she asked.

"Sir Ralph Woodland, Miss Lindsay," answered the waiting-maid.

"Is my uncle there?" she inquired.

"No, miss, the old gentleman is out."

Anna Lindsay asked nothing more. She quietly returned to the drawing-room door, and from where she stood could distinctly hear what was said within the room. It was Sir Ralph Woodland who was speaking.

"I can not help it," he was saying. "I can not keep away."

"But is it wise, is it right?" answered Laura, with a tremulous ring in her voice.

"It may not be; but Laura, when I believed evil of you, when that lying girl maligned you so shamefully, and I tried to forget you, I could not. I came back to see you then, and I have come back now."

"I wish you had not bought that place, Sir Ralph. I tried to tell you this the day we went to Harewood."

"I know you did, and I would not listen. I bought it to be near you; but I have no need to tell you this."

"But—but it is no use—I can only see you very rarely."

"But for the sake of these rare visits I mean to live there. Do not reproach me, for I can not help myself."

Anna Lindsay listened no longer. She heard one of the servants coming up the kitchen stairs, and with swift, sure footsteps she hurried away. But she had heard enough. She knew now that the two in the drawing-room had met before they met at Lady Danvers' as George Gifford supposed; she knew that they had been lovers, she believed they were lovers now.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

We don't put Scott's Emulsion in the class of advertised cure-alls; it doesn't belong there. We hardly like to use the word "cure" at all, but we are bound to say that it can be used for a great many troubles with great satisfaction. Its special function is to repair the waste of the body when the ordinary food does not nourish, and this means that it is useful in many cases which are indicated by wasting.

NINE LIVES WERE LOST

By the Burning of the Star Line Steamer Glen Island.

Another Slocum Tragedy Was Averted Through Discipline and the Personal Courage of the Officers and Crew—Only Persons Lost Were Those Whose Escape Was Cut Off When the Alarm Was Sounded.

New York, Dec. 19.—By the burning of the Star Line steamer Glen Island in Long Island Sound Saturday nine lives were lost and property roughly estimated at a quarter of a million dollars was destroyed. That more lives were not sacrificed was due to the personal courage of the officers and crew and the excellent discipline maintained when a horrible death for all seemed almost a certainty. When the steamer was abandoned she was flame-swept from stem to stern, and yet the only persons who lost their lives were those whose escape had been entirely cut off by the fire before the alarm reached them. Of the ten passengers and the crew of 21, who sailed on the steamboat, 22, including eight passengers, were brought back.

Alarm For Fire Drill.

When the fire was discovered Captain McAllister at once sent in the alarm for fire drill. In the meantime the steering gear had been blocked and the pilots, finding themselves unable to direct the course of the steamer, rushed to the assistance of the other members of the crew in saving lives. Captain McAllister ordered McMullin to go to the hurricane deck and loosen one of the boats, while he went to the main deck and tried to loosen the two large lifeboats. Captain McAllister managed to loosen the port lifeboat. The other lifeboat was frozen to the davits, but a smaller one was soon ready to be lowered away. While the officers and crew were working there was a fearful scene of confusion among the ten passengers. They ran about the saloons in disarray. The woman who lost her life had been aroused by the stewardess and was on her way to one of the boats when she suddenly turned and dashed back into the flaming cabin. It is supposed that she went back for her valuables. She was not seen again and must have perished. There was no possibility of waiting for the rescue of those who failed to appear at once.

Captain Leaves Also.

In the large boat were the eight rescued passengers and six firemen and the captain. The large boat was just about to be lowered, when the latter ran up and jumped in, just in the nick of time, or he too would have perished. The smaller boat, which Pilot McMullin had managed to free, carried seven passengers. The two boats were rowed as far away from the burning steamer as was necessary to escape destruction and waited there and watched the boat burn. They made every possible effort to find any possible survivors, but there was none to be found. The burning steamer drifted away towards the Long Island shore. In the meantime the tug Bully, which was passing with a string of barges in tow, sighted the burning steamer, cast her tow adrift and came to the rescue of the persons in the boats. They were taken from the small craft, placed in the furnace room of the tug, clothing given to them and when the steamer Erastus Corning came along shortly afterwards, were transferred on board of the latter and taken to New York.

He was given a chair, and shortly after sitting down expired. He appeared in splendid health prior to this.

FIGHT AT PORT ARTHUR

Bitter 12 Days' Struggle As Seen With Stoessel's Eyes.

Russian Commander Claims That Japanese Lost 12,000 Men in Gaining 203-Metre Hill—Desperate Bayonet Struggles Characterized the Fighting—Russians Behaved As Do Heroes in Assault That Has Never Been Equalled in Fierceness.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—General Stoessel's despatches to the Emperor, which were received Friday night, were given out yesterday. The first is dated Nov. 25, and is as follows:

"I am happy to inform Your Majesty that on Nov. 20, after an increased bombardment, the Japanese attacked one of the forts on the northeastern front and leaped with a portion of their forces on the parapet. They were annihilated by rifle fire and the bayonet and thrown back into the trenches. Their reserves were scattered by shrapnel.

"From Nov. 21 to Nov. 23 the enemy violently bombarded the forts, and in spite of great losses, effected by their perseverance a passage between two forts on the northeastern front.

"At 5.30 o'clock in the evening of Nov. 23, after heavy firing the Japanese suddenly hurled themselves against several works on this front and seized a portion of the trenches, but they were thrown back by the reserves after a fierce bayonet struggle. They returned to the assault at midnight, and again occupied a part of the trenches, but were annihilated by our bayonets. At 2 o'clock in the morning all was over and Your Majesty's heroic troops were able to rest and start repairing the damage caused by the bombardment.

Lost 2,000 in Four Days.

"From the 20th to the 24th the Japanese lost more than 2,000 men. All of our troops behaved as heroes. The following especially distinguished themselves: Generals Kondratenko, Nikitin and Gorbatowsky, and Lieut.-Col. Naoumenko (a dozen other officers in lower grades are mentioned), on the bombardment of the town and harbor continues. A number of buildings have been destroyed, and the harbor has sustained some damage. The garrisons are in excellent spirits."

In another despatch, dated Nov. 28, General Stoessel says:

"The 26th and the 27th were the bloodiest days in the assaults on Port Arthur. The attacks began on the night of the 25th against our left flank, near Pigeon Bay. The first was repulsed with great loss to the Japanese. The same night the enemy attacked a detachment on Panlung Mountain, but were repulsed, as also was their attack on Visokai (203-Metre) Hill.

At the Point of the Bayonet.

"On the 26th the Japanese began to bombard and attack fiercely the forts on the northeastern front and the advanced trenches. The trenches repeatedly changed hands. Nevertheless on the night of the 26th we threw back the Japanese at the point of the bayonet. The enemy succeeded in blowing up the parapet of one of the forts, and began building parallels there. At another fort on the same night they laid sacks along the rampart, but our artillery dispersed them. Towards 10 o'clock in the evening the Japanese attacked a battery on our left flank in considerable strength, and at first obtained possession of a portion of the works, but our heroes brought bayonets into use, and the Japanese retired, leaving a heap of their men. Along the whole front the Japanese re-opened a violent fire against the interior of the fortress, keeping it up until 5 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 27.

"The help which God sent us on the birthday of our mother, the Czarina, gave us further victory."

The message mentions the same four officers as given in the preceding despatch, together with several others who specially distinguished themselves.

Assaults Repulsed.

"A further despatch from General Stoessel, dated Nov. 30, says:

"Since Nov. 27 the Japanese have been carrying on a violent bombardment, and making incessant assaults in considerable force against the Visokai Hill. Their assaults were repulsed."

On Dec. 3 General Stoessel reports as follows:

"The 12 days' assault which commenced on Nov. 20 was definitely repulsed last night. I am happy to say that Your Majesty's heroic troops alone could have been capable of doing this. There has never been such a fierce assault. The following contributed principally to its repulse: Generals Kondratenko, Nikitin, and Gorbatowsky, and Cols. Irrman and Eretiakoff, and Lieut.-Cols. Naoumenko and Gandourine. It is thanks to them and the heroic officers of naval sharp shooters and the artillery men that Port Arthur succeeded again in resisting. The Japanese, according to prisoners and Chinese, lost at least 12,000 men.

"We request your prayers and those of the Mother Empress, which are manifestly shielding us. As general aide-de-camp to Your Majesty I have expressed Your Majesty's thanks to the garrison.

Russ Ships Suffer.

On Dec. 5 General Stoessel reports:

"At 7 o'clock yesterday morning the Japanese have concentrated all their forces, began an assault of Visokai Hill, bombarding it simultaneously with 11-inch and 16-inch shells. A fierce fight raged all day. We repulsed three assaults.

"Towards evening the Japanese succeeded in obtaining possession of the crest of the hill, and immediately got two machine guns into position there.

"Among the wounded were General Tserpinsky and Lieut.-Col. Boutoussoff of the frontier guards. Col. Irrman performed prodigies of valour."

General Stoessel's last despatch is dated Dec. 10, and says:

"Since the capture of Visokai Hill our ships in the harbor have been suffering from eleven-inch Japanese shells.

General Tserpinsky succumbed to his wounds.

"The spirits of the troops are excellent."

Sevastopol Aground.

Tokio, Dec. 19.—The battleship Sevastopol has been successfully torpedoed ten times. Advices from Port Arthur say that she is aground and is evidently completely disabled.

Tokio, Dec. 19.—The Japanese have lost two torpedo-boats during all the operations against the battleship Sevastopol, which were reported yesterday in advice from Port Arthur.

London, Dec. 19.—A special despatch from Tokio reports that the Japanese naval bombardment on Saturday sank a Russian torpedo-boat at Port Arthur. Ditch of Petroleum.

Predicts His Own Defeat.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Admiral Rojestvensky expects to meet the fate of Admiral Cervera. He believes the Japanese will smash him all to pieces the first chance they get at him, as Sampson's fleet smashed Cervera at Santiago. "We are going to a shambles," are the words which Rojestvensky recently used in a description of his mission to the Far East. His views have been brought to Washington by a member of the diplomatic corps who recently returned from Russia.

Russia Buys Hay.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 19.—A secret order for several thousand tons of hay for export shipment has been placed with one of the leading feed firms of the city during the past few days, and circumstances point to the Russian Government as the purchasers.

300 STUDENTS ARRESTED.

Moscow Police and Cossacks Disperse a Demonstration of 5,000 People.

Moscow, Dec. 19.—The police and the Cossacks yesterday dispersed a demonstration of 5,000 students who had assembled in the principal streets and in front of the governor's palace. Three hundred of the students were arrested and sixty were injured. The revolutionary demonstrations occurred from noon till nearly evening. About 5,000 people participated, but the agitators did not succeed in drawing the workingmen into the disturbance, and after many collisions, the police firing blank volleys and charging with their sabres, the crowds were finally dispersed. Many were wounded and more were arrested. As far as is known, none of the rioters was actually killed, but one policeman is reported to have been fatally injured.

Girl Students Too.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—A meeting of the 404 undergraduate girls of the Medical Institute yesterday passed resolutions of sympathy with Sasoneff, who on Dec. 13 was sentenced to imprisonment for life for the murder of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve. Another resolution adopted demands liberal reforms.

Mr. Witte's Reports.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—M. Witte, president of the Ministerial Council, to whom, as chairman of special committee appointed in 1902 to investigate the question of the betterment of the conditions of rural enterprises, general revision of peasant laws, was confided the task of sifting the enormous mass of evidence collected, including the opinions of 11,000 of the best qualified peasant landlords, merchants and manufacturers, which filled several thousand volumes, has completed the gigantic task. In all points, M. Witte's recommendations aim for completion of the Emancipation Act of 1861.

FLAMES TO CONCEAL MURDERS.

Man Found Guilty of One Crime and Similar Deed Is Suspected.

Towanda, Pa., Dec. 19.—Charles Johnson was Saturday night found guilty of murder in the first degree in his trial on the charge of causing the death of Maggie B. Johnson, his wife, and Annie Benjamin, his niece. Mrs. Johnson and the girl were killed in their home, Sept. 18 last, and their bodies were cremated in a fire which destroyed the Johnson dwelling after the murder. Bigler Johnson, Nancy Johnson, Allan Johnson and Mrs. Merritt, all members of the family, are under indictment as accessories. The crime was committed for the purpose of obtaining the insurance on Mrs. Johnson's life.

Bloodhounds After This One.

Monticello, Ark., Dec. 19.—W. M. Stevenson and his wife and Mrs. Willie Barrett, a visitor, have been burned to death in the Stevenson home, twelve miles east of here.

Sheriff Wilson made an investigation and sent to Pine Bluff for bloodhounds. Stevenson was known to keep considerable money in the house, and it is believed he was robbed and the place set on fire to cover the crime.

Fire At Cayuga.

Cayuga, Dec. 19.—The Campbell House Hotel, Cayuga, owned and managed by J. A. Hoshall, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning, together with Wigg's livery barn adjoining, containing horses. The total loss is: J. A. Hoshall, $12,000; insurance in Gore, $1,500; T. J. Wigg's total loss on livery, $1,400; insurance in Perth Mutual, $600.

Not Yet Bailed Out.

London, Ont., Dec. 19.—Another effort was made Saturday to secure bail for Boyd and Stevenson, accused of conspiracy in the Douglas $10,000 case. Bondsmen were secured ready to furnish $6,000, but the court would not accept less than $10,000 for one, or joint bail of $15,000, exclusive of personal re[illegible]

Seven to One.

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

SNOW STORM AND GALE.

Furious Blizzards and Many Disasters On Atlantic Coast.

New York, Dec. 19.—The snowstorm and gale which struck the coast Saturday afternoon and continued until the early hours of yesterday was the most violent that has occurred for several years. Reports from the New Jersey and New England coast and from incoming ocean steamers tell of furious gales and many disasters.

In the river and harbor the traffic was for a while during the worst of the storm, almost at a standstill. So heavy was the snowfall that lights could not be seen from the river a boat's length ahead, and ferryboats and other craft proceeded at a diminished headway, feeling their way cautiously through the blinding storm.

No accidents of any moment were reported.

Fifteen Schooners Driven Ashore.

Woodsholl, Mass., Dec. 19.—The tug Susie D. arrived from Vineyard Haven yesterday afternoon and reported that the storm early yesterday drove fifteen schooners, anchored in the harbor, ashore, while others were damaged through collisions. The damage was the heaviest since the November gale of 1898. As far as could be learned, no lives were lost.

Rescued By Life Saving Crew.

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 19.—A schooner said to be the Lizzie H. Brayton, from Baltimore for Providence, with a cargo of soft coal, is ashore off Bayhead life-saving station, the crew of which rescued the crew of the stranded vessel. Details are meagre, as the Government telephone service is interrupted.

Given Up As Lost.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 19.—The schooner Ivanhoe, which left here six weeks ago yesterday for the Bahamas, has been given up as lost. She carried a crew of seven men, all relatives, and all belonging to Burgo, Nfld., where the vessel was owned. She also had one passenger, W. F. Collings, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., who was going to open and manage a branch business of a Halifax commission house. The Ivanhoe is a new vessel, having been launched last June. The hull was valued at $6,000 and the cargo at $5,000.

SCOLDED BY HIS WIFE.

George Van Norman of Dundas Went and Hanged Himself.

Hamilton, Dec. 19.—Because his wife scolded him, George Van Norman, Dundas, went and hanged himself on Saturday evening. He was 23 years of age, and his wife is 36 years old. He was her second husband. Just as they were about to sit down for tea, his little three-year-old step-daughter required correction, and he set her down hard in a chair. The mother remonstrated, and told him not to do it again, but to whip the child if she needed correction. "I'll never do it again" was the only remark Van Norman made. He picked up his hat and walked out, returning to eat his supper.

His wife, about 7 o'clock, took his supper up to John Fisher & Sons' Paper Mill, where he was employed as night watchman. She could not get into the mill and returned again at 9 o'clock. The doors being still locked she went to Mr. Fisher's residence to get assistance. On the door being broken open, the night watchman's dead body was found dangling on a rope. He had made a rope of heavy cord, threw it over a shaft, stood on a chair, stuck his head through a noose and then kicked the chair away. He was evidently determined to end his life, for he had to draw his legs up to prevent his feet from touching the floor. He had lived in Dundas only about six months.

There has been some complaints voiced about nominations being held on the day which will be legally observed as Christmas, but as the law is general in its application it will effect all municipalities the same and if citizens of other places can stand being disturbed on that day and going without their Christmas dinners until a late hour, why, Peterborough residents will have to do likewise.

SLATE PENCIL KILLED THE BOY

Harld Gainer Fell From Chair, Receiving Fatal Injury.

PENCIL PENETRATED NOSE.

Caused Paralysis of the Brain—Boy Was the Only Son of Mr. Norman Gainer, o Otonabee, 4 Miles from Keene.

A very sad bereavement has visited the home of Mr. Norman Gainer, Lot 20, of the 7th concession Otonabee, by the sudden death of his six year old son, Harold. The little fellow, about seven o'clock last night was sitting on his knees in a chair, which was leaning against a table. Without any warning the chair slipped and the lad fell heavily to the floor. A slate pencil, which he held in his hand, penetrated his nose for a considerable distance, and inflicted such injury that the blood clotted in the organ, and it seems caused paralysis of the brain. Dr. Shaw, of Keene, was called, and everything possible was done for the little fellow, but he died about eight o'clock this morning. He was the only son of Mr. Gainer, and friends will extend their sincere sympathy at this time of affliction.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday to Fife's Cemetery, Otonabee.

There was a good attendance at the Sunday meeting yesterday afternoon. The subject was "Courage," and as the meeting was thrown open for thoughts on the subject from the members, thus making the meeting especially helpful. There will be no meeting until Sunday, January 8th, when Mrs. H. P. Kennedy will be the leader.

Dangers of Melancholy.

The weak, broken spirited person grows morbid and melancholy, and the brain degenerates rapidly under the influence of these mental states. Melancholia is something that comes more within the province of the will power than anything else. It can be cast off and avoided only in this way. Sometimes for the lack of stimulating the will physicians will recommend a change of occupation, scenery and association. This is merely an attempt to rescue the mind from introspection and give the will an opportunity to assert itself. Sometimes this is accomplished, and then, if followed up by cultivating the will, a permanent cure may be effected.—Exchange.

Finding an Excuse.

An irascible old colonel who used to play golf at Sandwich, which is on the river Stour, had a habit, common with many, of blaming everybody but himself for his bad strokes. Finally one day, becoming badly bunkered, he first took mighty vengeance on the turf with his club; then, glaring around in expectation of the usually friendly comments and nobody saying anything, he blurted out, "How can you expect a man to play decent golf on these cursed links with ships passing up and down the channel?"

Eyes as a Sign of Intellect.

Generally the special point of difference between unimportant and remarkable people lies in their eyes, in the clear, steady, piercing gaze which is able to subdue or terrify the beholder, writes Lady Violet Greville in the Graphic. Sir Richard Burton's look could never be forgotten; neither, I imagine, could Napoleon's or Victor Hugo's or that of any other great man. The eye is the window of the brain, and through it shines the intelligence.

Expected Acquisitions.

"You don't belong to one of the oldest families, do you?" said the supercilious woman.

"No," answered Mrs. Cumrox. "But after we get the girls married we expect to have several of the oldest families belonging to us."

Hot and Cold.

Bilks (disconsolately)—Yes, my creditors are making it hot for me. Jilks (consolingly)—Well, this is a cold world.—Pittsburg Post.

THE CROWS OF INDIA

THEY ARE THE ARCH VILLAINS OF THE BIRD WORLD.

Two Species of the Feathered Vagabonds Exist Side by Side and Ply Their Tricks of Iniquity in Common—Larceny For the Love of It.

It is quite impossible for any one who has not sojourned in the "Land of Regrets" to appreciate the important part played by crows in the daily life of the Anglo-Indian. India without its crows is unthinkable; it could only be likened to London without its fogs. Wherever human beings have their abodes there are multitudes of corvidae to be found, for the Indian crow is an inseparable appendage of town and village. Two species exist side by side in India, the great blackbird known to Anglo-Indians as the corby and the smaller gray necked species. Both birds lead lives of aimless vagabondage; both are scoundrels of the most pronounced type; both are sinners beyond redemption. Did the black crow exist alone it would be held up as the emblem of all that is evil and mischievous. As things are, its iniquities pale into insignificance beside those of its gray necked cousin. The very name of the latter bird is sufficient to raise the ire of the righteous man. To call the arch villain of the bird world "the splendid" is mere mockery of words. Jerdon, the famous Indian naturalist, "often regrets that such an inappropriate specific name should have been applied to this species, for it tends to bring into ridicule among the unscientific the system of nomenclature."

The Indian crow is able to utilize most things. A Calcutta bird has made itself famous for all time by constructing a nest of the wires used to secure the corks of soda water bottles. Bombay is very jealous of Calcutta, and the crows, of course, ape their betters. The Bombay birds determined not to be outdone by the Calcutta corvidae. Accordingly one of the former promptly built her nest of gold and silver spectacle frames stolen from Messrs. Lawrence & Mayo's factory. The value of the materials used in the construction of this nest was estimated at £20. But crows will appropriate things for which they can have no possible use. They commit larceny for the love of the thing. The Indian crow is the incarnate spirit of mischief. The bird will wantonly tear a leaf out of a book lying open on the table. My gardener, adds Mr. Dewar, puts every morning fresh flowers in the vases. This operation is performed on the veranda. One day the man was called away from his work for a couple of minutes. During his absence a crow swooped down and succeeded in taking a beakful of flowers and breaking the vase in which they were placed. A retired colonel of my acquaintance who lives in the Himalayas is a very enthusiastic gardener, and the crows are the bane of his life. They root up his choicest seedlings, sever the heads of his most superb flowers from the stalk and fly away with the little pieces of paper which he places in cleft sticks to mark where seed have been sown.

But it is in towns that the iniquity of the crows reaches its maximum. The Madras corvidae are a byword throughout the length and breadth of India. The hospital is their favorite playground. They are never so happy as when annoying the inmates. They know at once when a person is too ill to move. The consequence is that it has been found necessary to have made for all the tables wire covers which protect articles placed at the bedside from the ravages of the "treble dated birds." I have seen a Madras crow quietly helping itself to the contents of a basket which an old woman was carrying on her head. The bird was possessed of sufficient intelligence to refrain from alighting on the basket. Had it done so its presence would probably have been detected. It flapped along just above the top of the basket, keeping pace with the woman, and so, unperceived by her, made a meal off the contents. The knavish tricks of crows are by no means confined to human beings. As Colonel Cunningham truly says, "Any animal pets are, of course, even more than inanimate objects, subject to their attentions, and unless in wholly inaccessible places are constantly liable to have their food purloined and their lives rendered a burden by persistent and ingenious persecution." I once possessed a greyhound which used to be fed in the garden. A man had to stand over the dog while it was feeding; otherwise the crows would devour the greater portion of the meal. Their plan of campaign was simple and effective. They soon learned the dog's feeding hour and as it drew near would take up a position on any convenient tree. The moment the greyhound began to eat a crow would swoop down and peck viciously at its tail. The dog would, of course, turn on the bird, and the others would seize this opportunity to snatch away some of the food. The process would be repeated until the meal was over. Crows tease and annoy wild creatures with the same readiness that they worry domestic animals. They mob every strange bird in much the same way as the London street arab makes fun of any person in unusual attire.

Sudden Want of Information.

Tommy—Ma, lend me a lead pencil. Mother—I just left pen and ink on the table for you. What do you want with a pencil? Tommy—I want to write to the editor of the paper to ask him what'll take ink stains out of the parlor carpet.

HE DIDN'T UNDERSTAND.

But Her Sweet Voice Satisfied Him Nevertheless.

At the long distance phone:
Pretty Girl—How do you do?
Telephone—B-r-r-r.
"I said, 'How do you do?'"
B-r-r-r.

"Didn't understand? Well, it was nothing. Talk about something else. I am so glad to hear your dear voice again."

B-r-r-r.

"Want to know what it was I said first? Why, it was nothing; just how—no, no—h-o-w—understand that?"

B-r-r-r.

"Not h-o-r; h-o-w. How do you do?"

B-r-r-r.

"Don't get it? Well, it doesn't make a bit of difference. How natural your voice sounds, dearest! Do you miss me?"

B-r-r-r.

"Honestly, it wasn't anything; just what any one would say when they see you after a long time. I simply inquired conventionally after your health."

B-r-r-r.

"No, no; not heart. I hope that is in my keeping."

B-r-r-r.

"My darling, I would make you understand if I could, but I cannot. If it were of any importance I would gladly say it over and over again, but it isn't."

B-r-r-r.

"No, it wasn't something that I decided it would be better for you not to know. It was the merest commonplace."

B-r-r-r.

"Dearie, do you go out much and are there many pretty girls in that town? Your letters are so unsatisfactory. A man's always are, aren't they?'

B-r-r-r.

"Indeed I do miss you. I cry myself to sleep almost every night. The city feels so empty."

B-r-r-r.

"I declare to you on my sacred honor that it wasn't anything of importance. No. George hasn't been here a single night. I gave him to understand I wouldn't receive him."

B-r-r-r.

"I didn't say a word about him in my first sentence. Indeed I didn't. I never mentioned his name. I don't care a thing in the world for him. All I said was, 'How do you do? H-o-w d-o y-o-u d-o?'

B-r-r-r.

"I can't help it whether it sounded like that or not. That is what I said."

B-r-r-r.

"The time is up? Why, I haven't said half the things I meant to say to you. Please write to me tomorrow, and tell me what you do in the evenings and whom you call on and whether you miss me and whether you will be able to come to Narragansett while I am there—and"—

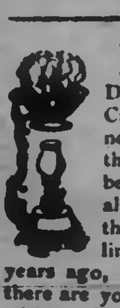
B-r-r-r.

"Indeed I didn't say anything except 'How do you do?' Honest Injun. Goodby, dear. G-o-o-d-b-y."

A Quiet Rebuke.

"Mr. Smith," said the neighbor's boy, "pa sent me over to borrow your morning paper."

"Haven't time to lend it today, Bobby," replied Mr. Smith. "But here's 3 cents. Tell him I'll send over for it when I need it, same as I do when he borrows the paper."



Not New.

Don't think our Vapo-Cresolene is something new, for it isn't. For more than twenty years it has been extensively used for all forms of bronchial and throat trouble. Mrs. Ballington Booth said of it, years ago, that "No family where there are young children should be without Vapo-Cresolene." You breathe in the vapor, it goes all through the bronchial tubes, soothing, healing, curing. It's pleasant, safe and economical.

DIVISION No. 2 WILL HAVE FIGHT

Four Candidates Nominated for County Councillors.

OLD MEMBERS RETURNED

There Will be No Contest in Otonabee or the Northern Division Ex.-Reeve Andrews, of Asphodel, Nominated in Norwood Division.

A large number of the ratepayers of Ennismore and a fair representation of the Township of Smith, attended the nominations for Division No. 2, which were held in town Hall, Bridgenorth. There were none of the ratepayers present from Monaghan, with the exception of Mr. Hunter. The reason for this non-attendance was the compromise which the people of Ennismore made with Mr. Foster, of Monaghan, some years ago, that when this Township had a man in the field, Ennismore would not nominate any, and, of course, this being Ennismore's turn, Monaghan displayed no interest in the nomination, but left it with the people of Ennismore and Smith. The several gentlemen nominated made strong addresses as did also the retiring Councillors.

The following candidates were nominated for the office of County Councillor to represent the division which comprises the Townships of Smith, Ennismore and North Monaghan:

Paul Costello, of the Township of Ennismore, proposed by John O'Reilly, seconded by J. J. Lynch.

Samuel Stinson, of the Township of Smith, proposed by G. A. Montcrieff seconded by T. M. Hunter.

T. M. Hunter, of the Township of North Monaghan, proposed by Paul Costello, seconded by Wm. Pethick.

William Crough, of the Township of Ennismore, proposed by Samuel Killen, seconded by Peter D. Clancy.

Henry Garbutt, of the Township of Smith, proposed by Joseph Milburn, seconded by Milson Blewett.

Mr. Hunter withdrew, this being Ennismore's turn, as stated above. He thanked the electors for the support and patience they had given him during his short period of office, and called the attention of the electors to the giving of special grants. He thought this unnecessary, claiming that Monaghan could get along without them. He also pointed to the fact that a House of Refuge would be a load on the County, which he thought they should not bear at the present time. After a few congratulatory remarks he wished them the compliments of the season.

Mr. Fitzgerald, on being called, stated that he could not find words adequate to express his appreciation of the support the people of this division, especially Smith, had given him. His greatest aim was to do justice to the people who honored him so long, over a period of eight years.

After explaining the different expenditures of the County, especially the bonded debt, or in other words, the debenture debt of the County and showing that after a careful administration of the affairs of the County, he could safely say that the County would be carrying no current debt by the first of February. After again thanking the people, amid great applause he took his seat.

Messrs. Paul Costello and Wm. Crough addressed the meeting at some length, and showed the people that each had a grasp of public affairs, satisfactory to all.

Mr. Garbutt was not present, but after an experience of 25 years in the local Council, his guarantee to the electors, is also satisfactory.

Mr. Stinson addressed the meeting in his usual manner, claiming that his record as a Township Councillor was sufficient to put forth. Although not having any experience as a County Councillor, he would use his best judgment in the interest of the Division if elected.

BY ACCLAMATION.

There was a large attendance at the nominations for County Councillors at Keene yesterday. Mr. J. M. Drummond, the nominating officer, was in the chair and a great deal of interest was manifested in county matters, many questions being asked by those present. Mr. T. J. Johnston, and Mr. John Deyell, ex-Reeve of Otonabee, were nominated, and as there was no opposition, they were declared elected. Addresses were made by Mr. E. A. Peck, ex-Warden; Wm. Anderson, a former County Councillor; Archie Weir, T. J. Johnston and John Deyell.

NORWOOD DIVISION.

Three candidates were nominated at the meeting held in Norwood yesterday. They were County Councillors W. T. Buck, Asphodel; W. T. Curtis, Havelock, and J. A. Andrews, ex-Reeve of Asphodel.

HARVEY DIVISION.

The old representatives of the division, constituting Harvey, Galway and Cavendish, Anstruther and Chandos—Councillors Shaw and Menogue, were both elected by acclamation.

DUMMER DIVISION.

The nominations for the County Council Division of Douro, Dummer and Lakefield took place at Warsaw yesterday. The gentlemen nominated were—County Councillor Moloney, of Douro; G. Webster, of South Dummer, and Edward Hawthorne, of Warsaw. Both of the latter have had some experience in municipal councils.

VETERAN PRIEST RESIGNS

Belleville, Dec. 19.—Rev. Mgr. Jas. J. Farrelly, the veteran priest of this city and district, yesterday morning announced his resignation. The news caused the deepest sorrow among his flock to whom he had been ministering for the past 35 years. He has been a priest 53 years and three years ago celebrated his jubilee. He said he was getting too old to undertake the great work of erecting another church and spoke in feeling terms of the great loss they had sustained in the burning of this beautiful edifice. He said he would go to Kingston and spend the rest of his life in peace and quietness. It is said the congregation will endeavor to have Father O'Gorman, of Gananoque, come here.

FALLS HEIR TO FORTUNE

Lindsay, Dec. 19.—James Hobbs, a blacksmith at Janetville, and his brother-in-law, W. Griller, of Valentine, have received word that they are among the heirs to an estate of $20,000,000 in England. They are both poor men and are taking steps to supply the information that it is said will make them very wealthy.

LEFT LARGE ESTATE.

Probate to the will of the late Judge George M. Clarke, for many years county judge of Northumberland and Durham, and during the past twenty years chief counsel of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, is issued to the Toronto General Trusts Corporation. The will disposes of an estate of about $300,000.

The Judge gave the jury ten questions to answer, all these were answered in favor of the plaintiff, except one which was: Could the driver, by using reasonable care have avoided the accident? and they answered yes and the verdict went in favor of the Railway Company.—Port Hope Guide.

I BELIEVE

Red Rose Tea

is the best tea in Canada, and that a great many people who drink it say it is the best tea they ever used.

I KNOW

It is however easy to make statements about what we believe. I think it is better to give definite, positive reasons why an article is believed to be the best, and if any article has real merit, it should be easy to give convincing reasons.

This is just what I propose to do. In the successive issues of this paper I will publish a number of facts and reasons why I believe Red Rose Tea is the best tea in Canada, and why you should use it.

The reasons will be interesting and educative about tea—well worth reading.

Before you read many, I think you will want to try the tea and if you buy a pound, the tea itself will do the rest.

LETTER TO MR. ROSS.

There are ministers and ministers. Some belong to Hon. G. W. Ross' so-called reorganized Cabinet, and are now going up and down the country endeavoring to persuade the electors that Rossism is all right; that it is the best thing for this Province, that it tends to the elevation of the morals of the people, the purity of political life, and the sound and aggressive administration of the business affairs of Ontario. This is the false plea those ministers are putting forward, with which they are attempting to cajole the free and independent electors to come to the support of the moribund and demoralized outfit that is now appealing to the people.

Then there is another class of ministers—those who stand on the watch towers and warn the people against all that is vile, degrading and loathsome. Their sense of honesty, fair play and justice compels them to speak out and tell others whither the Province is drifting, if it endorses all the black past and sins of commission or omission on the part of the Ross Government.

Rev. J. E. Hunter, the evangelist, spoke with no uncertain sound at a recent meeting at Chatham. Rev. Mr. Tapscott, of Sault Ste. Marie, spoke out in the great whitewashing Liberal assembly in Toronto, and now Rev. D. C. Hossack, one of the ablest publicists in Toronto, has his say.

Mr. Hossack has always been a staunch Liberal, and speaks with no personal end to serve, but with the sole purpose of pointing out how hundreds of others view the stewardship of Mr. Ross.

Mr. Hossack says in part, and his words will be read with interest:—

"Liberalism in Ontario has undergone a very radical change, and is not what it was a generation ago. It no longer stands for purity, constitutional government and liberty. It no longer stands for the people against monopoly, but for monopoly against the people. In fact the Liberalism of a generation ago had perished, and I am bound to say, and I do so with regret, that I know of no individual who is more responsible than yourself for the departure of the old Liberalism of purity and the advent of the new Liberalism of political debauchery. . . . . The blame for broken pledges in regard to temperance legislation cannot rest upon your colleagues, for you alone must answer to that charge. Years before I first heard you, on the hustings, you were advocating prohibition; you have been speaking in favor of it ever since. This at least, you have done for the cause, but it would seem to be the full measure of your labors on behalf of temperance. . . . Not only have you not prosecuted the offenders who have been named by the judges, but you have not repudiated them, and have retained them as organizers and agents of the Liberal party. Why did you not drive out of the party the Sullivans, the Boles, the Sutherlands, the Vances, the Gilligans, the Hewitts, the Pritchetts, the Cahills, the Lewises, the Palmers, the Wildfongs, the Jacksons and the other agents who have been engaged in disreputable political work for the Government? You are now receiving the benefit of their labors, and are holding office on account of what they have done. You "deplore" the evil and declare you would like to stop it and, at the same time, you are very careful to retain an Attorney-General who will not move against the evil doers. You make loud professions and continue to be a receiver of stolen goods, filched from the liberties of the people, by the worst gang of political desperadoes which has ever figured in Canadian courts. I have often wondered what was your candid opinion of yourself.

"A section of the Liberal press is making a great effort to have you judged by what you promise, rather than by what you have done. Doubtless you would prefer this test. This was partly the object in calling the Liberal convention. The press is calling for a forward movement, and you have requested the people to forget the ugly past. Forgetting seems to be a favorite occupation with your Cabinet. You have desired to seal the black record of your administration with "seven seals." I presume you employ that phrase because seven is a Bible number, and you like the phraseology of Scripture, or because the seven members of the Cabinet wish to have part in hiding and sealing the disgraceful record. The public will not be misled, however, and will judge you by your record. What a record for a Liberal Government! It is said that when a man is about to be drowned the events of his life pass through his mind. You are now in very deep water, and I would like to recall some of the events which will probably be soon flittering through your mind, if the procession has not already started. . . . I think you would hold a higher place in Canadian history if you had never been Premier, or had been defeated at the last general election. It was an evil day for Liberalism, for Ontario, for public morality, and for yourself when you came into power."

PEN POINTS.

Begin making preparations now for good New Year's resolutions. A correct start is important.

The man Ontario wants—J. P. Whitney. The man West Peterborough wants—T. E. Bradburn.

The new code of morals and finance—"The financial standing of a state or an individual is the true test of good business practice—of success."

We are hearing a great deal about the wonderful administrative capacity of the Ross Government—but nothing about West Elgin, North Norfolk, South Oxford, North Grey and the Soo, where that administrative capacity was shown up in the courts.

"The contest was going to be a keen one, and Mr. McWilliams' friends should not deceive themselves as to there being a walk-over, as he felt that Mr. Bradburn was making an active canvass, and the Conservative party in this riding were conducting a vigorous campaign."—Hon. Mr Stratton at Mr. McWilliams' meeting on Saturday night.

SAND LIME BRICK HAS FAIR FUTURE

There Are About 50 Plants at Present in the States.

HISTORY OF THE INDUSTRY

Its Commercial Development Dates Back Only 15 Years in European Countries —Suitable Raw Materials and Machinery Required.

The proposal to form a Company in Peterborough which will undertake the manufacture of sand lime brick gives considerable interest to a paper by Rev. S. V. Peppel, and included in the annual report on "The Clay Working Industries," recently published by the United States Geological Survey. According to this, the sandlime brick industry seems to have established a promising future in certain sections of the United States. Where clay of good quality is not available, but comparatively pure sand is abundant, the manufacturers of sand lime brick may reasonably hope for success. There are many such localities in Canada.

There are in the United States at present about 50 plants with a total capacity of approximately 1,000,000 bricks a day. The experience of these plants indicate that sand lime brick can usually be manufactured at a cost below that of common clay brick. When, however, sand lime is desired, equal to the fine clay front brick, the cost of production naturally is increased beyond that of common clay brick. Sand lime bricks have been in use long enough to prove that when properly made they have sufficient strength, and sufficient water and weather testing qualities to make them a safe building material.

The sand lime brick of to-day is the natural outcome of the improvements made in the old mortar brick, which has been known for years. This mortar brick was at first never more than a moulded mixture of lime and sand mixture, which was allowed to harden in the air. About 25 or 30 years ago one Doctor Michaelis patented a process for the hardening of mixtures of lime and sand by steam under pressure, which is the fundamental principle on which the manufacture of sand lime brick is based.

The commercial development of the industry dates back only 15 years in European countries and not more than four years in the United States. In 1896 Germany had only five factories where sand lime brick was made, but now it has about 200, with an actual annual output of between 350 million and 400 million. Early in 1901 a plant was built in Michigan City, Ind. In 1902 about 20 plants were in existence and 6,000,000 bricks were actually sold. Full and accurate data are not obtainable to the actual output in 1903, but about 20,000,000 bricks have been reported as sold in that year. Many of the factories had just started and were not manufacturing to their full capacity during the year.

Stomach and Liver Troubles.

Mr. Alex. M. Finn, Inkerman, N.B., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for derangements of the kidneys and liver and stomach troubles, and can certify that they did me a good deal of good. I can heartily recommend them to anyone suffering as I did."

A Boys' Gift.

The best Xmas gift for every boy over 12 years of age is a year's membership ticket in the Y.M.C.A. Parents are invited to call at the building, inspect the boys' rooms and get fuller particulars. Tickets cost $2.50 a year.

New Year's Reception.

The Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A. met a few evenings ago, and outlined the programme for the annual Red Letter Day on Monday, Jan. 2nd, 1905. There will be a continuous musicale in the parlors from 2 to 5 on that day. Also games and gymnastic exhibition. A basketball match with a visiting team is the feature for the evening. A

Pains in the Chest.

Mr. John Clark, Port Hope, Ont., states:—"Last winter I was so bad with a cold that I could not speak above a whisper, and had great pains in the chest. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and one bottle cured my cold which I believe would have proven very serious if I had not used this medicine."

CONGDON'S DEFEAT.

It Was a Personal Fight and the Other Fellow Won.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 20.—The victory of Dr. Thompson over ex-Commissioner Congdon in the Yukon was a personal victory for the doctor. Congdon had no platform, but repeatedly claimed his candidature was for a vindication of his rule. He refused to discuss reforms urged by the miners, and preferred to make the issue a personal one between him and Dr. Thompson. The campaign was a hot one.

Mrs. Congdon Honored.

Dawson, Dec. 20.—Mrs. F. T. Congdon, wife of the retiring Commissioner of Yukon Territory, was honored Sunday by the presentation to her by a number of American ladies of Dawson of a dainty bracelet, done in links and small nuggets of native gold. The presentation was made at the home of Mrs. E. S. Orr.

Sir Frederick Served.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 20.—While Sir Frederick Borden, Canadian Minister of Militia and Defence, was seated at a dining table in the Hotel Victoria yesterday, papers were served on him notifying him of the protest of the seats in the Canadian Parliament of ten Liberal members recently elected from Nova Scotia, alleging fraud and bribery.

Both Elected.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 20.—Yesterday was Declaration Day in King and Prince Counties, P.E.I. It was found that McEwan and Premier Peters were ties, and the returning officer declared both elected. If the scrutiny does not give the seat to either before the House meets it will then come up for discussion. Such a contingency has never risen before in this province, and there is no legislation to meet it.

Emerson on the Sea.

On the seashore the play of the Atlantic with the coast! What wealth is here! Every wave is a fortune. One thinks of Etzlers and great projectors who will yet turn all this waste strength to account. What strength and fecundity, from the sea monsters, hugest of animals, to the primary forms of which it is the immense cradle, and the phosphorescent infusories; it is one vast rolling bed of life, and every sparkle is a fish. What freedom and grace with all this might! The seeing so excellent a spectacle is a certificate to the mind that all imaginable good shall yet be realized. The sea is the chemist that dissolves the mountain and the rock, pulverizes old continents and builds new, forever redistributing the solid matter of the globe, and performs an analagous office in perpetual new transplanting of the races of men over the surface, the exodus of nations. We may well yield us for a time to its lessons. But the nomad instinct, as I said, persists to drive us to fresh fields and pastures new. Indeed the variety of our moods has an answering variety in the face of the world, and the sea drives us back to the hills.—Ralph Waldo Emerson in Atlantic.

Winning an Opponent.

In the campaign of 1900 Senator Cullom was called on to face a large audience in his home city of Springfield. He saw in the audience a fellow townsman who had formerly been an influential Republican, but who had joined the opposing party and displayed a dangerous activity in its support. This man arose from his seat and apparently was ready to begin a series of "catch questions." Before this intention could be put into execution Senator Cullom paused in his speech and in a conversational tone called out: "John Simpson, you're too old a man to stand up in any audience that I talk to. Just come right up here and hold down this chair next to mine." The invitation was accepted and at the close of the mass meeting the man announced that he was "back in the fold," and had "come to stay."

Buy Stained Glasses.

Glasses which have been used for milk or eggs should never be plunged in hot water. Immediately after using fill with cold water and allow them to stand. Next wash with lukewarm water, then in hot suds and rinse. The result, especially if linen towelling be used, will be glassware that sparkles as if it were cut.

PUT ON THE BRAKES.

Slow Up, or Before You Know It You May Be Off the Track.

The limited goes sixty miles an hour. In the smoker men joke and play cards and tell risque stories. The day coaches are crowded and comfortless. The heavy sleepers as they away to and fro make only a gentle rocking for the people who chat and read and nap. Crash! Engine and cars and flesh and blood are ground up together in a shapeless, horrid mass. Off the track!

So goes humanity's train. Here is a boy who got to running on a fast schedule. He began by pilfering from his father's till. As he grew older he made faster time. Down grade he goes, and soon comes the crash. Newsboys cry a murder and a suicide. The crowd halts for a moment. His friends murmur, "I never thought he was so bad!" A young man is off the track!

A young girl thinks her mother is too slow for these record breaking times. Mother is "old fashioned." The girl goes to places her mother has warned her she should not frequent. The bloom is brushed from the fruit. * * * One day a brazen, drunken creature, cursing and shrieking, is loaded into the patrol wagon. A woman is off the track!

A man gets in a hurry to be rich. His father went slowly, carefully, successfully. But father's methods will not do. What's the use of moiling and toiling when a quicker way may well do the business? So-and-so has speculated successfully. Surely I am as shrewd as he. * * * A pistol shot. A man is off the track!

Our age is a rapid one. Business and society go at a sixty mile clip. Rather than be sidetracked for a time men will drive their trains into the ditch. Many of them run wild. There are frequent collisions and wrecks innumerable by getting off the track.

Look out, thriving but venturesome merchant and reckless young woman and gay young man! The race is not to the swift alone. Put on the brakes. Slow up, or before you know it you will be off the track.

Daring Racers in the Air.

No other pet or form of sport can compare with racing pigeons, says Country Life in America. The very name seems to cut the air. A bird that can maintain a speed of a mile and a half a minute for 100 miles and that can cover 700 miles between the rising and setting of one sun is a creature to stir the blood and lift the heart. It is gentle, but it endures to the end, and I have seen it come to the home loft ripped across its back by the talons of a hawk.

The homers enjoy the racing. They are as keen to be out and at it as leashed hounds.

A RED AND SWOLLEN NOSE

IRISH FAMINE HORRORS

7,000 Face to Face With Death From Slow Starvation.

Terrible Plight of the Poor People of Achill Island, Connaught County—Pitiable Conditions Confront the Inhabitants With No Relief Offered—The Worst Is Awful—Many Have Already a Starved Look.

New York, Dec. 20.—The American has the following from Dublin

Seven thousand men, women and children are actually facing starvation and death on Achill Island, Connaught.

The full horrors of the Irish famine cannot be understood except by those who have witnessed with their own eyes, as I have during the past two weeks, the terrible plight of these poor people.

Achill Island is a poor wild, scourged, tragic place. It is a sort of earthly purgatory to the Connaught man's imagination.

When times become bad on the mainland the peasant says "God help us; things must be terrible entirely in Achill."

Her position is desperate, and Achill contains some 7,000 souls, most of whom have now no winter store at all.

The shopkeepers cannot stand much further strain. One of the chief of them told me that several of his island customers had not been able to pay him anything for twelve months past.

It was hoped that a fair potato crop would enable them to "clear up," and, as in other places, the Achill crop promised well till the great storms came. Now all hope is gone.

The Worst Is Awful.

One might drive through Achill and conclude that it was simply a cheerless, impoverished place—a shade worse than Mayo, but not so bad as it really is.

The worst in Achill is awful. I went with some who knew the island intimately to homes—if they can be called homes—of the people.

In villages like Dooega and West Dooega the conditions are terrible, and at Keel and Dooach they are just as bad.

Several of the homes are wretched one-room affairs, in which cattle as well as people are perforce housed.

In some houses it was hard to see anything for smoke, though the cheery Irish words of welcome, at once pious and poetic, were never missing.

There was illness in many a cabin, and the children and adults in Dooega West and the neighborhood have already a starved look.

The greatest tribute one can pay to the poor people is to say that the terrible conditions under which they live have not demoralized them.

Five Murders.

Ottawa, Dec. 20.—The Justice Department has five murder trials to investigate before Jan. 15. The case of Cammack of Woodstock, N. B., is most urgent, as the date of execution is fixed for Jan. 12. The others are John Kay, New Westminster, B. C.; John Bell, Greenwood, B.C.; Antonio Jaconi, Montreal; Foquet of Sherbrooke.

Four Burn to Death.

New York, Dec. 20.—By an explosion and the burning of 1,000,000 gallons of petroleum on a Standard Oil Company's barge at sea, off Long Branch, N. J., Sunday afternoon, four men were burned to death. Four survivors of the crew of the burned barge were brought to this port and are in a hospital suffering from burns.

Canadian Suffocated.

Saginaw, Mich., Dec. 20.—Dr. Thomas Tanner was suffocated in his rooms by a fire Saturday night. After the blaze had been subdued, the doctor's lifeless body was found in an adjoining room. Dr. Tanner was born 37 years ago in Holstein, Ont., and was unmarried. He was a man of high literary attainments.

Alfonso Signs Decree.

Madrid, Dec. 20.—King Alfonso has signed a decree authorizing Senor Ojeda, the Spanish Minister at Washington, to sign the arbitration treaty with America. The King yesterday consented to the establishment of a Spanish-American college in Madrid.

IN THE WAKE OF A GALE

Three Vessels Completely Wrecked Off New England Coast.

Sixteen Others Have Been Damaged and Five Have Lost Their Anchors—Complete Prostration of Telephone and Telegraph Wires On Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard—List of the Known Shipping Disasters.

Wooshall, Mass., Dec. 20.—Sunday's gale off the southeastern New England coast left in its wake, according to reports received here late last night, three vessels totally wrecked, 16 damaged and five with lost anchors. No known fatality has been reported, but it is feared that the entire crew of the New Jersey schooner Richard S. Leaming which was wrecked on Long Shoal, Nantucket Sound, has been lost. The crew probably numbered 10 men.

On land the only serious effect of the storm was the almost complete prostration of telegraph and telephone wires on Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard.

Last night for the first time since the storm broke telegraphic communication between this port and Boston was re-established. East and south of here the wires were still down last night. The list of known shipping disasters follow. Totally wrecked—Schooners Richard S. Leaming of Dennisville, N.J., on Long Shoal, Nantucket Sound; George B. Ferguson, of Belfast, Me., on Nantucket Island; barge Albertus of New York, on Fisher's Island. Ashore at Vineyard Haven—Schooners Loduskia Franconia, Flyaway and Rothesay (British).

Damaged by collision at Vineyard Haven—Schooners John J. Perry, D. J. Melanson, Eva May, Rhoda Holmes, Hortensia, A. Heaton, Frank and Ira (British), Edna, Ella M. Mitchell.

Anchors lost—Schooners Otis Miller, Mary Lee Newton, Kolon, Frank Barnett and Eva B. Hall.

At Monomoy Point, damaged, Eliza Jane.

Tug Lackawanna disabled at Vineyard Haven.

Sixty Men Lost.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 20.—Several schooners belonging on this island and which were driven off by the gale of Sunday, Dec. 11, are still unreported. The vessels carried a total of 60 men. It is feared they have been lost. The schooner Klondyke, which went ashore on Cape St. Mary's Sunday, is a total wreck. Her crew is safe.

Walked in Front of Trolley.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—David George Stevenson of Schomberg is in the Toronto General Hospital unconscious and near to death. Yesterday afternoon he attempted to cross the Metropolitan Railway tracks, near Lansing, about six miles up Yonge street, while car 51, southbound, was close upon him. Motorman Percy Stone made heroic efforts to stop his car, but the distance was too short. The unfortunate man was struck and thrown clear of the track. He was picked up insensible and the car hurried him to the C.P.R. crossing and the police ambulance conveyed him to the hospital. At a late hour Stevenson had not recovered consciousness, and it was stated that only slight hopes were held out for his recovery. He is about 50 years of age.

No Poison Here.

Embro, Dec. 20.—The Bowerman case, which has been before the public for the last month, was closed Saturday night by the jury's verdict of death from natural causes. Word was received from Dr. Ellis of Toronto by Dr. Sutherland on Thursday evening and the inquest was called for Friday night in Dr. Adams' office. The jury were all present, and after hearing that Dr. Ellis found no poison of any kind or other substance which would likely cause death, in the stomach, and death was due to brain trouble, they brought in a verdict to the effect that death was due to natural causes.

Mrs. Chadwick Pleads Illness.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 20.—Four witnesses were heard yesterday in the bankruptcy proceedings against Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, after which the hearing was continued until today, when Receiver Nathan Loeser hopes to have the woman present. Mrs. Chadwick's appearance will depend on a report to Referee in Bankruptcy Remington as to her physical condition, her counsel stating in court she was ill, and it was agreed several physicians should make an examination this morning.

Everybody Satisfied.

Montreal, Dec. 20.—The negotiations between the C.P.R. telegraphers and the management of the company, which have been going on for some weeks, have been satisfactorily terminated, and the outside officials of the O.R.T. left for their homes Saturday night. The only information obtainable respecting the terms of settlement is that concessions were made by both sides. The men demanded, among other things, a 10 per cent. increase in wages.

Freight Locomotive Explodes.

Montreal, Dec. 20.—A G.T.R. locomotive hauling a freight train exploded early yesterday morning, near Vaudreuil. Fireman Cummings was killed, and Engineer Sharp and Brakeman Benoit were severely scalded. The two former belong to Brockville, the last named to Montreal. Engineer Sharp is not expected to recover.

Little Girl Burned.

Thornhill, Man., Dec. 20.—The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank was burned to death by her clothes being ignited by a spark from the stove during the few minutes her parents were absent from the house yesterday.

The Eyes of Cupid

By KEITH GORDON

Copyright, 1904, by Mary McKeon

"Give me a sensible girl," said Billy as he unconsciously began to respond to Mrs. Jack's artful promptings of the last half hour, which had, however, been so deftly administered that he did not so much as suspect that he was being pumped dry on the subject of his ideal woman. "Give me a girl with no nonsense about her."

He paused impressively and stared dreamily into the haze of blue smoke that surrounded them as if striving to call his ideal clearly up before his mind's eye.

"Venus de Milo waist and common sense shoes?" suggested Mrs. Jack, who for reasons of her own wished to get the outer semblance of Billy's ideal woman clearly impressed upon her memory.

Billy's glare withdrew itself from the shadowy haze and rested upon his friend's wife. For a brief moment his taste wavered, deflected by the bewitching thinness of her daintily shod foot, which had an apologetic air of being more ornamental than useful. Then he reverted sternly to his ideal once more.

"Er—yes," he began—"that is, if it is necessary," he added weakly, finding his companion's appearance fatally antagonistic to his theories.

As she had explained to her husband while dressing for dinner that evening, she felt responsible for Billy, and, though the former had assured her that Billy was a "husky brute" and could take care of himself, she had not been convinced.

"I took you away from him," she had argued with soft persistence, "and of course he must be awfully lonely up there in the old rooms. It isn't as if he had you," she had ended, with an inflection that had caused her husband, who was at the moment deftly manipulating his hairbrushes, to flash a half humorous glance at his image in the mirror and then cross the room to her side.

With an orange wood stick in one hand and the finger tips of the other rosy with pomade, she had reached up and recklessly pulled his head down beside her own. Temporarily the lonely Billy had been forgotten. Then the very excess of their happiness had made her heart smite her.

"It must be awfully lonely for him," she had resumed as if their conversation had received no interruption, "and since it's all my fault I feel as if I ought to find him a wife."

Now, encouraged by Mrs. Jack's sympathetic, questioning eyes, Billy rambled on, explaining that, though he was not a marrying man, there were moments when he hoped that some time he might have a hearth of his own, etc. Though apparently listening with sweet interest, his hostess was in reality reviewing the list of her friends in search of the possible girl. One by one they seemed to pass before her, a smiling, teasing procession of blends and brunettes. But none of them, she realized with some disappointment, could exactly be described as a "girl with no nonsense about her," and from the fervor of Billy's convictions it was apparent that no other need apply.

Then, just as two worried lines of thought began to appear on her smooth forehead and as Billy was winding up with, "You see how it is, Mrs. Jack—the girls of today are too brilliant and worldly for a humdrum fellow like me!" the face of Virginia Blair arose before her, and the lines disappeared in the radiance of a bright, assured smile.

"She certainly is good looking in a dreadfully noble manner," the young matchmaker thought to herself as she revolved schemes for bringing the two together, "but I suppose Billy admires that type. And she doesn't pinch her feet or her waist. Obviously she was made for Billy."

At the dinner party which she gave soon after for that particular though unexpressed purpose of bringing them together Billy took Miss Blair out. She was a tall, handsome girl, with dark, serious eyes and smooth, heavy hair. Before the first course had disappeared Billy had discovered that she and life took each other seriously, and he had an uncomfortable feeling when her serious gaze fell upon him that he was a trivial sort of fellow after all. When she asked for his views upon municipal reform, he was sure of it. He was as confused and nonplused as if a canary bird had suddenly begun to bark.

For years he remembered that dinner with a sort of horror. He and Miss Blair, it seemed to him afterward, had worked like galley slaves, discussing all the knotty problems of the day. Around them were lightness, gayety and laughter, especially on the other side of the table, where Tessie Loring, who was the very embodiment of feminine frivolity, bubbled and dimpled and cast languishing glances about her.

Mrs. Jack had often wondered whether there would be anything left of Tessie should the dainty gowns, hats, shoes and veils be swept away, for she seemed nothing more than a spirit born of a collection of filmy garments.

"Swish of silk, flutter of lace, odor of violets, flash of eyes and teeth and eternal chatter!" Mrs. Jack summed up ungraciously as she keenly noted Billy's wandering glances. "What possessed me to include her in a party for the benefit of a man who likes sensible girls! I can see that he's growing so disgusted that he wants to escape the entire sex." And with a shade of suppressed annoyance she rose, formulating an intention to keep Tessie as far as possible from Mr. Staunton for the rest of the evening.

It seemed, therefore, almost too unfortunate that the two should happen to meet again at her house late one afternoon of the following week, having been moved to make their bread and butter call at the same hour of the same day.

Tessie was at her best—or worst—and rattled away in the patois of society in a manner that would have been appalling had it been less picturesque. Billy's face was a study, but whatever his thoughts were his attention was unmistakable. Not one of Tessie's glances sometimes merry, sometimes coquettish and sometimes brimming with a babyish sweetness intended to make him feel how big and strong and different he was—failed of its mark. Tessie did not know much, but that what she knew she knew remarkably well was slowly borne in upon Mrs. Jack during that half hour.

When the distant thud of the front door at last proclaimed her departure from the premises Billy, who had outstayed her, burst into an uncontrollable guffaw, in which his hostess joined him somewhat ruefully. But the outburst was not followed by any of the caustic remarks that might have been expected from a bachelor of his views and standing. On the contrary, a genial, amused gleam lingered in his eyes, the amusement of a grownup with a dainty, foolish, attractive child.

"Tessie is such a silly little thing," observed Mrs. Jack apologetically, "you mustn't mind her."

"Mind her!" ejaculated her visitor warmly. "I should say not! She's great!" And he chuckled reminiscently.

But on the subject of Miss Blair Mrs. Jack found him unresponsive.

"Do you suppose he's interested and doesn't want to show it?" she demanded of Jack, that fountain of wisdom, at the dinner table. "Because Virginia's precisely the sort of girl he pretends to admire. Now that I've found his ideal for him he doesn't seem to appreciate her."

Her husband laughed at the chagrin in her voice.

"If he doesn't fall in love with the lady we've provided"—

"According to his plans and specifications," giggled his wife.

"According to his own plans and specifications—why, I'll punch his head."

But in spite of his opportunities Billy remained cold to the charms of the sensible Miss Blair. In time Mrs. Jack noticed that it became increasingly difficult to throw them together. Billy simply would not be thrown.

"Provide a man with what he pretends to like and he immediately finds out that he doesn't want it," she reflected, with justifiable cynicism. "He says he likes sensible girls, but he won't look at Virginia, though he will hover about that little idiot, Tessie Loring, like a moth about a flame."

And indeed there was plenty of foundation for her statement. Far from causing Billy to take to the woods, as Mrs. Jack had feared she might, Tessie seemed to exercise some subtle influence over him. The two were forever meeting, both at Mrs. Jack's and elsewhere, by the merest chance, of course. And it was noticeable as time went on that, though they arrived separately, they invariably left together.

A month later he came to tell her of their engagement.

"A good many persons misjudge Tessie," he began, as if he felt that she might be one of the number, "but in reality she is one of the most sensible little girls in the world."

He said much more, and Mrs. Jack, swallowing hard, accepted it all, agreeing with him at every point. But when she was alone again she laughed until the tears streamed down her cheeks, and thus her husband found her.

"What under the heavens?" he inquired, but he got no further.

"Billy's going to marry Tessie Loring!" she announced breathlessly. "He says she is so sensible!"

Jack gave a low, incredulous whistle.

"Talk about love being blind!" he blurted out at last. "Why, love has an X ray eye! Nothing short of an X ray could see anything sensible in Tessie."

And he thrust his hands in his pockets and roared with her.

Saved His Dignity.

One of the chief men in the early history of Weston, Mass., was Francis Fullam, commonly known as Squire Fullam. He was justice of the peace and one of the pillars of the church and on Sundays always sat with his eyes fixed upon the minister as if conscious of being a worthy example to the rest of the congregation. One Sabbath morning during Parson Woodward's sermon an old colored woman in the gallery fell asleep and tumbled off the bench to the floor, making a loud noise. Squire Fullam, who was rather deaf, knew that something unusual had occurred, and, feeling the dignity of his position as justice of the peace, he rose to his feet and called out:—

"Stop, reverend sir!"

Mr. Woodward ceased speaking, and the old squire said in stentorian tones:

"If any one has discharged a gun in this meeting house, let him be brought before me tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock."

Some one explained to him the cause of the disturbance, and he added:

"If what I thought had happened, what I said was right. Proceed, reverend sir."

Thereupon Mr. Woodward resumed his discourse, and the service proceeded as usual.

Most Successful Year in History of the Society.

NEWLY ELECTED OFFICERS

Increase in Membership and Interest—Number of Conversions Reported—Contributions to Various Funds.

The annual business meeting of B. Y.P.U. of the Murray-st. Baptist Church was held last night. The meeting opened with singing and prayer offered by the president.

The secretary read minutes of last meeting which were received and the annual report of year's work.

Encouraging reports of the various committees were then read, which showed that the past year has been one of advance in the Union, especially the report of the Lookout Committee. This committee under the convenorship of Mr. George Lee reported 279 invitations given to meetings, 67 persons spoken to on religious matters, 35 interested and 18 conversions.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The secretary then read the report of nominating committee for the year which is as follows.—

Sec'y—Miss Eva Rose.

Treas.—Mr. Frank Webber.

Organists—Miss Leila Webber, Miss Eva Rose.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

It is with grateful hearts to Our Heavenly Father that we, the members of the B.Y.P.U. review the work of 1904. Though we have had many failures, and have come far short of our possible success, we desire to lay our imperfect work at the Master's feet, that He may work out his perfect results. Truly we can say God has been with us and we pray that in the coming year every active member of the Union may prove more worthy of His blessings.

The membership of the Union at the beginning of the year was 52 since that time 19 new names have been added and by removal from town we have lost 9 members, which still leaves a membership of 62. It is gratifying to know that there has been some new names added at every consecration meeting. The average attendance at the consecration services was 32.

The meetings of the Society are held every Monday night and are mostly of a devotional nature, being led by different members of the Union. We are also indebted to Mr. Bloome, Mr. Matthews, Miss Roberts Miss Nicholls for their valuable assistance. The attendance has been excellent even in the holiday season, and during the time the church was without a pastor. Three times in the year the meeting of the Society was held on Sunday night after church service.

There has been three quarterly business meetings, when reports of different committees were given. One Literary meeting in charge of Literary Committee. One Temperance meeting in charge of Mr. Raddon. Five missionary meetings, three of which were taken by Mission committee and the others by Miss Roberts and Miss Nicholls from the circle. Three socials were held in February, June, October.

THE FINANCES.

With regard to the finances, the Union has contributed to the Bungalow fund, Superannuation fund and Foreign Missionary Society.

The visit of McMaster Band proved a great blessing to our Union, also the full reports from the Hamilton and Detroit conventions given by our delegates.

With the increase of membership and interest in the Union, we would feel yet lacking if we could not report conversions, also the spiritual growth which has manifested itself in many of our members. Much of our success is due to the faithful work of our retiring president, Miss Garbutt.

We take courage and press on, praying that God may make us all more faithful to the work of the Union, and that this Society may be a great blessing to the church and pastor.

Hoping that the year 1905 will find us all to have made much progress in the Christian life

Respectfully submitted,
EVA ROSE,
Secretary.

Many parents and friends of boys take advantage of Christmas in giving Y.M.C.A. membership tickets as Christmas gifts. The secretary of the Y.M.C.A. knows of a number of boys whose parents cannot afford tickets for them. A few dollars invested in this way helps all round and to the extent one is hardly able to estimate.

NINE PERSONS KILLED

Were Sleeping in Hotel When Wall Fell in on the Building.

Special to The Review

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 20 — The side wall of the T. H. Puck building, on Fifth street, which was left standing by the great fire of last Tuesday night, toppled over in a high gale early today, onto the Crocker hotel, a three story building adjoining.

Fourteen people who were sleeping in the hotel, were caught in the crushed structure. Nine of them were killed.

CHANGES IN MILLBROOK

Bank of Toronto Buys Out Wood & Kells—Mr. W. T. Wood, Manager.

Millbrook, Ont., Dec. 19.—The Bank of Toronto has bought out the old established private banking business of Messrs. Wood and Kells, and have moved their office to the building of that firm. Mr. W. T. Wood, who for years had been manager for Messrs. Wood and Kells, has received the appointment of manager for the Bank of Toronto here, and Mr. A. St. A. Smith, who has been manager of the Bank of Toronto here for three years goes to take charge of the branch at Keene.

KEENE'S NEW BANK

The Bank of Toronto is Spreading Out—Village Takes Another Forward Step.

A branch of the Bank of Toronto is to be located in Keene, and preparations are already being made in the fitting up of a suitable office. This will be situated in a substantial stone and brick building occupying a central position in the village. It seems but fitting that Keene which has for many years set an example to places of its size, in matters which indicate a fine idea of progressiveness, should now have a bank, and no doubt the citizens of the place will appreciate this fact. The village of Keene is noted for its wealth, among other things, and it is situated in one of the best townships of the County of Peterborough. All things considered it is reasonable to believe that the new bank will have a most auspicious beginning and that a large amount of business will come its way.

Mr. A. St. A. Smith, formerly of the Bank of Toronto here and who has been in charge of the branch at Millbrook for past three years will be manager of the Keene office.

OMEMEE FARMER HANGS HIMSELF

W. H. Mitchell Commits Suicide in McQuade's Swamp.

MIND BECAME UNHINGED

No Reason for Rash Act as He Was in Fairly Good Circumstances—He Was a Retired Farmer.

Special to The Review

Omemee, Ont. Dec. 20—W. H. Mitchell, a retired farmer of middle age of this place, did not return home as usual, from Burton McQuade's swamp, where he had been cutting wood. His family becoming alarmed, sent out a searching party, who found Mitchell hanging to a tree. Mitchell must have hanged himself shortly after reaching the swamp, as his body was partly frozen when found. It is supposed that his mind must have been unhinged as he had been very despondent of late, though there was no reason for this, as he was in fairly good circumstances.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

ROSS' POLITICAL EPITAPH.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It has been said that whenever a crisis arises the champion is forthcoming. Unfortunately, this has not always been the case. But Rev. D. C. Hossack has verified the old tradition. He has smitten Hon. G. W. Ross both hip and thigh. It will be a long time before the News will have so good an item of information again. There are champions and champions. One kind excels in keeping out of difficulty, in keeping free of complications. We have several of that sort in town. Rev. D. C. Hossack, however, has redeemed the cause and placed Liberalism in a new light, and possibly on a new foundation. His letter is undoubtedly the political epitaph of Mr. Ross, and I know of none more deserving of it.

Yours, &c.,

THE SCHEDULE FOR THE SEASON

Dates and Hours of Games in the City League.

SIX CLUBS IN THE LEAGUE

Opening Matches on Thursday Night in the Brock Street Rink—Players on Different Teams.

The executive of the City Hockey League met last evening in the Y.M.C.A. The schedule for the season was drawn up, players' certificates granted, and other business transacted. The meeting was large and enthusiastic, and the success of the league seems to be assured. President Hutchinson was in the chair, and other officers present were Vice-President J. A. Sharpe, Secretary H. Kingscote, and Treasurer M. J. Hickey.

A new club, the Verniers, representing the tool room of the C.G.E., applied for entrance into the league. On motion of Mr. Kingscote, seconded by Mr. Hickey, the Verniers were admitted into the league membership on the same footing as the other clubs.

Each team then handed in the names of its players to the secretary and certificates will be issued to them at once. The teams and players who comprise the league are as follows:—

T.A.S. vs. Karnots—9 p.m.

Feb. 2.
Colonials vs. Farriers—8 p.m.
Earl Greys vs. Karnots—9 p.m.

Feb. 9.
Verniers vs. T.A.S.—8 p.m.

It was decided, on motion, that all teams who win 50 per cent of their scheduled games in the first round should qualify for the semi-finals.

On motion of Mr. Sharpe, seconded by Mr. Mulligan, a sub-committee consisting of President Hutchinson, Secretary Kingscote and Treasurer Hickey was appointed to arrange for referees, look after advertising and attend to other matters which are not of sufficient importance to warrant calling a meeting of the whole executive.

Mr. Anglesy moved, seconded by Mr. McFadden, that at the conclusion of the first round, after the rink and other expenses have been settled, the balance should be equally divided between the six league teams. This was carried. An amendment moved by Mr. Sharpe, to the effect that in semi-final and final games the league should take over ten per cent of the gate receipts, was also carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

Popular Men's Meeting

There was a large attendance again at the popular Men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. Sunday.

Mr. Geo. E. Williams, the first general secretary of the Association was present and conducted the opening devotional exercises.

Miss Helen Davies sang a sacred solo in her usual splendid voice, Mr. John Crane playing the accompaniment.

Mr. Robert Harding's address on "Three Great Cities" was listened to with a marked depth of interest on the part of the men. The speaker drew some splendid lessons and a good impression followed the meeting.

HIGH NOON AT SEA.

Wireless Telegraph as an Aid to Navigation.

The most momentous improvement in navigation since the invention of the chronometer, over 140 years ago, has just been foreshadowed in a modest paragraph in the report of the chief of the bureau of equipment of the United States navy.

"It is believed," says Chief Manney, "that the development of wireless telegraphy will enable these (time) signals to be distributed over water as well as over land and that before long every ship at sea, in addition to every land station, will receive daily noon signals from the standard observatory clock."

What does that mean? Nothing less than the elimination of the last element of uncertainty from the problem of finding the position of a ship at sea. Hitherto the one weak point in navigation has been the difficulty of carrying standard time on a voyage. Observations for local time as well as for latitude have been exact, but the comparison of local with standard time for obtaining the longitude has involved a certain amount of guesswork. The best chronometer is not quite infallible, and some allowance, which may not be precisely right, has always to be made for errors.

But with time signals received from a national observatory every day at noon the mariner will know his way over any part of the wide ocean as accurately as if he were threading a buoyed channel. The chronometer will join the cross staff and the astrolabe on the junk heap of discarded makeshifts.

And of course a ship that can communicate with the shore for one purpose is equally in touch with the world for any other communication it needs to make.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

The most inexcusable thing in the world is to unjustly abuse a decent citizen.

It doesn't do people any good to be old enough to know better unless they are also too old to enjoy meanness.

Every man needs a chart to tell him the degrees of kinship in his family, but his wife knows them so well she can say them backward.

The truth about some people who seem to be doing so much is that they always put things off until the last minute and then have to rush.

The early bird may get the worm, but the late bird has as good an argument: He gets his rest which the early bird misses and has never yet starved.

Be patient with the girl who takes so long to dress. By and by she will be able to do up the work and dress herself and three or four children in half the time she takes for herself now.

Why Needed
in Every Home
TO OVERCOME THE MOST COMMON AND ANNOYING OF HUMAN ILLS.
DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Indigestion, constipation and torpid action of the liver and kidneys are known in every home.

Both on account of the distress and discomfort which accompanies them and as a cause of other ills of a more painful and deadly nature, these derangements require prompt attention.

In every home there is needed more or less frequently a treatment which can be depended on to regulate the organs of digestion and excretion.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have become the most popular family medicine extant, because they exactly meet the requirements.

They are unique in that they act directly on the kidneys, liver and bowels and thus insure a prompt regulating and invigorating of these organs.

The result is good digestion and assimilation, and the prompt removal of the poisonous waste matter from the body.

One pill a dose at bedtime two or three times a week soon cleanses the system and removes the cause of pain and ill-health.

Mr. B. Carr, Point Alexander, Renfrew Co., Ont., writes:—"Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have done me wonderful good. Being troubled with kidney disease and heart affection, I tried them with excellent results, and would not think of being without them in the house."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author are on every box.

THINK OVER THESE.

Why are all cowpaths crooked?

How old must a grapevine be before it begins to bear?

What wood will bear the greatest weight before breaking?

Can you tell why leaves turn upside down just before a rain?

You can see any day a white horse, but did you ever see a white colt?

Why does a horse eat grass backward and a cow forward?

Why does a hop vine wind one way and a bean vine the other?

Where should a chimney be the larger, at the top or bottom, and why?

How many different kinds of trees grow in your neighborhood and what are they good for?

Can you tell why a horse when tethered with a rope always unravels it, while a cow always twists it into a kinky knot?

Escaped the "Might Have Been."

"Yes," said the gentle optimist, "I confess I am superstitious enough to wear a lucky stone."

"And do you really think it gives you luck?"

"Oh, I am quite sure of it."

"Did you have it with you yesterday?"

"Certainly."

"And in spite of it you lost a five dollar gold piece, tore your coat by catching it on a nail, sprained your ankle and failed to close the business deal of which you expected so much."

"True," replied the gentle optimist "but think of what might have happened to me if I hadn't had my lucky stone."

Colchester's Thanksgiving Pies.

Many funny stories are told of the early Thanksgiving days. The town of Colchester, for instance, calmly ignored the day appointed by the governor and held its own Thanksgiving a week later, when the sloop from New York bringing a hogshead of molasses for pies had arrived. In Revolutionary times Thanksgiving was not forgotten. The council of Massachusetts recommended that Nov. 16, 1776, be set aside for "acknowledgments for mercies enjoyed." In the next year Samuel Adams recommended a form of Thanksgiving proclamation to the Continental congress.

Merely Existed.

A number of lawyers were exchanging stories of their experiences with witnesses under examination. One of the parties told the following: He was questioning a witness and said: "You have lived in New York a number of years. How long?" "Just twenty-five years." "Where did you live before that time?" asked the lawyer, hoping to prove an important point. "I didn't live," replied the witness. "I was single!"

Not a Bit Like a Cat.

Lady Visitor Your little girl seems to be very much taken with me, Mrs. Stepswell. Mrs. Stepswell Yes, and she doesn't often take to strangers. You think Mrs. Kippur is real nice, don't you, Agnes? Agnes—You said she was a cat, mamma, but she doesn't look a bit like one.—Exchange.

Paying Trials.

Gaggaby Jones is very wealthy, but he says his life is full of trials. Waggsby—Yes; that's what makes him wealthy. "How so?" "He's a lawyer."

More Information Needed.

Ward What do you think of a man who sells his vote? Street—Which side did he sell it to?

Weapons Too Handy.

"Why do you object to your wife taking up golf?" asked Clubberly. "I thought you approved of it."

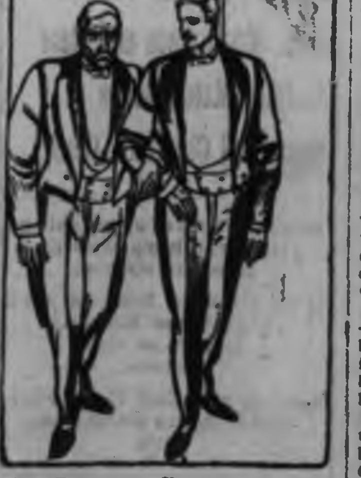
"So I did," replied Lushley, "until I heard her say the umbrella stand in the vestibule would be a handy place to keep her sticks."

Unwritten Language.

Interested Father Did you tell her how sorry you were to leave her?

Son No, but I brought considerable pressure to bear on the subject. I think she understood.

Also Mentioned.



Mr. Youngman—You say you were once mentioned as a presidential possibility?

Mr. Agedly—Yes. When I was a little boy I was told that if I was good I might grow up to be president.

Smooth Now.

"Oh, no. She is too well bred for that."—Life.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

Her red-brown eyes sparkled, and she sank down on a chair in her own room, trembling and gasping with excitement.

"He has taken that place to be near her," she told herself; "he will persuade her to run away with him, and George—George will come back to me."

CHAPTER XXI

Half an hour later Anna Lindsay heard Sir Ralph leave the house, and watched his tall figure as he walked across the Market Place. Then she went down to the drawing-room, and found Laura still there.

"Sir Ralph Woodland has just been here," said Laura, quietly enough, as Anna entered.

"Indeed!" replied Anna, trying to speak in her ordinary way.

"He has come down to see about the alterations at Harewood; he is going to stay on a little while now for the shooting, he said."

"He's a great sportsman, isn't he?"

"Yes; George said he is a splendid shot. He has gone down now to George at the office."

That was all that was said. Anna sat drinking her tea and wondering that the carpet did not open under Laura's feet and swallow her up for her iniquities. Laura sat silent and absorbed. These two women never had much to say to each other, and they seemed to have less than usual this afternoon. Then, about half-past six o'clock, George entered the room quite in a state of pleasurable excitement.

"So Sir Ralph called to see you this afternoon, Laura?" he said. "He told me he had been here, and I've had him at the office for ever so long, and now he's gone on to Harewood. He's going to build stables there, and make no end of alterations, and he means to stay over the winter for the hunting. But I dare say he told you all about it."

"He told me he was going to stay there for a little while just now," answered Laura.

"Yes; and he's had a lot of fine carved furniture sent down from town, and he's asked us all to go and stay with him, he's really a very civil fellow."

Anna Lindsay did not speak; she sat with her eyes fixed first on the husband and then on the wife. The storm was brewing, she was thinking bitterly, and she longed for the thunder-clap to burst.

"I did not care for Harewood very much," said Laura, slowly. "Do you, George?"

"It's a fine old place, I think; but it's something to have a neighbor who can offer you such shooting as Sir Ralph can. Certainly these rich fellows have it all their own way in this world."

Laura did not speak. She went upstairs to dress for dinner, and she sighed uneasily as she did so. She wished now she had not gone to Danvers Park—wished she had not met Sir Ralph Woodland again. No good can come of it, only harm, she told herself. When she had married George she had never expected to see him more. She believed he had changed to her, that he was weary of her, and now—when it was too late—she knew this was not so.

"He should not have bought Harewood," she repeated to herself time after time. "I must see him sometimes, and it will unsettle me; only make me feel how weary everything is—oh, how weary! how weary!"

She had felt this ever since her return from Danvers Park. That brief visit seemed to have changed the world to her. The dull hours, the dull days at Red House, the narrow country gossip, and George—poor George!

"He is so good, so kind, and yet—" Laura knew she had never loved him—would never love him, but "the image of one face" had not haunted her when she married George as it haunted her now.

"And I owe him so much," she thought, restlessly; and this made her very gentle in her manner to George during the rest of the day. And on the following morning she determined to try and occupy her mind. She made a great effort. She sat down determinedly to begin a new book, and forced her brain to dwell on the sorrows and temptations of others, while her own heart was racked meanwhile.

The conflict told on her appearance, and the next time she saw Sir Ralph he inquired if she had been ill.

"No, I have been working hard," she replied, quietly, working hard not to think of him, to keep to the narrow groove that she had chosen for herself.

For she realised what every woman of her sensitive, highly strung nature will surely realize—that she had made a great and irreparable mistake in marrying a man she did not love. Poverty is bitter, struggles are hard, but not so bitter and hard as a daily effort to act an affection which does not live.

George, in his kindly way, soon grew uneasy about her health, and begged her not to go on writing so hard.

"I must, I must!" she answered, with almost passionate impatience.

"But you have no need to do it, Laura. Surely you have everything you want."

Everything! Her heart echoed this word with dreary emphasis. George meant she had a good roof over her head, a good husband to supply her daily needs; and what else did she require? He did not understand the heart hunger that was thinning the cheeks of his young wife, he did not understand how all her life was wearisome to her with him.

Then came a formal invitation to the whole party at Red House to spend a few days at Harewood Hall. This invitation included old Mr. Gifford and Miss Lindsay, and Mr. Gifford was very much gratified by receiving it.

"I think I should like to see the place again," he said. "I used to go every year in the old squire's time, and it's very kind of Sir Ralph Woodland to ask me."

But to the surprise of every one at Red House Laura expressed a wish not to go.

"I should rather not go, George. I am busy with my new book, and am not feeling very well, so you go, and leave me quietly at home."

"It is nonsense, Laura," answered George. "Sir Ralph would, I am sure, be very much disappointed if you did not go, and the change will do you good, and I'm only glad you'll be obliged to leave that stupid book alone."

Laura smiled a languid smile.

"How do you know it is stupid?" she said.

"Oh, it mayn't be stupid in one sense, but what I mean is that it is stupid of you going on working as if you were working for your daily bread."

"I have promised to have it finished by a certain time."

"Oh, let the publisher wait. I am sure at one time he was not over civil to you."

"No," said Laura, and her heart went back to that time, and to the dreary struggle from which George had rescued her. "I am ungrateful," she told herself, and she went up and put her slim hand into George's. "I owe so much to you," she said.

"Well, then, be a good little woman, and do as I wish. I want you to go to Harewood, Laura, and shall be really very much disappointed if you don't."

So she was overruled, the invitation was accepted; and Sir Ralph rode over to Suffold to make arrangements about the family from Red House going to Harewood. There was of course, a considerable amount of gossip in the country town, where every one talked of each other's affairs, concerning this visit of the Giffords to Sir Ralph Woodland's new property. Mrs. Masterman said no one was good enough now for "Mrs. George" but the county families, she presumed, and that she had not gone to church for two Sundays running, though she did not explain how this fact was connected with the county families.

But Laura really accepted Sir Ralph's invitation with a troubled, sinking heart. Life had become so complex and difficult to her, her feelings and her duty being in continual conflict, and she dreaded a certain power of will which she knew Sir Ralph possessed over her mind. She dreaded this power, and yet could not resist it. It was at once sweet and bitter to her. She recognized its danger, yet made no determined effort to put it away.

So in the early days of November the Giffords and Miss Lindsay went to pay their visit to Harewood Hall. Sir Ralph had invited Sir Richard and Lady Danvers to meet them, but Lady Danvers was laid up with a severe cold, and could not go, after having accepted the invitation. When Laura heard this she wished to defer their visit also, but neither Sir Ralph nor George Gifford would hear of this. Sir Ralph, indeed, was secretly pleased; it was Laura he wished to have under his roof, and not Lady Danvers.

He welcomed his guests on their arrival with great courtesy, and presently showed them the improvements he had made in the house and grounds. Harewood was indeed a different place to what it had been when they had last seen it. The gardens and grounds were trim, and the house furnished with artistic taste.

"I thought you would like this cabinet," Anna Lindsay overheard him say in a low tone to Laura, as he was pointing out one of his new purchases. But he apparently paid her no particular attention. Laura was conscious that his eyes followed her if his feet did not. These two seemed to see each other with some inner sense. Between them was that strange subtle link which it is impossible rightly to describe in words. Though apart, their souls held secret commune, and Sir Ralph understood the very struggle that was going on in Laura's heart.

"She loves me," he told himself, "but she thinks herself bound to the man who married her in her poverty, and whom she married because he could give her daily bread. But can such a bond last; last when it is opposed to the strong natural emotion she feels to me? It can not, it shall not for I love her too dearly to renounce her now."

Hay Fever Cured,
Never to Return, by Japanese Catarrh Cure.

Yes, we know that you have tried hundreds of remedies and physicians without success. But you have not used Japanese Catarrh Cure. Remember that the telegraph, typewriter, electric lights and automobiles were "impossibilities" until proven realities. Japanese Catarrh Cure is the only known cure for hay fever. It kills the germs and forever eradicates the disease from the system. The first treatment brings relief, the sneezing stops, the burning pain in the nostrils is soothed, the eyes stop aching, and you will enjoy a night's sleep in comfort.

Dr. R. S. Wilson, New York, says:—"Japanese Catarrh Cure has met with the highest endorsement of the medical profession for the only reason that ever wins such endorsement, its distinct and proven value."

JAP TORPEDO ATTACKS

People of Japan Thrilled By Details of Their Daring.

Wonderful Bravery of Commander Yezo, Who Was Cut in Two By a Russian Shell—Gains Equal Prominence With the Late Gallant Commander Hirose—Admiral Togo Tells the Story—Japs Occupy Keekwan Fort.

Tokio, Dec. 20.—Although accustomed to hearing of feats of bravery on the part of their soldiers and sailors, the people of Japan have been thrilled by the details of the desperate torpedo attacks against the Russian battleship Sevastopol and other craft driven outside the harbor of Port Arthur by the fire of the Japanese land batteries.

Commander Yezo and Lieut. Nakahara are the heroes of these attacks, and the former promises to gain equal prominence with Commander Hirose (who on March 27 last was blown to fragments in Vice-Admiral Togo's second attempt to bottle up Port Arthur) in the war traditions of the Japanese.

One in Condition.

Commander Yezo's flotilla of torpedo boats was undergoing repairs when the attacks were planned, but he succeeded in putting one of his vessels into condition for a fight.

On this vessel he promptly started to the rendezvous, and finding that the other flotilla had gone, begged and gained permission to join in the attacks. Then he steamed through the snowstorm alone and succeeded in locating the Sevastopol, to which he was able to get close enough to hear the Russians talking. Yezo fired a torpedo and then went close and fired a second torpedo, when a shell from the Sevastopol struck him in the abdomen, cutting his body in two. Portions of Commander Yezo's remains were saved and brought back to the fleet. They will probably be taken to Japan for public interment, as was done with portions of the remains of Commander Hirose.

Went to the Rescue.

Lieut. Nakahara went to the rescue of the disabled torpedo boat, which had been under the command of Lieut. Nakahoria, who, with five others, was killed, and submitted to a deadly fire. Nakahara's boat was hit repeatedly, but he succeeded in rescuing a majority of the crew of the Nakahoria's boat. More of Admiral Togo's men volunteered for participating in the attack than could be assigned.

It is probable that Admiral Togo will soon return to Japan, leaving a junior admiral to conduct the final operations and to continue the blockade. It is expected that Togo will be summoned by the Emperor to Tokio, where he will be given splendid public receptions.

Equal of Any in History.

Admiral Togo's campaign of ten months is considered equal to any in the history of naval warfare. He has labored constantly under the necessity of preserving the vessels of his fleet for service against the Russian second Pacific squadron. The admiral and his men have stood storm, stress and exposure excellently. The men are in good health and exultant.

TOGO TELLS STORY.

Japanese Admiral Relates History of Port Arthur Assaults.

Vice-Admiral Togo's report upon the torpedo operations against the Russian turret ship Sevastopol was received yesterday. It says: "On the night of Dec. 14 our torpedo flotillas made a gallant and brave series of attacks against the Russian turret ship Sevastopol.

"The flotillas arrived outside the entrance to Port Arthur about midnight on that date. The leading flotilla under Commander Unchida and a special torpedo boat, partly for attack and partly to reconnoitre, approached the Sevastopol at one o'clock, and under the searchlights and fire of the enemy's ships and shore batteries they attacked her.

"A shell struck Commander Mitamura's torpedo boat and four shots hit Commander Nakamuta's boat, wounding three sailors. Flotilla A, Commander Kasama, advanced first for the purpose of destroying the defences protecting the Sevastopol and also to draw and divert the fire under the enemy's searchlights. Flotilla B, Commander Jinjuji; flotilla C, Commander Otaki; flotilla D, Commander Seki, and flotilla E, Commander Kawase, approached successively and bravely continued the attack from 2 until 4 o'clock in the morning.

Brave Officer Killed.

"Commander Otakis flotilla approached the closest and delivered the most vigorous attack. While retreating one torpedo boat received several shots simultaneously, her commander, Lieut. Nakahori and five others being killed. The boat lost her freedom of motion, and Lieut. Nakahara's boat went to the rescue, and despite the heavy fire endeavored to save her. While towing the boat the enemy's shells severed the hawser. Lieut. Nakahara's boat was also hit, and one man killed.

Subsequently several shells hit and almost disabled Lieut. Nakahara's boat, forcing him to abandon his comrade ship, which was sinking. Lieut. Nakahara, however, steamed back, rescued the crew and abandoned the torpedo boat to her fate.

All the Boats Hit.

Commander Kawase's boat, belonging to the same flotilla, was struck by a shell, killing one of the crew and wounding Lieut Takashi and two sailors. Lieut. Shono's boat was hit, and one of the crew killed and five wounded. The boat was temporarily disabled, but his comrade ships, with Lieuts. Watasable and Mori commanding, protected and rescued her. All the other boats barvely facing the enemy's fire succeeded in delivering attacks without any damage.

"The results of their attacks is not definitely known, although it is evident that numerous torpedoes took effect. The watch tower reporting on the following morning said that the Sevastopol had lowered at the bows considerably, facing towards south, southeast. Her condition is such that she does not change her position in the current. She is anchored close in shore in shallow water. It is a source of satisfaction that our torpedo attacks were delivered without the least confusion. Each boat rendered material assistance to its comrades. The skilful manoeuvring and bravery of the officers and men inspires me with a deep feeling of satisfaction and confidence."

Russ Ships Unfit For Service.

Telegraphing under date of Dec. 18, Vice-Admiral Togo says:

"There is no room left to doubt that the enemy's ships in the harbor of Port Arthur are totally unfit for service. I have reason to believe that the battleship Sevastopol has been disabled by our attacks.

"It is certain that at least six Russian torpedo boat destroyers remain intact in the harbor.

"A staff officer of the naval brigade who landed at Port Arthur, reports as follows:

"The battleship Peresveit is lying 200 metres northwest of the Tiger's Tail peninsula with her bow turned northwest half north, and at high tide the water reaches to the torpedo tubes in her bow. She is submerged to her stern walk and lies aground without listing. Her central funnel is severely damaged.

"The battleship Poltava lies 200 metres north of the point of Tiger's Tail. Her bows points east southeast half east and at high tide is submerged to her after deck. She is doubtless aground and does not list.

After Deck Submerged.

"The battleship Retvizan lies 100 metres east of the Poltava, her stern toward that vessel. Her condition is worse than that of the Poltava. She is listing five degrees to starboerd, and her after deck is constantly submerged.

"The battleship Pobeida lies 220 metres northeast half east of the point of Tiger's Tail with her bow pointing northeast half north. Her after deck on the starboard side must be submerged at high tide. Everything seems to show that she is aground.

"The protected cruiser Pallada lies 100 metres east by north of the Pobieda. Her stern is toward southwest half south, and she is listed five degrees to port. At high tide the condition of her decks is about the same as the decks of the Perseveit. She is doubtless aground.

"The armored cruiser Bayan lies 400 metres south southwest half west of the harbor entrance, with her bow toward east northeast half east. She is listed 15 degrees and appears to be aground.

"The above mentioned four battleships and two cruisers have been abandoned and no boats are seen near there."

Occupied Keekwan Fort.

Tokio, Dec. 20.—The Japanese fired an immense mine under portions of the north fort of East Keekwan Mountain at 2 o'clock yesterday (Sunday) afternoon. The infantry immediately afterward charged and occupied the fort with a heavy force.

It is reported that the Japanese have seized a strong position about a thousand yards southeast of 203-Metre Hill, preparatory to assaulting the new town and pushing between Liaoti Mountain and the Russian headquarters at Port Arthur.

The fighting against Sungshu Mountain continued.

This occurred at 2 p.m. A detachment of Japanese infantry made a headlong, but premature rush, and 60 of them became buried under a mass of debris, greatly delaying the attack. Despite this mischance, another volunteer force dashed forward and captured the parapet. In the meantime the Russians had been strongly reinforced, and a fierce hand to hand struggle with bayonets and grenades was continued till near midnight, when the few Russian survivors retreated to the city, and the fort was captured. Its construction displays the utmost scientific knowledge.

Capture of Keekwan Fort.

London, Dec. 20.—According to a special correspondent with the Japanese army, the capture of Keekwan fort was a complete surprise to the Russian garrison, there having been no preparatory bombardment. Japanese sappers drove shafts forty feet under the parapet of the fort from the escarpment and moat. In these two tons of dynamite were exploded simultaneously, completely wrecking the interior of the fort, while siege and shrapnel guns shelled Russians.

How It Was Done.

Tokio, Dec. 20.—The following report of the capture was telegraphed from General Nogi's headquarters yesterday:

"On Dec. 18 at 2.15 p.m. part of our army blew up the parapets of the north forts of East Keekwan and then charged.

"A fierce battle with hand grenades ensued.

"Owing to the stubborn resistance of the enemy with machine guns our operations were temporarily suspended.

"Subsequently, at 7 p.m. General Hemeamiam, commanding the supports, advanced into the casements, and encouraging his men threw his supports into the fighting line in a last brave charge.

"At 11.50 p.m. we completely occupied the fort and immediately began defensive works. Our occupation became firmly assured to-day.

"Before retiring the enemy exploded four mines in the neighborhood of the neck of the forts.

"We captured five nine centimetre field guns and two machine guns, as well as plenty of ammunition.

"The enemy left 40 or 50 dead. Our casualties are not heavy.

Repulsed the Enemy.

Tokio, Dec. 20.—Manchurian Headquarters, in a report dated Dec. 18, says: "On the night of Dec. 17, between 8.30 and 11 o'clock, the enemy made three attacks against our outposts toward Santao Kuatsua, and also advanced at 1 a.m toward Sin Hontun and Tunghaisengkou. The enemy was repulsed."

Caught a Bold Jap.

Mukden, Dec. 20.—Cossacks recently captured a Japanese officer dressed in a Russian uniform, as he was quietly riding along the Russian frontal positions, but the Cossacks suspecting something wrong, tried to stop him. He bolted, but afterwards was captured.

North Sea Incident Inquiry.

London, Dec. 20.—The representatives of the Board of Trade, who are inquiring into the North Sea incident, resumed their sessions in London yesterday. The individual claims for compensation of the men employed on the Hull trawlers were presented, and also the claims of the owners of the fishing boats and the solicitors costs.

Russian Delegates First.

Paris, Dec. 20.—The Russian delegates to the International Commission, which is to enquire into the North Sea incident, reached the Northern Railroad station at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, being the first foreign delegation to arrive here.

Outbreak of Plague.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 20.—The Governor of Viatka reports a serious outbreak of Siberian plague in factories in the districts of Viatka and Slobodskoi, which are preparing fur coats for the troops in Manchuria. The delivery of fur garments to the troops has been suspended.

Interest in England.

London, Dec. 20.—(C. A. P.)—The intelligence of the Canadian cotton combine created considerable interest in Manchester, but in the absence of full particulars the leading merchants will not venture an opinion. The general impression is that the position of the English spinners will not be affected. In the absence of verification of the news at Liverpool the market remained entirely unaffected.

The Elder-Dempster Line's offer to purchase all the ships of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Line were refused.

Parish Priest Retires.

Belleville, Dec. 20.—Rev. Mgr. James J. Farrelly, for 35 years priest of this city and district, Sunday morning announced his resignation. He has been a priest 53 years. He said he was getting too old to undertake the great work of erecting another church, and spoke in feeling terms of the great loss they had sustained in the burning of this beautiful edifice.

DO NOT WALK ON THIN ICE

If You Have Catarrh You are in Danger—It Breeds Dyspepsia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Aside from the extreme offensive and odious nature of the disease, catarrh is also very dangerous if left to run its course unchecked. The constant droppings into the throat, which are mostly swallowed during sleep, cause poisonous disorders of the throat, stomach and lungs, which rapidly develop into dyspepsia, laryngitis, bronchitis and consumption. When these diseases become established, especially the latter, the result is too well known to need pointing out.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a certain and absolute cure for catarrh in all forms and all stages. Catarrhal conditions are always of the same nature, whether they exist in the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder, and these tablets act on all alike. They cleanse, renovate and purify the entire system of all catarrhal poisons and by thus going to the very root of the disease, effect thorough and permanent cure. This is the only way to treat catarrh, as local applications, such as sprays, ointments, inhalations, etc., afford only temporary relief, and the malady takes hold again with increased vigor.

An Indianapolis physician says "I prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets on all occasions because I find they are most thorough and effective in their work. I have tried a great many prescriptions, my own and others, during 30 years of practice, but have never found anything quite so satisfactory in all respects as these tablets. I have known the most stubborn and virulent cases of catarrh to yield time after time to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and I do not hesitate to prescribe and recommend them."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle. It will pay you to give them a trial and get away from the suffering, humiliation and danger caused by catarrh.

Dropped Dead At His Work.

Toronto, Dec 20.—At noon yesterday, as he stood by his machine in the Gerhard Heintzman piano factory, John Kennedy, for 10 years an employe, fell over dead. A blood vessel bursting in his brain was the cause. A brother and sister live in the city.

An Odd Present.

There is a strange custom prevalent among the old fishermen and hand loom weavers of Girvan, Scotland. The industries of the town are fast decaying, only a very few weavers being kept busy now, so the younger generation have to migrate in search of fresh fields. When the grownup sons and daughters have been successful in their new spheres, often at the other side of the world, their thoughts are busy with the "auld folks." A very common present to the latter is that of a "certificate" giving the right to be buried in the old churchyard. Thus their parents' last resting place is secured, and so common is the custom that only to a stranger does its gruesomeness appeal. The old people tell of the possession with pride and thankfulness.

A Worm's Skin.

The Annelid Polynce cirrata is a mean looking worm about an inch and a half in length, of flattened shape, blunt at both ends, apparently covered by a smooth skin of a dull brown color. On being touched it throws itself into elegant serpentine curves and then what appears to be the upper skin is seen to be composed of a great number of round, flat, membranous plates or shields, arranged in two rows, overlapping each other. These, though of larger size, are attached to the body only by a small point in the center of their sides, so that when the animal moves the edges of these shields are lifted and reveal their live structure, sliding upon each other in a singular manner.

INSTINCT.

Instinct counts for much!

Unless a man has the tailoring instinct he can't tailor clothes.

His judgment will be inaccurate — his estimates out—his proportions and balances wrong.

He can't tell what type physique a man belongs to, although the custom tailors recognize only two — regulars and stout. Doesn't understand the little shades of differences between certain physiques of the same type—he invariably guesses, and guesses wrongly, consequently his clothes lack fit — balance — style snap, and do not become the personality.

Each Semi-ready tailor is one instinctively.

His artistic knowledge of proportions — his intuitive and unerring judgment of physique enable him to tailor clothes that fit, balance properly, look well and permanently retain these features.

Semi-ready tailoring is thoroughly individual and distinctive throughout.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

Armstrong made himself solid with the crowd on Saturday night.—Toronto News.

Two Peterborough men figured on the Marlboros' Saturday, and both made good.—Toronto News.

Three men from this district, Mercer and Armstrong, from Peterborough, and Redpath, of Lakefield, have caught the Marlboros. Speaks pretty well for the class of hockey played around this burg.

The Karnots and Farriers practiced last evening. There was a big bunch out.

The First City League games will be played on Thursday evening, when the Colonials meet the Earl Greys and the Karnots stack up against the T.A.S. The admission will be 20 cents for gents, 15 cents for ladies and 10 cents for children. There should be a large attendance as the league is deserving of support. Hon. J. R. Stratton will probably face off the puck.

The Peterborough team, seniors and juniors, had a good workout last evening. The boys are fast rounding into shape. The seniors are displaying some fine combination and shooting ability. Among those out were Graham, Crowley, Cavanah, Parnell, Morgan, Fitzpatrick, Hall and Smith.

Queen's University team will play here on Wednesday, Dec. 28th. This should prove a most interesting game as the visitors are a fast bunch who will take a lot of beating.

The executive of George-st. Young Men's Guild met last evening at the Y.M.C.A. It was decided to enter a team in the Guild League. The Guild will not practice on All Saints' rink.

Charlotte-st. and St. John's Guilds practiced last evening on All Saints' Guild rink.

The locals will practice this evening from 7 until 8 o'clock. All players are requested to be out in uniform.

The T.A.S. will practice this evening between 10 and 11 at the Brock-st. rink.

The schedule for this district will be drawn up at a meeting in Lindsay to-night. Mr. C. G. Graham is convenor.

The Karnots will play in Bobcaygeon with the local Trent Valley team on Friday, Dec. 30th. They will take up a strong team and expect a victory.

The West End hockey team will journey to Lakefield next week to play a game with the juniors of that place.

—The Peterborough juniors will likely play in Port Hope on New Year's day.

The Peterborough seniors will line up something like this:—Goal, Wasson or Fitzpatrick; point, Glover or Ford; cover, Cavanah; rover, Crowley, centre, Parnell; right wing, Morgan; left wing, Graham.

The junior team will likely be as follows:—Goal, Ferguson or Fitzpatrick. point, Moore; cover point, Parker; rover, Long; centre, McFarlane; right wing, Smith; left wing, Hall.

From the line-up given at the City Hockey League meeting last evening, T.A.S., Karnots and Farriers look to be the pick of the bunch, but as the Belleville Intelligencer says, "You can't sometimes always tell."

The Toolmakers of the C.G.E. organized a hockey team called the Verniers, at a meeting held on Saturday afternoon. The following officers were elected —

Hon. President—T. Meldon.
President—D. Holt.
1st Vice-President—J. H. G. Goulett.
2nd Vice-President—F. L. Bradburn.
3rd Vice-President—P. Duffy
Sec.-Treasurer—J. Mulligan.
Manager—Jas. Anglesy.
Executive Committee—R. Holt, R Gibbs and F Reutsch. The team have entered a team in the City League and should make things interesting for other organizations.

The Colonials will practice this evening between 10 and 11 o'clock at All Saints' rink. All players are asked to be on hand and on time.

Midland defeated Lindsay last night at the latter place by 6—4.

Harold Armstrong made his initial appearance with the Marlboros on Saturday night. The Toronto press has the following good things to say of him:—

Armstrong, as rover, promises to be a strong addition to the team. He is a clever stick handler, but inclined to play too much by himself.—Mail.

The Globe says:—Armstrong, Phillips' successor, made his first appearance, and though not as clean or as fast a player as the Rat Portageman, he made a fine impression. He is a grand stick-handler and a good shot. Armstrong showed a disposition to "hog" the puck, but otherwise no fault could be found with his work.

A despatch from Kingston says referring to the Queen's University team:—The team management are in communication with hockeyists of Peterborough, Smith's Falls and Brockville for games in those towns on Dec. 28th, 29th and 30th, and they will in all probability make the trip. The probable line-up of the team will be:—Mills, goal; MacDonnell, point; Eric Sutherland, cover; Capt. Walsh, rover; Bruce Sutherland, centre; Richardson and Williams, wings.

Lindsay has three games this week, home and home matches with Midland and a home game with Victoria Harbor.

It is said that some night during Christmas week we may be treated to an exhibition game of hockey in this city, which will introduce many of the old stars of last season and the season before. Some of the boys will be home on their holidays and will get together for a couple of nights. Peterborough may be the opposing team.—Belleville Intelligencer.

The Peterborough seniors will play an exhibition game with Smith's Falls seniors in that place on Monday, Jan. 2nd, the day on which New Year's Day is to be celebrated;

Secretary Graham has received a letter from the Belleville hockey club asking for a game there next week. If the Belleville team will give Peterborough $100 for the game, the seniors will likely make the trip.

Lindsay's showing against Midland last night, surprised local enthusiasts who expected to see the team from the north make a runaway game of it.

Lindsay's line-up in last night's game with Midland was as follows — Goal, Winchester; point, Reilly; cover, Irving; rover, Duffus; forwards, Taylor, Pringle, Killen. This will be Lindsay's team for the season. Whitcroft, of Peterborough, and Pearce and Kempt, formerly of Norwood, played with Midland.

The "Happy Thoughts" do hereby challenge "Higgins Favorites" or the employees of R. Fair & Co., to a game of hockey to be played at as early a date as possible, in the Brock street rink. C. FOLLEY, Capt.

Whitcroft played a star game for Midland against Lindsay, scoring four of the six goals scored by Midland. Through a mistake his name was mis-spelled in the account of the game given in the Toronto papers. It was spelled Watcrhop

CURLING.

The interest in curling is unabated, and the scratch matches are arousing lots of excitement. The following games were played last night —

R. Jackson	J. C. Sheok
H. Snowden	T. J. Tilley
T. J Mowat	G. E. Whiten
C N. Brown	J. A. Aylmer
sk 9	sk 7
Morley Lyle	Dr. Marshall
W. Lytle	D. Hall
C. Seymour	A. Talbot
W. G. Ferguson	G. Giroux
sk 2	sk 16

A rink skipped by R. M. Waddell defeated one skipped by R. Neill by 15 to 10. Skip Kingsman's rink defeated Skip Edward's rink by 11—8.

One of the Examiner's professional players was defeated by an amateur curler at the rink last evening by a large score. And yet the Examiner had the temerity to challenge the Review to a game.

LIFTED UP AND TRANSCENDENT

God is Not the Universe and the Universe is Not God.

REV. F. J. SCOTT'S SERMON

He Gives an Exposition of Progressive Thought and Shows Wherein It is Unreasonable—A System of Complete Infidelity and of Intellectual Heathenism.

A subject which was very ably discussed by Rev. F. J. Scott, pastor of Murray street Baptist church, last evening was "Progressive Thought in Regard to God, His Transcendance, His Holiness, His Attitude toward Sin and Sinners and His Mercy." In referring to progressive thought he expressed the hope that his hearers all believed in it. Progressive thought was something that all should be sympathetically in relation to. The speaker had utterly no sympathy with those persons or journals that were continuously speaking in disparaging terms of so-called leaders in progressive thought, whose writings and thoughts it was very evident, had never been examined. Criticism should not be rash, prejudiced or unreasonable. Neither had he any sympathy with those superficial persons who read something from magazines by so-called progressive thinkers, and who imbibed everything without any thinking. What was needed was individual, independent, honest, unprejudiced thought upon these things. He did not call it progressive thought, neither did he call it unprogressive / nor retrogressive, but only used the term to indicate the line of special thought which certain philosophers, scientists and Bible critics indulged in, and which they called progressive thought.

RELIGIOUS DOCTRINES.

Rev. Mr. Scott said he wished to base his own thoughts upon one of the few passages of Scripture, around which clustered the great religious doctrines with which man had to do—Isaiah 57:15 pointing to the fellowship of God with men; the condition of that fellowship—humility and contrition; and the effect or purpose, the revival of man's spirit. The passage dealt with God's transcendance and explicitly and implicitly with the doctrine of sin and mercy. It presented the view of God as being high and lifted up, above the universe. It was a view somewhat different from that of the progressive thinkers. Sir Oliver Lodge, President of the University of Birmingham, than whom no thinker had probably ever given the world a more clear or popularly worded meaning of progressive thought, recently wrote: "We are rising to the conviction that we are part of nature, and so part of God; that the whole creation is travelling toward some great end, and that now, after ages of development, we have at length become a conscious portion of the great scheme, and can co-operate in it with knowledge and joy. We are no strangers, no aliens in a strange universe governed by an outside God, but parts of a developing whole."

REV. F. J. SCOTT.

UNIVERSE AS GOD.

This was saying that God was identical with the universe, and was in short, pantheism. The idea originated with the Darwinian evolution, the basic principle of which was that everything developed from a primordial germ, and men were so infatuated with the idea that they gave great consideration to the matter and method of the universe, with the consequence that they deified the matter and method of the universe. There was no other god but the universe itself. Darwinism has been modified, but has left certain tendencies and habits of thought, and these had found still greater encouragement by the effect of progress in physical science. Anyone can see that if a person gives exclusive consideration to the physical in the universe it not only begets in man an inability to see anything but the physical, but also prejudices him against anything above or beyond the merely natural. This pantheistic idea not only originated in science, but in the philosophy of Hegel, and began by assuming—the speaker knew not why—the essential unity or oneness of God, and stating that God came to consciousness in man, and that man in coming to consciousness of himself, at the same time came into consciousness of God.

SOME DEDUCTIONS.

Assuming that the universe is God, and that there is no transcendent God, the following logical deductions were made. If there is no other god other than the universal, then God Himself is imperfect, for the universe is developing, so it is said by this school. If the universe is developing, yet imperfect, and we are part of God, then there is no such thing as sin, and moral imperfection is not something which ought not to be, but something which shall be outgrown. If there is no holy God above us, and no sin within us, there can be no punishment for sin, and therefore it is ruled out altogether. If there is no sin, there is no mercy and no atonement. If there is no transcendant God, and no supernatural religion, there are no miracles, and the Bible is a book of merely childish fables or lies and if there are no miracles then there is no Christ, no Saviour, such as we know him. In short the new thought is subversive of the highest ideals of Christian religion, and it seemed to the speaker to be a system of complete infidelity, intellectual heathenism, boastful atheism. If the universe is God, there is no God, for the idea of the universe being God ruled out the idea of God altogether. The poet said: "Man is left alone with man; there is nothing higher in the universe than man! No God! No God!"

Philosophy had its great exponents such as Kant, Hegel and Darwin, but in turning to the message of God, as revealed to man, the speaker asked, What about Moses the immortal law giver, or Isaiah, the poetic, the scholarly, the educated or what about Paul, than whom there was never greater logician and whose words reached to the ends of the world? Are these men behind Darwin and Kant and Hegel?

The speaker supposed that it was presumption on his part, but he held that there was little meaning in the words of Sir Oliver Lodge and he dared to challenge him or any men in the universe to find an intelligible meaning in the words, and he regarded them personally, as utter nonsense. "We know we are not God," said he. The very first result of the movements of the inner soul, and of the mind of man gave the idea of God. It was impossible to get away from the conviction that somebody created this world. Down in the depths of the human soul there were reasons that transcended reason. He who thought that the logical faculty was the only instrument of knowledge very widely missed the work.

UNREASONABLE ARGUMENT.

It was an unreasonable argument that an unconscious God could develop into a conscious God; it was impossible that an unconscious God should have developed the great universe. The Bible spoke of Him as transcendant. He was in and through the universe, and it was possible to feel him nigh. The Bible taught that he was greater than the universe. Men throughout all ages have known there was a transcendant God, and have known that they were sinners through conscience, that law of the loving, transcendant God written in every heart.

PENETRATING LOVE.

Sir Oliver Lodge had referred to the penetrating love in the universe. In this he differed from other scientists, who spoke rather of the hardness of the universe's heart. The only thing in the world that could prove love was an unselfish sacrifice, and the only thing that could prove the infinite love and sacrifice such as the world needed was an infinite sacrifice, and this existed in the Gospel of the Son of God. This revealed the doctrines of atonement and of mercy. It was pointed out that very rarely did any of the philosophers such as had been referred to, reply to any charge of inconsistency, but simply ignored it.

In conclusion, Rev. Mr. Scott pointed to the doctrine of sin, mercy and atonement as remaining unshaken as God's eternal throne.

FUN AT OPERA HOUSE

A grand boxing and wrestling tournament will be given in the Opera House on Friday evening, Dec. 23. Several good bouts will be put on. Two well known local boys will meet in two ten-minute wrestling bouts. Pete Barry, of Toronto champion featherweight boxer of Canada, will meet W. Greene, of Birmingham, Eng., in a ten round bout at 125 pounds. B. Galley and D. Belleed, of town, will have a 15 round bout at 140 lbs. G. Gauthier, of town will undertake to throw A. Woods twice in 30 minutes. Besides these bouts, there will be songs and dances by well known performers.

The Port Hope Trent Valley team will be picked from the following men:—J. McMillan, W. Pennington, Geo. Brown, S. Lockington, Curly Brown, W. McLean, C. Boney, W. McMillan and W. Lawrenson. There are some very fast men in the above, as it includes nearly all the old Ontario team which used to bump up against Peterborough in the good old days.

Peterborough according to the papers is going to be wild over hockey again this winter. Most of their stars have left for other places, but the "also rans" of other days are being resurrected.—Belleville Intelligencer.

—The regular meeting of the Chosen Friends will be held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the S.O.E. Hall. Officers will be elected for the ensuing year. A large attendance of members is requested.

—If you haven't remembered everyone on your list, make a few pretty calendars—an inexpensive and pretty way of letting your friends know you have not forgotten them. All materials on sale at the Review office.

—A destructive fire occurred in Port Hope on Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Peters, King-st. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp. The alarm did not reach the fire station for ten minutes, by which time the house was a mass of flames. The house was completely gutted.

—At St. Andrew's to-night congregational prayer meeting at 8 p.m. Ladies' Aid Society at 8.45 p.m. Annual meeting of teachers and officers at 8.45 in the ladies' parlor, and special choir practice at the same hour.

—Have you seen the beautiful candy boxes and baskets for Xmas giving that are shown in L. Potvin's window. See them before buying something that may not be as acceptable to her. 4d

—The officers of the Children's Aid Society gratefully acknowledge the receipt of $10 sent them by Mrs. Jacob White, of Warsaw. Mr. and Mrs. White have always been good friends to the Society, having frequently shown their interest in the work by substantial contributions.

—The Review has just received a new line of white embossed board that is very pretty for calendars and mounts for passepartout pictures. Everything needed for calendars on sale—pictures, calendar pads, card and ribbon. Open every evening. 1d

—Rt. Ex. Dr. J. M. Shaw, of Keene, Grand Supt. Ontario District, No. 10, G.C.C., returned today from Oshawa and Whitby, where he paid official visits to Keystone and Petaalpha chapters on Monday and Thursday nights. During the doctor's tenure of office two new chapters have been instituted—in Havelock and Brighton. He will officially visit Corinthian chapter, G.C.C., town, on Friday night.

—"Yes," remarked Mr. John Kincaid this morning, "turkeys are very scarce—much more so than in other years. They are selling at from 15 to 17 cents per pound, and the average weight is about 10 to 16 pounds. In other years I have been able to get some 1,500 to 1,800 good birds for Montreal and Toronto markets, but this season I have not been able to secure any."

—The Colonial Weaving Co., Limited, has issued a unique Christmas token, which it is sending to its friends and patrons. In neat, gilt lettering across the face of a card are "Hearty Greetings 1904 Christmas 1904." Resting on the card is a neat finely woven silk label with fringed ends and in dark red lettering are the words "Colonial Weaving Co., Limited, Peterborough, Ont." This holiday souvenir, while simple, is also artistic and effective.

—Another street car accident was prevented this morning at the corner of George and Brock-sts., by the prompt action of the motorman. A farmer, losing his nerve when he saw the car approaching, turned his horses across the track, and an accident seemed to be imminent. However, the motorman reversed his car and the team soon got out of its dangerous position.

—Chief Game Warden Tinsley, of Toronto, has received from the Canadian Express Co. a return showing that the company carried 2,522 carcases of deer shot in the Province during the season which closed last month, weighing 285,817 pounds. Last year, which was a record year for sportsmen, the company carried 2,959 deer, and the year before 2,286. The largest number shipped from one point this year was 498, from Burk's Falls.

—The Winnipeg Free Press is again sending its friends in the newspaper world a souvenir of the prairie and the glad holiday season. This year it is as unique as usual, being in the shape of a quill from a Canada wild goose. The Free Press is one of Canada's biggest publications. It has kept pace with the great West. It is also forwarding its friends a handsome and artistic little booklet giving many facts about the expansion of Manitoba as well as the strides made by the Free Press itself.

—The water commissioners of Lindsay are appealing to the ratepayers of that town to vote for the $20,000 water works by-law so as to enable the commissioners to put in a proper system of filtration. They say the present system is entirely inadequate and at present they are pumping little better than river water, a matter which should be remedied at the earliest possible moment. The system proposed is what is known as the English System, and is approved of by the best experts in England and the United States, and will secure the town a good, wholesome supply of water, such as can be used by all citizens with confidence.

—A notable increase in the imports of flour from Canada is reported to the Trade and Commerce Department by Mr. Alex. Maclean, Canadian agent in Japan. The imports for the present year are placed at 7,406,910 pounds, as against 4,[illegible],452 pounds last year. There is no market for ready made clothing, for all the clothing for the army is made from cloth imported by the Government and made up by Jap labor. "They take pride", he adds, "in the statistical statement that 86 per cent. of the cost is expended amongst their own people."

—The value of importation into the Transvaal for the first eight months of this year was £8,966,000, which was less than the same period of 1903 by £5,295,000. The biggest item £1,700,000, was for metals and manufactures of metals, including agricultural implements. Next comes provisions, exclusive of corn and dairy products, which footed up to £1,422,000. Other imports, which figured largely were wearing apparel, manufactures of wood, dairy products, articles made of leather, drugs and chemicals, arms and ammunition, vehicles, stationery and paper, tobacco, raw and manufactured; cotton goods, jewelry and electric railway material. Transvaal imports were shipped via Port Natal, Cape Colony and Delagoa Bay in the order of importance as given.

SPRING ASSIZES.

Jury Sittings Will Be Held in Peterborough on April 25th.

The date of the Spring Assizes (jury) in Peterborough, has been fixed for Tuesday, April 25th, Hon. Mr. Justice Anglin presiding. The non-jury sittings will be held on Tuesday, June 20th, Chief Justice Meredith on the bench. The following resolution was passed at a meeting of the Judges of the High Court held on December 17th: "When a case is required to be set down for a Divisional Court, Weekly Court or Chambers, the officer shall require the person desiring the case to be set down, to endorse on the notice of motion the name of the office in which the action or proceeding was commenced, and the officer shall not set down any case without such endorsement, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a judge."—To take effect from and after December 31, 1904.

ENGLISHMEN RETURNING.

Have Only Given Canada a Few Months' Trial.

A large number of immigrants left Halifax for England yesterday. They have only given Canada a few months trial, and from inquiries made at the Emigration Office it seems that the men, whilst they have no fault to find with the country generally, are of that class who are not easily satisfied, and just because they do not get everything exactly to their liking they go home. Many of them express the opinion that they could do better in England, but the present condition of the labor market there certainly does not give color to that view. The disappointed ones left Toronto on Saturday night, and the greater part of them had been following what is regarded as the none too congenial employment in the bush.

Under the heading "Beware of Canada," Reynolds' Newspaper, in London, Eng., which has a large circulation amongst the working classes publishes the experiences of a supposed emigrant to Canada. He describes being herded together like cattle on the boat, and afterwards being induced to travel from Quebec to Toronto, where men, women and children huddled together for warmth in Government quarters, no food being supplied. He says Ontario farmers, Scotch or Yankee, think nothing of setting the dog on those seeking work, and the Canadian people are the most stony-hearted on earth and have no pity for those lured out by official prospectuses and information, and relying on the generosity of colonial "cousins."

MONAGHAN NOMINATIONS.

Nominations will be held in the North Monaghan Town Hall on Monday next, Dec. 26th, at one o'clock for the purpose of receiving proposals for reeve and four councillors. It is thought the present council will be returned by acclamation as there is no talk of opposition.

The steamer Algerine which has arrived at St. John's, Newfoundland, battled a storm for four days. Her pumps were choked.

I BELIEVE

Red Rose Tea

is the best tea in Canada, and that a great many people who drink it say it is the best tea they ever used.

I KNOW

It is however easy to make statements about what we believe. I think it is better to give definite, positive reasons why an article is believed to be the best, and if any article has real merit, it should be easy to give convincing reasons.

This is just what I propose to do. In the successive issues of this paper I will publish a number of facts and reasons why I believe Red Rose Tea is the best tea in Canada, and why you should use it.

The reasons will be interesting and educative about tea—well worth reading.

Before you read many, I think you will want to try the tea and if you buy a pound, the tea itself will do the rest.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 21, 1904.

THE PREMIER'S RECORD.

Out of the mouth of a leading member of his own party—Rev. D. C. Hossack, pastor of Deer Park Presbyterian Church, Toronto—has Premier Ross been condemned, his political taste laid bare, his broken pledges exposed and his desertion of the true principles of Liberalism brought home. Mr. Hossack has the courage to speak out in trenchant style and his open letter to the Premier is one of the strongest arraignments of the corrupt rule of the present administration that has ever appeared.

Mr. Hossack has the courage to effectively inform Mr. Ross how he is not all that he would have certain credulous ones believe; that he is not so innocent as his friends pretend; that it was an evil day for Liberalism when he became Premier and that his hour has come. He has traduced the name of the province, degraded the standard of public life and by his condonation of political crime and accepting the stolen goods, has stamped himself as a political contortionist and one who can no longer be trusted with either credit to his party or honor to his province.

There is no doubt, as the writer well says, that Mr. Ross is responsible for the radical change in Liberalism which as portrayed and exemplified by the Premier, now stands for monopoly against the people, political debauchery and rank jobbery. Mr. Hossack shows conclusively how Mr. Ross had guilty knowledge of what was going on round about him, how transparent have been his feeble attempts to make it appear otherwise, how hollow his declarations and shameless his practices.

On the temperance question, of which the Premier has made a political football, his record is reviewed and his glaring hypocrisy exposed so far as implementing his promises or living up to his high sounding professions are concerned.

Again, in the reorganization of his ministry, look how he has retained office by corruption and not by the will of the people. Political malefactors have gone free, been rewarded with fat jobs or retained as party organisers so that under the present administration justice has fallen into the street.

That Mr. Ross has made pure professions and yet been the recipient of stolen goods leads Mr. Hossack and many other public spirited and right thinking electors to wonder what Mr. Ross' own candid opinion is of himself. The things he would have his party forget, his employment of Biblical phraseology to screen his dark political past, his expert conjury with principles, will, as Mr. Hossack says, lead thousands of Liberals to vote for pure, decent and honest administration, which Mr. Whitney has promised, and end the reign of chicanery and deception.

Until the Liberal party has been purified, until it is freed from office and given ample opportunity to reflect upon the past, until it shows some contrition other than in Biblical quotations and hypocritical tears, until it lives up to its professions, releases its organised desperadoes, kills the machine and ceases to profit by iniquity and the most shameful practices and worst elements of political piracy ever known under any system—then and not until then will it be deserving of the confidence of the electors, then it can appeal with some show of reason and justice to the electors; but meanwhile it will have to give place to men who place honesty above mere power, principle above greed for office, decency above expediency and business integrity above duplicity.

Vote to end the discredited regime on the 25th and remember that Rossism is not Liberalism, that Mr. Whitney will give this province clean, decent government.

It's time for a change.

PEN POINTS.

This is Santa Claus' big week.

The early shopper gets the best Christmas bargains.

So Mr. Justice Killam is to be chairman of the railway commission. If a name bodes anything look out for more fatalities and collisions on the roads this winter.

Although the Ross Government is in a minority of two and was afraid to face the bye-elections, still some of the oratorical Grits down at Kingston recently were talking about the administration being returned by from ten to fifteen majority. Now, for genuine clear cut, overflowing, soul-inspiring and transcendent optimism that prediction certainly stands unique.

A favorite but baseless Grit charge—"Whitney has no policy." Oh, no, nor a whitewash brush, nor a pirate brig (Minnie M.) nor a horde of partisan officials, nor a big corruption fund, nor a James Vance, nor a Cap Sullivan, nor a past to repudiate, nor a record to seal with seven seals, nor barnacles, nor a furnace to burn ballots, nor a numbered ballot, nor pike pole to fish out bogus ballot boxes. Oh, yes; there are many things Mr. Whitney has not got.

Although Mr. Whitney has denied most emphatically that any deputation waited on him suggesting that Sir William Meredith and others be taken into his Cabinet, papers like the Toronto Globe, Saturday Night and others persist in circulating the lie and then call themselves eminently respectable and fair-minded sheets. Mr. Whitney has much better material in his ranks for cabinet timber than did Mr. Ross when he nailed together his present disjointed, misfit aggregation and had to have the House dissolved to prevent one of them—in North Grey—being ousted from his seat—nay, disqualified.

Speaking at Ottawa of the scandals that have marked the career of the Liberal Government, Hon. Geo. W. Ross said: "That part of our history is closed, I hope, and sealed with seven seals, not to be opened again in your time or mine." Here are the seven seals, says the London Free Press:—

1. The Gamey scandal.
2. The West Elgin scandal.
3. The Minnie M. scandal.
4. The South Oxford scandal.
5. The North Waterloo scandal.
6. The North Renfrew scandal.
7. Calling the Legislature in order to avoid the loss of his majority through the unseating of members' scandal.

In your zeal and noble effort to turn the Ross Government out of power, do not overlook the great necessity of selecting good and wise men to direct the affairs of the town during the coming twelve months. Nominations will be held on Monday, the 26th, and far better for you to miss a good dinner than to miss placing a representative man in the field if your influence will induce him to come out. You can have a feast around the festive board some other time, but you have only one hour to place the name or names of eligible candidates before the returning officer; so be on hand Monday next in the Town Council Chamber. Proposals for Mayor will be received from 10 to 11 o'clock, and for aldermen and Public School trustees from 12 to 1 o'clock. Evince your interest in Peterborough's future by your presence at the nominations and pledging your support to only conscientious, capable aspirants.

Stomach and Liver Troubles.

Mr. Alex. M. Finn, Inkerman, N.B., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for derangements of the kidneys and liver and stomach troubles, and can certify that they did me a good deal of good. I can heartily recommend them to anyone suffering as I did."

COLLEGIATE NOTES.

Class Debate Junior Examinations Holiday Season.

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute and the Public Schools will close for the winter holidays at noon tomorrow. These institutions will re-open on Wednesday, Jan. 3rd

A class debate between four girls of the upper school was held recently. The debate was on Shakespeare's Macbeth, "Resolved that Cawdor was an innocent man and that Ross was a scoundrel. The negative was taken by Miss Martin and Miss Hyde the affirmative by Miss Roberts and Miss Smithson. The judges gave the decision to the latter. Many excellent points were brought out and the debate was one of the most interesting and edifying held in a long time.

Examinations are being held in some subjects in the first forms of the lower school. Examinations on other subjects will be taken up when school resumes after the holidays, and Mr. J. E. Hodgson, the new teacher, arrives.

The next regular meeting of the Collegiate Philomathean Society will take place on Monday, January 16th. There will be a debate on "Resolved that a young man intending to enter upon business life should have a High School Education." The society has recently adopted colors and a pretty pin as its emblems

Mr H. R. H. Kenner will spend the holidays at his home in Prince Albert, Ont.

Pains in the Chest

Mr. John Clark, Port Hope, Ont., states:—"Last winter I was so bad with a cold that I could not speak above a whisper, and had great pains in the chest. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and one bottle cured my cold which I believe would have proven very serious if I had not used this medicine."

New Year's Reception

The Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A. met a few evenings ago and outlined the programme for the annual Red Letter Day on Monday, Jan. 2nd, 1905. There will be a continuous musicale in the parlors from 2 to 5 on that day. Also games and gymnastic exhibition. A basket ball match with a visiting team is the feature for the evening. A

SCOTLAND GAVE GLAD HAND

Welcome Extended Canadian Kilties Was an Unusual One.

The welcome extended in Scotland to the Canadian band now touring Great Britain was a most unusual one, and every Canadian will feel a personal pride in the significance attached to it. The concert season of the "Kilties" in Glasgow, where the Scottish tour opened, was recognised not only as an important musical event, but as an occasion of great interest to the entire public. With such a whole-hearted welcome the success of the "Kilties" in Scotland is assured. The Daily Record and Mail of Tuesday, 6th December, tells the story:—

"There were scenes of martial splendor in the Glasgow Municipal Chambers yesterday. In a large semicircle in the magnificent Banqueting Hall were seated fifty of the stalwart sons of Canada, dressed in full Highland costume, members of the now world-famed "Kilties" Band, of Belleville, Canada. There was a large gathering of the members of the Council and others, including ladies, and when Lord Provost Sir John Ure Primrose, Bart, LL.D., entered, the band awoke the echoes by the fashion in which they rendered the National Anthem. On behalf of the band, Mr. Philip Yorke, Managing Director of the British tour, thanked his Lordship for receiving them, and introduced the owner, Mr. George W. Griffith, T. P. J. Power, Manager, William F. Robinson, Conductor, and the the members of the band.

"In reply the Lord Provost trusted that the band's stay in Glasgow would be full of pleasure to themselves and would afford much elevating delight to the citizens of Glasgow. They had a very warm heart for everything that was Canadian—land of the maple leaf—and he was certain that all the citizens would look with favor on a musical organisation hailing from Canada. (Applause).

"Mr. George W Griffith, after stating that the band was doing what it could to propogate the gospel of beautiful Scottish songs and music, and that they looked on their visit to Glasgow as their entrance to the promised land, proceeded to initiate the Lord Provost as an hon. member of the band. To his question is it was the pleasure of the band to admit the Lord Provost as a member of the band, a stentorian "Aye!" was shouted in reply. A similar reply was also given in connection with the initiation of Colonel John Macfarlane, V.D., commanding the 1st Lanark Rifle Volunteers, and each gentleman was presented with a silver medal bearing the words, 'The Kilties' Band of Canada,' and the word 'Canada' on a bar attached to the ribbon.

"The rest of the proceedings consisted of a short programme of music, the rendering of which more than fulfilled the expectations of those present, and made them determined to do all that they could to render the visit of the band a success. Souvenir books of the handsome Municipal Buildings were presented to each bandsman. The whole proceedings were tinged with the greatest good feeling."

INDIAN RIVER NEWS.

Messrs. Patrick and William Cavanagh were visiting friends in Hastings on Sunday last.

Mrs. O'Connor, of Percy, is at present spending a few days with her parents.

Miss Fanny O'Leary, who has been studying music at St. Joseph's convent, Peterborough, is home for her Christmas holidays.

Mr Alex Bennett, of Montreal, while working on the C.P.R. bridge here, chanced to see a native with a red flag in hand. Alex wished to know what country he came from, but neither wishing nor fretting could tell him, and when luncheon came he concluded that it must have been a Chinaman, judging from the small amount of tea, which was left for Alex to wet his lips.

Mr Patrick O'Connor and sister, Mrs Sullivan, of Seymour, were visiting friends here on Sunday last.

Two gentlemen, namely Mr. Stacey and Mr Lefave, of Montreal, went for a short walk on Saturday evening last. The two men mistook their path and finally lost their way. The men, not being acquainted with the country, tramped nearly all night. Mr. Lefave returned to his abode first, and very much bewildered, he declares that he must have been very near Montreal, judging from the number of steps he had taken. Mr. Stacey also returned very much fatigued, and he declared that he heard the Lachine Rapids. If their ideas prove true, they would certainly make excellent artillery men.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

WILL CONSIDER CHURCH UNION

Meeting of the Committees Now Being Held in Toronto.

EARNEST MEN ASSEMBLED

Terms on Which Union Can be Effected—Matter of Deep Consideration—The Dream of Churchmen the World Over.

Rev. Dr. Crothers is in Toronto attending the sessions of the Union Committee, called for the purpose of discussing terms upon which a union of the evangelical church bodies is necessary. Earnest men from the following branches of the Christian Church were assembled.—Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational. For years this has been the dream of churchmen the world over, but never before has it advanced so far toward realization as it has now in Canada

There is a strong conviction expressed in the Church courts, not only of the denominations mentioned, but also of others, that an organic union is both desirable and feasible. Of course the terms upon which it could be effected are a matter of deep consideration, and it is to discuss what these may be that clergymen and laymen of the three churches gathered.

The Committee representing each Church met separately yesterday in private session to discuss what attitude shall be taken, what points should be insisted upon, and wherein concession can be granted, and generally to decide upon the line of action which their Church shall adopt at the joint meeting.

The joint committee will convene in Knox church today at ten o'clock, and after devotional exercises will at once proceed with organization. Who the chairman will be is a matter of uncertainty. Had Principal Cavan lived he would doubtless have been chosen. As it is, Rev. Dr. Carman, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church, and a veteran in the cause of Church union, is likely to be chosen to preside over the deliberations. Whether the sessions will be held in private or will be open to the public, is a matter which will be left to the meeting to decide. In view of the widespread interest which is manifested in the conference and the tremendous effect which its conclusions, after due approval, may have upon the work of the Church as a whole, it is expected that the meetings will be public.

The individual committees will consider what measures of self-government in doctrinal matters, if any, should be retained by each body, what authority should be exercised by the united body, and by its constituent units, and how the property of the present divided churches should be vested in a united church.

BITTER FISCAL FIGHT

Campbell-Bannerman Delivers Chamberlain Counterblast.

Liberal Leader Accuses Former Colonial Secretary of Using Imperialism to Cover Shady Acts Or Doubtful Policies of His Own—Points Out What He Considers a More Honest Way—Times On the Speech.

London, Dec. 21.—(C.A.P.)—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman at a meeting in the east end of London made a counterblast to Mr. Chamberlain's recent speech. Referring to the latter terming himself a missionary of the Empire, Sir Henry said he was under the impression that his countrymen had by this time found out, what he had known for a long time, that it was not those who were ever mouthing the word "Empire," and using the word to cover shady acts or doubtful policies of their own, who were the best friends of the Empire. Sir Henry went on to quote the words of Premier Reed of Australia, to the effect that preference proposals meant "a fresh application of the unwholesome nostrums which within the memory of living men made the rich richer and the poor poorer." This, said Sir Henry, is the sort of authority that the apostle and the missionary receives from Australia.

Summing up the various conjectures Sir Henry said: "We must therefore conclude that Mr. Chamberlain comes here as the practical mouthpiece of the 'Government.' I say it would have been more honest and more in accordance with the traditions of our public life if they had frankly said as he had said so long ago when criticizing the fiscal proposals that they were saturated with restriction and against freedom, creating inequality between trade and trade and injustice towards the community of consumers. It was the privilege of monopoly to show jealousy and unfriendliness towards other nations.

"Why was it we heard so little about the mischievous imports roundly denounced a year ago? Because it had been discovered that much consisted of partly manufactured material, an import of unstable advantage to many of our largest industries because dumping was not an act of malice and was not grievous, but was a temporary necessity in consequence of an insufficient domestic demand; because Great Britain had discovered she was a great dumper herself and that it was a thing of which the colonies bitterly complained."

Times On Speech.

Referring to Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman's remarks on Mr. Chamberlain, The Times says the great mass of Englishmen remember that Mr. Chamberlain spent eight continuous years at the head of the Colonial Office, and during that time pulled that department from a position of secondary importance to well nigh the foremost place among our administrative offices; that he fastened the attention and imagination of the British people upon their Colonial Empire and found his regard in securing the confidence of Colonial statesmen to a degree unexampled in the previous history of Downing street. The Times asks what has Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman to say about Canada, where Sir Wilfrid Laurier has plainly and repeatedly pronounced in favor of further Imperial reciprocity; where his Finance Minister declared both parties were practically a unit in the matter, and where the preference was already a working policy.

No Abandonment Meant.

London, Dec. 21.—The Canadian Associated Press received from the Admiralty the following brief statement anent the closing of the dockyards:

The matter will be dealt with by the First Lord of the Admiralty in his memorandum on navy estimates for 1905-06, but there undoubtedly will be a decrease in the money spent at Halifax and Esquimalt in the near future.

No Dumping Ground.

London, Dec. 21.—(C. A. P.)—"Ex-Headmaster," writing to The Standard, protests against the prevalent idea that Canada is a dumping ground for home failures. He says the only true method of expanding the Empire is to send the notable sons physically and mentally. He advocates that parents desiring to give their sons a technical education in scientific agriculture after leaving a public school, should send them to South Alberta.

To Reduce Capital.

London, Dec. 21.—(C. A. P.)—The resolution has been confirmed, reducing the capital of the Dominion of Canada Mortgage Company from £250,000 to £218,284, by the cancellation of 30,356 of unissued and 12,860 of forfeited shares.

New Scottish Port.

London, Dec. 21.—The scheme which was recently brought before the Canadian Government for the establishment of an entirely new home port for the North Atlantic trade is now being seriously discussed. The proposal is to use Loch Linnhe on the west coast of Scotland. It is calculated that passengers or mails coming from Halifax and landing at Fort William could reach London eighteen hours sooner than could be done by way of Liverpool, the time being saved on the ocean journey. The distance between Fort William and Quebec is nearly three hundred miles less than between Liverpool and Quebec. The railway service from Loch Linnhe is excellent.

Czar Buys Pictures.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 21.—Emperor Nicholas has purchased the entire private collection of Vereschagin's pictures, which it was announced had been offered for sale at auction for $50,000.

Sarnia Aroused.

Sarnia, Dec. 21.—Mrs. Peter Lemon of Point Edward, Ontario, while on a street near her house, was assaulted Monday night. The woman was seriously bruised and injured. Chief of Police Servis notified the police department of Port Huron and surrounding cities and villages, and a sharp lookout is being kept for the offender. A man about 40 years old, answering the description given of the man wanted, is now in jail at Port Huron awaiting examination.

True Bill By Grand Jury.

Toronto, Dec. 21.—The sessions grand jury yesterday brought in a true bill on an indictment against the Toronto Railway Company on the charge of criminal negligence. The specific charge is the death of Russell Stephens on Thanksgiving Day in the collision at the East Queen street crossing. The company is charged with running its cars, without providing proper fenders and brakes, and without using reasonable precaution and care.

Whom the King Honors.

London, Dec. 21.—It was announced in The Gazette last evening that King Edward had conferred a number of knighthoods, including one on Joseph Wilson Swan, M.A., president of the Faraday Society, inventor of the incandescent electric lamp bearing his name, and a Royal Commissioner to the St. Louis Exposition. Among the colonial knighthoods is one for Chief Justice William Henry Horwood of Newfoundland.

An Attempt That Failed.

Moscow, Dec. 21.—An attempt was made to revive the student disturbances yesterday, but was stopped by the police. Twenty-two persons were arrested.

Conference With Franklin.

Kingston, Dec. 21.—The News and Times states that Col. Sherwood and Detective Crandon visited the home of Returning Officer Franklin of Frontenac and conferred together for some time, going over the election papers. It was shown that Hawkeye did not return to Mr. Franklin the box given him.

Sir Wilfrid Home For Christmas.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada, arrived in Chicago yesterday. He went to the Auditorium Annex, where he was greeted by a number of friends. He left for Canada at 3 p.m. on the Atlantic Express over the G.T.R.

John Young Dead.

Toronto, Dec. 21.—The death of John Young removes one who for 35 years was depository and treasurer of the U. C. Bible Society and U. C. Tract Society, although for the past few months he has been living in retirement. Born in Glasgow in 1827, he came to Toronto 45 years ago and for some time had a book store.

Cotton Importations.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—The trade and navigation returns show that the importations of raw cotton are a good indication of the activity in manufacturing, and they have increased from 257,777,625 pounds in the seven years, 1890 to 1896, to 385,524,765 in the seven years, 1897 to 1903, or a gain of 50 per cent.

Peace to His Ashes.

St. Louis, Dec. 21.—The body of Dr. W. J. L. Millar, who was born in South Mountain, Ont., was cremated here yesterday. In accord with the wishes of the deceased, the ashes will be deposited as near as possible to the grave of Barbara Hick, the pioneer Methodist, which is about four miles from Prescott, Ont.

Sir Lowthian Bell Dead.

London, Dec. 21.—Sir Lowthian Bell is dead. Besides filling the post of president of the Iron and Steel Institute and kindred societies, Sir Lowthian had been elected a member of the American Philosophical Institution, as a juror at the International Exhibition at Philadelphia. He was born in 1816.

Woodstock Boy Missing.

Woodstock, Dec. 21.—Earl Daniels, son of George Daniels, driver for the Dominion Express Company, disappeared from his home on Sunday morning and has not been seen since. Earl was about 14 years of age. He was employed in the downtown C.P.R. ticket office as a messenger.

For Burning His Station.

Brandon, Man., Dec. 21.—John W. Ward, C. P. R. agent at Hargrave, has been sent up for trial on the charge of burning his station recently.

KILLED BY FALLING WALL.

Eight Innocent Persons Meet Sudden Death in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 21.—The side wall of the O. H. Peck Building on South Fifth street, which was left standing by the great fire of last Tuesday night, toppled over in a high gale early yesterday on to the Crocker Hotel, a three-storey structure adjoining. The tons of brick and mortar crashed completely down through the flimsily constructed building, carrying floors and all into a mass of debris in the basement. There was no warning of the disaster, and the fourteen persons who were sleeping in the various apartments were caught in the crushed structure. Eight of them were killed.

Responsibility for the accident will be the subject of thorough investigation.

J. C. Houghton, city building inspector, had made an inspection of the standing walls Monday, but had given no orders concerning them.

He had earlier ordered the demolition of the other parts of the walls that seemed likely to fall.

The total loss is $16,000.

Sisters From Quebec Saved.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—Thrilling rescues of nine nuns, sisters of the Order of the Hotel Dieu, of the French Hospitaller Sisters, marked the progress of a fire that swept through the convent and destroyed it yesterday. Two of the nuns were injured, and were carried from the building almost overcome by smoke. The stairs fell before the sisters could reach them. The women were rescued by the timely arrival of firemen, who carried them down ladders from the burning building. The sisters came from Quebec, Canada, a short time ago. The loss on the building was $5,000.

Stevenson Died From Injuries.

Toronto, Dec. 21.—David George Stevenson, who was struck by a Metropolitan car at Lansing on Monday afternoon, and taken to the General Hospital, died at that institution at 4.30 yesterday afternoon. The unfortunate man never regained consciousness.

Melford, Dec. 21.—An accident occurred yesterday on the Canadian Northern Railway, four miles west of Tisdale. An engine, a caboose and a tank were ditched. Engineer Smith was badly injured, but will recover. He was left at Star City. The company sent three doctors at once, but there were no other casualties.

Street Railway Association.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—An organization known as the Canadian Street Railway Association was formed here yesterday, the object being to secure information relative to the construction and management of such railways. The election of officers will take place to-day. Amongst others were present yesterday morning: Allan Royce and W. H. Moore of the Toronto Railway; Lieut.-Col. McLean and N. Z. Earl of the St. John, N. B., Street Railway; C. E. A. Carr of the London Street Railway, and W. G. Ross, D. McDonald and Robinson of the Montreal Street Railway.

Mrs. Chadwick in Court.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 21.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick was brought into the bankruptcy court here yesterday in the bankruptcy proceedings against her, but was excused from testifying because of illness. Should Mrs. Chadwick again be brought into court, it is unlikely that she will give any testimony. If she does, it will be against the advice of her attorney, who refuses even to allow her to be sworn as a witness.

Victim of Foul Play.

London, Dec. 21.—Provincial Detective Greer of Toronto was in the city for several days last week investigating the circumstances of the death of Clinton Loomis, the circus employe, who was found dead on the G.T.R. tracks, four miles west of Hyde Park, on July 9 last. His family sent out a searching party, who found him hanging to a tree. It is supposed that his mind was unhinged, as he has been very despondent of late, though he was in fairly good circumstances.

Bulgaria Scares Sultan.

Constantinople, Dec. 21.—The Government has nearly completed arrangements with a foreign financial group, through the Ottoman Bank, for a loan of about $15,000,000, to purchase new artillery. NOVEMBER BROKE RECORD.

Tonnage of Vessels at Sault Was Great, but Year is Behind.

Figures from the canal office at the Sault show that November was another record-breaker in regard to tonnage, but the total for the season to the present time is not as great as to the same date last year. The tonnage for November was 4,911,668 tons as against 2,807,454 tons for the same month last year. The total for the season to date is 30,575,209 tons. For the same period last year the total was 34,177,239 tons, a decrease for this year of 3,602,030 tons. It is believed the tonnage for the present month, judging from the number of boats now on Lake Superior, will be in the neighborhood of a half million which will make the traffic for the year about 31,000,000 tons, or 3,500,000 less than last year. The Canadian canal handled over twice as much wheat last month as the Michigan canal, over eight million bushels being carried through the Canadian locks. The total amount of coal carried was 684,323 tons, 531,098 tons of which was soft coal. The tonnage of iron ore was 3,137,750, general merchandise 144,545, wheat 12,438,863 bushels, other grain 7,867,804 bushels, lumber 124,958 feet, board measure. There were 2,376 vessel passages. The east-bound tonnage was 4,063,727; west, 847,941.

Escaped an Operation

"I had itching piles for six years and the doctors told me there was no cure for me unless an operation. Dr. Chase's Ointment completely cured me in one week. As that was six months ago, and there has been no return of the old trouble I believe that the cure is a permanent one." —Mr. J. Mawer, Roden, Man.

CENSUS OF INDUSTRIES.

The Census Commissioner at Ottawa will, early in the new year set about the gathering of statistics to show the industrial progress made in the Dominion since the last census figures were collected in 1901. The information will be secured by means of circulars. The first industry to which the department will devote itself will be manufacturing, and the intention is to secure the data by applying to the various manufacturers.

The Railway Commission finds that a large proportion of the applications made to it regarding culverts, drainage of railway lands, farm crossings, etc., are now settled by the railways concerned without the necessity of a formal hearing before the Board. The commission's engineer writes the company in each case to find what they are prepared to do, and if the request is a reasonable one the railway usually acts without waiting for a compulsory order.

RATEPAYERS TO DECIDE TWO IMPORTANT BY-LAWS

To Improve Waterworks System, Rebuild and Repair Bridges and Open Streets.

Both Measures Will Provide for Work That is Absolutely Necessary—What is Proposed With Regard to Bridges and Streets—An Auxiliary Main to be Laid from the Waterworks Pumping Station—Larger Mains to be Laid in Other Parts.

Two important money by-laws are to be submitted to the ratepayers at the municipal elections, and it is urged that the purpose of these be well understood in order that there be an intelligent vote cast. This being the case, there is very little doubt but that the measures will carry and that the most necessary work contemplated will therefore be sanctioned. One of these bylaws is to provide for the borrowing of $12,000 for the purpose of reconstructing and repairing bridges, and purchasing land for the opening of new streets.

It has been very often pointed out that the bridge over the creek on Charlotte street is not in the best condition for the ever increasing traffic which passes over it, and the proposal is to make it a permanent structure of iron, with concrete floor. This will answer requirements for all time to come, and it must appear to every ratepayer that money put in this work will be well spent. It is also intended to repair the bridges over the creek on Simcoe, Hunter and George streets, by placing thereon a surface of concrete, and strengthening where necessary. To defeat a measure that has such an object in view would mean the failure to appreciate present conditions, and also to recognize the requirements of the future. It is a common saying that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. This is likewise a truism in this instance, for if the principal thoroughfares are not well bridged it cannot be in the most satisfactory state. The amount to be expended on work in connection with the bridges is $6,000, and when the ratepayers understand that the work is absolutely necessary they will undoubtedly carry it by a good majority.

EXTENDING STREETS.

The other half of the amount to be raised by this by-law is for the purpose of opening new streets. The most important work to be undertaked, probably is the extension of George street, south in a straight line to the driving park, or from Wescott to Lansdowne avenue. The town is offered the right of way across four park lots, and for a nominal figure can secure rights over those remaining. This is a most opportune time to undertake this extension, for it is more than likely that, if there is any delay, the property will be built on, and the rights and privileges will thus have to be withheld by the owners of the property. By the opening of the street straight through to the Park, a large amount of property will be placed on the frontage basis, and it is understood that one gentleman is prepared to immediately erect six brick houses with frontage on the new extension. The opening up of George street south will also be a great convenience to the people in that locality, since from Park to Lock streets between Wescott and Lansdowne there is one solid block without a division, thus making the trip to the business portion of the town "a long way round." The extension will also greatly improve the appearance of Peterborough's principal street, and it is very reasonable to suppose that the ratepayers will sanction the work. It is also proposed to run the north end of George street out to Victoria avenue. This can be done at trifling cost, and will effect considerable convenience to the people of that locality. George street may now be said to have a dead end in the north, and now that the chance exists, the Council should be given authority to do the work.

Another proposed extension which the people will appreciate is that of Hunter street over lift lock hill. People will remember that, during the summer time, very many of them were held up for a fee in trespassing on the private lane which leads direct to the lock, otherwise it was their wearisome duty to go a couple of miles out of their way. It seems but natural that Hunter street should be extended in the way proposed, and it can be done at little cost.

The extension of Barnardo avenue eastward across George and Water streets will make a much desired break in a very long block, now running from Argyle to Smith street, and the opening of a new street from Elm to Cedar street in the west end, will have the same effect on a block running from Park street to Monaghan road.

The above are the most important changes proposed under the by-law and the Council should have authority to proceed as soon as possible before the erection of buildings and the improvement of property concerned will render the work impossible. The by-law is one which the ratepayers should heartily endorse.

WATERWORKS EXTENSIONS

The town has no more promising asset today than the waterworks, and any improvement, alteration or extension of it should meet with the approval of the ratepayers. A by-law, to be submitted at the municipal elections will, if passed, authorise the borrowing of $20,000 "for the purpose of making extensions, improvements and alterations in the waterworks sustem of the town of Peterborough." The work which will have the greatest significance, if the by-law is passed, is the laying of an auxiliary 12-inch main from Hilliard's mills, along Water street to Argyle, thence west to George adn thence south as far as Smith street. There is at present only one 12-inch main connecting with the big 16-inch conduit running from the pump house. This answered the purpose some years ago when the requirements of the service were not extensive, but at the present time the 12-inch main is tapped at frequent intervals, and the pressure is becoming less effective every year. By the introduction of the auxiliary the 16-inch conduit will virtually be extended as far as Smith street, since two 12-inch mains are about equal to the larger. This will greatly increase the pressure, not merely in the central portion of the town, but wherever the mains extend, and hence is an important consideration in view of fire protection. Ratepayers will assuredly appreciate the great importance of this work. It is also proposed to put in 25 additional hydrants in the business portions of the town. These two items will take over half of the money to be raised.

The Water Commissioners also propose to take up and relay the stretch of main on George street from Sherbrooke to Townsend, substituting 8-inch mains for 5-inch and extend to Rink street. The Simcoe street main between Water and Aylmer streets will be enlarged from 3-inch to 5-inch, and the Water street main from McDonnell to Dublin will also be changed from 3-inch to 5-inch.

The ratepayers should bear in mind that in passing the by-law they will not be called upon to pay any additional taxes because of the outlay. The sinking fund and interest is to be made payable out of the waterworks revenue. The work proposed is of very great importance from almost every point of view in which water is identified with the town's well-being and should receive the support of the electors.

CHRISTMAS MARKET.

Prices Still High—Turkeys and Other Poultry Scarce.

There was a fairly large market this morning. The bright, frosty weather and good sleighing brought the farmers into town in good numbers and buyers were not lacking.

The prices showed little change from previous figures. Turkeys were scarce and prices very high; 15 cents a pound was the lowest at which they were to be had, and some brought as high as 17 cents. Geese brought from $1.00 to $1.25 and ducks sold at 10 cents per pound. Chickens were scarce and sold around 60 cents a pair, although a few small pair went at 45 or 50 cents. Beef was very plentiful, the prices ranging from 4 to 6 cents. Pork brought 7 and 9 cents; eggs were worth 25 cents per dozen; butter averaged 30 cents per pound, and potatoes 70 and 75 cents per bag.

Come with the crowd to Mason's for Xmas Novelties and Decoration. Beautiful Table Plants and Ferns in great variety, Roses, Carnations, Lily of the Valley, Violets. EXTENDED SYMPATHY.

Col. Sanderson L.O.L. Expresses its Sorrow With Bro. Moncrief in Loss of His Wife.

At a meeting of Colonel Sanderson, No. 321, L.O.L., Otonabee, held on December 20th, the following resolution was unanimously passed to Bro. Joseph Moncrief. The resolution speaks for itself:—

To Mr. Joseph Moncrief, Peterborough:

Dear Sir and Bro.—We, the officers and members of Col. Sanderson, L.O.L., No. 321, have learned with sincere regret the terrible calamity, which in the providence of an all-wise, loving Father and God, has seen fit to call from your side your beloved wife.

Not only has this terrible accident taken from you your loving wife, but has silenced a true Christian worker. The poor will long remember her charitable ministration, and the sick her kindness and sympathy.

In our weakness we are unable to understand His dealings. We know, however, that He doeth all things well. Knowing, also, the inefficiency of any words that we might pen to comfort you in your deepest affliction, we would commend you to the Man of Sorrows for the consolation we all stand in need of at such times, who alone can fill the void thus made, and we pray that God, who took her to Himself, may reconcile you to His divine will.

Signed on behalf of C.S.L.O.L. No. 321, Otonabee.

MR. WM. H. HILL GIVES HIS VIEWS

Thinks the General Ratepayers Should Pay Sinking Fund.

THE WATERWORKS PROBLEM

The Water User Would Pay the Interest on the Sinking Fund—The Rates Could Be Materially Reduced.

Mr. W. H. Hill, of the Board of Water Commissioners, was asked his opinion yesterday with regard to the question which has of late been much discussed—that of making more equitable distribution of cost in payment for the waterworks system. His view differs from those presented at the recent Board of Trade meeting. He has given considerable thought to the matter and he says:—

"At the end of 30 years the whole town will own the works—insofar as the original works are concerned. When they were taken over the consideration was $230,000, to be paid in thirty years. The water users will have to pay the whole of this amount and at the end of that time they will not own the works any more than the general ratepayers. I do not believe that any class of the community should be discriminated against. It is hardly fair that a part should pay for something to be handed over to the whole. What I believe therefore, is this, that the general ratepayer should pay the sinking fund now being paid by the water users, and that the water commissioners should pay the interest on that sinking fund. Then, at the end of thirty years, the general ratepayers would have handed over to them something that they had paid for, so far as the original cost is concerned, and which will prove to be an exceedingly valuable asset, and will then be producing an enormous revenue. If the general ratepayer paid the sinking fund, the water rates could be materially reduced.

"The great objection under our system is that the water users are paying more than the actual cost, and the town and the general ratepayers are making a profit out of a necessity of life—one might say—of every citizen, including the very poorest. Water is a sanitary necessity—the lack of it produces sickness and contagious disease. We grumble that we still have privy pits and yet we tax the only substitute for them. What an enlightened town like Peterborough should do is to encourage the people to put in baths and up-to-date plumbing. The taxing of health and cleanliness should always be looked upon with suspicion. Under the present system the water users have not only to pay for the works but hand over half the surplus to the town.

SIDNEY LANG LEAVING.

Presented With Hymn Book by His Class Members—An Enjoyable Banquet.

Mr. George Robertson, who is a teacher in George-st. Methodist Sabbath School, entertained the young men of his class at 176 McDonnell-st. last evening. A sumptuous banquet was served and this was followed by a toast list which brought forth some eloquent speeches. During the evening Mr. Sidney Lang, a member of the class who leaves shortly to attend the Normal School at Regina was presented with a handsome hymn book as a token of remembrance by the class. The leader, Mr. Robertson was also honored with a similar gift.

The chair was occupied by Mr. Percy Hetherington, and healths that were honored during the evening were "The King", "Our Teacher," proposed by Gordon Miller, responded to by Mr. Robertson; "Our Guest" proposed by Harry Crossman and responded to by Mr. Lang; "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. A. R. Mann, responded to by Miss Ethel Goodfellow. Solos were given by Miss Parnell and the Misses Chasty.

The evening was very pleasantly spent and Mr. Lang will be accompanied by many well wishes.

SCHEDULE DRAWN UP.

No. 2 Intermediate District Ready For The Fray.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 21, 1904.

Britt in 20 Rounds.

San Francisco, Dec. 21.—Last night a $35,000 audience witnessed the 20-rounds fight between Jimmy Britt of this city, and Battling Nelson of Chicago, for the world's lightweight championship. The general advantage was with Jimmy Britt, and the referee gave his decision in favor of Britt at the close of the 20th round.

Not Against Will.

London, Dec. 10.—Colonial Secretary Lyttelton, speaking in Glasgow and referring to the proposed colonial conference, said nothing was suggested to be imposed on the colonies contrary to their will. All the proposals of the Government were that they should sit in debate and freely discuss what was desirable to be done so far from there.

Canada Hotels and Colored Valet.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Prof. Alexander Graham Bell, the airship inventor, has asked the State Department whether Canada has a law justifying the exclusion of negroes from hotels there. Several hotels at Sydney, Cape Breton, refused accommodations last summer for Prof. Bell's negro valet.

Dowie's Assets Thirty Millions.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Before a congregation of nearly 5,000 persons John Alexander Dowie has declared that the assets of Zion were $30,000,000, and of this sum $21,000,000 was in Zion City. He said that the total indebtedness was less than $500,000, and most of that was to members of the church.

Bronchitis Grows Chronic

AND RETURNS YEAR AFTER YEAR OR DEVELOPS INTO ASTHMA OR CONSUMPTION. THE CURE IS

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE

Bronchitis is too serious a disease to trifle with.

Children are most likely to contract bronchitis, and, if neglected, it becomes chronic and returns year after year until it wears the patient out or develops into some deadly lung disease.

Chills and fever, nasal or throat catarrh, quick pulse, loss of appetite and feelings of fatigue and languor are among the first symptoms.

The cough is dry and harsh. There are pains in the chest, which are aggravated by deep breathing and coughing. Expectoration is of a frothy nature, stringy, tenacious and sometimes streaked with blood.

Pains in the limbs or joints and extreme depression and weakness result from continuation of the disease.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is, we believe, the most effective treatment for bronchitis that money will buy.

It is the most effective treatment for bronchitis because it is so far-reaching in its effect on the whole system, not only loosening the hard, dry cough, but actually and thoroughly curing the disease so that it does not return.

Mrs George Budden Putnamville, Ont., says:—"I feel it my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as I had the asthma very bad; could get nothing to do me any good. A friend of mine persuaded me to try this remedy, as he had it and it proved successful. I tried it and it cured me. I am thankful to-day to say I am a well woman through the use of this remedy. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25 cents a bottle; family size, three times as much, 60 cents, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

The man who wrote that a thing of beauty is a joy forever wasn't acquainted with either women or milliners.

The way of the transgressor is often barred.

It is so plain to the Russians that they think all who cannot see the yellow peril are color blind.

Some people seem to be mighty fond of their troubles, the way that they cultivate their acquaintance.

It is cruel the way some folks have of dashing the budding hopes of a boy by telling him that he looks like his father.

The average young man does not mind having a check to his career if the figures run up into the thousands.

The wild wailing of the autumn winds would really sound mournful if we did not know that that is a little game they play every year.

You can't always tell by the size of a woman's pompadour how long it took to comb her hair.

Some people chase illusions; others hug delusions. The result in each case is apt to be confusion.

The idle poor have a hard time hustling to live and keep idle.

A counterfeit bill and a bad reputation are alike in that you can't lose either.

Sunrise.

Across the blue gray of the eastern hill
  That softly all the lonely night has slept
There creeps a sudden, soft, compelling thrill,
  As when an angel hand a harp has swept,
And all along the far horizon's brim
A rosy blush grows through the darkness dim.

The empty fields lie glittering with frost.
  The dull, dun shadows vanish one by one
And in the distant realms of night are lost,
  Abashed and frightened by the coming sun.
Athwart the sky a flood of light sweeps on,
A moment more and all the night is gone.

The world all new and recreated lies
  A-tremble for the coming of its king.
I've heard that this magnificent sunrise,
  So fair and gladsome, is a daily thing.
It happens every morning, it is said,
While most of us are pillow bound in bed.

But while I've stood the sunrise to behold,
  All shivering, in sleeping garment clad,
I've chilled and bargained for a beastly cold—
  It's strenuous and tough, this early fad.
It turns out not as pleasant as it seems;
I'd rather see the sunrise in my dreams.

The Boy of It.

Owed on Pay Day.

Oh, pay day, how we hail thee—
  A stopcock for our woes!
When thy pale glimmering dawn we see,
  You're welcome, goodness knows!

Then for awhile we stand up straight
  And hold our heads on high,
But our last dollar, soon or late,
  We kiss a fond goodby.

"I should think he ought to be. He lives in a house with his wife, his mother-in-law and five sisters."

Fickle.

"Mary Ann married? I thought she was wedded to her art."

"Yes, but that was before she met up with the section boss."

Naturally.

"Why does Grayson's face have such a drawn look?"

"Why, don't you know he's a confirmed rubber neck."

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

Yet he felt some remorse when he thought of George Gifford. He did not like George Gifford's perfect trust in his young wife. He had been an honorable man all his life, and he knew that he was now acting dishonorably. But he self-argued why should two lives be spoiled; why should both he and Laura sacrifice their whole happiness for the sake of a man that neither of them cared for?

"If she had loved him I would have given it up, but she does not love him; her life with him is a misery to her, and it must end."

This had become his settled purpose. Yet no one at Harewood ever suspected it for a moment but Anna Lindsay. And even her shrewd red-brown eyes would have been deceived if she had not overheard what he said in the drawing-room at Red House.

As it was she watched and waited, but made no sign that she did so. There were two other guests at Harewood, both sporting men, therefore Sir Ralph naturally took Laura in to dinner on the first day of her arrival, as she was the only married woman present. He felt her hand tremble in his arm as he led her downstairs, and he pressed it a little closer to his side. That was all. No word was spoken between them during dinner that George might not have heard, no word during the whole evening.

The next morning all the men except old Mr. Gifford were early afield, Sir Ralph requesting Laura to act as hostess during his absence, and sending his coachman for her orders. She and Mr. Gifford and Anna Lindsay therefore took a drive in the morning, and after lunch, as the afternoon was fine, she went out for a walk in the grounds alone. She asked Anna Lindsay to go with her, but Anna declined. She would stay and keep her uncle company, she said, and Laura felt her absence a relief.

Beneath the tall and now nearly leafless elms at the foot of the garden, as the sun was sinking behind a bank of heavy clouds, Laura paced nearly half an hour, thinking of many things, but mostly of the strange destiny which had placed her in the position in which she found herself. It did not surprise her presently to see Sir Ralph advancing toward her. He had said he would return early, and having heard from Anna Lindsay that she was in the grounds he had gone out to seek her.

"Are you weaving a new plot?" he said, with a smile, as he met her.

"No," answered Laura, with a smile also, though it was a faint and shadowy one.

"How does a plot grow?" continued Sir Ralph, "for I suppose it does not spring into life all at once."

"No, at least mine do not. They grow as our feelings grow, I think, from small beginnings."

"Until they grow too big for us, and we must tell them somehow. Is that it?"

"Something like it."

"Do you believe in fate—in destiny?"

"I think I do. I think it is in vain to struggle against it."

"We do not make our own fate, certainly," said Laura in a low tone.

"No; we are driven into a hole, and must get out of it as best we can."

"There may be no way out."

"A strong will can force one."

"Not always; there are some things that can not be undone."

"The way may be hard, and the path rough, but I believe there is still a way. Anything is better than a life of unending struggle and regret."

Laura sighed wearily.

"You know what I mean," went on Sir Ralph, with a passionate ring in his deep voice. "We have both made a mistake—a terrible mistake—but we must get out of it as best we can."

"Why do you speak thus?" answered Laura, and she looked at him half-reproachfully, half-sadly. "You know I will not, must not, listen. You only make my life harder—you who should help me, and I need help, I need help indeed!"

Tears rushed into her eyes as she spoke, and her lips quivered, and Sir Ralph felt a keen pang of self-reproach as he saw this.

"Forgive me," he said, "but it is so difficult not to speak of what one feels so much."

Laura made no answer. She turned away her head, and for a few moments Sir Ralph walked on in silence by her side. The sun sank beneath the bank of clouds, the wind began to stir the brown branches of the elms, the air grew chill, and Laura slightly shivered.

"It is growing cold," said Sir Ralph; "perhaps you had best go indoors."

Before she could reply they both saw George Gifford advancing toward them, who met them with a pleasant smile. He thought no more, indeed, of meeting Laura with Sir Ralph than if he had met her with Anna Lindsay.

"I came out to meet you," he said, looking at Laura, "for Anna told me you were in the grounds somewhere; but I did not know you had Sir Ralph for an escort," he added, with a good-natured glance at his host.

"Yes, I met Mrs. Gifford a few minutes ago," said Sir Ralph. "I was telling her I think it is getting rather cold for her to be out."

"It is chilly," said George, pulling the collar of his overcoat up. "And you look rather pale too, Laura. Take my arm, little woman; you had better go in."

He took her hand as he spoke, with familiar affection, and drew it through his arm, and Sir Ralph's dark face paled as he saw the simple action.

"I think I will leave you now," he said a moment later. "I want to go round by the stables." And as he spoke he raised his cap and turned away, with an angry, jealous pang burning in his heart.

CHAPTER XXII.

It had been fixed that the Giffords were to stay three days at Harewood, but Sir Ralph urged them to remain longer. George, however, pleaded his business engagements.

"A hard-working lawyer must think of his clients, Sir Ralph," he said, smiling. "I am bound to be back at the office by Friday."

"But go into Suffold on Friday, and then return here," replied Sir Ralph; "and Mrs. Gifford and Miss Lindsay, of course, will remain here—and your father."

George looked at Laura inquiringly.

"Oh, no, no, George," she said hastily; "we must all go on Friday."

"I suppose that settles it," answered George. "When you are a married man, Sir Ralph, the first thing you'll have to learn is obedience." And George laughed.

But Sir Ralph visibly winced.

"He gives you a bad character, you see," he said, looking at Laura, who blushed beneath his gaze.

Then George turned away and began talking to Anna Lindsay, and Sir Ralph said in a low and somewhat bitter tone to Laura:

"You seem in a great hurry to leave my house."

"It is better I should go," she answered, also speaking in a low voice.

"I see no difference it can make."

Laura did not speak, but she felt it did make a difference. Seeing Sir Ralph daily was too great a strain on her own powers of endurance, when George also was by her side. She had noticed the jealous look on Sir Ralph's face the evening before, when George had taken her hand in his and drawn it through his arm. She had seen Sir Ralph's lips wince and quiver when George approached her, and she was conscious that she preferred George not to be near her in Sir Ralph's presence.

"I am better away," she told herself, and so she meant to go. But her leaving with George angered Sir Ralph greatly.

"Have I annoyed you in any way?" he presently asked.

"No, no, it is not that, but——"

"But what?" asked Sir Ralph, bending his head a little nearer.

"I must go back to my work."

"You have no necessity for working now."

"Yes, I have."

"You mean it keeps you from thinking? You see I can guess your thoughts, but in spite of work you will think, you must think."

"I must try not to do so."

"If you succeed will you give me a lesson in the art? Do you think," he went on bitterly, "I would not also forget it all if I could? Do you think it makes me any happier to remember the old days—to see you again, in memory, looking in my face as you used to look then?"

"Oh! hush, hush, Sir Ralph!"

"You madden me by your indifference, or feigned indifference. You grudge me a smile, and yet I know, I feel—"

"Sir Ralph, do you see Miss Lindsay looking at us? For my sake do not speak, do not look as you are doing now."

"I am a bad actor, I am afraid. Yes, I see Miss Lindsay's red-brown eyes have a curious flicker in them. I dislike that woman, and yet I have no reason."

"She is not lovable, certainly."

"Few women are lovable, to my mind. What is it that makes the charm, I wonder? Is it that the mind attunes itself to ours? It is something beyond mere beauty, though beauty has doubtless great power. But a man wants more than that to fill the complex nature of his heart."

Laura sighed uneasily.

"Do you remember the first time I spoke to you in the picture-gallery?"

"Yes."

"And do you remember when we went, long after, to another picture-gallery, and we sat and talked? Laura, I loved you then—as I love you now."

BRITISH SHIPS SEIZED

Japs Take the Nigretia and the King Arthur to Sasebo.

Nigretia Had Large Quantity of Contraband of War On Board and Both Had Interned Russian Officers and Men—Russian Commander of the Grosovoi Was Among Them, and He Carried Valuable Charts and Documents.

Tokio, Dec. 21.—The Japanese protected cruiser Tsushima seized the British steamer Nigretia, bound for Vladivostock from Ulsan, Corea, Monday. An examination of the Nigretia's cargo showed that she had a large quantity of contraband of war on board. She was sent to Sasebo for trial before the prize court.

It is reported the Nigretia had on board officers and men of the Russian torpedo boat destroyers who escaped from internment at Shanghai, and were attempting to regain the Russian lines.

Russian Commander There.

Shanghai, Dec. 21.—There appears to be no doubt that the commander of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi, who has been interned here since his vessel arrived after the battle between the Russian and Japanese fleets off Port Arthur on Aug 10, took passage on the steamer Nigretia, bound for Vladivostock. The commander carried valuable charts and documents.

British Steamer Caught.

Tokio, Dec. 21.—The British steamer King Arthur was captured while attempting to leave Port Arthur Monday by the Japanese guardship Asagiri. It is understood that the King Arthur took supplies to Port Arthur. She had on board Russian naval officers, who were attempting to join the Russian second Pacific squadron. The King Arthur was taken to Sasebo for trial.

List of Jap Casualties.

Tokio, Dec. 21.—Imperial headquarters yesterday published a list of 26 officers killed and 44 wounded, presumably during the recent attacks on a certain fortress. The fortress referred to is undoubtedly Port Arthur. The manner in which the despatch is filed indicates the strictness of the Japanese censorship over press despatches.

To Attack Russians.

London, Dec. 21.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Hong Kong says he has learned on trustworthy authority that a powerful Japanese squadron of battleships and armored cruisers is proceeding south, accompanied by 15 colliers and transports, to attack the Russian second Pacific squadron.

More Food For Powder.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 21.—Mobilization of the reserves has been announced in seven military districts. This is the third and most extensive mobilization of the war and will add about 200,000 men to the army in the Far East. It is thought the whole force can be placed in the field by spring, when the problem of food and fuel will be easier met and the transportation of the troops will create less strain upon the trans-Siberian railway. It will bring General Kuropatkin's effective force, roughly estimated, to 680,000.

Chinese Taught By Japs.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 21.—The American Board of Foreign Missions made public yesterday a report from its oldest missionary in Japan, Rev. D. C. Greene, D.D., of Tokio, in which Dr. Greene states that there are now 1,000 Chinese students, including 500 military cadets, in Tokio, under the auspices of the Chinese Government, and 1,000 more in the city independent of the Government.

Paris, Dec. 21.—President Loubet yesterday morning received at the Elysee Palace the members of the international commission which is to inquire into the North Sea incident, but the non-arrival of Rear-Admiral Davis prevented American participation.

DOESN'T KNOW "CAP"

Astonishing Statement Made By Hon. G. W. Ross At Napanee.

Premier of Ontario Devoted Two Hours to Answering the Criticisms of His Opponents—His Principal Stock-in-Trade Was the "You're Another" Type of Rejoinder—His Audience Was Quite Cold and Undemonstrative.

Napanee, Dec. 21.—Hon. G. W. Ross opened the provincial campaign in the Opera House here last night. The building seats 600, and it was comfortably filled. The Premier received an attentive hearing, but the audience was far from demonstrative; indeed, it was quite cold. The cheers were few and far between and anything but hearty. A few mottos were hung on the walls and the platform was decorated with flags. There were seats on the stage for forty or fifty people, but only a few were occupied, mostly by women. Besides the address of the Premier, the evening was occupied with short speeches by the chairman, W. S. Herrington, the Liberal candidate in Lennox, M. S. Madole, and E. J. B. Pense, of Kingston.

Mr. Ross spoke about two hours, entirely on the defensive, but he announced that he would at Barrie on Friday night make a full exposition of the new Liberal platform constructed for him by the Liberal convention held in Toronto a few weeks ago. It had been charged that the Liberal party had been in power too long. He humorously referred to the caricature representing the Government as a broken-down war horse, by declaring it to be an animal that had never lost a Derby, although it had had a few falls in unimportant steeplechasing events. Moreover, the Opposition war horse had never won a race. The jockeys were frequently changed with no result, and the grooms, such as Gamey and Dr Nesbitt, had not been able to get him into shape.

"You're Another."

If there had been scandals during the Liberal regime, what about the McGreevy scandal, the Curran bridge scandal and others he could name? It was true that in 1896 the Liberals had said it was time for a change in the administration of affairs at Ottawa, but they had been able to make out a case. The Opposition in Ontario had entirely failed to make out a case for a change of Government.

The Soo loan was defended by Mr. Ross on the ground that it had revivified a moribund industry and made Canada independent of foreign countries in the manufacture of steel rails. Reverting to the electoral crimes he insisted that none of them had been proven against the Government. He deplored the fact that these crimes had been committed by some foolish men, but he denied personal knowledge.

Doesn't Know the "Cap."

Some of those who had been guilty of corrupt practices were entire strangers to him. He had never seen "Cap" Sullivan. He had seen Frank Sullivan once when some one had pointed him out. He had never seen Robert Sutherland. These men never went on their mission of corruption in behalf of the speaker, and they had never gone on their mission, as far as he knew, on behalf of the Liberal organization. It was untrue that he had guilty knowledge of these nefarious practices. If you are going to dismiss the Liberal party, asked Mr. Ross, who are you going to put in our place?

Claims Some Credit.

The Liberal Convention had put itself on record as opposed to electoral corruption, but the Conservative Conference had not done so. After traversing a considerable field, the Premier claimed credit for being the first premier to institute proceedings against the men reported for election crimes. These offences were committed during the regime of the late A. S. Hardy, but it was not till Mr. Ross came into power that any of the offenders were sent to jail. There were several reasons why justice failed in some cases, and he made the most of them.

The Conservatives had been too hasty in prosecuting the Soo workers, and if they had left it to the Attorney-General's Department these men would have been tried before this. The Government should not be held responsible for the cruise of the Minnie M. The Conservatives had no claim to the Government benches on the ground of electoral purity. Mr. Ross touched briefly on the Conservative policy enunciated at the conference and claimed that it was largely a stolen policy, and the plank relating to temperance was so meaningless that it might be adopted by the inmates of the Central Prison.

Mate of the Danish Vessel Greda Killed By a Storm.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 21.—The Danish vessel Greda has arrived here, her captain injured and her mate dead as the result of her experience in the fierce tornado that is now sweeping the coast. A heavy sea struck the ship, throwing the mate through the cabin door and breaking his neck and legs. The wheel was broken, and the Greda's deck gear and sails were carried away. The schooners Matilda and Swallow have also arrived in port divested by the storm of their spars, rigging, sails and deck gear. The steamers Sicilia, Sylvia, Portia and Carthaginian are detained here by the storm.

Seven Die At Sea.

Nantucket, Mass., Dec 21.—Death in the sea was the probable fate of seven men who comprised the crew of the schooner Richard S. Leaming, which was driven ashore on Long Shoal during the severe blizzard last Sunday. Both of the schooner's yawl boats were found aboard her yesterday, one of them having been smashed to splinters.

Storm Drowns 27.

Lisbon, Dec. 21.—A disastrous storm, which suddenly burst on the northern coast of Portugal, has caused great loss of life. Eighteen fishermen were drowned at Figueira da Foz and 600 others have been rendered destitute. A ferry boat, lying at the mouth of the Mondego River, was capsized, and fourteen persons were drowned. In the Leixoes Basin near Oporto, five boats were sunk and five persons drowned.

Mr. Cote Leaves La Presse.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—"Mr. Thomas Cote is no longer a member of our editorial staff."—La Presse.

Mr. Godin, who represents David Russell, received a letter yesterday from Mr. Cote, resigning his position on La Presse. He states in his letter that he is tired of the fight, and that Saturday's article was printed without his knowledge or consent, hence Mr. Cote's determination to leave.

Lord Minto On Canada.

London, Dec. 21.—Lord Minto, addressing a deputation of the South of Scotland Chamber of Commerce at Hawick railway station, expressed the hope that Canada and the Empire generally will all pull together to render that prosperity as great in the future as in the past few years. After Lord Minto had acknowledged the reception the Canadian National Anthem was sung.

Woman Suffrage in Canada.

London, Dec. 21.—One of the last acts of the dying council of 1904 was the passing of a radical resolution calling upon the Ontario Government to confer the municipal franchise upon all the married women of the province. The resolution was the outcome of a petition sent to the council by the local Women's Christian Temperance Union and backed up by a deputation.

Six to Hang One.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 21.—Half a dozen men will pull cords to spring the trap when James Goode is hanged here on Thursday for the murder of Police Inspector Shiflberger. This expedient was necessary because no deputy would agree to hang a man alone, but they were willing to share among themselves the responsibility of taking the criminal's life.

WHAT DO YOU CARE? YOU'VE GOT YOUR HEALTH.

Great Natures Do Not Despair at Disappointment—They Look for Something Else to Do.

The broad-gauged man of to-day does not get blue just because things don't always come his way unless there is something the matter with him. If he "falls down" on one proposition he immediately starts to look up another. He always looks forward and keeps on bustling. A man with his health and faculties has plenty of opportunities and the man who gives up or even feels like it has either a small nature or some physical weakness.

Dyspepsia certainly puts the best of men out of condition for work of any kind. You cannot blame the dyspeptic for getting blue. The very nature of his disease is most depressing and calculated to deprive him of ambition, energy and hope. There is hope for him, however, certain and sure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as the one cure that's safe and sure. Their unbounded popularity—resulting from the thousands and thousands of cures they have effected, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt their greatness as a cure. Wherein lies their greatness? In the very fact that they are Nature's own simple remedy. They do the exact work in exactly the same way that the digestive fluids of the stomach do because they are composed of exactly the same elements and possess the same properties. They relieve the weak and worn out stomach of its burden of digestion and permit it without let or hindrance to rest and grow sound and well. The stomach will get well quick enough in its own natural way if it is let alone. That is what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do. They not only let it alone themselves but make the food taken into the stomach do the same.

You can satisfy yourself of the truth of this statement by putting the food you would eat into a glass jar with sufficient water and one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The process of digestion will be taken up and carried out just as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids would do it. Their action is natural and they cause no disturbance in the digestive organs. In fact you forget you have a stomach when they begin to do their work, so mild and natural is the operation. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50c. a box.

HOPE FOR EVERYBODY.

There Seems to be no case so bad that Anti-Pill cannot cure it. A strong claim but well supported.

Just recently a physician in Lincoln, Nebraska, has made a discovery which is exciting the interest and wonder of the medical profession all over the world.

Dr. Leonhardt began on the theory that the poisons sent through the system by the rotting and fermentation of undigested foods were the prime cause of nearly every disease.

He set to work to discover if possible a remedy that would stimulate and heal the mucous membrane lining of the stomach and bowels, till, by their normal, healthy action, perfect digestion would be restored.

He succeeded and his prescription he called Anti-Pill. The proof that his work was well done is found in the long list of remarkable cures made by Anti-Pill.

Anti-Pill is 50c a bottle, at all Druggists, or The Wilson-Fyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont. Sole Agents for Canada. 112

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Peterborough teams had a good work out last evening and are fast rounding into shape.

—T.A.S. players were out in large numbers last evening. There was a big bunch of juniors on the ice, and the City League team for Thursday night's game with the Karnets will be a fast one.

The hockey enthusiasts should remember to-morrow night's City League games at the Brock-st. rink. The first match will be between the Colonials and Earl Greys, and will be called at 8 o'clock. In the second the T.A.S. and Karnets are the contestants. Both have strong teams and the game should be a corker. Turn out and patronize the league, which will be the means of developing some star players.

The T.A.S. will practice this evening from 7 until 8 o'clock. A full attendance of members is requested.

There seems to be some doubt about the exact meaning of the City League rule debarring O.H.A. intermediates and seniors and T.V.L. seniors from participating in City League games. Some interpret the rule as referring to players who are playing in those organizations this season. The rule in question, however, is intended to bar every player who has ever played in the O.H.A. intermediate or senior series, or in the Trent Valley League.

The players of the Colonial and Earl Grey hockey teams have the laugh on the rest of the City League organizations, as they play the first league game. The following letter has been received from Messrs. Lang & Maher by the secretary of the City League:—

Dear Sir,—Would you please forward to us the name of the player who scores the first goal in the schedule of the City League. The reason for this request is this: To the party scoring same we will give a choice of our dollar shirts.

Yours truly,
LANG & MAHER.

The Charlotte-st. Guild will practice this evening between 7 and 8 o'clock, on the All Saints' rink. As many members as possible are asked to turn out.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY.

Ten Years Ago Rev. Father Fitzpatrick Was Ordained.

The tenth anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Ennismore, will be celebrated to-morrow. The worthy priest of that parish will be the recipient of many hearty congratulations. Just what ceremonies are to mark the occasion have not been fully announced, but it is understood that His Lordship, Bishop O'Connor, and the Cathedral clergy will be participants.

Since his ordination, ten years ago, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick has been stationed, first, at the Cathedral, then at Young's Point, and latterly at Ennismore. The people over whom he has had charge in these places loved him for his good works and for the careful and kind manner in which he discharged the responsibilities of his office. In Ennismore he has performed a grand work in bringing to perfection that organization which is a rival of the one of similar character here—St. Martin's Total Abstinence Society. He has seen the beneficial effect of its existence in the community. There is prosperity and contentment throughout the parish of Ennismore, and Rev. Father Fitzpatrick's friends in Peterborough will wish him many happy returns of the day, when he was raised to the high and holy office of the priesthood.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

PUBLISH THE REPORT.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It is an open secret that the waterworks dam has been condemned and is in an unsafe condition. I believe an engineer has been called in and, after making a thorough examination, he has sent his report to the Water Commissioners, but instead of being published it has been made a sealed book. Why this secrecy? The Water Commissioners must not get inflated with the idea they they own the waterworks system. They are merely the servants of the people and must give an account of their stewardship and withhold nothing.

Now that some of them are seeking re-election it is a good time for the public to press for the publication of the report, and demand the building of the new dam at once, without frittering away the people's money in trying to repair the old one, which is beyond redemption. Just think of the panic that would ensue from a water famine and the danger from fire in case the dam becomes swept away with the spring freshet. Delay in a matter so vitally important is criminal negligence.

Yours &c.,
CITIZEN.

PETERBOROUGH WATERWORKS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The application of the Water Commissioners to the Council for $20,000 for auxiliary mains on Water, George and other streets willl come before the ratepayers for their approval in a by-law to be submitted for the purpose on the 2nd of January next, when the municipal elections are being held, and it appears to the Commissioners desirable than an explanation of the reasons for this request should be given to the public.

When the late Water Company commenced operations their pump house was placed at Hilliard's Mills, and from that point to Smith street, about three-quarters of a mile, they laid a 12-inch main. On erecting a new dam and pump house a mile further up the river, the Company placed a 16-inch main along this line. Therefore the condition exists that the capacity of the works is not that through a 16-inch main, but is limited to that one of little more than half its carrying power.

The fire at the Cereal Company's works last winter, when several hydrants were in use, made it very evident, by the immediate loss of water pressure, that a remedy must be found. The Commissioners have had this under consideration since, and have arrived at the conclusion that the above 16-inch pipe must be paralleled by another of the same size, so that more effective service in the future may be assured. It is intended to extend this 12-inch pipe from the Mills along Water to Argyle streets, thence west to George and from there to Smith street. From Smith street the Water will be carried along Water and George-sts. through existing mains to all parts of the town.

On George street, from Smith south to Sherbrooke street, there is an eight inch main, but from that point to Wolfe street the Company laid only a five-inch pipe. Attached to this pipe at Wolfe street is an eight inch main to Townsend, but no main exists on George street from Townsend to Rink street.

On Simcoe-st. from Aylmer-st. to the bridge there is a three-inch pipe, from the east side of the bridge a four-inch pipe, and from there to the gas works a three-inch pipe, all of which are quite sufficient for fire protection purposes, and being in the central part of the town, it is particularly desirable that those small pipes should be replaced by much larger ones. On Water street between London and Dublin street there is also a three-inch pipe connecting with a five-inch main, and this should be removed and replaced with the larger size.

The pipes which will be taken up will be used for extensions in portions of the town where a large supply of water is not so much in demand.

The Commissioners also wish to extend a main on Benson street from Smith street to the Dickson Park and place two hydrants on it, but it is expected that this will eventually pay for itself, through use of water by consumers.

The Commissioners view it as of extreme importance, for the protection of the town, that these improvements should be made as soon as possible, and they therefore confidently look for the passage of the by-law. They can give this assurance that the expense will not increase the water rates, nor add any tax to the town, as the outlay for sinking fund and interest will be provided out of surplus income.

Your obedient servant,
W. H. MOORE,
Commissioner.

The appreciation of pupils for their teacher was to-day evidenced at the Murray-st. Separate School when Miss M. Casey, who is retiring from the teaching staff, was made the recipient of a very handsome gold mounted fountain pen. The gift was accompanied by an appropriately worded address in which the pupils gave expression to their regret at losing association with one whom they had always held in high regard. Their wish was that she might be greatly blessed in the sphere which she is shortly to enter.

Miss Casey thanked the pupils for their kindness of heart, which had found expression in the words of the address and in the presentation of the gift.

STOP THAT COUGH!

Colds Lead to Catarrh—Catarrh Leads to Consumption.

A Beautiful Girl's Experience

MISS
LILLIA.

Miss Alma Lillia, 505 18th St., Rock Island, Ill., says:

"I am a firm friend to Peruna, for it cured me in two days of a cough which had been annoying me for three weeks, and which had developed a serious catarrhal affection of the throat and lungs.

"I had a number of colds during the year, and each left me with a little more catarrh; then this bad cough was the worst. I took cough medicines until I sickened at the sight of them. But Peruna cured me up in such quick time that I am its firm friend. Four weeks' constant use of it got the catarrh entirely out of my system.

"It deserves all the praise bestowed upon it."—Alma Lillia.

Nine cases of consumption out of ten occur in this way:

A person catches a cold. The cold is not properly cured, and they quickly catch another one. This cold is dilly-dallied with by no treatment, or some treatment that is ineffectual, and the cold continues.

Then they catch another cold and begin to cough. Then they take cough syrups, but they do no good.

By and by they get tired of taking medicine and give up in despair.

Their cold continues and their cough grows worse. Then they apply to a doctor, only to discover that they are in the first stages of consumption.

Miss Lillia, of Illinois, started out exactly in this way. Fortunately, she took a course of Peruna before it was too late. She had caught several colds, then a cough developed. She took all sorts of cough medicines, until, as she puts it, "I sickened at the sight of them." In four weeks Peruna had cured her of her catarrh and her system was entirely rid of it.

This is what Peruna is doing all the while. Not a day, and probably not an hour, passes but some one has a similar experience with Peruna.

The first step toward consumption is catching cold. The next step is a failure to cure it promptly. The third step is the development of catarrh, which gradually becomes chronic. The fourth step, the catarrh begins to spread from the head to the throat. The fifth step, the catarrh spreads to the bronchial tubes and lungs. It then becomes consumption in its first stage.

At any time during the progress of the catarrh, from the first onset of the cold to its final settlement in the lungs, Peruna can be relied upon to stop the disease. It cures entirely. Even after consumption has become thoroughly developed, many cases have found in Peruna a permanent cure. After they have been given up by physicians to die of consumption Peruna has cured them.

We have hundreds of testimonials that declare these facts in the most enthusiastic language.

U. S. Senator John M. Thurston, from Nebraska, writes the following letter from Washington, D. C., under date of April 6, 1901:

"I have used Peruna at various times during the past year or two with most satisfactory results.

"It entirely relieved me from an irritating cough, the result of excessive effort in the Presidential campaign, and I am a firm believer in its efficacy in any such trouble."—Jno. M. Thurston.

To take quieting medicines to stop a cough is absurd and harmful. The only way to stop a cough permanently and without doing more injury than good is to cure the catarrh, which is exactly what Peruna does. It cures the catarrh of the bronchial tubes and the cough ceases.

At the slightest appearance of a cough a bottle of Peruna should be taken according to directions. One bottle in the beginning will do more than a half dozen bottles after the catarrh has fastened itself on the lungs.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

COMPENSATION.

All Things Are to Be Had if One Will but Pay the Equivalent.

Life consists almost wholly of buying, selling, paying. There are no gifts, nothing that does not call for an equivalent. If we cannot pay for gifts in kind we must pay in gratitude or service or we shall rank as moral bankrupts.

If I would have a good situation I must pay for it not only in labor, but in promptness, intelligence, faithfulness and good manners. If I would have good service I must pay not only in money, but in consideration, recognition, appreciation, fairness. I can hold no one to me if I misuse him.

All things are to be had for the buying. Would you have friends? Then pay the price. The price of friendship is to be worthy of friendship. The price of glory is to do something glorious. The price of shame is to do something shameful.

Friendship, glory, honor, admiration, courage, infamy, contempt, hatred, are all in the market place for sale at a price. We are buying and selling these things constantly as we will. Even beauty is for sale. Plain women can gain beauty by cultivating grace, animation, pleasant speech, intelligence, helpfulness, courage or good will. Beauty is not in the features alone; it is in the soul also.

Good will buys good will, friendliness buys friendship, confidence begets confidence, service rewards service, and hate pays for hate, suspicion for suspicion, treachery for treachery, contempt for ingratitude, slovenliness, laziness and lying.

We plant a shrub, a rosebush, an orchard, with the expectation that they will pay us back. We build roads, mend harness and patch the roof with the same expectation. We will trust even these unconscious things to pay their debts.

Some of our investments are good and some are bad. The good qualities we acquire—moderation, industry, courtesy, order, patience, candor—are sound investments. Our evil institutions and habits are bad investments, involving us in losses. We become debtors to them, and they are exacting creditors, forcing payment in full in money and labor and sometimes in blood, agony, tears, humiliation or shame.—From "Balance: The Fundamental Verity," by Orlando J. Smith.

The term "namby pamby," which has come to be applied to a person of vacillating character as well as to weak literary productions, was originated by the poet Pope. He applied it to some puerile verses that had been written by an obscure poet, one Ambrose Phillips, addressed to the children of a peer. The first half of the term is meant as a baby way of pronouncing Amby, a pet nickname for Ambrose, and the second half is simply a jingling word to fit it.

A Mixed Pie.

A pie served to Charles II. was made of sparrows, potatoes, eryngoes, lettuce, chestnuts, oysters, citron, artichokes, eggs, lemons, barberries, pepper, nutmeg, cloves, mace, currants, sugar and wine.

The White Cat With Blue Eyes.

It is not easy to explain why a white cat with blue eyes is deaf, but this seems to be a rule with few exceptions.

Chinese Chess.

The Chinese are passionately fond of all games of skill and chance and in particular of chess. The Chinese form of the game closely resembles the European method, but is usually played with flat wooden disks with their distinctive marks written upon them.

INDIAN GOES TO GAOL.

—This afternoon William Hill, an Indian from Deseronto was arraigned before Magistrate Dumble, on a charge of stealing $42 from James Marlow, of Belleville, on his way down from the lumber camp near Sudbury. Hill admitted his guilt and was sentenced to one month in gaol. On his person the sum of $33.25 was found and this was ordered to be returned to Marlow.

—Yesterday was the shortest day in all the year.

—St. Andrew's choir will practice this evening at 8 o'clock.

—The Harmonica Club will hold a dance in the Foresters' Hall this evening.

—St. Paul's Church choir will practice this evening. A full attendance is requested.

—Have you tried Asparox or Vigoral yet. It is delicious and comforting. On sale by Louis Potvin. 4d

—On Wednesday evening next the members of Eko Camp will give an evening in their club rooms.

—Yesterday was the date of the winter solstice, consequently we have arrived at the shortest days of the year.

—Miss Mowry will be at the stamp wicket in the post office to-night and Friday night from 7.30 until 9 o'clock.

—Miss Carrie White, Peterborough's elocutionist, will be heard in her latest numbers at the T.A.S. Anniversary in the Opera House on January 9th.

—The annual meeting of the officers and teachers of St. Andrew's church which was to have been held last evening has been postponed until the beginning of the New Year.

—Councillor John J. Mason and Mayor M. A. James are in the field for the Mayoralty of Bowmanville. Mr. James has already been chief magistrate two years.

—Mr. Lawrence, who has been in the Standard Bank, Campbellford, some months left Tuesday for Ailsa Craig, where he will be connected with the bank there.

—The Brass Workers' Local, No. 203, will hold an at home in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe-st., on Friday, Dec. 30th, 1904. Dancing will begin at 8.30 sharp.

—If you haven't made your Christmas cake or dainties yet, Potvin can supply you. His Xmas cakes are especially good. 4d

—The public schools and Collegiate Institute closed to-day at noon and a good many children feel happier than they have for some time. The schools will re-open on Tuesday, Jan. 3rd.

—If you haven't remembered everyone on your list, make a few pretty calendars—an inexpensive and pretty way of letting your friends know you have not forgotten them. All materials on sale at the Review office.

—Have you seen the beautiful candy boxes and baskets for Xmas giving that are shown in L. Potvin's window. See them before buying something that may not be as acceptable to her. 4d

—Mr. W. H. Meldrum states that he expects to start up his cereal mill at the foot of Simcoe-st., about the opening of spring. His new buildings have about been completed, and already large quantities of grain are being received.

—Mr. Kerby, superintendent of the Weston Shoe Co., met with a painful accident last Friday afternoon. While working in the factory a large [illegible] fell on his foot badly injuring two of his toes. Mr. Kerby has been at work all week, but he has suffered considerably from pain in his foot.—Campbellford Herald.

—The Review has just received a new line of white embossed board that is very pretty for calendars and mounts for passepartout pictures. Everything needed for calendars on sale—pictures, calendar pads, card and ribbon. Open every evening. 1d

—About 9 o'clock on Thursday night last fire was discovered in the house of Mr. R. N. Simpson, Campbellford. When first seen by Mrs. Simpson, it had reached the roof and had made considerable headway. The roof, including the rafters, was burned so that it is of no further use. The damage by water was considerable.

—Mr. W. H. Hill referring to the interview published last evening states that he wishes to be understood as holding the opinion that the ratepayers should pay the sinking fund, and the water user the interest on debentures issued to meet the cost of the waterworks. This system has been adopted in Detroit, and Brantford and has proved very satisfactory.

—Up to this date last year there was a month of continuous cold weather. So far this year the winter has been comparatively mild, with January close at hand. Local prophets foresee a winter of a different character than that of last year—less severe, not so much snow, cold not so continuous, and the season of shorter duration. The wind will blow frequently from the north-east, changing occasionally to south-west and west, and causing higher temperature, and a tendency to rain.

—A by-law to raise the sum of $6,500 for the purpose of putting in a system of ventilation and steam heating in the public and high schools in Campbellford, instead of the hot air system of heating at present in the same, and to construct a system of sewerage in connection with said schools to empty into the river Trent and to authorize the issue of debentures therefor will be voted on by Campbellford ratepayers at the municipal elections.

—The Zion Methodist church will hold their annual New Year's dinner at the Forester's Hall, Zion, on Monday, January 2nd. A good programme is being prepared, and the usual good time is assured to all who go down. Admission 25 cents. 1d

—Mr. Harry F. Macnaughton, who has been private secretary to the Provincial Minister of Public Works for about two years past, has been appointed assistant Inspector of Division Courts in the place of the late W. H. Higgins. Mr. Macnaughton succeeded Mr. Percy Ryan, who was first made secretary of the Temiscaming Railway Commission, and later secretary of the Federal Railway Commission. Mr. Macnaughton has thus had a most difficult post to fill, and he has filled it with great acceptance to all who have had business with the department.

SHREDDED FRUIT AND VEGETABLES

Experimental Work May Soon Take Form of Industry.

LOCAL PROSPECT PROMISING.

Peterborough May Receive Surprise Shortly—Process Which Preserves Nutriments but Reduces Weight and Bulk.

In these strenuous days many methods have been experimented with and not a few adopted, which have for their object the condensation of food bulk, and at the same time the retention of nutriments. Many a joke is passed with regard to the different forms of breakfast foods which are at present on the market, but at the same time these have almost come to be recognized as commodities so general is their use. The Review had an opportunity this morning of examining the product of a new departure in this field of manufacture. This is something which as yet is only in the experimental stage, and all that can be said at present is that Peterborough may hear something that will be an agreeable surprise at some time in the near future.

The public have undoubtedly long ago become familiar with shredded foods, such as wheat, and such a thing as shredded potatoes, shredded pumpkins, peas and beans and other products of the farm and garden will not come as a great source of wonderment. But, the point is this: while such treatment of these things has not got as far as the manufacturing stage, still experiments have proved that such a thing is possible, and it is an interesting fact that there are those who place great faith in the process which has for some time been in course of development. For instance, the Review was this morning shown some shredded potatoes. The original "murphy" had been subject to such treatment that it retained no semblance of its former self, but rather was in dry, shredded form and also in small tablets. The process of drying in sealed vessels is carried out in such a way that none of the vegetable nutriments are allowed to escape, and hence by applying hot water to the manufactured article the food properties of the original vegetable are procured. It just takes five pounds of potatoes to make one pound of the new article. The same with squash and pumpkins. Three and a half pounds of peas or beans will produce one pound of a powder which when properly treated will make soup to the King's taste. It is understood that all vegetables can be manufactured after the manner referred to.

Indications are that announcement will soon be made which will have considerable significance to Peterborough's industrial world. At the present time steps are being taken which have in view the launching of an important enterprise.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

I BELIEVE

Red Rose Tea

is the best tea in Canada, and that a great many people who drink it say it is the best tea they ever used.

I KNOW

It is however easy to make statements about what we believe. I think it is better to give definite, positive reasons why an article is believed to be the best, and if any article has real merit, it should be easy to give convincing reasons.

This is just what I propose to do. In the successive issues of this paper I will publish a number of facts and reasons why I believe Red Rose Tea is the best tea in Canada, and why you should use it.

The reasons will be interesting and educative about tea—well worth reading.

Before you read many, I think you will want to try the tea and if you buy a pound, the tea itself will do the rest.

MR. WHITNEY'S RECORD.

The Conservatives of Ontario have had a majority of the popular vote ever since 1898. Mr. Whitney should have been Premier during those six years. He was deprived of his right — the Conservative party has been robbed of its rights — by means which have become notorious and which scandalized this Province. Mr Whitney has gone on fighting in opposition after the people elected him to the Premiership. By all sorts of juggling and cheating the Ross Government has been able to cling to office. A great many of the most useful laws of the Province have been suggested by the Opposition. The latest amendment to the election law, looking to the prevention of corruption, was based on a bill introduced by the member for West Elgin, the St. Thomas Times reminds us. Though Mr. McDairmid's bill was side-tracked, its provisions were embodied in the amendment passed later on by the Government. And so with many of the best measures passed during the last five or six sessions of the Legislature. The Globe and other Liberal organs attempt to discount the ability of Mr. Whitney; Mr. Ross has assumed a lofty air in speaking of his leading opponent, yet Mr Whitney had been thrice asked to coalesce with the present Government, a request which he spurned, indicating on his part a quality of rugged manliness and honor to which his opponent is a stranger.

Had it not been for the gerry-mandering of the province and the introduction of the machine, Mr. Whitney would have been premier years ago. He is a peer of Mr. Ross in debating ability, and far above him as a man of principle. Mr. Whitney was defeated by fraud in his first contest for a seat in the House. A protest resulted in the unseating of his opponent, and in the bye-election which followed Mr. Whitney was returned. His first move in the house was the introduction of a bill to make bribery punishable by imprisonment. This bill was repeatedly voted down by the Government majority, but finding that public opinion was back of Mr. Whitney, the Government got a supporter to introduce a bill embodying the same principles as that of Mr. Whitney which was passed.

Mr. Whitney also exposed the political trickery which attended the operation of the Scott Act, and all along, both before and since his appointment to the leadership his shrewdness, energy and honesty in the house and out of it, have established his claim to the confidence of the people. And more than that, Mr. Whitney is supported by men of unquestioned ability. He could form a thoroughly able cabinet at once, and will shortly have the opportunity. He has proved himself to be an honorable, but determined fighter, and has shown that he would rather remain in opposition forever than win office dishonorably. In this respect he stands out in distinct contrast to Mr. Ross, who has not hesitated to hold the Premiership by proved dishonesty, and in the face of a large adverse vote of the people. Mr. Ross thinks it is his supreme mission to hang on to office, no matter how; Mr. Whitney, by refusing repeated offers to enter a coalition, has proved that office is not everything to him. Such a man deserves the confidence of the electorate in a degree that shall secure his attainment of office, not for his interests but for the people's interests.

Mr. Whitney is of English stock, his ancestors having emigrated to this country in 1640. The early years of Ontario's future Premier were spent on his father's farm, and to the Spartan training of his youth is due much of that fine physique which marks him as a man amongst men. At the Cornwall Grammar School he received his earlier education, and then entered the office of Macdonald and Maclennan to study law. It was here that he received his first political bent, for the senior member of that firm was the Hon. John Sandfield Macdonald, Premier of Ontario. A warm personal regard sprang up between the young student and the older man, which lasted until the death of the later, and was of much influence in shaping Mr Whitney's future career.

PEN POINTS.

Keene now boasts of one chartered bank and some snow banks.

———

Peterborough has more skating rinks and hockey clubs than Lindsay has people.

———

Canada is soon to have a navy—three first-class cruisers and the good old ship of state.

———

If you do not get all the Christmas presents you expect you have a slight index of how Mr. Ross is feeling during the present campaign.

———

The village of Keene has more wealthy residents than any similar sized place in this district. Now they will have a chance to bank their money instead of keeping it in the old chests and bureau drawers.

———

Have the election frauds "disgraced both parties alike." Put North Norfolk against Muskoka, and Sault Ste. Marie against Centre Bruce.

———

Rev. D. C. Hossack is being roundly abused by the Liberal press for his outspoken attitude on Liberalism. He has not yet been accused of all the crimes in the calendar, but he will doubtless before the end of the week.

———

If the Rev. D. C. Hossack was at one time a lawyer and then became a minister, would that fact break the force of his extraordinarily well reasoned arraignment of Hon. G. W. Ross? It may account for the good quality of the argument.

———

What has the fact that Rev. D. C. Hossack is the uncle of Mr. Frank Field, both old-time Liberals, by the way, to do with Mr. Hossack's wonderfully lucid expose of Mr. Ross in this week's papers?

———

The Examiner says that Rev. Donald Hossack was a lawyer before he became a preacher. Well, he got his degree honestly and earned his right to practice law by passing his examination. How different in the case of the Hon. G. W. Ross, who was made a lawyer by act of parliament.

———

That new quotation given for Mr. Ross for his own use by the Rev. D. C. Hossack fits the hon. gentleman to a dot:—

"Nor florid prose, nor honeyed lies of rhyme
Can blazon evil deeds, or consecrate a crime."

———

"You have duped and besmirched a great political party, which once stood for purity and you have about completed a rather dark page in Canadian History."—Rev. D. C. Hossack, Presbyterian Minister to elder Hon. G. W. Ross. He looks with a prophetic eye.

———

The Examiner has evidently been loaded up on the past history of Rev. D. C. Hossack by one of the latter gentleman's whilom friends, the genial young barrister who talked so glibly last month about sewer pipe politics. It is the usual trick, if you have a bad case, blackguard your opponent.

———

"I think you would hold a higher place in Canadian history if you had never been premier, or had been defeated at the last general election. It was an evil day for Liberalism, for Ontario, or public morality and for yourself when you came into power." The Rev. D. C. Hossack to the Hon. G. W. Ross.

He knows him like a book.

———

It looks as if the reverend editor of the Globe had not seen his brother preacher's open letter to Mr. Geo. W. Ross. We hereby call his attention to the fact that the Rev. Donald C. Hossack, a clergyman of the Presbyterian church in Toronto, published on Monday last a long indictment of Mr. Ross. Surely the reverend editor of the Globe does not consider it unanswerable.

———

M. S. Madole, the Liberal candidate, speaking at Mr. Ross' opening campaign meeting in Napanee, said that the Legislature had done wrong when the indemnity of the members was increased, to $1,000. He also thought federal M.P's receive too much. Perhaps some of them do. But Mr. Madole should remember that he is not a member of the Legislature, and never will be. While the indemnity at Toronto might be too generous remuneration for such service as men of his calibre can render, it is not too large for the men who seriously devote themselves to the work of the session and take their proper share of legislative responsibility.

A PECULIAR NAME
"Anti-Pill"
WHAT DOES IT MEAN ?

The Remedy named Dr. Leonhardt's Anti Pill is so called to distinguish it from anything and everything else in the way of medicine.

It is like nothing else and nothing else is like Anti Pill.

It is the opposite of Pill. It is the successor to ordinary pills just as the electric car is the successor to the old-time horse car.

Its final results are the opposite of Pill-results.

The use of Pills creates a necessity for their continued use. Take them once and you must keep on taking them. You become a slave to Constipation and Pills.

Anti-Pill accomplishes just as satisfactory immediate results and leaves behind no pill habit, no necessity for further dosing. Anti-Pill makes you free.

Pills—all pills—leave a resinous residue which dries up the mucous membrane lining of the Stomach and Bowels, creating Chronic Constipation.

Anti-Pill contains nothing of a resinous nature. It acts directly and curatively on the mucous membrane and cures Chronic Constipation.

Anti-Pill positively cures Indigestion, Constipation, Biliousness, Headache and every symptom of Stomach or Bowel derangement. Read what those who have tried Anti-Pill have to say:

"Best Medicine on Earth."

"I have used three boxes of Anti-Pill, and I would not be without it, as it does away with salts and mineral water, and you would never know you had taken a thing. [illegible] Anti-Pill, and I think they are the best medicine on earth. I recommended Anti-Pill to many people, and they have always proved satisfactory.
"Geo F. Nowat,
"Winchester, Ont."

"Feel Like a New Woman."

"For the last five years I have been troubled with dizziness in the head, got weak and tired that I could scarcely do my work. I was drowsy after meals, and my food would not digest properly [illegible] I am now able to do my own work, and I feel like a new woman.

THE HAWKEYE TIN BOX.

Returning Officer Franklin Thinks He Has Cleared Himself, Although He Said Nothing About the Box.

Kingston, Dec. 22.—Col. Sherwood, Superintendent of Dominion Police, who came here on Monday night with Detective Crandon, left at noon yesterday. Most of his time was spent with W. J. Franklin, returning officer for Frontenac at the last elections.

The scrutiny at Ottawa last week settled the point that all the ballots returned from the Clarendon and Miller poll, where Hawkeye was, must have been part of the lot of 7,300 printed here by The Whig. If Hawkeye put in a bunch of ballots himself, where did he get them? It is believed Col. Sherwood is trying to determine this, and, according to Franklin's statement, examined his books containing the record of the number of ballots received, given out, spoiled and returned. The returning officer claims to be quite satisfied that he has cleared himself.

J. B. McKenzie of Toronto, Mr. DuVernet's agent, arrived here last evening in the interest of Mr. Avery. He made enquiries as to what Col. Sherwood had done in regard to Returning Officer Franklin. It was said last night that the evidence of Franklin as to the tin box received from Hawkeye was not as satisfactory to the prosecution in the Belleville case as Mr. Franklin believed. His statement, that he had taken the tin box to his home and there kept it without saying anything about its not being the genuine box until called on to testify at Belleville was not a pleasing one.

According to the statute governing returning officers, Mr. Franklin should have made an official report as to the tin box to the Government. An effort will be made to ascertain if he carried out the law in this respect.

G.N.R. REORGANIZATION

Canadian Northern Railway Now Controls Great Northern.

Organization Plan Unfolded to Shareholders and Unanimously Adopted—New Bonds to Be Issued—Another Link Forged in the Mackenzie and Mann Transcontinental Railway Scheme—Old Board of Directors Re-elected.

Quebec, Dec. 21.—The Canadian Northern interests, that control the Great Northern Railway, have at last come to an agreement to utilize and make valuable the latter railroad as a continuation of the transcontinental system to the City of Quebec, and they have decided upon a plan of reorganization.

A meeting of the Great Northern Company's board of directors and shareholders took place in this city yesterday afternoon, when the plan of reorganization was unfolded to the shareholders. B. Hanna, president of the company, presided over the meeting and Mr. Lash, one of the directors and legal counsel for the Canadian Northern Railway, explained the proposed plan of reorganization. It provides for bonds to be issued to the extent of $4,692,000 at 4 per cent., to replace the existing bond issue of the company all indebtedness under the new bonds to be guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Canadian Northern Railway Company. The company will in exchange for each $1000 of principal of the outstanding bonds, series A and B, give $750 principal of the guaranteed bonds of the consolidated issue with all interest coupons attached.

The above plan of reorganization was submitted to the shareholders and unanimously adopted.

Z. A. Lash, general counsel of the Canadian Northern Railway, informed the shareholders that they expected within the next two years to connect all their lines between the east and west and so complete their transcontinental railway. Full particulars of the proceedings were not given out, but it is said that within two months the details of reorganization will be completed and the old bondholders receive their money. The road will then pass into the hands of Mackenzie & Mann and their Toronto associates, who will at once begin the construction of the branch line from Garneau Junction to Quebec in the direction of the new bridge.

The old board of directors were re-elected as follows: D. B. Hanna, president; James McNaught, first vice-president, H. H. Melville, second vice-president; E. E. Ling, V. Chateauvert, Hon. Jules Tessier, W. H. Moore, J. A. Nash, F. C. Annesley, Thomas McDougall, John Joyce, Hon. S. N. Parent, ex-officio. This board, however, will only exist until the old bonds are replaced, when the Quebec directors and Col. McNaught and H. E. Melville, first and second vice-presidents under the old management, will disappear. An entirely new board, controlled by Toronto gentlemen associated with Messrs. Mackenzie & Mann, will then be elected.

New Bond Issue.

Winnipeg, Dec. 22.—Considerable confusion has existed among British and foreign investors as to the various issues of bonds of Canadian Northern Railway of Canada, as this company has absorbed at one time and another various concerns and has taken over their issues without conversion into the company's own bonded issues. The company has at present some $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 of bonds outstanding as a total liability, though these are known as Lake Manitoba Railway and Canal Company, Manitoba Southeastern Railway and C. N. R. proper issues. To do away with this confusion, the company, with the assistance of the Manitoban Government, proposes to transfer all previous issues to a common basis by the issue of $9,000,000 of stock to be known as Canadian Northern Consolidated bonds. The issue and transferences will be made by the National Trust Company of Winnipeg and the bonds will bear interest at 4 per cent. guaranteed by the Manitoban Government and redeemable in 1930, all shareholders of previous issues will have the option of exchanging their bonds for consolidated issue, at par. The surplus issue will be applied to the development of the road and all future issues will bear the same title. Premier Roblin, Minister of Public Works Rogers and Provincial secretary will countersign the issues as nominees of the Provincial Government.

To Extend to Soo.

Brockville, Dec. 22.—The Brockville, Westport & Northwestern Railway line was inspected yesterday from end to end by W. Johnston, a Dominion Government engineer, for the purpose of ascertaining the condition of the roadbed and equipment. The line was taken over some two years ago by a company of New York capitalists. It was then in a very crude state and had not reached the Government standard of equipment. Great improvements have since been made on the roadbed and rolling stock, and it is now considered to be in a fit condition for the payment of the balance of the subsidies which have been withheld. These aggregate about $80,000, which, with the capital of the new company, will be applied toward extending the line to the Soo. If Mr. Johnston's report is favorable it is expected that an early start will be made next spring. Mr. Johnston was accompanied by a number of the directors and several prominent citizens of Brockville.

G.T.R. May Buy.

Ottawa, Dec. 22.—A special meeting of the shareholders of the Canada Atlantic Railway was held here Tuesday. The application of the directors to sell or amalgamate with the Grand Trunk was ratified.

Three Die in Fire.

Bangor, Me., Dec. 22.—Three lives were lost in a fire which destroyed the home of John Johnson, a laborer, at Stillwater Park, a section of this city, yesterday. The victims were Mrs. Johnson and two sons, Kenneth, aged 7, and Theron, aged 8. The financial loss was small.

THE FAST PACE

that we lead in this present generation, wears out many a heart in comparatively short time. Horses that we use for racing purposes we treat with care and concern, machinery and other mechanical devices that we use continually we oil and keep in good condition, but the heart that must pump a whole lifetime, we neglect, overwork and misuse and only give it thought when it becomes weak and irregular and can no longer properly distribute our blood to all parts of our body. If you are living a fast life—dissipating or working hard, you must give your Heart some nutriment so that it can stand the strain.

DR. AGNEW'S HEART CURE

is the best heart food. It will make your heart strong and healthy. It builds up the walls and tissues of the heart and enables it to distribute pure, clear blood to all parts of the body.

Mrs. J. Calcutt, Strathroy, Ont. says: "I have used Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure with the best possible results. Before I secured it I suffered greatly with chronic Heart disease and from nervousness and sleeplessness which it had induced. This remedy gave relief in 3 minutes and has brought back my usual health."—2

Dr. Agnew's Ointment and Liver Pills will relieve any case of piles in two or three nights.

A resolution expressive of deep regret at the demise of the late Principal Caven was passed.

After Amendments.

London, Dec. 22.—(C. A. P.)—The Birmingham Chamber of Commerce will ask the Colonial Secretary to secure such amendments of the new Canadian customs regulations as would facilitate legitimate trade between Canada and the United Kingdom, which might be done to some extent by increasing the permissible margin between the selling price and the fair market value to at least ten per cent., and by requiring the production of certificates of value only when the customs authorities have reason to believe goods are being dumped.

Died in Dauphin, Man.

Winnipeg, Dec. 22.—Word has just reached here of the death of John H. Campbell, father of Hon. Colin Campbell, Attorney-General of Manitoba, who passed away at Dauphin, Man., yesterday afternoon, suddenly. For the past three years the deceased has resided with his daughter, Mrs. Hooper, at Dauphin. He was 70 years of age. The body will be taken to the family home at Burlington, Ont., for burial.

Popular Conductor Killed.

Fort William, Dec. 22.—A head-on collision occurred at 3.30 yesterday morning, near Tamarac Siding, 124 miles west of here. A train of empty coaches ran into a freight train on the main line of the C.P.R., wrecking both engines. Patrick Savage, one of the most popular conductors on the division, who was on the coach train, was killed, and some of the engine crews seriously injured.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS—1904.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is, the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so false and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognized agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully become accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management which, in the case of any large corporation, would not be tolerated. This Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandizement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr. Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st. The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd. The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localization of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories, and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment, I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,

Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBURN

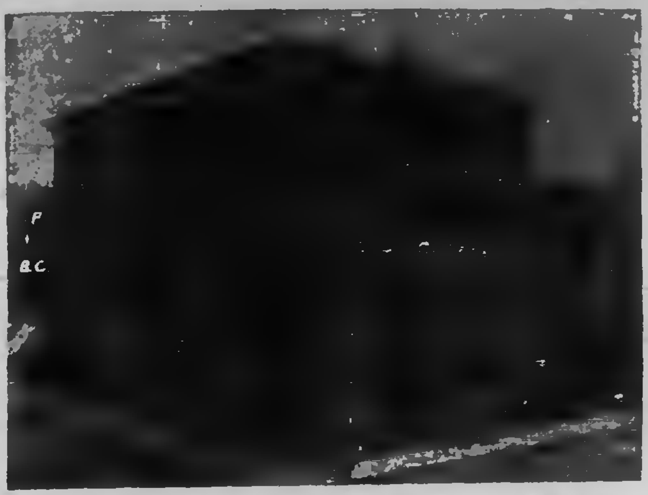
AN INSTITUTION THAT STEADILY ADVANCES

Peterborough Business College Makes Great Progress.

LARGE CLASSES ATTENDING.

More Room Now Necessary—Hundreds of Students Gone Out to Good Positions—Business Education Good Investment.

An institution which had a small beginning, but has acquired wonderful strength in its progress, is the Peterborough Business College. Hundreds of young men and women who are in good positions to-day owe their success to the training received here. It is interesting to note that the College opened in September, 1895, with seven pupils, and only one small room in the Bank of Commerce building was then occupied. To-day there are over fifty young ladies and thirty young men attending, and the class rooms occupy a space three times larger than formerly. The fact, therefore, is evident that the Peterborough Business College has kept well abreast of the times. The large number of pupils at present attending, to say nothing of the many who have graduated, signifies appreciation of the opportunities to acquire a business education and a recognition of its advantages as an investment.



The majority of the pupils at present attending are from town, but there are many from the surrounding counties. Such has been the progress of the institution that the increase of class room accommodation is now being seriously considered by Mr. Pringle, the principal.

The staff at present consists of Miss Helen Howson, who is in charge of the short-hand department; Mr. C. W. Harnett, of the book-keeping department, while Miss Smith is an assistant. Mr. Pringle takes charge of all advanced work in the curriculum, and keeps in touch with the pupils in all of the different stages of their training. The tendancy among the young ladies is to take up type-writing and short-hand, while the young men devote themselves more particularly to commercial work.

The prospects for next year are of the brightest, and will undoubtedly see a large increase in membership, thus rendering imperative the necessity for larger quarters. It is also intended to add to the already large type-writing equipment.

The courses of study are practical, useful and thorough, embracing every branch essential to a business education. From the time a student enters till he graduates, his time is spent in acquiring knowledge that will enable him to successfully make his way in the world. Some of the graduates of the Business College in Peterborough to-day are making salaries of $1,200 a year.

Mr. Pringle and his staff are to be congratulated on the success which is marking the history of this important educational work in Peterborough. They are performing a work, the fruits of which are being seen daily and are being appreciated.

The Peterborough Business College has also a very large night class, which is attended by those who cannot devote the hours of the day towards acquiring a business education. Many a young man has this way fitted himself, in his spare hours, for a good position and the same may also be said of the young ladies. The great feature of the College is individual instruction, under which the student secures a firmer grasp upon the information imparted. He is not hindered by the advancement or deficiencies of other students and is enabled to advance with his work as rapidly as he may be inclined. The staff is a most efficient one, and the courses of instruction applied in the most approved manner.

THE NOMINATIONS.

It Looks as if Mr. Best Would Have No Opposition for Mayor.

Nominations for mayor and water commissioners will be held in the Town Council Chamber on Monday next, Dec. 26th, from 10 to 11 o'clock.

It looks as if Ald. Henry Best will be elected mayor without opposition as no other candidate is spoken of. Mr. W. H. Hill is also likely to be returned as water commissioner unopposed. For Public school trustees and members of the Town Council there will be, it is said, some new men in the field, including Messrs. T. T. J. Begley and Jos. Crowe, who have been endorsed as aldermen by the Trades and Labour Council.

Then it is reported that three or four men named by the municipal committee of the Board of Trade have consented to stand. In all there will probably be a field of fifteen starters to fill the twelve council seats.

Those aldermen who have announced their intention to retire are Ald. Best (who is in the race for the mayoralty), Ald. Morrison, Ald. McWilliams, Ald. Edgcumbe and Ald. Rush. Ald. Edgcumbe's friends believe that he will re-consider his decision and continue in the service another year.

There has been a change in the law regarding the withdrawal of candidates. Heretofore any one desiring to decline had to do so by sending a letter in writing to this effect to the returning officer by 9 o'clock of the evening of the succeeding day—Tuesday.

Now the law is reversed, and if an aspirant desires to remain in the field, he must file a declaration of qualification with the returning officer not later than 9 o'clock p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 27th. If he does not do this his name will not appear on the ballot paper.

RETURN TO OTTAWA.

Family in Poor Circumstances Insisted on Living by Charitable Means.

Peterborough was the place of residence recently of a family from Ottawa, who appeared in rather poor circumstances, so far as the necessaries of life are concerned. It appears according to the story told by "the man of the house" that he had come to this town with the intention of starting up a jewelry store, he having been given to understand that there were only two shops here. The man had something wrong with one leg, which irritated him considerably, his wife was ill, and there were six children in the family. The Central Charity Board took hold of the case and were careful to see that the family did not want for anything. The problem was to understand what had actually brought them to Peterborough. They received donations from kind hearted citizens, and it gradually began to dawn on the authorities that the new-comers were hardly outside of the class known as impostors.

The other day the Central Charity Board became active and had the entire family, with their household effects shipped back to Ottawa. There seemed to be some objection to this procedure, for an advice was received yesterday from the C. P. R. stating that they had been requested to put the goods off at Smith's Falls. This was refused, however, and to Ottawa the family went. It is not the first case in which an attempt has been made by undeserving parties to bask in the comfort of Peterborough charity, and it is but reasonable that parties similar to those referred to should be placed where they come from and where they belong.

APPRECIATE MRS. POTTER.

Congregation of St Andrew's Present Her With a Purse of Gold.

At the conclusion of the prayer meeting in St. Andrew's Church last evening, the congregation took advantage of the occasion to show their appreciation of the services which Mrs. (Rev.) Potter has performed for the church and congregation. Mrs. Potter was presented with an address and purse of gold. The address was read by Mrs. McFarlane and the presentation made by Mrs. F. L. Robinson on behalf of the congregation.

The address was as follows:—

Dear Mrs. Potter

We, the congregation of St. Andrew's Church, at this Christmas season, desire, in a tangible way to express our appreciation of the zeal and self-sacrificing spirit which has ever animated you in your labor of love and devotion towards St. Andrew's church and congregation.

Your thoughtfulness for others and noble Christian character have done much to strengthen the hands of our beloved pastor and enable him to successfully carry on the Master's work among our people.

The goodly feeling existing throughout the different departments of the church work, is in a large measure attributable to the "Mistress of the Manse" and our earnest prayer is that you and yours may be spared to advance His cause and Kingdom.

In conclusion we ask you to accept of this small remembrance from us, and our hope is that you and your family may enjoy a very pleasant Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Rev. Mr. Potter on behalf of his wife thanked the congregation for their kindness and said that it was not necessary for his people to show their appreciation of Mrs. Potter by such a gift as they had already shown it in many ways.

The purse contained the sum of $60 in gold. Mrs. Potter was also the recipient of a handsome silk gown from the ladies.

CHRISTMAS WEDDING.

Nuptials of Miss Mae McPherson and Dr. J. N. Johston of Lakefield.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated last evening in St. Andrew's Church when Miss Mae McPherson, of Peterborough, daughter of the late James McPherson, was united in marriage to Dr. John Nesbitt Johnston, of Lakefield.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. J. G. Potter. Mrs. Peter Kerr presided at the organ and played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal party entered the church and also at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Miss Helen M. Carr, Wilton Ave., Toronto, was bridesmaid and the groom was assisted by Mr. F. H. Jory, of Lakefield. After the ceremony there was a sumptuous wedding repast at the home of Mrs. McGill, Harvey-st. The happy couple will take up their residence in Lakefield, where their numerous friends will wish them every success.

PARTED WITH BEST FRIENDS

Touching Scene Took Place at Murray St. Separate School.

MISS M. CASEY LEAVING.

She Was Presented With an Appropriately Worded Address and Handsome Gold Mounted Fountain Pen.

A most touching event and one which very much became those who wished to show in a substantial manner their high appreciation of one who had been so faithful in her duties in the past four years, took place yesterday at Murray street Separate school. The occasion took the form of a farewell to Miss M. Casey, who is retiring from the staff, and who, during her connection with the school, has won the confidence and esteem of all.

Shortly after noon, Rev. Father McColl, the local superintendent, teachers and pupils assembled in one room, when the following address was read, accompanied by a handsome gold-mounted fountain pen and bouquet of roses:—

To Miss M. Casey, teacher, St. Peter's Separate School, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Miss Casey,—On this, the eve of your departure from our midst, we, the Reverend Local Superintendent, teachers and pupils of the Murray street separate school, have assembled, to express in a few words our sincere and heartfelt regret.

One of the saddest experiences of life is to part with friends we have learned to esteem and love. Is it any wonder, therefore, on looking on us assembled here this evening, that you can be able to realize what even the most eloquent language cannot express, the feeling of gloom, which overshadows us at the thought of severing that golden link of love and friendship which has united us so long.

Those who have been under your guidance and have experienced the kind and patient manner in which you have striven to encourage their efforts, and whom you have labored so strenuously to direct along the paths of wisdom and righteousness will, for years to come, feel the effects of the good work you have begun. And those who have been associated with you, and have witnessed how zealously you have labored in the discharge of your duties, and the loving relations which have existed yourself and your co-workers, will continue to remember and cherish you as one who has been a valued friend.

In conclusion, we ask you to accept this gift, as a token of our esteem and regard for you, and we wish you a Merry Christmas, and a Happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the Local Superintendent, teachers and pupils.

W. J. McColl, M. J. McDonnell, M. A. O'Connell, H. M. Cahill, L. M. Coleman, Fred Conroy, Nagel Phelan, Joseph Owens, Harold Morrow, Eddie Condon.

Peterborough, Dec. 21, '04.

Miss Casey made a very suitable reply, stating that it was always her earnest desire to do her duty. It was a source of great pleasure to her to know that her efforts had been appreciated.

SANTA CLAUS' MILL.

Raw Material Going in at One End and Coming out as Presents.

Santa Claus factory working on the platform is the special feature of the Salvation Army Sunday School annual entertainment, Christmas night, Dec. 26th. Instead of the usual Christmas tree, loaded with two hundred presents for the children, Santa Claus' mill will be in operation, with the rags, paper, straw, etc., going in one end, and the presents coming out the other, all addressed and ready to be given to the children. The officers have the mill nearly completed and are trimming the hall. The factory and trimmings will be finished by Saturday. The children will take part in the meetings on Sunday afternoon, and will give a short but interesting programme, on Monday night, before the mill starts to grind out the two hundred presents, with a real, giving Santa Claus to give out the prizes.

Beautiful Baskets and Pretty Boxes that are made to be used after being emptied of their sweet contents are to be found at T. H. Hooper's, from 15c up to $5.00. See them.

Fruit is Nature's Laxative.

Fruit contains certain principles which act like a charm on the liver—and keep the whole system well and strong. But these principles in the fruit juices are too weak to have any marked effect on the internal organs. The value of lies in the secret process by which they are made. The fruit juices are so combined that they have an entirely different effect from fresh fruit. Their action is the action of fruit greatly intensified. They have a marked effect on the liver—toning it up—making it active. "Fruit-a-tives" are, without doubt, the only complete cure for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles.

Fruit-a-tives

or Fruit Liver Tablets

The Daily Review

THURSDAY, DEC. 22, 1904.

They Were All Right.

He was a typical backwoods farmer. His first visit to a city restaurant, however, had taken away none of the appetite he had at home, where everything was placed in large dishes on the center of the table and each one helped himself. The waiter had piled the food around the plate in the customary little dishes, which the farmer cleaned up in turn. Settling back in his chair, he hailed the passing waiter:

"Hey, there, young man! Your samples are all right. Bring on the rest of the stuff."

John Bright's Reply.

On one occasion John Bright received a letter from a very bad writer, to which he replied:

Dear Sir—Many thanks for your letter of the 12th inst. I have no doubt but that it is a very good letter and that it contains matter as interesting as it is important; but, by the bye, if you should be in town in the course of a few days, would you mind just stepping in and reading it to me? Yours faithfully,

JOHN BRIGHT.

A Watch's Variation.

As to the sympathetic vagaries of watches a correspondent writes: "I discovered some years ago that it was the metal buckle of my braces that caused the irregularities of my own particular watch. I therefore now make a rule of putting my spectacle case on the inside of my watch pocket, thus cutting off the connection."—London Chronicle.

Mutual Slips.

Tom- What made you give me away so when I was telling that yarn at the dinner table? Dick—I didn't mean to; it was only a slip of the tongue. But that's no reason why you should have kicked me so hard! Tom- Oh, I didn't mean to—it was only a slip of the foot.

Ingratitude is a form of weakness. I have never known a man of real ability to be ungrateful.

Why Do Women Worry

AND THEREBY EXHAUST THE NERVOUS SYSTEM AND R UI HEALTH?

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The worry habit is an unmitigated evil.

Worry is by far the most frequent cause of nervous disease.

Because of the multitude of household and family cares, and because of the nature of their employment, women are especially liable to give way to worry and anxiety.

The result is wasted nerve force, weakness and disease.

It may be nervous headaches, sleeplessness, irritability, indigestion, discouragement and melancholy, or weakness and irregularities peculiarly feminine.

The only way to restore health and strength is by increasing the nerve force in the body, and this is best accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Make a test of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food by noting your increase in weight from week to week while using it.

Notice the improvement in your appetite, and how much better you rest and sleep.

The healthful appearance of women who have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the best proof of what it will do in the way of steadying and strengthening the nerves, rounding out the form and replacing weakness and disease with new strength and spirits.

Mrs. M. A. Sharp, 246 Dublin-st., Peterborough, Ont., states: "For some years I was troubled with indigestion, which developed into nervous dyspepsia, and besides suffering from nervousness, strange dizzy spells would come over me. Hearing of the good results obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I decided to try it. After a pretty thorough test of this medicine, I can say that I never used anything that did me so much good. It seemed to be the very treatment that I needed, and as a result of the use I am quite restored to health."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

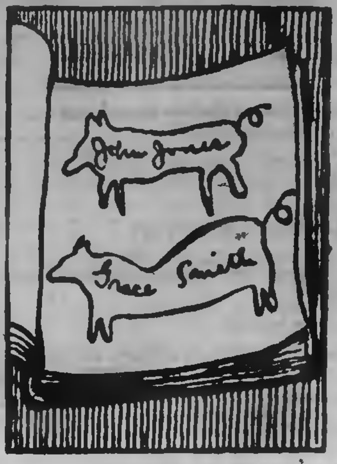
FOR YOUNG FOLKS

"BLIND PIG" BOOK.

It Is One of the Very Funniest Kinds of Scrapbooks.

One of the funniest of scrapbooks is the "Blind Pig" book. It is not full of blind pigs, but the young folk who draw the pigs are blindfolded; hence the name.

Any blank book will do. Have each of your friends shut his or her eyes tightly and draw a pig on a page of the book. The eyes must not be opened until the drawing is finished, and then the artist will see the queerest looking thing you can imagine as a result of his or her efforts.



A PAGE OF THE BOOK.

Each artist should sign his or her name to the pig, which will look like almost anything else but a pig. The book is a most interesting thing to keep, and when its pages are full of pigs, drawn and signed by all your friends, it is a curiosity indeed and a treasure which will be of interest to you all your life. Exchange.

AN ODD GAME.

How a Race Can Be Run With Drops of Water.

This game can be readily made in a few minutes by any boy or girl. As is well known, if a drop of water be placed on a piece of paper it will be at once absorbed by the paper, but if the paper is oiled the drop of water will remain intact and slide gracefully over the paper.

The first thing necessary is to get four or five books, one smaller than the other, and rest them on their edges on the table.

Then get a sheet of strong paper, hold it over a lamp till it is thoroughly blackened by the soot from the flame, and then oil it. This done, you lay it over the tops of the book covers, holding it down with a plate or other small vessel at the end. Take a spoon and let a few drops of water drip on the paper, and they will slide along like so many living things until they fall into the plate. The game is to see which drop of water gets there first. It can be played by any number of boys and girls, but a careful watch must be kept on the various drops of water, as they slide very quickly. By coloring the water and having each player own a differently colored drop they can be readily kept track of. The one who gets the greater number of drops in the plate first wins the game.

Trained Tortoises.

Japanese and Korean showmen, in addition to their skill as jugglers and acrobats, display a truly marvelous skill in teaching animals tricks. They not only exhibit educated bears, spaniels, monkeys and goats, but also trained birds, and, what is most astonishing of all, trick fish. One of the most curious examples of patient training is an exhibit by an old Korean boatman of a dozen drilled tortoises.

Directed by his songs and a small metal drum, they march in line, execute various evolutions and conclude by climbing upon a low table, the larger ones forming of their own accord a bridge for the smaller, to which the feat would otherwise be impossible.

When they have all mounted they dispose themselves in three or four piles like so many plates.

The Walnut Tree.

The walnut is valued not only for its fruit, but also for its wood, which is used for many purposes. The black walnut was until lately much used in the making of furniture and was much prized. The wood takes on a very high polish. The so called English walnut is really a native of Persia. The nut of this tree is much superior to that of the black walnut. In Kashmir the oil of the walnut is used in preparing food and for lighting purposes. The wood of the Persian walnut is valued for making gunstocks and is largely imported into Europe from Asia.

The Order of the Smiling Face.

We've formed a new society,
The Order of the Smiling Face.
An honored member you may be,
For every one may have a place.

The rules say you must never let
The corners of your mouth droop down,
For by this method you may get
The habit of a sulky frown.

If playmates tease you let your eyes
A brave and merry twinkle show,
For if the angry tears arise,
They're very apt to overflow.

If you must practice for an hour,
And if it seem a long, long while,
Remember not to pout or glower,
But wear a bright and cheerful smile.

The rules are simple, as you see.
Make up your mind to join today.
Put on a smile, and you will be
An active member right away.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of

"The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

He almost whispered the last words, but Laura heard them. At the other end of the room George and Anna Lindsay were still talking, and George noticed at this moment Sir Ralph's earnest expression and attitude.

"Sir Ralph is talking in a wonderfully impressive way to Laura," he said; "I wonder what it's all about?"

"Perhaps he's trying to persuade her to stay on," suggested Anna.

"Very likely; let us go and ask them."

So George went up to his wife, and said pleasantly to her:

"I am sure Sir Ralph is trying to persuade you to do something, Laura; what is it?"

Laura's face crimsoned and then paled.

"I was trying to persuade her to stay over the meet on Tuesday," said Sir Ralph.

"Well, won't you stay, Laura?" asked George.

"No; I have some work to do, and I must do it," answered Laura, and then she turned away. To stay any longer at Harewood Hall she felt was impossible.

So the next day—Friday—the family party returned to Red House, and the old weary life began again for Laura. Her mind was out of tune; in that state when trifles cease to interest and amuse, and when there seems no pleasure under the sun. She sat down to her work in a listless fashion; she wrote a few lines, and her mind wandered away. Again she heard that low pleading voice.

"Laura, I loved you then—as I love you now."

George came in cheerful and cheery, asked what she had ordered for dinner—a subject in which he had considerable interest. Laura had forgotten the dinner. Still, there was plenty of time as it was yet only early morning, but George did not look over-well pleased.

"You think of nothing but that confounded book, I believe," he said. "If you find housekeeping such a trouble, you'd best let Anna order the dinners, as she used to do before."

"Very well," answered Laura, coldly; and she again lifted up her pen. But George did not mean nor wish to offend her, and after looking at her for a moment or two he laid his hand kindly on her shoulder.

"I didn't mean that, you know, little woman," he said; "but I am vexed to see you always poring over your writing-table instead of bustling about the house, which would be far better for you. You don't look over strong, and I wish you would take more exercise. If you like I will come home early from the office to-day, and take you for a walk."

"Not to-day, thank you, George," answered Laura, gently. "I don't feel very well to-day."

"I am sorry for that, dear." And George bent down and kissed her forehead, or rather the curls on her forehead. "Well, good-by now, and take care of yourself." And he turned and went away; and Laura sighed deeply after he was gone.

Then she roused herself and went to see after that important affair, the dinner. And it is an important affair, no doubt, to a hard-working man like George Gifford. But, oh, the difference of a loving wife ordering little luxuries for her husband, thinking of what he would like best, of his tastes, his fancies and an unloving wife considering the same duty. Laura wished many a time that she had let Anna Lindsay go on ordering the dinners and keeping the keys. The small responsibilities worried her; they disturbed her ideas; they broke into the thread of her plot.

Still it had to be done, and she did it. Then after lunch she tried writing again. But struggle against it as we will, something of the mood that we are in affects our writings. Laura felt weary and depressed, and she wrote without spirit. But about four o'clock the house door-bell rang, and she heard a man's footsteps crossing the hall.

It was Sir Ralph Woodland. She had been writing in the small inner drawing-room which she always used, and she arose from her writing-table to receive him.

"I am interrupting you," he said, gravely, as he held out his hand.

"You are interrupting nothing worth reading," answered Laura, with a smile. "I can't get on somehow with my work to-day."

"Something is disturbing your mind."

"I suppose so; at least I can't write."

"I told you that you could not help thinking in spite of yourself."

"And I said I should try, and I mean to try—not to think."

"It is no use, Laura," and Sir Ralph went a step nearer, and laid his hand heavily on her writing-table; "neither you nor I can forget the past. Why you refused me then I can not conceive, but I know that past was dear to you, as it was to me."

"We must both forget it," said Laura, in a low tone, casting down her eyes.

"We neither of us can. Why prolong a useless struggle? Laura, do you know why I came to-day?"

Laura slightly shook her head.

"I came to ask you to link your fate with mine—to break loose from ties that must be, that are, repugnant to every feeling of your heart."

"You know that I can not do this."

"You must, you shall!" cried Sir Ralph, with a sort of imperious impatience. "Do I not see that you are miserable? What is the use of going on living such a life as yours is now? Leave Mr. Gifford, and as soon as it is possible we shall be married."

"It is quite impossible!" said Laura, rising and beginning to pace the room in the greatest distress. "Speak of this no more, Sir Ralph—you—you add to my misery!"

He followed her, he took her reluctant hand, he bent down and kissed it.

"Forgive me if I pain you," he said, "but I do it because I know the struggle in your heart. You think yourself bound to Mr. Gifford, whom you do not love?"

"I am bound to him," said Laura, with trembling lips.

"Not as you are bound to me. Love binds you to me with truer bonds than a few words from a parson's lips, which can have no meaning unless they be true. In your case they never were true. You took a false oath and are leading a false life."

"You are cruel! cruel!"

"I seem so, but I am not. If I believed you were happy I would go away, go out of your life, and see you no more. I would not think of myself, hard and bitter though the wrench would be. But I know you are not happy, that here you never can be happy. With me—"

"Sir Ralph, hush, hush!" cried Laura, in quick alarm, and she grasped his arm with her trembling fingers. "That is my husband opening the door with his key—he is coming here."

Sir Ralph drew back with sudden calmness and stateliness, and when a few moments later George Gifford walked into the room he was standing with an air of perfect composure at a little distance from Laura's writing-table.

"Ah, Sir Ralph," said George, advancing with extended hand, "so you are here. And how are you?"

The two men shook hands and exchanged a few words and then Sir Ralph explained the ostensible object of his visit.

"I came to try and persuade Mrs. Gifford again to come to the meet on Tuesday," he said. "It is to be not more than a quarter of a mile from the house at Harewood."

"Well, and are you going, Laura?" asked George, looking at his wife, who was very pale.

"No, George, I can not go," she answered in a faltering voice.

It struck George that she was looking very ill, though he never for a moment suspected that Sir Ralph's visit had anything to do with it.

"I came home early," he went on, "to see if you had changed your mind and would go out for a walk, but you do look very seedy. But, Sir Ralph, you will stay and dine with us, won't you?"

But Sir Ralph declined. He remained a few minutes longer, and then he took his leave, and went straight to the hotel where he had put up his horse. He also was very pale; he bit his lips under his moustache more than once as he rode slowly homeward, and when he arrived at Harewood he went to his own room, and began pacing the floor with restless footsteps.

"I am a bad man, I suppose," he was thinking, "to urge her to do against her will what she no doubt believes to be a sin, but to my mind it is no sin. It is a sin for a woman to marry a man she does not love, but Laura loves me, and she shall never regret that love. I shall be good to her always—poor girl, poor girl! What hard fate was it that parted us, when our love would have had no sting, no remorse to her tender heart? But she will get over this—in her love she will forget it—I must teach her to forget it."

He went to the window of the room as he spoke, and stood looking moodily at the fast-darkening sky. Many problems were passing through his mind, great questions to which he had no guide. Sir Ralph Woodland had drifted away from the teachings of his youth, and in his manhood held no creed that interfered with his own will. He loved Laura, and she loved him, and he told himself—or tried to tell himself that this was a sufficient reason to defy all laws.

Laura, in the meantime, was trying to seem at ease and talk as usual to George, while in her heart a conflict was going on almost too great for her to endure. Every day her life was becoming more strained, and its ordinary routine harder to bear. A long Sunday followed this momentous meeting with Sir Ralph, and then a long Monday and Tuesday. But on Wednesday a blow struck her which placed a sure weapon in the hand of her enemy, Anna Lindsay, which she was not slow to use.

DEATH OF RECIPROCITY

Proposed Meeting of Joint High Commission Abandoned.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in Reply to Senator Fairbanks, in Effect Says That Canada Does Not Desire a Meeting of the Commission—Failure of Commission Laid to the Canadian Premier's Curtness and Indifference.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The proposed meeting of the British-American Joint High Commission to consider reciprocity between the United States and Canada and about eleven other matters in dispute between the two countries has been abandoned.

Senator Fairbanks urged by the president and many public men in various sections of the country, has been anxious to bring about a settlement of these questions by this commission before his retirement from the Senate on March 4. He has written a number of letters to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, chairman of the British membership, but all replies have been to the effect that Canada does not desire a meeting of the commission and has no propositions for submission.

The reason for Sir Wilfrid's curtness is found in a speech delivered in the House last session by Representative Payne of New York, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. Mr. Payne, being asked by a Democratic member, what had been accomplished by the Joint High Commission, said that little had actually been done, and that the failure was due to the indifference of the Canadian Commissioners, which had amounted to discourtesy toward the United States Commissioners.

Sir Wilfrid's recent letters have convinced President Roosevelt and Senator Fairbanks that it is useless to urge a meeting of the commission, and the subject will probably not come up again for some time unless the Canadian Government shows a disposition to have the question of reciprocity mutually discussed.

WORST EVER EXPERIENCED.

Steamship Kroonland Though Struck By a Tidal Wave Arrives.

New York, Dec. 21.—After a tempestuous voyage, in which she was struck by a tidal wave, the Red Star Line steamship Kroonland arrived here today from Antwerp. When the tidal wave struck the ship one of her passengers was thrown across the deck and had a leg broken and a sailor fell from the crow's nest, but suffered no serious injury. On the second day out a stewardess went insane and was placed under restraint. The voyage was the worst the vessel has ever experienced. There was nothing but bad weather from the time she left Antwerp on the 10th until she neared port. Hurricane followed hurricane and heavy head seas were almost continually breaking over her bows and retarding her passage.

On the morning of the 12th, while the vessel was making fair time in a strong northwest gale, she was struck by a tidal wave, which brought her to a standstill and sent tons of water tumbling over her decks. P. Pirotte, a Belgian cabin passenger, was standing under shelter and close to the deckhouse amidships. He was picked up and thrown across the decks. When rescued it was found that his leg had been broken in two places.

Officers of the Kroonland say that when the wave struck the vessel the water dashed higher than her funnels and swept the hurricane deck. Fritz Bertland, the lookout, was thrown out of the crow's nest and fell a distance of 40 feet, but sustained no injury, except a badly bruised side. In spite of force of the water, the ship sustained practically no damage.

A Toronto Driver Killed.

Toronto, Dec. 22.—David King, a driver for the Nasmith Company, was so badly injured at Adelaide and Yonge streets at 7 a.m. yesterday that he died five minutes after he was taken to the Emergency. His skull was fractured. King was driving east on Adelaide street, and at Yonge street he collided with car 748 of the College and Yonge line. The wagon was smashed and he was thrown to the pavement. Deceased lived in Spruce avenue and was married. He has been in poor health for some time.

London in a Fog.

London, Dec. 22.—London was enveloped yesterday afternoon in a black fog, more dense than anything witnessed during the last two years. In many places the traffic was almost completely stopped and the greatest care was necessary to avoid accidents, a number of which have already been reported. Torch boys did a roaring trade. The railroad trains were all delayed.

JAPS TOLD THE TRUTH

Stoessel Admits the Partial Disabling of Russian Fleet.

Admiral Still Claims, However, That Some of the Vessels Are Able to Put to Sea—An Amusing Jap-Russ War Feature—Rival Armies Laugh At Each Other's Effort to Catch a Manchurian Shoat.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 22.—While declining to give details, the Admiralty admits that Russian advices from Port Arthur, sent by General Stoessel, substantially confirmed the Japanese advices of the partial wrecking of the Russian ships in the harbor, and the censor has been instructed to permit the publication of the despatches.

It is claimed that several of the larger ships and a respectable number of torpedo boat destroyers are still seaworthy, but that they are not being considered as a factor in the coming fight between Admiral Togo's ships and the Russian second Pacific squadron. If the fortress is relieved, it is believed that most of the ships will be raised and saved.

The reports that a Japanese squadron of 40 vessels had already sailed to meet the second Pacific squadron is regarded at the Admiralty here as being incorrect and circulated for a purpose.

Truly An Historic Pig.

Correspondence of the Associated Press, on the Front Line of Russian Defence, Below Mukden, Nov. 22.—During a ride around the front, from which we have just returned, we noted a row towards the forward line of trenches that might have presaged a Japanese attack. From a seemingly deserted Chinese hut rushed a half grown pig, a shoat of the Manchurian variety. After it went a Cossack in hot pursuit. Other Cossacks joined the chase, but the pig, threading the trenches, gained the open ground and headed for the Japanese lines, less than 400 yards away.

Reckless of the possible consequences, six Cossacks dashed in pursuit with their long brown coats tucked about their waists. But the pig had the legs of them and with ear-piercing shrieks headed across the imaginary dividing line and charged the Japanese position. The opposite hill slope had been to all appearance vacant and silent as the grave, but a hidden trench suddenly gave up a party of Japanese and away they went after the pig. The Cossacks stopped and the Japanese headed the pig diagonally back towards the Russian lines. They did not catch it, but a fresh relay of Russians took up the chase and the pig veered over again to the Japanese lines.

Not a shot was fired at this time, but Japanese and Cossacks stood within a hundred paces of each other in the open, laughing at each other's non-success and hurling mutual maledictions after the pig. The last we saw of it the pig was keeping strictly to the neutral strip between the two forces and heading westward in the direction of the Liao River.

Sevastopol Disabled.

Tokio, Dec. 22.—Admiral Togo, who has personally made a series of observations of the Russian battleship Sevastopol, telegraphs to the Naval Department, expressing the opinion that the Sevastopol is disabled. Great weight is attached to Togo's personal observations and opinion, instanced by the fact that when the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk was sunk, Togo was one of the few officers of the entire Japanese fleet whose eye caught the vision of speedy disaster.

Steamer Nigretia.

Tokio, Dec. 22.—The examination of the cargo, passengers and crew of the British steamer Nigretia is progressing. Seemingly it is undetermined whether parole-breaking Russian officers are on board the Nigretia. The Japanese are carefully investigating this feature of the case, because of the question of the ability of the Chinese officials to properly conduct the internment of Russians who seek refuge at ports in China, which is considered to be vitally important.

Jap Trophies.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The following cablegram, dated Tokio, Dec. 21, has been received at the Japanese Legation.

"Port Arthur army reports our trophies at the battle of the north fort of Tunkeekwanshan were four quick-firers, whereof two are usable; four machine guns usable, and five field guns, which are under examination, besides rifles, shells, ammunition, grenades, etc."

Trip For Military Attaches.

Tokio, Dec. 22.—The Japanese transport Manshu leaves Japan for Port Arthur about Dec. 26, carrying the foreign naval attaches and Parliamentary delegations. The trip is intended to give the attaches an opportunity to make technical observations.

CAPT. CLADO ACCUSES BRITAIN.

Says British Agitation Was Plan to Delay Baltic Fleet.

Paris, Dec. 22.—Statements made by Capt. Clado (detached from Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron to appear as a witness before the international commission), during his journey to Paris, are exciting considerable stir in official and diplomatic circles as indicating a rather defiant and belligerent tone on the eve of the assembling of the commission.

Some of Clado's statements were strongly antagonistic to Great Britain, he declaring that the British agitation over the North Sea incident leading up to the appointment of the international commission was a plan to delay the Russian second Pacific squadron from relieving Port Arthur.

He also asserted that another campaign, having for its object the Russian Black Sea fleet passing the Dardanelles, will be launched at an opportune time. In the meantime, he added, men and equipment from the Black Sea fleet will be sent to aid the second Pacific squadron.

It was pointed out to the British Embassy that Clado is not a member of the commission, but only a witness, and therefore no official cognizance will be taken of his statements.

Russian Progress Condemned.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 22.—The governor of Moscow has officially condemned the resolution of Moscow town council, Dec. 13, advocating popular control of the Government and freedom of the press and of meeting. On instructions from Interior Minister Sviatopolk-Mirsky, City Captain Golizyn has demanded an official explanation of why the question, outside of its competency, was discussed by the town council.

Holds Councils Daily.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 22.—Emperor Nicholas is holding councils daily at Tarskoe-Selo, at which, it is understood, the internal situation in Russia is being thoroughly discussed.

HIT WIFE WITH FORK.

John Smith of Owen Sound Sent to Penitentiary For Two Years.

Owen Sound, Dec. 22.—The first penitentiary sentence for many months was pronounced on John Smith at the police court on Saturday. Smith had been remanded on Thursday on a charge of assault and wounding, brought against him by his wife, Mary Jane Smith, who alleged that he brutally struck her on the head with a heavy fork. On Saturday Smith was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary. Smith came home one night in a disagreeable mood, and because his wife had not attended to all the farm duties he started to abuse her, kicking and beating her unmercifully, wounding her face horribly. Afterwards the infuriated man rushed at her with a hay fork. On seeing him coming the woman fainted, and this is the one thing that saved her life, for Smith missed his aim, the fork only grazing the woman's head. Smith then realized what he had done and stopped. He closely guarded her for three days and did not send for medical aid so that she could not lodge complaint. At last he ventured out, and when he returned he found two policemen ready to escort him downtown. This is not the first time Smith has been up on a similar charge.

WORST DROUGHT IN HISTORY.

Industries in Pennsylvania and Ohio May Have to Shut Down.

Pittsburg, Dec. 22.—It is feared that within the next ten days almost every industry in Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio will have to close down. The drouth is the worst in the history of this part of the country. The weather bureau cannot see any relief in sight. There is only half a foot of snow on the level. If this is melted it would only be equal to six-tenths of an inch of rain, and it will take at least one inch of rain besides to be of any benefit.

GET UNHEALTHY SETTLERS.

Dr. Bryce Reports the Necessity of Greater Stringency.

Ottawa, Dec. 22.—Dr. P. H. Bryce, of the Immigration Department, who returned Tuesday night from a trip through Western Canada, found that a good many undesirable settlers are entering the country, both by the Pacific ports and along the international boundary. As a result of his inquiry the medical inspection will probably be made much more stringent.

DO NOT WALK ON THIN ICE

If You Have Catarrh You are in Danger—It Breeds Dyspepsia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Aside from the extreme offensive and odious nature of the disease, catarrh is also very dangerous if left to run its course unchecked. The constant droppings into the throat, which are mostly swallowed during sleep, cause poisonous disorders of the throat, stomach and lungs, which rapidly develop into dyspepsia, laryngitis, bronchitis and consumption. When these diseases become established, especially the latter, the result is too well known to need pointing out.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a certain and absolute cure for catarrh in all forms and all stages. Catarrhal conditions are always of the same nature, whether they exist in the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder, and these tablets act on all alike. They cleanse, renovate and purify the entire system of all catarrhal poisons and by thus going to the very root of the disease, effect thorough and permanent cure. This is the only way to treat catarrh, as local applications, such as sprays, ointments, inhalations, etc., afford only temporary relief, and the malady takes hold again with increased vigor.

An Indianapolis physician says: "I prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets on all occasions because I find they are most thorough and effective in their work. I have tried a great many prescriptions, my own and others, during 30 years of practice, but have never found anything quite so satisfactory in all respects as these Tablets. I have known the most stubborn and virulent cases of catarrh to yield time after time to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and I do not hesitate to prescribe and recommend them."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle. It will pay you to give them a trial and get away from the suffering, humiliation and danger caused by catarrh.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Colonials will have the following team on the ice ice to-night for the City League game with the Earl Greys:—Goal, Clancy; point, Thompson; cover point, Overend; forwards, Rouille, Foley, Frost, Callahan. Spare man, Bartley.

There are over seventy players signed in the City League. Surely there ought to be some O.H.A. championship material in the lot.

George Lynch will referee the first City League game to-night, and "Wallie" Parnell will look after the second.

Winchester, the goal keeper of the once famous Belleville team is branching out into a new line. He played centre forward for Lindsay against Midland last night. Midland won 9-6.

The Peterborough teams will practice this evening from 7 to 8.

The St. John's Guild hockey team will practice to-night between 7 and 8 at All Saints' rink. All players are asked to turn out.

Remember to-night's City League games at the Brock-st. rink. There will be two good matches for one price of admission. The Colonials and Earl Greys will meet in the first game at 8 o'clock. These teams are new organizations but should put up a good game. The main interest is centred in the T.A.S.-Karnot game at 9 o'clock. Both teams are confident of victory and the match will be worth going miles to see. The knowing ones refuse to pick the winner. The teams will line up as follows:—

T.A.S.		Karnots
	Goal
Darcober		Kingscote
	Point
Dorris		Dormer
	Cover Point
Quigley		Craig
	Forwards
Callaghan		Campbell
Kelly		Quinn
Kenneally		Green
[illegible]		Gilming

The Karnots had a rattling practice last evening between six and seven. The bunch did some fine playing and will be in the best of condition for to-night's big game.

The T.A.S. were out last night between 7 and 8. The City League showed up well and ought to put up a good game to-night.

The Colonials revealed themselves to the public for the first time last night when they had a workout in the Brock-st. rink. They displayed some fine hockey and something startling may be expected from them in to-night's game with the Earl Greys.

An executive meeting of St. Paul's Young Men's Guild will be held in the Y.M.C.A. to-night at 7.45 to discuss important matters. A full attendance is requested.

—St. John's choir will practice to-night at 8 o'clock sharp. A full attendance is requested.

—The officers of the Children's Aid Society acknowledge with thanks the receipt of a Christmas subscription from Mr. Alex. Dawson. It is hoped that the good example set by Mrs. Jacob White and Mr. Alex. Dawson will be copied by a large number of charitable people.

The executive of the Hockey Club will meet to-night at 8 o'clock.

The following teams are requested to be on hand this evening between 7 and 8 at the Brock street rink for practice:

Fitzpatrick, Winch, Cavanah, Parnell, Crowley, Morgan, Graham.

Ferguson, Green, Ford, Long, McFarlane, Smith, Hall, Carmichael.

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE.

The schedule for the Trent Valley League will likely be drawn up on Tuesday of next week and the teams will commence their matches at the end of the same week.

Mr. E. S. Clarry, the secretary of the league, has issued the following circular letter, which he is sending to the secretaries of the different clubs:—

For the guidance of the secretaries of the various clubs in the Trent Valley League I beg to call your attention the following facts connected with the rules of the league:—

1. All players must be registered with the secretary of the league on or before the date of the first match of the respective teams.

2. All players must have been residents of the town on whose team they play by the first of November, 1904.

3. No player who has played in the O.H.A. matches this year is eligible to play in the Trent Valley series.

4. The membership fee of the league is $3.00 and should be paid forthwith.

5. The O.H.A. constitution has been adopted by the Trent Valley League, excepting in such points as are especially provided for by the Trent Valley League, in motions and resolutions passed at various annual meetings.

6. One of these points is regarding protests. The procedure is the same as laid down by the O.H.A., but the deposit fee for both clubs is $15, instead of $25.00 as in the O.H.A.

7. The appointment of referees is the same as provided for by the O.H.A.

8. The home team shall open the negotiations with the visiting team regarding referees.

9. The Trent Valley League has adopted the following regulations regarding guarantee to visiting clubs: The visiting team is to receive three cents a mile for ten men, the said amount to be paid before the commencement of the game.

10. Secretaries of clubs will please see that referees forward to the secretary of the league the official score with the names of the players.

11. Secretaries will please fill in and swear to the affidavit forms herewith enclosed.

12. Secretaries will please read carefully the O.H.A. constitution regarding "Defaults" and "Protests."

13. The league controls all the matches and teams adopting the O.H.A. constitution will receive a percentage of the final games.

14. O.H.A. rule book may be obtained from Mr. H. A. Wilson, Toronto.

The following schedule has been drawn up for this district of the Junior O.H.A. The game dated for the 20th will have to be changed, owing to the fact that Port Perry is slated for the same evening.

Jan. 2—Peterborough at Belleville.
Jan. 5—Port Hope at Peterborough.
Jan. 5—Belleville at Cobourg.

RE-CAPTURED HILL.

Special to The Review.

London, Dec. 22—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from St. Petersburg, says General Kuropatkin has telegraphed to the General staff that he has received a report from Chinese sources to the effect that the Russians have recaptured 203-Metre Hill at Port Arthur, with the guns mounted by the Japs.

Shanghai, Dec. 22—A squadron of powerful cruisers under Admiral Kaminuai has gone south to the China Sea to meet the second Russian Pacific Squadron.

THE WATERWORKS DAM.

Mr. W. H. Moore States That It Was Never in Better Condition Than at Present.

With reference to the letter which appeared in the Review last evening complaining of the fact that the report of the engineer who made an estimate of the cost of a new dam, had not been published, Mr. W. H. Moore, one of the Commissioners stated today that it contained nothing of great public interest but was merely a statement as to the cost of a new concrete dam, and the best place to construct it. He states positively that the present dam is in better condition than ever before. A great deal of work was necessary in order to ascertain where would be the most satisfactory place to locate the dam. It was discovered by drilling, that the rock immediately below the old dam was at varying depths, and would indicate that in prehistoric days a deep channel had its course in the centre of what is now the river bed. Some distance above the present dam, however, a level bottom was found. The report treats for the most part, as before stated, with the cost of construction of a new dam, and the most advisable location.

BLANCHE ROYAL AGAIN

Was Found Under the Influence of Morphine in Toronto.

Frances Doran, the Toronto morphine eater, turns out to be none other than Blanche Royal, formerly of town, who was repeatedly attempting to poison herself. The Mail and Empire says:—Frances Doran, alias Blanche Royal, appeared in the Police Court yesterday on remand, charged with vagrancy, and was again remanded until Friday. She is the young woman who was arrested a few nights ago, under the influence of morphine. The jail physican examined her, and reported her sane. She told the magistrate that she had been in the habit of taking the drug for about a year, but had never taken it with the intention of suicide.

INJURIES WERE FATAL

Thomas Smith, of Havelock, Expires at Nicholls Hospital.

The young man Thomas Smith, of Havelock, who a week ago last Monday was injured in the C.P.R. yards there, died this morning at Nicholls Hospital. Septic poisoning developed from injuries received—a comminuted fracture of the left leg, below the knee—and in spite of the best medical attention, death ensued. Smith was only 21 years of age, unmarried, and was a son of Conductor Smith, of the C.P.R. The body will be taken to Havelock for interment.

BIG CHRISTMAS HUSTLE SETS IN

The Express Offices and Post Office Are Busy.

THE ENGLISH MAIL ARRIVES.

The Respective Staffs Are Kept on the Move These Days—Great Congestion at Post Office on Account of Poor Accommodation.

These are the days when the employees of post offices and express companies have to get a hustle on. The Christmas season is now in full blast and it is a common sight to see wagons loaded up "mountains high" with parcels which unmistakably contain the favors of the time when everybody has the gift fever. Enquiry at the express offices indicates that the infection has caught well, and the respective staffs have become acquainted with the significance of a "move on." The questions that have to be answered by an express clerk during the day at this time of year, would make an information bureau look sick. Where is such and such a place? How much will this be? Is there anything here for me? What are you going to soak me for this? Will you be open Christmas? These are some of the ordinary queries which the clerks have hurled at them. But there are others, remarkable for their absurdity. The express clerks are those to whom the old truism, "Patience is a virtue," is particularly applicable these days. The local offices have taken every precaution in anticipation of the big rush, and are giving an excellent service.

THE POST OFFICE.

The express offices may know something about a rush, but when one comes to look at the stampede of Christmas gifts at the post office there is some cause for wonderment. That part of the office reserved to the public is also the scene of congestion, the people pushing and shoving to get at their boxes or at the delivery wicket, and one might well wonder how these conditions have gone on so long. There should at least be double the space now available to the public, in order to have any degree of comfort.

But to the staff of the office Christmas appears as a strenuous time. The mails are very large and bulky, and it requires some fast work and considerable care to have everything work like machinery. This is most necessary of course, and the staff have it down to an art. "Have you plenty to do up here?" was asked of one of the clerks. "Not at all," was the reply. "Just at the present time I'm looking around for something to do." At the same time he had his arms piled up with parcels, and presented the appearance of a man who certainly had his hands full.

"When do the English mails arrive?" was the next query.

"They got in last night," was the answer, "and I hardly ever saw a larger one. Terrible quantity of parcels, almost a car load of them."

People may say that this is going to be a dull Christmas, but if they knew anything about the rush at the post office, they would be assured of the fact that the gift germ has been working along on the same old plan and on a mighty big scale. They say at the post office that not a few letters come addressed to Santa Claus. As this gentleman has not yet taken up residence in town, these epistles are forwarded to the dead letter office.

The rush, however, is only beginning and in a couple more days will have assumed much larger proportions.

HONORED MISS HOWSON.

Pupils of Business College Presented Her With Fern Bowl.

The pupils of the short-hand department of the Peterborough Business College took advantage of the approaching holiday season to express their appreciation of the kindness of their retiring teacher, Miss H. Howson. She was presented with a beautiful silver fern bowl and the following address:—

Dear Miss Howson,—As the Christmas season approaches, we who are fortunate enough to be under your charge, feel that we cannot let this opportunity go by, without at least endeavoring to show our appreciation for the care you have exercised and the undivided attention you have given to each of us during our course of instruction.

You have always shown marked kindness to us all, unselfishly disregarding your own interests, in order to favor any of us. It is needless to say that we have profitted under your careful instruction and shall look forward with eagerness to the New Year when we shall once more resume our studies under you.

We beg of you kindly to accept this small gift as a slight token of the warm friendship which your pupils have always had for you.

In closing we wish you all the joys and pleasure of this happy festival of the year, and not only that but may success crown your efforts in the New Year as it has done in the past.

Signed on behalf of the pupils of the Shorthand Department:

Hazel Hickey, Anna Ritchie,
Lydia Higgins, Ella G. Butcher.

Miss Howson made an appreciative reply in acknowledging the kind words and handsome gift.

TEACHING THE HORSE.

Will Learn Anything His Muscles Can Perform.

Expert horsemen believe that a horse can be taught to do anything that it is possible for an animal so formed and to be utterly fearless. Thus we know of horses rushing into battle with a fearlessness that is magnificent, although in the beginning of their lives they may have been foolishly timid, shying at everything unusual that happened to be seen in their travels.

In order to teach a horse fearlessness he must be accustomed to all sorts of sights and sounds. He must come to know that because something that he sees or hears is unusual it does not follow that it is harmful, for it is the unusual things that frighten him. The horse is an animal of one idea at a time and is not able to discriminate, so say the men who have made a study of the horse. While he will travel along quietly close by the roar of a train, he may tremble at the flutter of a piece of loose paper flying in the wind. It is not the frightfulness of the object that seems to alarm him, but the unfamiliarity of it. Horse trainers say that the mistakes made in "breaking" and training a colt is that it is too often done in the seclusion of some country road instead of amid the sights and sounds that the animal must necessarily become familiar with later.

As soon as the horse becomes familiar with anything and has learned to believe that it will not hurt him he will stand quietly or trot along peacefully, even though all sorts of noises and queer sights are about him. Thus the artillery horse will stand amid the roar of cannons, being used to the noise and not knowing that the sound predicts anguish and death. It is well to accustom a horse to unusual sounds as soon as possible after he is trained for riding or driving. It renders him safe and docile, even though he be a spirited animal. A certain trainer of horses said that an ideal school for horses would contain thrashing machines, pile drivers, steam drills, electric, steam and elevated cars, a band of martial music and a gang of quarrymen blasting rock. A horse that was drilled among such a bedlam as this would indeed prove immune to strange noises. The gentle family horse, petted by man and child, is not always trained to all this, yet he often makes a useful and faithful animal, loved by his owner and evidently making some return of affection.

A Poor Recipe.

"Don't talk to me about the recipes in that magazine," said Mrs. Lane, with great energy. "Wasn't that the very magazine that advised me to put on that sody solution and leave the tablecloth out overnight to take off those yellow stains?"

"I'm inclined to think it may have been," said Mrs. Lane's sister, with due meekness. "I sent you a number of them in the spring, I remember."

"Well, and what happened?" asked Mrs. Lane, with rising wrath.

"Didn't the stains disappear?" asked her sister.

"Disappear!" said Mrs. Lane in a withering tone. "It was the tablecloth that disappeared. I don't know anything about the stains."

Late Beginning.

Sir Walter Scott began to write his celebrated novels at forty. Milton began "Paradise Lost" at fifty. When "East Lynne" appeared its author, Mrs. Henry Wood, was forty-five. Cromwell was forty-one when he began his public career. The year of the hegira was the fifty-third of Mohammed, and Marlborough reached his independent command at the same age. In spiritual examples Abraham was seventy-five when called out of Charan, and Moses was eighty when he stood before Pharaoh as the champion of Israel.

Stomach and Liver Troubles.

Mr. Alex. M. Fims, Inkerman, N.B., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for derangements of the kidneys and liver and stomach troubles, and can certify that they did me a good deal of good. I can heartily recommend them to anyone suffering as I did."

Mr. Archie Moore was master of ceremonies and excellent music was furnished by Messrs. R. Wilson, Chas. Wesley and John Armstrong. Choice refreshments were served.

—On Sunday morning next in St. Peter's Cathedral, solemn high mass will be celebrated at 5.30; there will be a low mass immediately following at 6.30, and again at 8 and 9.15. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor will celebrate Pontifical high mass at 10.30, and Pontifical vespers at seven o'clock in the evening. Special Christmas decorations are being arranged and the music will also be of an appropriate character.

—Mr. James A. Storey, Peterboro' agent for the International Harvesting Co., has won a handsome eight day clock for doing the second largest amount of business for the company in the Toronto district. Three prizes were offered. A more extended report of the competition will appear to-morrow.

—The remains of the late A. T. Dorland were interred today in Castleton. He conducted a grocery store in in Peterborough for nearly two years, selling out a couple of months ago owing to poor health. Mr. Dorland was a victim of paralysis, and was 68 years old. He was formerly in business in Colborne, where his mother and a sister still reside. He leaves a wife, two sons and one daughter.

—Mr. Peter Israel, Superintendent of the Colonial Weaving Company, leaves today for Philadelphia on a visit. He was presented with a handsome wallet by the members of the staff, accompanied by an appreciative address. Mr. Israel made a grateful reply, and wished all those under him the compliments of the season.

—The heavy traffic on the railways set in today. Single fare will prevail tomorrow and it is expected the number of passengers going and coming will be fully as large as in previous years.

A BOLD THEFT.

Purse Snatched From a Little Girl on Wednesday.

A bold theft took place on Wednesday afternoon in the northern end of the town. Miss Marley Fife, the ten year old daughter of Mr. James A. Fife, Science Master at the Collegiate, was waiting at the corner of Argyle and Water streets for a street car. Suddenly a boy made a rush from behind and seized her chatelaine purse and was off around the corner almost before she knew what had happened. The little girl cannot give any description of the thief, except that he was about 12 or 13 years of age and wore a toque. The police were notified, but have not yet been able to get hold of the thief.

There were two cases at the Police Court this morning.

James Cain, of town, was charged with stealing a lap robe from Smith Milburn. He was remanded until Tuesday next.

Frank Meehan, who is one of the best known frequenters of the police court, was up once again on the familiar old charge of vagrancy, and as usual was not guilty and perfectly willing to work. However, he did not get off so easily this time, being sent to jail for one month.

I BELIEVE

Red Rose Tea

is the best tea in Canada, and that a great many people who drink it say it is the best tea they ever used.

I KNOW

It is however easy to make statements about what we believe. I think it is better to give definite, positive reasons why an article is believed to be the best, and if any article has real merit, it should be easy to give convincing reasons.

This is just what I propose to do. In the successive issues of this paper I will publish a number of facts and reasons why I believe Red Rose Tea is the best tea in Canada, and why you should use it.

The reasons will be interesting and educative about tea—well worth reading.

Before you read many, I think you will want to try the tea and if you buy a pound, the tea itself will do the rest.

THE LIBERAL REVOLT.

A striking feature of the present political situation in Ontario is the evidence of revolt among old-time Liberals against the methods of the Ontario Government. Scarcely a day passes that some Liberal of more or less prominence does not raise his voice in public protest against a condition of things that has become intolerable to men who are capable of putting self-respect and their country's welfare before the interests of a party.

Very significant is the attitude of the clergy, says the Woodstock Express. Under ordinary circumstances the pulpit may very well attend to its proper business of preaching and explaining the gospel, and leave the conflicts of the political arena to the politicians; but when great moral issues become involved, when public virtue and national honor are at stake, then it becomes the duty of the men who are the natural leaders of the people in matters pertaining to morality to speak, and to speak with all their powers and influence.

Within the past few days there have been three very outspoken protests from the pulpit against the sins and shortcomings of the Ross Government — from Rev. J. S. Ross, formerly of the Central Methodist church Woodstock; Rev. C. R. Morrow, another former Oxford pastor, and from Rev. D. Hossack, a Presbyterian minister, Toronto. All three have been life-long Liberals; all three have been supporters of Premier Ross and his Government, and doubtless would be glad to still be reckoned as supporters if their consciences would longer permit.

Rev. Dr. Hossack strikes the keynote of the general protest when he says, addressing Premier Ross: "I voted for you and your colleagues, and supported you until, with a narrow majority, you began to live by your wits, and my conscience would not permit me to support you any longer." The whole of the recent history of the Ross Government may be summed up in the one sentence: It has been seeking to live by its wits. Unable to secure by fair means a working majority from the people, and so greedy for power and so anxious for the control of the patronage that it must cling to office at all hazards, it has been compelled to live by its wits, and to leave no means untried, however disreputable, to keep the machinery going.

The history of the Government for the past seven or eight years has been the history of the average individual thrown upon the world with ambitions to be gratified, but without legitimate means. It is a story of degraded ideals, broken pledges, evil associations and combinations, sharp and disreputable practices, hypocrisy and untruthfulness.

CONSERVATIVE POLICY.

It is frequently charged by Liberals, who are anxious to cover up the corrupt acts and maladministration of their own party, that the Conservatives have no policy; that Mr. Whitney is incompetent, and that the Opposition has shown itself totally unfit for office. Well, Mr. Whitney has inspired confidence enough to carry the popular vote in the province by 7,000 at the last election, and to have overtures made to him on three different occasions to accept a position in the Ross Cabinet and form a coalition government. If Mr. Whitney has no policy, then why are Liberals so afraid of the coming issue and making such piteous pleas to the people for support.

As a matter of fact the electors of Ontario know that Mr. Whitney, the talented Conservative leader, has a policy; that he has able, progressive men at his back, and that the Conservative candidates in this election are superior to the stamp of men being set up by the Ross machine in its vain endeavor to stem the tide of a lost cause.

Here are some of the planks in Mr. Whitney's platform:—

Clean, decent and honest Government.

Broadening of the scope of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Increased agricultural instruction in schools.

The encouragement of sanitary systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

Public ownership of public utilities.

Prompt settlement of capital-labor disputes.

The operation of the Temiskaming Railway by the Government.

Fairer taxation of railway property.

The nationalization of our great water powers.

The destruction of the school book ring.

The wiping out of monopolies created by the Ross Government.

The disposal of pulp wood concessions by public competition.

Redress for the wrongs of the miners of New Ontario.

Branding of prison-made goods as such.

License law strictly and impartially enforced.

PEN POINTS.

Be sure and attend the municipal nominations on Monday.

Mr. Ross has sinned and repented and wants another chance to sin again.—Toronto Mail.

Mr. Ross and his travelling aggregation, including the "seven seals," will appear in Peterborough after the holidays.

The Ottawa Free Press says: "the new central depot is in sight." Ottawans have been looking for that depot over ten years, but perhaps the Free Press chap has a stronger binocular than his fellow citizens.

Mr. Alex. Smith, former Liberal organizer says that the voters' lists to be used in this election will be the lists as revised in 1904, both in the organized and unorganized districts in cities and towns where registration takes place. Immediately after the issue of the writs registration will be conducted.

One strong Liberal remarked on Hunter street to-day "Oh! our candidate will defeat yours by 600." Another [illegible] away another equally prominent member of the party was heard to observe, "Well, if our man comes within 600 of overtaking his opponent he will poll a heavier vote than I expect."—Toss up a coin and take your choice.

Mr. Anderson in East Peterborough is having the fight of his life against Henry A. Moore, the popular Conservative candidate, and is finding it necessary to call Hon. John Dryden and Hon. George P. Graham to his assistance. By the way, it is well for the electors to remember that Mr. Graham is billed to talk politics on Friday, Jan. 6th at Havelock and not on Sunday.

The letter of Rev. Mr. Hossack, himself a life-long Liberal, has made a great impression in the province. It is a vigorous, straightforward arraignment of Ross and his government by a gentleman who represents the better class of Liberal sentiment in the province. And the chief force of it consists in the fact that everyone who reads it is bound to admit that it is a temperate statement of the bald truth.—Ottawa Citizen.

PLEASANT "AT HOME."

Reception Held by Venerable Archdeacon and Mrs. Allen, Millbrook.

Venerable Archdeacon and Mrs. Allen, of Millbrook, were "at home" on Friday last to the members of their congregation and the many friends from the other churches who called to tender their congratulations. From seven until after ten the prettily arranged room was thronged with animated and smiling callers, who enjoyed the pleasure of extending their friendly greetings to the aged couple. There was no restraint, no formality, but come and go as you please, and it certainly was very home like and enjoyable. A very dainty light lunch was provided by the ladies of the congregation and good piano music at intervals during the evening. The Archdeacon and Mrs. Allen were of course the centre and circumference of the auspicious occasion and it was pleasing to meet them in such vigor of mind and body and long may they live to enjoy the esteem of their many friends was the wish of everyone present.—Millbrook Reporter.

HAVELOCK.

A crowd of Norwood young people drove down on Thursday evening and had a most enjoyable time.

Some of our young people went to Springbrook last Tuesday to attend the ball and oyster supper in that village.

Mr. F. McMullen, of Trent Bridge, entertained some of our people on Friday evening. A most enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. Jas. Colquhoun had a narrow escape from serious injury at the C.P.R. car shops on Tuesday. While engaged in uncoupling an air hose, the hose swung round and struck him back of the right eye, inflicting a bad cut. Dr. Crawford dressed the wound.

There is a possibility of an open air rink being opened here. It ought to be well patronized.

WHITNEY OPENS CAMPAIGN EFFECTIVE REPLY TO ROSS

Premier's Plea of Innocence Shown Up and Record of Corruption Laid Bare.

Opposition Leader's Object is to Smash the Old Cabinet—Has Not Promised Portfolio to Any Man—Terrible Arraignment of Rossism—Policy of the Conservative Party Clearly Outlined—Splendid Reception.

Napanee, Dec. 23.—J. P. Whitney, K. C., opened the provincial campaign by an address to the electors of Lennox in the Grand Opera House here last night. A torchlight procession preceded the leader of the Opposition to the hall, and a band played at intervals during the evening. The hall was well filled. There were many ladies present. Such mottoes as "Seal with seven seals the ballot boxes," hung on the walls, and flags, palms and flowers gave color to the platform. Mr. Whitney is suffering from hoarseness, and his voice was very husky, but he spoke for over an hour and his voice grew clearer as he proceeded.

Allan Oliver, president of the Liberal-Conservative Association, presided and introduced the speakers.

T. G. Carscallen, Conservative nominee, who was received with loud cheers, briefly defined his policy, and said that as there would be other meetings during the campaign he would lay more fully his policy before them at some future time. He was with the farmer. He does not believe in bonuses. He believes in taxing the railways just as the ordinary farm lands are taxed. All men and corporations should be taxed alike. He favored a certain percentage of the taxes going to the municipalities, and not all to the Government, which is the policy of Mr. Ross.

Hanna Well Received.

W. J. Hanna, West Lambton, followed, and said that the old war horse is about to be embalmed, and no one would take a greater interest in it than T. G. Carscallen. Preacher Brown, in his shirt sleeves at Toronto had said that a new houseboat was to be launched. It had been launched in Loughboro Lake and had been fished out by E. Gus Porter. On this platform on Tuesday, Hon. G. W. Ross pleaded guilty to the Liberal party doing wrong, and said "We have sinned and are sorry." Had he added and "We are sorry we were found out" he would have stated his position fairly.

Speaking of the simile which Premier Ross applied to Dr. Carman, head of the Methodist Church, he made another simile. If, said the speaker, Dr. Carman hired corrupt men and sent them as missionaries into his church, if Dr. Carman was elected superintendent of the Methodist Church, even though he did not know it was by corrupt methods, then as soon as he found it out he would resign the position, or if he did not the people of the Methodist Church would not tolerate him in his position.

Mr. Hanna reviewed much of the corruption that has characterized the Liberal party in Ontario and spoke at considerable length on the Gamey charges, four facts in which led him to believe in the truth of them.

Mr. Whitney Speaks.

J. P. Whitney, who was presented with an illuminated address of welcome, read by G. F. Ruttan, accepted it with words of appreciation and expressed his pleasure at being welcomed to the old historic County of Lennox, to fire the first gun in the provincial campaign, and to defend the cause of good Government, in which he felt sure the people would assist him by sending to the Legislature his friend and their representative, T. G. Carscallen. It was with pride that he believed he and his party had the respect of the citizens, but in his mission to-day no one realized his defects more than himself.

By virtue of the position he held he was charged with the political cleansing of the Province of Ontario at the request, and with the help, of people who do not think politically with him. No mission in which a man can be engaged could be more important than to stand in the forefront of a campaign aided, endorsed and helped by different parties who say "We will conduct ourselves in such a way that in years to come our successors will not have, even amid party strife, to speak with bated breath of the history of the Province shows their political progenitors did in years gone by."

Conservative Policy.

This being the first speech of the campaign, it was necessary that he, as leader, should deal with matters of policy.

The policy of the Conservative party to-day is the policy of 1902 (which so commended itself that a majority of 7,000 electors wanted it put in force), together with a few changes necessitated by the advancement of the country.

He was not surprised to learn from the speech of the Premier that Mr. Ross claimed that he wished to rule by the will of the people, for heretofore Mr. Ross had never ruled by the will of the people.

The record of the Conservative party in the past on election law and punishment was proof of its sincerity.

Replying to eight questions, he favored all except the reduction of indemnity to members of the Legislature, which would tend to limit the scope for securing candidates.

The Globe was trying to create a false scare. Mr Gamey had never been thought of as Minister of Mines. He had never had a follower who gave him less trouble than Mr Gamey. At present the object is to smash the present Cabinet, not to make a new one.

While not believing that Ontario is ready for prohibition, if the people declared for it, and if by raising his little finger liquor would be abolished from the Province, it would be done.

At the close of his speech Mr. Whitney was given an ovation and the meeting closed with a few words by J. Lockie Wilson, president of The Farmers' Association of Ontario, who asked the farmers to vote for Whitney.

IT IS SPELLED "LIE."

Hon. John Dryden Talks of the Political Situation.

Hamilton, Dec. 23.—At the South Wentworth Liberal convention which nominated D. Reid yesterday, Hon. John Dryden, in addressing the convention, said that all the abuse and charges heaped on Premier Ross could be summed up in a word of three letters and spelled out as "Lie." He admitted that immoral acts had been committed by the Liberals and these were to be deplored. The Premier and his colleagues could not be held responsible for them, any more than a church or a society could be held responsible for the acts of individuals.

Mr. Dryden said he proposed to send to California for an expert to teach the growers how to pack fruit, and the money would come from the estates of the rich men through the succession duties, which were bringing money into the provincial treasury at the rate of $1,000 a day and from corporations. They expected to get $750 a day from the company that is developing electrical energy at Niagara Falls. Mr. Dryden said he was tired of elections and the guff he was compelled to listen to in the Legislature.

PROSPERED IN THE WEST

Mr. A. E. Scott, Head of Commission Firm, Tells of Conditions in Winnipeg.

A former resident of Peterborough who has prospered in the West is Mr. A. E. Scott, of the wholesale commission firm of Scott, Bathgate & Co. of Winnipeg. It will be remembered by many that Mr. Scott was at one time the accountant in the Sun Life Assurance Office here. It was just thirteen years ago on the 17th of March last when he left Peterborough. He has paid subsequent visits here and observes that the town has grown remarkably, but this increase is as nothing to the progress experienced by Winnipeg in that time, the city being of course, situated in the centre of a new and rapidly developing part of the province of Manitoba.

Mr. Scott states that business is not brisk in the metropolis of the West at the present time. Conditions in summer and winter differ very considerably for the reason that the shutting down of navigation means quite a large increase in freight rates and this does not tend to make for continued rush. The merchants are inclined rather to take full advantage of water transportation to prepare for the winter. The firm of which Mr. Scott is a member are manufacturers' jobbers and they dispose of large quantities of supplies to wholesalers. Very little wheat has been marketed so far, and it is as yet difficult to tell what effect any deficiency in the crop may have on general business. Farmers have been plowing up to the end of November, and country merchants as a result are slow in making payments to the wholesalers. Thus is seen what relation the agriculturalist bears toward the large business house.

Since the Dominion elections there has been some movement in real estate; and the opinion seems to be that the sooner the G.T.P. is erected the better for the city. The railway facilities are not now sufficient for Winnipeg. As an instance it is pointed out that a car of goods coming in on Monday cannot in many cases get away until the week following. The closing of navigation means the raising of rates, say on fifth class freight of from 65 cents to 72 cents a hundred and this means considerable when a firm is on the lookout for profits. The existing lines are, however, doing everything in their power under the circumstances.

Mr. Scott states there are quite a few Peterborough boys in Winnipeg and they are all doing well.

CONCERT AT FAIRMOUNT

On Wednesday, Dec. 28th, the members of the Charlotte street Methodist church choir will take part in a programme to be rendered in connection with the Fairmount Sunday school. Mr. C. N. Brown will also take part, giving a number of readings.

The entertainment will take the form of an old-time feast, and tea will be served from 5 to 7 p.m., and at 8 o'clock the chair will be taken by Rev. H. V. Mounteer, and a unique programme will be given. Addresses will be given by Rev. Mr. Yule, of Springville, and others.

A feature of the evening will be the auctioneering of an autograph quilt made by the Women's Missionary Society of the church. Mr. T. M. McIndoo is superintendent of the Sunday school, and Mr. Robert Howden the secretary.

FRIDAY, DEC. 23, 1904.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

Business Transacted at Last Regular Meeting of the Council.

The Council of the Township of North Monaghan met in the Town Hall, on Thursday, Dec. 15th, 1904, at 1.30 p.m.

All the members were present, the Reeve, Mr. Jos. Madill in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Messrs. John Fowler and William Johnston appeared before the Council and asked for a grant of the sum of fifteen dollars to supplement a like sum granted by the Cavan Council towards helping Joseph Beauvais, an old man who had met with a serious loss lately by fire.

The following accounts were handed in:

Mat Clarke, gravelling road	$ 7 20
G. Moncrief, pay list for piping culverts, Div. No. 3	37 01
Kingan Hardware Co, sundries	1 24
Wm. Taylor & Co. concrete tile	28 85
Adam Hall, pipe for trough	1 03
B. Sanderson, account for lamps etc	1 74
G. W. Bennett, disbursements, printing, etc	8 73
T. Brown, gravel, 129 yds	12 90
Jos. Madill, gravel, 18 yds	1 80
Jas. Morrow, pay list, fixing culverts, R. Div. No. 1	25 20
D. M. Roberts, snow shovelling, 1903-4	12 95
Jno. McIntosh, making c. tile	9 00

On motion of Messrs. Smith and Fowler these accounts were passed and ordered to be paid.

It was moved by Messrs. Smith and Fowler, that whereas the Tp. of Cavan has granted the sum of $15 to help Jos. Beauvais, on condition that North Monaghan do likewise, therefore that an order be drawn on the Treasurer for the sum of $15 to be paid to Mr John Fowler, who is hereby authorized to expend that amount in charity to Jos. Beauvais. —Carried.

The Clerk reported the issue of school orders as follows—

Section No. 1	$446 40
Section No. 2	488 00
Section No. 3	365 00
Section No. 4	236 50
Separate School	75 00

On motion these orders were confirmed.

A communication was received from the clerk of Cavan enclosing an account for work done by that Township on the Cavan boundary road for the season 1904, and asking for a contra account from North Monaghan if any.

This was received and referred to the Reeve who was instructed to render the account of North Monaghan's expenditure upon this road in 1904.

A communication was verbally received from Mr. D. Maher, asking a refund of dog tax for 1904, he having no dog. This was received and will be allowed upon the complainant filing the necessary declaration.

The committee appointed to investigate the complaint of ratepayers, as to the condition of Lock street, reported having examined the street and interviewed the general manager of the Radial Railway Co. in regard to the matter. The committee found the road in a bad condition in some places, but as the Railway Company appeared willing to put these places in good shape when possible, the committee recommends that no action be taken just now, and further that the clerk notify the Railway Company that the Council will require a strict adherence to the provisions of the franchise agreement between the Company and the Township as to putting the highway into a proper state for public traffic as soon as possible in the spring.

This report was received and adopted.

Moved by Messrs. Brown and Morrow, that a committee of the Reeve, and Councillors Smith and Brown are hereby appointed to attend the meeting in Millbrook in regard to the proposed drain in Cavan, which affects a part of North Monaghan.—Carried.

By-law No. 543 to appoint a place of nomination meeting, etc., was then introduced and finally passed.

On motion the following salaries and sessional accounts were authorized to be paid:

W. H. Bradburn, treasurer	$40 00
G. W. Bennett, clerk for half year	37 50
B. Sanderson, caretaker	7 50
Jos. Madill, Reeve, sessional allowance	25 00
J. Brown, Councillor, sessional allowance	20 00
J. Smith, Councillor, sessional allowance	20 00
J. Morrow, Councillor, sessional allowance	20 00
R. Fowler, Councillor, sessional allowance	20 00

Council then adjourned until Saturday, Dec. 24th, to meet in Peterborough to receive the Collector's returns for 1904.

Russians Get English Trawlers to See Jap Torpedo Boats.

Men of the Game Cock Fleet Make Statement Before the Russian Consul—An Air of Mystery Surrounds Affair, But Responsible Quarters Give No Credence to Allegations That Russians Use Unfair Methods.

London, Dec. 23.—The publication in St. Petersburg of the statement that the Hull fishermen have voluntarily deposed that foreign torpedo boats were among the trawlers off Dogger Bank when the latter were fired on by ships of the Russian second Pacific squadron probably is a repetition of similar statements recently emanating from Hull and appearing in London papers. These are circumstantial, and it would certainly appear to be true that some men of the game cock fleet have made statements before the Russian Consul.

The name of only one of these has been revealed. He is the boatswain of trawler Ava, and he said yesterday that he was induced to make the statement while intoxicated. He admits that he received money, but now says the statement he made is untrue. All published reports from Hull say positively that these statements were secured by two agents of the Russian Government; but the Russian Embassy in London last night repeated its general denial of Dec. 21 regarding the subject.

Russia's Underhand Methods.

It was pointed out, however, that although Russia had offered a reward for information the Russian Government was not responsible for the course taken by any person desiring to secure the reward. The sensational press of England directly charges the Russian Government with using underhand means, by bribery and intoxicants, to secure false statements from men of the game cock fishing fleet. The Russian Consul at Hull last night said the boatswain of the Ava swore before the commissioner on oath that he saw Japanese torpedo boats with the trawlers. The Consul says he knows other trawlers who are ready to make similar statements, but that they are afraid of the consequences.

Altogether an air of mystery surrounds them there, but no credence in responsible quarters is given to the allegations that unfair methods have been used by Russia.

One explanation emanating from Paris is that two reporters of The Petit Parisien recently visisted Hull to interview men of the game cock fleet and secure independent information concerning the Dogger Bank affair, and that they are the ones who figured in the incident.

Saw Torpedo Boats.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 23.—According to a local paper, a number of English have appeared before the Russian consul in London and have deposed to having seen foreign torpedo boats among the Hull fishing fleet. Their depositions, it is added, will be submitted to the International Commission in Paris, the circumstances under which they were obtained being explained.

Russ Battleship Disabled.

Tokio, Dec. 23.—Admiral Togo reports: "After personal observations outside Port Arthur I find that the Sevastopol, which was attacked by our torpedo flotilla, is now anchored in the shallows about 400 yards from the shore of Chengtao Mountain. The Russians are engaged in pumping, but the Sevastopol is listing at least 10 degrees with her bow slightly sunk. There can be no hope of restoring the vessel to fighting trim, considering the present condition of Port Arthur, and I judge that she has been completely disabled. I also observed that the enemy's destroyer, which was torpedoed by us has been destroyed."

An Improbable Story.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 23.—General Kuropatkin has telegraphed to the general staff that he has received a report from Chinese sources to the effect that the Russians have recaptured 203-Metre Hill at Port Arthur with the guns mounted by the Japanese. Kuropatkin's despatch, which is dated Dec. 21, also reports further reconnaissances of both the Russians and Japanese, but says they were not productive of important results.

Jap Progress.

Tokio, Dec. 23.—A despatch received by telegram yesterday from the Japanese army before Port Arthur says:

"The right column of the army at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, taking advantage of the enemy's excitement, drove the enemy off an eminence north of Housanyentao on Pigeon Bay, and occupied the position, and at 7 o'clock dislodged the enemy from a height on the peninsula west of Housanyentao, which we occupied, capturing one small gun. After the Japanese occupation of the positions the enemy made a counter attack, but was immediately repulsed. At present our occupation of the position is practically secure."

Escape in Snow Storm.

London, Dec. 23.—The Daily Telegraph's Che Foo correspondent reports that eight torpedo destroyers have escaped from Port Arthur, where for the last twenty-four hours he says a severe snowstorm has been raging.

Japs Lose 20,000 By Sickness.

Mukden, Dec. 23.—The Japanese are reported to be suffering severely from cold and sickness in the vicinity of Palasandzia and Shilkihe, where it is said they lost 20,000 men in a single week.

Jap Boats Move.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 23.—The announcement that four Japanese cruisers and 12 torpedo boats are proceeding west from Singapore is received here with much interest.

THE CORSET.

Placed on Trial and Found Guilty of Heinous Offenses.

Physical Culture magazine has put the corset on trial and found it guilty of even more heinous offenses than most of its ardent haters have ever dreamed. Here is the true bill found against this molder of the feminine form by the magazine:

It lessens and sometimes ruins the digestive powers.

It restricts development of the lungs to almost half their normal size.

It destroys absolutely the normal power of breathing.

It ultimately injures and makes shapeless, flaccid and nerveless the flesh of the waist line.

It destroys the beauty lines of the body, of the limbs, arms and bust by restricting nourishment, by interfering with normal circulation and thus lessening vital power, and by the continuous and unnatural support of the bust in an abnormal position.

It is absolutely in most cases the direct cause of weaknesses peculiar to women, from which every corset wearer suffers at some time in her life.

It greatly weakens, sometimes destroys, or makes abnormal the instinct of sex.

It produces tumors and the inflamed condition from which women so often turn to expensive and dangerous operations.

It causes serious displacement.

It prevents the return of the venous blood from parts below the waist line.

It weakens and sometimes kills unborn babies.

It is one of the principal causes of marital miseries and divorces.

BEFORE GOING TO BED.

What to Do to Secure a Refreshing Night's Sleep.

We are always dining into our children's ears that in order to carry a thing through properly they must devote their whole attention to the matter in hand, and yet we do not always set a good example. We retire for the night with the object of resting our tired bodies and brains, and instead of doing the latter we make up our minds for a good thing or indulge in a quiet read. Now, a book may have a very soothing effect on some people, but it is decidedly bad for the majority and only excites the brain, so that when we finally lie down sleep refuses to come to us. There is a time for everything, and after a long trying day it is most important for our own health and for the well being of our families that we sleep well, but to do so we must retire with this object only in view. We must make up our minds not to think, never to read, but to secure that refreshing sleep which is nature's way of preparing us for whatever vexations we may have to face on the morrow. Breakfasting in bed, also, unless one is really ill, is a most unhealthy habit and should not be permitted.—Exchange.

IN THE SICKROOM.

Wear soft shoes, but those which will not shuffle.

Write down the doctor's orders so as to allow of no mistake.

Wear plain wash stuff gowns which are at least two inches above the floor.

Do not have much starch in the wearing apparel or the rustle may annoy the invalid.

Remember that a sick person is painfully aware of disorder about the room or the nurse.

In any long illness keep plenty of disinfectant around the room to render it fresh and sweet.

Keep the patient well supplied with clean bedclothing, as it is not only sanitary, but refreshing, to have clean linen.

Be careful not to betray any nervousness or fuss about drafts or medicines. Do everything in a quiet but not stealthy fashion.

A Plea For the Boy.

We see much in our periodicals nowadays about beautifying our back yards—a most commendable reform—but to what out of the way corner has the small boy's precious belongings been relegated? Surely the little fellow's rights are to be respected, but we see no indications in the numerous photographs of ornamental back yards of a vine covered workshop where the saw, the hatchet and bits of wood, etc., so dear to a boy's heart, are to be found. The boys should have a portion screened from the rest of the garden by a high trellis or fence of chicken wire, which would be a thing of beauty when covered with blossoming vines; then they will not be driven so often to find amusement on the streets.

Stale Bread Griddlecakes.

Soak two cups of stale breadcrumbs for one hour in a quart of milk which must be boiling hot. Pour this over the breadcrumbs. Separate the yolks and whites of two eggs and beat light. Into the soaked breadcrumbs add first the beaten yolks, then three ounces of flour, a tablespoonful melted butter, a small teaspoonful of salt. Beat these well; then stir in lightly two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and the beaten whites. Grease the griddle and bake quickly in small thin cakes until a golden brown. These are the most wholesome of all griddlecakes.

Jellies and Custards.

Almost every housekeeper knows the value of a wet hot towel in unmolding jellies and custards. They will appreciate the suggestion in Good Housekeeping of a cold towel to assist removing a cake or pie from the baking tin. Wring the cloth out of cold water, fold and lay on the table and set the hot baking tin on it for a few minutes, when the obdurate cake or pie may easily be removed.

OPENING GAMES OF THE LEAGUE

Colonials Defeated Earl Greys Last Night by 6 to 1.

KARNOTS DOWNED THE T. A. S

Fairly Large Crowd and Good Hockey—Spectators Got Their Moneys' Worth—The Teams and Those Who Scored the Goals.

The City Hockey League got fairly under way last evening, when a good sized crowd saw two hotly contested games. The spectators certainly got the worth of their money as hockey of all shapes and varieties was dished up. Everyone seemed to be satisfied, and it is safe betting that next Thursday's games will be very well patronized.

The first contest was between the Colonials and Earl Greys and was won by the former quite handily by 6 goals to 1. The players showed lack of practice, and the hockey was not in the same class as that displayed in the second game. However, it was warmly contested and produced much amusement for the crowd who thoroughly enjoyed the match. Lang and Maher's offer of a dollar shirt to the player scoring the first goal caused much excitement and the players on both sides tried desperately to gather in the prize. Finally Foley secured the first goal and put an end to the competition.

The second game between the T.A.S. and Karnots was characterized by hard, desperate playing from start to finish. It was certainly a fine exhibition. One spectator was heard to remark that it was as fast as any junior O.H.A. game he had even seen, and this seemed to be the general feeling in regard to the match. The teams were very equally matched, and the play for the greater part of the game was even. The T.A.S. had slightly the best of it in the first half, leading at half-time by 1—0. The boys in purple and white, however, were good finishers and scored four goals in the second half, winning the match by 4—1.

"Wallie" Parnell made a very efficient referee and was thoroughly satisfactory to the four teams and the crowd.

THE FIRST GAME.

In the first match the Colonials had the advantage all the way through. They played good hockey, although they showed lack of practice. When they get their combination going, however, they will be able to give any of the league teams a hard game.

Foley at right wing was perhaps the star. He handled his stick well and shot accurately, scoring three of the six goals made by his team. Frost at centre, made some nice rushes and Rouille, the rover, checked hard and indulged in several fast rushes. Overend figured at coverpoint, and was a hard man to pass. He relieved on several occasions when things looked dangerous. Clancy made some nice stops in goal.

For the losers, Gilbert on the forward line worked hard all the way through and scored the Earl Grey's only goal by a nice shot from near centre. Latimer checked hard and made some good rushes. Brand, at point, played a good blocking game and saved many scores. Lang, in the nets, turned off some bad looking ones.

The game was called at 8.30 o'clock. At first matters were even, but the Colonials soon began to force the play. Rouille made a nice rush and passed to Foley, who landed the first goal and Lang & Maher's shirt by a neat shot from the side. Score 1—0.

The Colonials kept pressing, and a few minutes after Foley scored again from a scrimmage in front of the nets. Score 2—0.

Overend made a beautiful rush, but Lang blocked the shot. The Colonial coverpoint passed in front to Foley, who slammed it in. Score 3—0. Half time was called soon after.

In the second half the boys from the south had the advantage. Frost made a pretty rush from centre and punctured the nets. Score 4—0.

The Colonials never let up, and on a combined rush by Foley and Rouille, the later scored. Score 5—0.

The Earl Grey's then took a hand in the scoring, and the umpire's hand went up on a neat shot of Gilbert's from near centre. Score 5—1.

Frost ended the scoring with another neat rush and shot, making the final score 6—1.

Following were the teams—

Colonials		Earl Greys
	Goal.
Clancy		Lang
	Point.
Thompson		Brand
	Coverpoint.
Overend		Seward
	Rover
Frost		Howson
	Centre
Rouille		McFadden
	Right wing
Foley		Latimer
	Left wing
Callahan		Gilbert

The Karnots put up a great game in the second contest. They have a fast and well balanced aggregation, who, with a little more practice will take a lot of beating. The defence is strong and the forwards fast and aggressive. Kingscote, in goal, got in the way of many likely-looking shots and cleared quickly. Dormer, at point, is a fast skater and good lift. B. Craig, at coverpoint, was a hard man to get around. He used his weight to advantage and checked like a pile driver. He adorned the fence on several occasions for too strenuous use of his body. Quinn was perhaps the star of the forward line and made some spectacular rushes. Gilman played well at left wing and did some fine shooting from the side.

For the losers, Derocher played a nice game in goal and turned aside some hard ones. Dorris and Kelly at point and cover-point respectively, checked hard and relieved well. Kenneally put up a fine game on the wing line. He played his position well and didn't stray all over the ice as some wings have the habit of doing. Callahan rushed well and scored the only goal for his team. Rose worked hard and checked well. Quigley at left wing, played a very effective game.

Matters were very even at first and the game was hotly contested and inclined to be rough. Referee Parnell had his hands full. Gross and Rose went off for fighting. On their return Craig was sent to the fence for body checking. Several nice rushes were made by the Karnot line, but they could not score. Callahan went off for too strenuous checking. Kenneally worked in a pretty dash along the boards. Craig went off again for heavy body checking. Quigley made a nice rush up the side and passed in front to Callahan, who banged in the first goal.

Campbell was hurt. Rose was sent to join the time-keepers for illegal use of his body. The game became very exciting. Quinn received a cut on the head. Rose went off again and was soon followed by Craig. The T.A.S. were pressing, but could not score. Callahan went off for bodying. Half time was called soon after.

The Karnots began to force matters in the second half. The play became faster and cleaner. Gilman made a nice rush and tied the score. Craig made his fourth trip to the fence, this time for cross-checking Callahan. Quinn, by a neat shot from the side, put his team in the lead. The Karnots kept up the pace and Gilman slammed the puck in from a scrimmage in front of the nets. Quinn got the last in a similar manner, making the final score 4—1 in favor of the Karnots.

The teams wwere as follows—

Karnots		T.A.S.
	Goal.
Kingscote		Derocher
	Point.
Dormer		Dorris
	Coverpoint.
Craig		Kelly
	Rover
Quinn		Callahan
	Centre
Campbell		Rose
	Right wing
Gross		Kenneally
	Left wing
Gilman		Quigley

The players penalized were—Craig, 4 times; Rose, 3 times; Callahan twice; Gross.

Escaped an Operation.

PROSPECTS IN THE GREAT WEST

Mr. R. P. Langford on the Development of Manitoba.

THE CHANCES OF SUCCESS.

What the Young Man May Expect—The Building and Land Boom in Winnipeg Immigration in 1905 Will be Greater Than Ever.

Mr R. Percival Langford, of Winnipeg, is spending his holidays in town. He is an old Peterborough boy, who has been living for several years in the West. Mr. Langford is a traveller for the large wholesale grocery firm of Campbell Bros. and Wilson, and his territory extends all over Manitoba and Eastern Assiniboia. He visits all the smaller places and comes in contact with all classes of people.

"Yes," said Mr. Langford to a Review representative today, "Winnipeg is growing rapidly. I suppose the population has increased 10,000 during the past twelve months. We now boast of about 80,000 people in the Prairie City. The aggregate value of the building permits issued during 1904 is $10,000,000. A large number of splendid new warehouses are in course of erection, all the leading eastern houses having agencies in the city. The T. Eaton Co., of Toronto, bought a whole block on Portage avenue, opposite the Clarendon hotel, and are now putting up a handsome, modern store and factory. The firm expect to be doing business by July of next year. The store will be larger than the big Eaton establishment in Toronto. Within a year Portage avenue, which is speedily becoming the leading business thoroughfare, will for six blocks have some of the finest structures in the west, ranging from four storeys up in height."

"How about business conditions and prospects," was asked.

"On the whole, I think they are as good as last year. Some houses report a larger business. There is, however, too much credit system done in all western towns, but with the advent of Eaton's business, I think the tendency will be to inaugurate the cash plan."

"What about the harvest?"

"Well, the rust did considerable harm to the wheat in Southern Manitoba and the Portage Plains, but in Northern and Western Manitoba and Eastern Assiniboia there was no rust to speak of. The grain was well harvested and yielded a good crop. The selling price is from 70 to 90 cents per bushel, and transportation has been very fair, there being only one or two blockades. The towns in the west, with one or two exceptions, are all growing—perhaps not as fast during the past year as in 1903. On the whole the people are satisfied and the prospects for emigration, especially from across the border, were never brighter. Thousands of homesteads will be taken up in the Dauphin, Kamsack, and Saskatoon districts. Several of these have been held for some time and in order to hold them, settlement must be effected during the coming spring. Some 800,000 acres were reserved for the Doukhobors by the Government, but only 125,000 acres have been taken up, and the remainder was placed on the market on the 15th of this month.

"The Canadian Northern is aiding greatly in the development of the country and will, in a few months, be practically a second transcontinental line. The road from Kamsack to Vermillion—475 miles—has 275 miles completed, and the remaining 200 is graded and ready for the rails. Vermillion is 90 miles east of Edmonton. The land along the route is all homesteaded. One great drawback to the West is the speculator, who buys up sections with the object of holding the land, solely for making money. The government should put a tax on all land that, within a reasonable time, is not used for either agricultural or grazing purposes. The number of real estate agents in the West is astonishing, and I am of the opinion that land values, in Winnipeg especially, have about reached their limit. In the business centre of the city values range from $500 to $1,500 per foot frontage. In the central residential district the quotations are $30 to $200 per foot—thirty foot frontage lots being sold from $1,000 upwards, according to location. Houses are springing up in all parts of the city and rents are very high—much more so than the salaries received justify people in paying. A dwelling that would bring $15 to $20 per month in Peterborough can easily be leased in the city for $40 to $60 and even higher. Suites of rooms—three in a suite—especially in the Strathcona chambers, bring from $75 to $125 per month. This includes, of course, all modern conveniences as well as light and heat. In less aristocratic establishments the rent is lower.

Often all the rooms are taken before an apartment house is completed. Land values in the centre of the city have gone up from $200 to $500 per foot within the last fifteen months. Many fortunes have been cleaned up in speculation, but on the other hand a great many have been lost. I have known many persons to buy lots at $400 and $500 and pay only $25 down on each. Not being able to sell quickly, or at the price they asked, the parties have sunk their original investment."

"Would you advise young men to locate in the west?"

"Well, if a young man is prepared to work hard and economize I believe he can strike no better field. Of course he has not the social advantages he enjoys in the east, but all things being considered, if the youth is not afraid of labor and does not desire to live beyond his means he can do better, I think, in [illegible] climate, but the cold is not felt nearly as much there as it is in the east. I wear the same weight of clothes the year around, except in the winter time, when I don a coon-skin overcoat, a pair of overshoes and a fur cap. When it is 25 and 30 below zero there the average man does not feel the temperature so keenly as when he comes east and finds the mercury around the zero mark. The cold is still and dry. No, there is little to complain of on the score of the climate.

"As to entering business life, if a man is prepared to take his chances of the seasons and harvests, I think he can do better than in the east. I have driven all over Manitoba and Eastern Assiniboia, and know the ground pretty thoroughly. The farmers had a good year, but the ranchers have not fared so well. The price of beef has been low, and the past winter was a poor one. I intend returning to the West in about two weeks. I have spent eight years there, and in these few rambling remarks have endeavored to give you a brief and impartial view of the country, its conditions and its prospects. I want to say, though, that the outlook for increased settlement was never brighter. Foreigners and farmers from the United States will come in next year in greater numbers than ever to fill up the country. There is plenty of room for them all, and with a good season, coupled with industry and activity, they should do well. Yes, the West is a great country".

Mr. Langford is a son of Major William Langford, Water street, and is well known in Peterborough. His many friends are pleased to meet him and see him looking so well.

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

Police Magistrate Edmison at Norwood—Heavy Fine for Assault.

County Police Magistrate Edmison held Police Court in Norwood yesterday. There was only one case for his consideration. Robt. Hill, of Dummer, charged James H. Stewart, of the same place, with assault. There has been bad blood between the two men for some time, and on several occasions hot words had passed between them. Finally it came to blows, hence the assault case. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate held that the charge had been proven, and fined Stewart $20 and costs.

FEW PROMOTIONS.

There Will be Little Change in Teachers or Pupils of Schools.

The public schools, which will reopen on Tuesday, Jan. 3rd, will see but little change in the personnel of the teaching staff or the pupils. Miss Walker is the only new teacher. She comes from Meaford and will be attached to the George street school. There have been few promotions at the close of this term, and those made have been more of a supplementary character rather than regular promotions. The fall term is too short to cover the limits of the prescribed courses of study in the different departments and to make any extensive promotions.

The reason the usual closing exercises were not held in the kindergarten department of the Central school is owing to the fact that the steam pipes in Miss Warner's room burst recently, causing desolation and destroying many of the decorations, hence the annual closing exercises had to be deferred.

FIT SUBJECT FOR CONGRATULATION

St. John's Church at Havelock Has Been Consecrated.

RESULT OF SPECIAL EFFORT.

His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto Performed the Ceremony, and Also the Rite of Confirmation—An Important Occasion.

An event of great importance in the history of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Havelock, and one that will long remain fresh in congregational memory took place last evening, when His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto consecrated the edifice, and afterwards performed the Apostolic Rite of Confimation. The consecration followed upon that very happy condition which was in this case the result of special voluntary contribution, namely, the freedom of the church from a debt of some $800. The circumstances, indeed, are such as to justify hearty congratulation toward Rev W. R. Tandy, the incumbent, and the members of the congregation. Since he was placed in charge about three years ago, the church has gone forward rapidly, every department has progressed, and to-day there is a large congregation realizing their responsibility as a people towards the mission of the church, and co-operation with the rector. This is a very happy state of affairs, and it can be well understood, the ceremony of last night would be of deep interest to the large number attending.

The outside clergymen present were His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto, Rev. E. W. Pickford, of Norwood, a former rector, and Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's, Peterborough. Letters of regret at not being able to be present were received from Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rural Dean; Rev. John Gibson, of Thornhill, who was the founder and builder of the church 15 years ago; Rev. A. S. Dickenson, of Fenelon Falls; Rev. A. J. Reid, Campbellford; Rev. Wm. Major, of Peterborough, all of whom extended their hearty congratuilations and best wishes.

The ceremony of consecration was an impressive one. His lordship the Bishop and other clergymen taking part were met at the door of the church by the Wardens, who requested that the church be consecrated, it having been freed from all indebtedness. The procession continued up the aisle, reciting the 84th Psalm, beginning:—"How amiable are Thy tabernacles, O Lord of Hosts!" At the altar the Bishop received from the Wardens the deed and placed it on the alter. He then offered the prayers, asking God to consecrate the church to its holy usuages, and keeping it free from all things secular and profane. His lordship then signed the patents, and handed the same to the incumbent.

After the consecration Rev. Mr. Pickford gave a happy address, recalling plesant memories of his incumbency there, congratulating Rev. Mr. Tandy and his people, and impressively pointing to the Lord Jesus Christ as the foundation and head of the Church.

Evening prayer was read by the Rev. E A. Langfeldt, and following this his lordship the Bishop performed the rite of confirmation, the candidates being three men and five women. The Bishop addressed the congregation, congratulating them upon the occasion, and expressing the hope that rector and people would still go forward in the good work which had marked the past few years.

After the services in the church, the visiting clergymen and other friends were entertained at dinner by the Rev. W. R. Tandy at the rectory. It is a pleasing fact also to state that some two years ago a debt of $500 on the rectory was wiped out. Havelock congregation and their talented rector have been experiencing triumphant progress, and Peterborough friends will wish them well.

MARRIED AND AWAY

Miss Emma T. Howden Becomes the Bride of Mr. Albert E. Scott.

The wedding of Miss Emma Therese Howden, daughter of Mrs. Robert Howden, to Mr. Albert Edward Scott, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, formerly of Peterborough, took place last evening at the residence of the bride's mother, 678 Bethune-st. It was a very quiet wedding, owing to the recent death of Mr. Robert Howden, and only the immediate relatives of the bride were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Torrance, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. There were no nuptial attendants. The bride was attired in a rich gown of castor broad cloth with green broad cloth and applique trimmings and hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott left by the midnight C.P.R. train for Montreal and will return to Winnipeg about middle of January by Chicago and St. Paul. The best wishes of many Peterborough friends will accompany Mr. and Mrs Scott to their home in Winnipeg.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Forgiveness is a very poor foundation for friendship.

Going visiting is like borrowing from the neighbors—you have to pay back.

Which would be wiser for a man past fifty to do—marry a trained nurse or a good cook?

There is need of a never-find-fault-with-your-meals club. Digestion would be better and the family happier.

If a secret is kept a secret this is one sign that it was not considered important enough to tell.

One thing about an idle woman—she does not stand on the street and bore people with her "views," as an idle man does.

Speaking of superfluous words, is it necessary to say in telling that a woman has gone visiting that she is visiting "friends?"

To the Point.

The late General Russell Hastings served with distinction in the civil war, and his wartime reminiscences were amusing.

He was describing one day a time when the soldiers' pay had been in arrears.

"A young westerner, full of braggadocio," he said, "walked up to his captain during the temporary trouble, saluted and said sternly:

"'Three words with you, cap.'

"'Well,' said the captain, 'what are they?'

"'Money or discharge.'

"The captain smiled grimly.

"'Four with you,' he said.

"'Well?'

"'Neither one nor t'other.'"

Is Your Liver To Blame?

HERE ARE THE SYMPTOMS WHICH TELL OF A CONGESTED LIVER, AND INDICATE THE NEED OF

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

The tongue is coated, the appetite impaired, digestion is deranged, the bowels are constipated and there are feelings of fulness and soreness about the liver.

You may have headache and dizziness, pains in the limbs, feverishness, yellowness of the eye and skin, depression of spirits, and irritability of temper.

So great is the influence of the liver on the other organs of the body that once it is deranged, the whole system seems to be upset.

There are no means by which you can so quickly and certainly obtain relief from torpid, sluggish liver action as by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

One pill at bedtime, and the result is a thorough cleansing of the filtering and excretory systems, and new vigor and regularity for liver kidneys and bowels.

No family medicine has been more extensively used in Canada than Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills, and none has such a reputation for reliability and certainty of action.

Enliven the action of the liver by this well known treatment, and you ensure good digestion and regular action of the bowels—the foundation of good health.

"I was a sufferer for years with stomach trouble and terrible headaches, and spent a good many dollars in medicine without receiving any benefit. Hearing Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills highly recommended, I determined to give them a trial, and did so with the most satisfactory results, as I was very greatly benefitted and do not hesitate to recommend this treatment as the best obtainable for such ailments."—Mrs. Thomas Covert, Highland Grove, Peterborough Co., Ont.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

The average boy does not care who is elected so be can get in the parade and work his squawker and his lungs.

If a man just sets willingly about it he can find many things that drive him to drink.

If you want to tickle a man and make him feel that he is a sly dog, tell him that an old sweetheart of his inquired after him.

It adds much to the pleasures of a dinner if the fresh country butter has had a shave before it is placed on the table.

The person who is always giving good advice is kept too busy to take any of it himself.

Busted.

The dollars from my jeans have fled,
The gladness from my heart is gone,
And everything looks pale and wan
That erstwhile blossomed rosy red.

I search my pockets through and through—
Tobacco, jack knife, two key rings,
A corkscrew and some other things—
But I can't find a single sou.

I take my sad plight much to heart,
And, oh, for me there is no peace!
From sorrow can I hope release
When I and my last dollar part?

Oh, woe is me, and me is woe!
My landlord now affirms that he,
Though hating much to trouble me,
Must see the color of my dough.

And so to chase his gloom away,
Alas, to work I have to go
And dub around till I can show
A bunch of coin wherewith to pay.

"He took a postgraduate course in the school of experience."

"Worked in a barber shop, did he?"

Almost a Hint.

"Yes," said the sweet young girl, "I flatter myself that I am something of a mind reader. Although I am not the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, it comes natural for me to tell what a person is thinking by looking at him."

"Now, that is interesting," said young Mr. Latestayer, who was making a friendly call. "Suppose you prove it by telling me what I am thinking about."

"We must use tact in practicing these mystic arts," she replied, "and really I would hate to hurt your feelings."

"Oh, go ahead. I don't care who knows my thoughts."

"Well, if you insist," she said sweetly, "you are thinking that you really must take your hat and go home."

The young man laughed uproariously at the guess, but he did not linger around many hours longer.

Napoleon's Snuff.

Napoleon, although careful of his personal appearance, had a terrible habit of soiling his waistcoat with snuff, which he carried loose in the left hand pocket, thereby doing away with the inconvenience of carrying a snuffbox.

Robin Hood's Barn.

"Robin Hood's barn" was Sherwood forest. In the days of the noted outlaw this was many miles in extent; hence "to go all around Robin Hood's barn" signified a widely circuitous course. The phrase is often used to describe verbosity and vagueness in speech.

The Krooboys.

The Krooboys, a tribe of aborigines which inhabit the seacoast of Liberia, as is well known in the shipping world, are the west coast seamen. They are the stevedores and longshoremen of Africa.

Lew Wallace's Nickname.

General Lew Wallace was called "Louise"—not that his men deemed him effeminate, but because they wanted some endearing term for a general whom they were devotedly attached to, and that was the fact that suggested them.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

The two were sitting together in the morning, after George had gone to his office, and the Suffold morning post was lying unopened on the table beside them. Laura was puzzling over some household accounts, which she could not quite make exact, when Anna took up the newspaper and began carelessly scanning its columns. Suddenly she gave an exclamation.

"Good gracious! What a terrible thing!" she cried.

"What is the matter?" asked Laura, looking up from her account-book.

"A dreadful accident happened yesterday to Sir Ralph Woodland on the hunting-field. He was thrown, and his horse rolled over him. They fear—"

But here Anna stopped, for with a sort of cry Laura sprang to her feet

"What?" she gasped out, "what?"

"They fear he is fatally injured," continued Anna, with her red-brown eyes fixed on the white, despairing face before her.

Laura asked nothing more. A deadly faintness crept over her; the room seemed to whirl around her, and with a faint moan she fell senseless on the floor at Anna Lindsay's feet.

For a moment or two Anna thought the shock had killed her. She rang the bell hastily; she tried to raise Laura's head. Then a servant ran in.

"Oh, Miss Lindsay, what is the matter?" said this woman, in dismay, when she saw her mistress' prostrate form and white rigid face.

"She has fainted, she is in a fit," answered Anna. "Get some water, and rub her hands."

The servant made haste to obey. Then the other servants came in, and Laura was lifted on a couch. But still she lay motionless, and finally Miss Lindsay sent for the doctor, and to the office for George. There was triumph in her heart as she did this. George should know of the false wife he had cherished, she told herself, and she eagerly awaited his coming.

He came in great haste, before the doctor arrived, and Anna met him in the hall.

"What is this? What is the matter with Laura?" he asked, breathlessly.

"Come in here, George," answered Anna, and she pulled him by the hand into the dining-room, the door of which was standing open.

George turned quite pale as she did so, and Anna saw with jealous eyes this sign of emotion.

"She is not—" he gasped out, with trembling lips.

"I read out the account of Sir Ralph Woodland's accident yesterday on the hunting-field," she hissed forth, "and when she heard it she fainted at once dead away. I've sent for the doctor, and I sent for you."

"What nonsense. Where is she?" said George quickly.

"She is in the breakfast-room. I thought I had better tell you the cause of her illness," answered Anna, "when no one else was near."

CHAPTER XXIII.

George Gifford made no answer to his cousin's insinuations. He broke hastily away from her and went into the breakfast-room, and lying on a couch, with the servants standing around her, he found his wife.

Laura was deadly pale, but a faint twitching and contraction of her face showed some return to consciousness.

"She's coming round, sir," said the cook, who was bathing Laura's hands with cold water, now addressing her master.

George made a step nearer, and stood looking at his wife with a strange feeling in his heart. But at this moment the doctor hurried into the room, and shaking hands with George as he passed him, at once commenced to endeavor to revive Laura.

"Perhaps I had better go into another room," said George, slowly, and he left the room as he spoke, and in the hall he met Anna Lindsay.

"How is she now?" asked Anna, eagerly.

"She looks very ill," answered George, coldly; and then he went into the dining-room, and shut the door behind him and sat down to think.

"Could there be any truth in this story of Anna's?" he was asking himself. He also has seen the account of Sir Ralph's accident in the newspaper at the office, and it was cer- [illegible] that it should have had such an effect on Laura, if Anna's words were true.

"But she was always jealous of Laura," George also reflected, and then he began to look back on what had occurred during the last few weeks. Certainly Laura's spirits had not been good lately, and she had been looking ill. But he had never noticed anything in Sir Ralph's manner to her that was at all out of the common. He was a sensible man, but not a quick nor observant one, and he was very matter-of-fact. To his mind a man paying attention to a woman meant to be constantly at her side. This certainly Sir Ralph had not been.

"It is just some folly of Anna's," he decided, but all the same he felt disturbed. Anna's evil words has not fallen on unheeding ears.

Presently the doctor rapped at the door, and entered the room, followed by Anna.

"I would like a word with you, Mr. Gifford," said Doctor Wallace, who was a little bright-faced, keen-eyed, middle-aged man. "Has Mrs. Gifford had any sudden shock lately, likely to bring on this attack?"

"Not that I know of," answered George, a little hoarsely.

Anna Lindsay said nothing. She was standing behind the doctor, and George did not care to look at her face.

"She is in an exceedingly low state of health," continued Doctor Wallace, "and the action of her heart is weak, and any sudden news or anxiety would inevitably cause faintness, and she must be guarded against all excitement. I will send her some medicine in a quarter of an hour, and will look in again during the evening. She must go to bed at once, and above everything, be kept perfectly quiet."

"Very well, doctor," said George Gifford, slowly. And then the little doctor bustled away, and after he was gone for a moment the cousins looked in each other's eyes. In Anna's were written, "I told you so," as plainly as if she had spoken the words; in George's, uneasiness and doubt. But neither spoke on the subject nearest their heart. George left the room and went into the breakfast-room, where Laura was now sitting in an easy-chair, supported by cushions. She was still extremely pale, and one of the maids was holding a bottle of salts near her face. She seemed to see George as he entered, and there was a strange, piteous look in her eyes, like one in extreme bodily or mental pain.

"Are you better, Laura?" said George; but his voice was changed from its usual frank affectionateness.

She opened her pallid lips to answer him, but no word came forth.

"The doctor says you must go to bed at once," continued George, "so cook and I will help you upstairs—come, Laura."

He raised her up by her arm as he spoke, and drew it through his own, and the cook supported her on the other side. All strength seemed suddenly to have gone from Laura's limbs. She tottered, she trembled, even with the aid of George's stalwart arm, and they had some difficulty in getting her upstairs. There George left her with the women; he went back to his office, he sat down to his desk, but still was thinking of Anna Lindsay's words.

And Laura lay still, with a great burning pain in her heart, and an overwhelming sense of wretchedness and misery. Ralph Woodland dying—dying, and she could not touch his hand! Anna Lindsay, with evil intent, added the words "they fear fatally," so Laura was as one without hope. She stared at the patterns of the paper on the walls, she heard the clock tick, even with her dulled ears; the voices of those around her sounded as in a dream. "Was his soul passing now?" she was thinking. "Would he come—would he come one moment before he went?"

The doctor sent her a composing draught, which mercifully clouded her brain, and so the miserable hours passed on at length in semi-unconsciousness. But he was uneasy about her condition, and when he came in the evening, again impressed on George the extreme necessity of quietness.

"If there is anything preying on her mind the cause should, if possible, be removed," he said.

And what could George answer? He knew of nothing preying on her mind except what Anna Lindsay had insinuated. But Laura did not rally, and he became extremely uneasy. At night she became so low that the doctor considered it his duty to sit up with her for some hours, and advised that a nurse should be sent.

"I have to go to Harewood early in the morning, or I should not leave even now, Mrs. Gifford," he said, as he rose to go. "But you will have heard of Sir Ralph Woodland's accident?"

He was bending over her as he said this, with her hand in his, and something in the start, in the sudden vibration of her form, gave a key to his acute mind as to the cause of Laura's illness.

"He is going on very well," he added; "he got a bad tumble, and a broken arm, but he'll pull through all right."

Laura gave a gasp, and then a strange hysterical laugh broke from her quivering lips. The relief was so sharp, so sudden, that her brain seemed to reel under the shock. The doctor went on speaking soothingly, to give her time to recover herself.

"He's a splendid constitution," he said, "hard as iron, and makes a capital patient. I was sent for as soon as the accident occurred on Tuesday morning, but Sir Ralph was as cool as if nothing had happened."

The liver of the cod fish produces oil that is a wonderful flesh builder. No fat or oil can compare with it in that respect. To get the best out of it, it must be emulsified and made like cream. CONSENT OF MEMBERS

First Necessity of Real and Lasting Union of Churches.

No Final Step to Be Taken Without Ample Opportunity to Consider the Whole Question in the Courts of the Various Churches and By the People Generally—The Five Sub-committees and Their Composition.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—"It was universally recognized in the joint committee that a question so important and far-reaching in its results was not one to be unduly hurried, that a union of the churches, to be real and lasting, must carry the consent of the entire membership and that no final step could be taken until ample opportunity had been given to consider the whole question in the courts of the various churches and by the people generally."

Such is the concluding paragraph of the official statement issued last evening concerning the proceedings of the joint church union committee, which on Wednesday and Thursday considered the question.

With the appointment of five sub-committees on doctrine, polity, administration, ministerial training and law, the question will rest for a time.

"It shall be understood," says the statement, "that the committees above named will not be engaged at present in preparing a basis of union, but will meet together for further conference, to exchange views and ascertain whether it be practicable to reach a common basis that might hereafter be submitted to the churches concerned. In the meantime, a statement giving the history of the movement up to the present time and the action thus far of the joint committee, will be prepared and printed and a copy sent to each minister of the negotiating bodies, so that the churches may be kept informed of every step that has been taken."

Denominational Recommendations.

When the joint committee reassembled yesterday morning, the action of the separate sections of the preceding evening was reported. The committee of the Presbyterian Church reported their action as follows: "The committee, in view of the statements made at the conference by the representatives of the Methodist and Congregational Churches, deem it desirable to proceed to the appointment of the sub-committees referred to in their resolution of last night, and recommend to the joint committee that there should be five sub-committees to deal respectively with the subjects of doctrine, polity, administration, ministerial training and law."

The report of the Methodist committee was as follows: "The union committee of the Methodist Church, having had joint consultation with the committees of the Presbyterian and Congregational Churches, and having met in separate session, would report to the joint committee of the three churches, as follows: "First, that we are of the opinion that while difficulties may present themselves to all of the churches there does not appear at present any insuperable barrier to the union of churches as suggested and promoted by our general conference; second, that, therefore, it is desirable under the direction of the joint committee that special committees be appointed on the various subjects that must be considered in this important movement."

An Executive Committee.

The report from the Congregational Committee was as follows: "The Congregational Committee beg to report that in view of the fact that the Congregational Union of Ontario and Quebec and that of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick have passed a resolution in favor of the desirability and practicability of organic union, we are prepared to go forward in the effort to find a suitable basis of union, and would recommend that the consideration of the principles of the basis of union should first be committed to a central committee."

It was decided to appoint a small committee, consisting of a minister and layman from each of the three churches, to retire at once and draw up a list of sub-committees, assigning to each the topics that should be discussed by it and determining the number of members of which it should be composed. After some discussion, it was resolved to appoint a central or executive committee, to communicate with the sub-committees, to assign any subjects that may not have been specially assigned and generally to act for this joint committee between its sessions, this executive committee to consist of the chairman of the three union committees of the negotiating churches, the three secretaries of this joint committee and the chairman of the sub-committees appointed.

The Sub-Committees.

The following report of the committee appointed to draw up a list of sub-committees was then presented and adopted:

1. That the number of sub-committees be five, and that the subjects alloted to them be as follows:

(a) Doctrine.

(b) Polity. Under this head are to be embraced the organization and Government of the church, conditions of church members and rights and duties of members; ordinances of the church, including means of grace and forms of worship and the relation of Sabbath schools and young people's societies to the church.

(c) The ministry. This topic is to embrace the training for the ministry; the pastoral office, including period of service, the rights and privileges of ministers and their relation to the doctrines of the church.

(d) Administration. This shall include all the missionary, educational, benevolent, publishing and other agencies of the church.

(e) Law. Under this head will be included titles to church property, general and local, and legislation.

2. That the three churches be represented on each of the sub-committees in the proportion of two Methodist, two Presbyterian and one Congregationalist.

3. That each of these sub-committees on doctrine, polity, the ministry and administration be composed of 40 members (16 Methodist, 16 Presbyterians and 8 Congregationalists) and that the sub-committees on law consist of 15 members (six Methodists, six Presbyterians and three Congregationalists).

Boyd Case Adjourned.

London, Dec. 23.—William Boyd and Hugh Stephenson, alleged confidence men, will in all probability have to remain in jail for another week at least. In the police court yesterday morning an effort was made to secure bail, but the magistrate declined to alter the order made last week without the consent of the Crown Attorney. The latter's agreement to the proposal was not forthcoming and Ed. Meredith, K.C., had to accept the inevitable. The case was adjourned for a week.

Killed in Mine Explosion.

Johnstown, Pa., Dec. 23.—Four men were instantly killed and many others were nearly suffocated yesterday as the result of an explosion in Reese, Hammond & Co.'s coal mine at Bolivar, Pa., just east of this city.

London Still Befogged.

London, Dec. 23.—There is as yet no sign of the lifting of the fog which envelops the kingdom. The absence of wind throughout Great Britain is almost unprecedented.

To Annex Tonga Islands.

Sydney, N.S.W., Dec. 23.—Two British warships have sailed for the Tonga Islands, it is reported, with the intention to annex them.

Turbine Steamer Launched.

Glasgow, Dec. 23.—The new Allan Line turbine steamer Virginian was launched here yesterday. She is a sister ship of the Victorian.

R. L. BORDEN'S OPINION.

Stands By Industries of Canada As Empire's Backbone.

London, Dec. 23.—(C.A.P.)—The Conservative leader, R. L. Borden, contributes the following statements to Louis Creswicke's just published Life of Joseph Chamberlain: "I believe in the development of legitimate Canadian industries and consider an industry in Canada worth as much to the Empire as one in Great Britain. Preferential trade will strengthen each part of the Empire."

Minto Succeeds Norman.

London, Dec. 23.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Minto has been appointed a vice-president of the Royal Colonial Institute, in place of the late Sir Henry Norman.

Apple Trade Falls.

London, Dec. 23.—(C. A. P.)—The abundant home crop has somewhat seriously affected Canada in the Christmas trade in apples, which falls considerably short of last year. The result has been, however, that the Canadian fruit is of finer quality than in previous years.

Badly Injured By Falls.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—John Kelly, painter, working on the Goulding Building, on Wellington street, was laying a plank over an open staircase yesterday, when he lost his balance and plunged through the opening, falling on the ground, 30 feet below. Several ribs were fractured, the broken ends of which pierced the pleural cavity. He was in a semi-conscious condition when taken to the Emergency Hospital, and was suffering severely from the shock. He has only a fighting chance for his life.

Joseph Scholey, 344 Berkeley street, fell through a trap door in a planing mill at 198 Ontario street. His spine was injured. He was taken home in the ambulance.

Found Crazed in Woods.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 23.—Wednesday a man was found wandering in the woods about three miles from here in a crazed condition, suffering from cold and hunger. His name is supposed to be Griggs, but nothing can be learned as to where he came from or who his relatives are. About a year ago he went into the woods 25 miles and built a log cabin and lived on what he could kill and dig from the ground. He has been taken to the hospital.

Tugs Still Missing.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 23.—Nothing has yet been heard from the tugs Reid and Boynton, sent out to search for Lemers and Pelletier of the Caribou Island light, 20 miles from Michipicoten Island. Considerable anxiety is felt here for their safety. The search is under the direction of W. H. Brunnell, an engineer from the Marine Department at Ottawa.

WHAT DO YOU CARE?
YOU'VE GOT YOUR HEALTH.

Great Natures Do Not Despair at Disappointment—They Look for Something Else to Do.

The broad-gauged man of to-day does not get blue just because things don't always come his way unless there is something the matter with him. If he "falls down" on one proposition he immediately starts to look up another. He always looks forward and keeps on hustling. A man with his health and faculties has plenty of opportunities and the man who gives up or even feels like it has either a small nature or some physical weakness.

Dyspepsia certainly puts the best of men out of condition for work of any kind. You cannot blame the dyspeptic for getting blue. The very nature of his disease is most depressing and calculated to deprive him of ambition, energy and hope. There is hope for him, however, certain and sure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land as the one cure that's safe and sure. Their unbounded popularity—resulting from the thousands and thousands of cures they have effected, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt their greatness as a cure. Wherein lies their greatness? In the very fact that they are Nature's own simple remedy. They do the exact work in exactly the same way that the digestive fluids of the stomach do because they are composed of exactly the same elements and possess the same properties. They relieve the weak and worn out stomach of its burden of digestion and permit it without let or hindrance to rest and grow sound and well. The stomach will get well quick enough in its own natural way if it is let alone. That is what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do. They not only let it alone themselves but make the food taken into the stomach do the same.

You can satisfy yourself of the truth of this statement by putting the food you would eat into a glass jar with sufficient water and one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The process of digestion will be taken up and carried out just as the gastric juice and other digestive fluids would do it. Their action is natural and they cause no disturbance in the digestive organs. In fact you forget you have a stomach when they begin to do their work, so mild and natural is the operation. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50c. a box.

In washing woollens and flannels, Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) will be found very satisfactory.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

Convicted As Accomplice.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Charles E. Higgins, who has been on trial in the sessions before Judge Morgan for three days, was found guilty by the jury of being an accomplice of "the mysterious Mr. Quigley." The jury evidently meant by the verdict that while "Quigley," an employe of the Thiel Detective Agency, working in the interests of the Molson's Bank, laid the trap for Higgins, that Higgins showed his willingness to continue in his career of crime by going into the counterfeiting game after his release from penitentiary.

Frank Slattery, Higgins' counsel, will take the matter before the Court of Appeal, claiming that the verdict is illegal in that the Crown has all along concealed the identity of Quigley and even hinted that such a person had never existed, at any rate has declined all requests to produce him as a witness.

Glasgow, Dec. 23.—The Norwegian steamboat Capt. Feyling believes to be the British schooner Ivanhoe, which sailed from Halifax, N.S., for Nassau, N.P., which has been posted as overdue. Capt. Feyling examined the wreckage and saw a corpse near it.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Port Hope Trent Valley League team has faded out of existence. Lack of interest in the game on the part of the players caused the disbanding of the team. The men would not turn out to practice and the management decided to quit the game.

The George-st. Guild hockey team are willing to meet the B.A.C. team on any date convenient to both teams.

Victoria Harbor plays an exhibition game in Lindsay to-night. One would think that Lindsay would be tired of being downed in exhibition games.

The Peterboroughs had another good practice last evening. The forward line is playing great hockey and will be in the pink of condition for next Wednesday's game with Queen's. Fitzpatrick is picking off some nice shots in goal.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Hockey Club last evening Will Cavanah was elected captain of the seniors, and R. Parker of the juniors. These are two good men, and under them the teams will undoubtedly be well organized.

CURLING.

Great enthusiasm prevails at the rink these days. The membership is large. Many new faces are seen on the ice, and some of them are showing wonderful aptness for so early in the season.

Christmas day will be an open day at the rink. No regular scheduled games. All members will be welcome and games will be started at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7.45 p.m. There will be accommodation for all members.

New Year's Day the annual match President vs. Vice-President will be played. Notice of the draw will be published later.

The schedule committee have arranged an inter-rink schedule for the season, which will open on the 3rd of January and continue until each rink has played 20 games. Cup and medals will be given to the first five rinks winning the greatest number of games. Special rules have been made which the executive are determined shall be carried out to the letter, as they are made with the object of giving every member an equal privilege of playing.

The following games were played last evening:—

Dr. Marshall	J. E. Wilcox
Wm. Smith	R. Matchett
C. Rutherford	T. Brightman
S. Clegg	C. N. Brown
skip 11	skip 10
M. Lyle	S. Sharpe
D. Cameron	J. Bogue

BASKETBALL.

A meeting of the basketball executive committee was held at the Y.M.C.A. Wednesday evening, when a representative senior team was chosen. The team consists of Wm. Fitzpatrick, centre; Norman Miller and Geo. Morgan, forwards; Wm. Cavanah and Wm. Richardson, backs. A schedule of outside games will be arranged and some very interesting matches will be played during the season.

The total for November is thus £[illegible]2,497,000, which is at the rate of £[illegible],964,000, or nearly £1,000,-[illegible]0,000 per annum.

Husband and Wife.

Cleveland, Dec. 23.—Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick and his wife, Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, were jointly indicted by the county grand jury yesterday on the charge of having forged and uttered a $5,000,000 note signed Andrew Carnegie. Dr. Chadwick is expected to arrive in New York from Paris on Wednesday. Sheriff Barry will meet the steamer on its arrival.

SICKENED BY GAS.

Great Discomfort Experienced at Home of Dr. Bradd.

Much discomfort was last night caused at the home of Dr. Bradd on Stewart street as the result of escaping gas. The exact origin of the trouble is difficult to discover, but its density during the night had the effect of causing illness among the occupants of the house. Miss Eva Bradd and her friend, Miss Ada McBain, who had spent the night there, were more severely effected by the gas, but it is a pleasure to state that they have now quite recovered from its results.

GOOD MAN RETIRING.

Regret is being frequently expressed these days that so many of the more experienced Aldermen have signified their intention to retire from the Council this year. Ald. Rush, Ald. Morrison, Ald. Edgcumbe, Ald. McWilliams, it is understood, will not seek re-election, and if this be the case, the town will certainly lose the services of good men, whose places it will be hard to fill.

Referring to the work of Alderman Rush during the past few years, a member of the Town Trust Commissioners today cited some interesting facts. A year or two ago the Council took up the question of acquiring the Hilliard farm to be retained as a municipal asset. Ald. Rush was the father of the scheme, and he carried it to a most successful issue. The farm contained 60 acres, and the consideration was $10,000. The property was then vested in the Town Trust Commissioners for their management. It is interesting to know that the rents received from tenants amount to $500 yearly, sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund. But that is not all. This has been an average year, and during the past summer the town was able to acquire from the property about $500 worth of sand and gravel for municipal purposes without interfering with the tenants or affecting the rents in any way. Reckoning the value of this latter consideration, and adding it to the surplus of rent, there is a sinking fund of something like $600 a year. So that in fact the property pays for itself, and the purchase of it will not be any tax whatever on the town.

Ald. Rush is deserving of public commendation and it is to be regretted that a gentleman of his business ability should retire from a position in which he could place it at the service of the town. He has of late been giving considerable attention to the extension of George street south, and it is largely due to his efforts that the town may now regard this work as a possibility.

THERE WAS A HITCH

And Consequently the Shovel Company Could Not Begin Work.

The Peterborough Shovel Company experienced what is hoped to prove but a temporary set-back this morning. According to information received a large force of men were ready to go to work on the lot, known as the cattle yards, which it was understood had been properly transferred from the Lock Company to the new concern on which to build a factory. The hitch developed when it became known that Mr. H. P. Kennedy held a lease of the property and promised to take proceedings if there was any trespass. The Town Trust Commissioners who have the management of the property were appealed to this morning and it was learned that they had not received the necessary authority from the town, a by-law not having been passed. The Mayor was next seen, but could do nothing, and the town solicitor and clerk were also interviewed with like result. All that had been placed on the books with regard to the transfer was a resolution and it seems that this was not sufficient, a by-law being necessary. There the matter stands and unless the mayor authorizes the Commissioners to take other action, pending the passing of a by-law, there will be nothing done in work looking to active construction until the matter is cleared up.

The directors of the Shovel Company were this morning promising to go to Lindsay with their factory. It is learned that the Kennedy lease has expired and that the proper legal course for the town to take in turning over the property is first to secure special legislation.

It is stated that about forty men were ready to go to work to-day for the Shovel Company.

LITTLE LOCAL LINERS

—The boxing and wrestling bouts in the Opera House to-night should draw a large crowd. Some clever work may be expected. There will also be songs and dances by local talent.

—A report of D. O'Connell, the retiring Grand Knight of the Knights of Columbus, entertaining the members to an enjoyable banquet last night, is held over until to-morrow.

Mr. W. Robinson, who for the past year has been employed in the C.G.E. machine department, was last night banquetted by his co-workers, prior to his leaving for Philadelphia, where he accepts a responsible position. The banquet was held at the Crown Hotel, and Mr. R. H. Jackson excelled himself in serving a sumptuous dinner. Mr. John Dobson was chairman. The health of the departing guest was honored with great spirit and he was assured that he has many friends here. The evening passed pleasantly with speeches, songs and stories, and "Auld Lang Syne" was sung at the close.

RUFFIANISM AT CHURCH BAZAAR

Rev. A. E. Langfeldt Received With Insolence and Abuse.

WHO CAUSED THE TROUBLE?

Disgraceful Conduct by a Few Men Who Patronized the Hotel—One Who Was There Writes.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir:—I am fully convinced that the occasion calls forth this letter which I ask you to publish.

Last evening the annual church tea and bazaar were held in the "True Blue Hall." A splendid tea was provided by the ladies and an excellent programme prepared. Several clergymen were present, among whom the Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, of Peterborough, who with great sacrifice drove the long distance to aid in the evening's entertainment. His address was inspiring, thoughtful and intensely spiritual. He tried to pitch a higher tone in political, social and spiritual life. And what did he receive for all his effort? Nothing but insolence and abuse.

I have been in bar-rooms and in the slums of cities but I have never before seen or heard such disgraceful conduct as was exhibited here last night. I surely thought the time had passed when clergymen were hooted and jeered. I thought the time had come when clergymen were treated, at least, as decent white men. It was not the case here. It is certainly a disgrace and casts a serious reflection upon the people of this community. I am not saying that all present were in sympathy with such "hoodlery" for they were not. For years it has been the custom of a few ruffians to go to the hotel nearby and become half, or more, intoxicated and then come (and) make a disturbance and disgrace all interested.

I emphatically declare that it was beneath the dignity of all decent people to be present at the meeting and see our clergy insulted and our neighborhood disgraced as it was then.

How long are we going to allow this thing to run? How long are we going to be insulted by the brutishness of these few? The time will soon come when we cannot get respectable people to patronize an entertainment even though given by the Church. It is our duty to stamp out this savagery even with vengeance.

Thanking you for space in your paper, I am sincerely yours,

"ONE WHO WAS THERE."

Buckhorn, Dec. 22, 1904

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The local option campaign began here last night in real earnest. The hall was well filled with a very enthusiastic audience. Rev. L. McKinnon took the chair and spoke briefly, but to the point, upon the question at issue. He said that the organized and legalized liquor traffic was the great source of intemperance, and, therefore, it was that they were advocating its abolition. "We are," he said, "saying whether or no it shall be abolished in our own township. I believe that local prohibition in the smaller localities will in the end lead to prohibition in the province and in the Dominion."

The choir then sang "Canada Shall Yet be Free," localizing the last stanza, "Smith town shall be free."

Rev. George R. Clare, a former pastor of Bridgenorth, was the first and chief speaker of the evening. He expressed his delight at being in that old stronghold of temperance, "Union Temperance Hall." He said he was always glad when this question was brought before the people. "The temperance question," said he, "has much to gain and the liquor traffic everything to lose by exposure. It will not bear inspection, because from its very heart it is black and full of evil."

Mr. Clare, who has a wide experience in local option, referred to two townships were it had been worked. In the township of Mariposa, Victoria county, the majority was very small at first. Attempts have since been made to repeal the by-law, with the result that every time the majority increases, until the last vote showed the largest vote ever polled on the question, and a majority of 253 in favor of local option. He referred to men that before were drunkards and paupers who now were sober and industrious. Homes that were squalid and wretched became comfortable and happy. "The temperance people are well satisfied. It works well. Drunken men are seldom seen in Mariposa, and I am certain it can be worked as well in Smith."

"We can," said the speaker, "legislate to make men sober. Who would warn a brother not to fall in a pit on the road and then make no effort to fill it up? And how can we consistently warn men not to become drunkards and not remove the 'bars' where drunkards are made."

The speaker then spoke of the awful curse of strong drink and the evils that it had wrought, how manhood in fathers was dishonored, homes blighted, souls damned since no drunkard could enter the kingdom of heaven. "Foxes and deer," he said, "have their runways, and so has the licensed saloon. Where do detectives look for criminals, or philanthrophists for subjects of charity? In the church? NO! He always frequents the bar-rooms, for that is where they are always found, and that is where they are made."

In conclusion the speaker said: "The continuance of the success of the liquor traffic depends upon the creating of appetite among the boys. One of the great drawbacks to the business was the fact that men died. Their places must be filled by the boys, and if you fail to vote for the by-law on January 2nd, you ought to be willing to give your boys to fill the gaps made in the drunkards' ranks. Ah, ye men that love your God, your country and your fellowmen, will ye not lend a hand to save your fellow brothers?"

CALLS FOR THE REPORT.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Mr. W. H. Moore in yesterday's Review essays to palm off on the public his interpretation or pretended interpretation of the engineer's report on the waterworks dam instead of allowing the report to be published so as to put its own interpretation upon it. The fact of going to the expense of getting extensive surveys made for the purpose of making the report shows that in the minds of the commissioners themselves there was a necessity for a new dam. It has been said by some eminent writer that where there is secrecy there is mystery, and where there is mystery there is guilt, or words to that effect. The Water Commissioners by their reticence would indicate that there is "a nigger in the fence." It is true the old dam was patched up during the summer, but the new patches are the only sound part of it, and it is currently reported that it will take $2,000 or more to complete the patches, and then only have a temporary dam. It is also stated that forty per cent of the water above the dam runs through it and not over it, and instead of having 12 feet head there is only 9 feet. That is evident to the casual observer when he can see the water percolating as through a sieve. The late cereal works fire showed the importance of the power. The water commissioners propose to duplicate the pipes leading from the power house. If done the power will be more diffused and thus tender still weaker. A new dam in the end would cost less and be modern and permanent besides by giving the full power it would enable the power house to duplicate its engines, which is very necessary and still have enough power left to supply our own electric lighting without having to pay exorbitant sums to outside companies. I merely mention these few facts to show the necessity of publishing the report when the proposition in all its bearings can be intelligently discussed.

Yours, &c.,

A New Horse

The windows of Mr. Ben. Shortly's store at present contains much that interests the passerby. The children particularly are greatly attracted by what Mr. Shortly calls a new colt, being a life-like model in papier-mache of a handsome equine. On the back of the horse is a negro figure with wonderfully well lubricated eyes, which give a decidedly life-like expression to the rider. The horse is a perfect model and is the cynosure of all eyes.

MONDAY WILL BE NOMINATION DAY

Hours at Which Proposals Will Be Received

IN TOWN COUNCIL CHAMBER

Ald. Best Likely to be Elected Mayor by Acclamation—Nominations for Aldermen and Public School Trustees.

Nominations will be held at the Town Council Chamber on Monday, Dec. 26th, for the position of mayor, water commissioner, aldermen and Public school trustees. Town Clerk Armstrong is the returning officer.

Nominations for mayor and water commissioners will be received from ten to eleven o'clock in the morning.

It looks as if Ald. Henry Best will be elected chief magistrate by acclamation, as no other name is being mentioned in connection with the office.

Mr. W. H Hill is also likely to be returned as water commissioner without opposition.

For members of the Town Council and the Board of Education proposals will be received by the returning officer from twelve to one o'clock. It is not likely there will be any lengthy speeches, but a public meeting will be held on Thursday night next in the opera house.

Ratepayers, who can possibly be present, should attend the nomination proceedings on Monday. As a number of excellent men, who have faithfully devoted years of service to the town's affairs, are retiring, it is highly important that other wide-awake and representative citizens should take their place.

THE QUALIFICATIONS.

There has been a change in the law regarding nominations for municipal offices. An amendment to the Municipal Act passed last session enacts as follows:—

"In cities, towns and incorporated villages every candidate for mayor, reeve, councillor, water commissioner, shall on the day of nomination or at any time before nine o'clock in the afternoon on the following day, or, when when such last named day is a holiday, then before 12 o'clock noon of the following day, file in the office of the municipality a statutory declaration in accordance with the form contained in section 311 of this Act, or to the like effect, that he possesses the necessary qualification for the office, and in default of his so doing, such candidate shall be deemed to have resigned, and his name shall be removed from the list of candidates and shall not be printed on the ballot paper."

THEY WILL STAND

Seven Board of Trade Nominees Will Run for Town Council.

The Board of Trade Municipal Committee requested certain representative citizens to stand for election. Secretary T. Q. Quartermaine interviewed these gentlemen on behalf of the Board, and the following have consented to allow their names to go on the ballot paper. Four are members of the present Council and there are three new men:—

FRANK ADAMS.
JOSEPH BATTEN.
WM. SCOTT.
ROBERT HICKS.
ROBERT H. LEARY.
WM. RUDKINS.
JAMES FINNIE.

The candidates endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council are

SOME CAUSES OF DESTRUCTION

Conditions to Which the Water Pipes Are Subject.

CORROSION BY ELECTRICITY.

Mr. Larmouth States That the Rails of the Local System Are Well Bonded, and That the Local Pipes Are Subject to Little Danger.

A member of the Board of Water Commissioners, was a few days ago, discussing the many things which tended to destructibility in connection with the waterworks, and referred particularly to electrolysis, or electrical corrosion, which means the decomposition of the pipes, due to chemical action of salts and liquids in the ground, induced by currents of electricity passing along and from the pipes. The iron of the pipes disappears at the points where the current leaves them.

Mr. E. P. Matthews discussing this question in the Water and Gas Review, says, "The currents of electricity, which eat up the pipes, come I am positive, in every instance, from the electric railways or street railways. Neither the telephone nor the telegraph currents are strong enough to do any damage, and the electric light companies do not waste energy and power by allowing their electricity to reach the ground, but return it to their dynamos by an insulated metallic circuit. The only places left for the vagrant currents to come from are the electric roads.

ESCAPING CURRENT

Nearly all electric roads use the single trolley system, and it is in connection with these that electrolysis is found. With this class of roads the electricity goes out from the positive pole of the dynamo along the overhead wire that you are familiar with, and is taken therefrom by the trolley, passes thence through the motor of the car, to the wheels, thence to the rails, and thence back to the negative pole of its dynamo; but in so doing it is like human sinners—it does not stay in the straight and narrow path, the rails, but seeks the worldly ways which are broad and pleasant, including the easy path afforded by the under-ground pipes. The electric railway companies are principally concerned about the outgoing feed, and no electricity escapes from that; but copper wire is expensive and instead of providing a copper return, an attempt has been made to use the rails. The latter, if they are not too hard have large conductivity, but electricity will not leap from one pole to another, and so they must be bonded or joined together, and this should be done with copper of equal conducting capacity to the rails. If the most approved devices were used in the construction of the roads, the bonds being as large as they should be, and everything were kept in exact electrical condition there would be but little leakage of electricity from the rails."

PRECAUTION TAKEN

Mr. Larmouth, Manager of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company states that there is no danger of the water or gas mains being affected by electrolysis in Peterborough, because of the fact that the pipes are all at a considerable distance from the rails, and great care was exercised in bonding the latter sufficiently to carry all return current. This has been observed throughout the entire community.

The above information is re-assuring, but it is interesting to note further, according to Mr. Matthews, the electrolytic action varies directly in proportion to the current—that is, two amperes will do twice as much damage as one ampere and so on. One ampere flowing continuously from an iron surface will eat away nearly 20 pounds of metal a year, and flowing continuously from a lead surface will eat away about 140 pounds in the same length of time. Of course the electricity does not flow continuously from the pipes; but it is continuous enough to do a vast amount of damage, and will eventually make sieves out of them. The pitch coating does not protect the pipes against electricity."

COMPANIES RESPONSIBLE

In concluding the paper, Mr. Matthews states: "As municipalities and private water companies cannot protect their pipes from electrolysis caused by escaping electricity from the street railways, it is reasonable to demand that the railroad companies be made to repair the damage and the law will compel them to do so, and hold them responsible for all damages so caused."

FIENDISH HUSBAND TRIES TO KILL PETERBORO' WOMAN

By Pouring Cupful of Carbolic Acid Down Her Throat, Then Ends His Own Life—The Woman Badly Disfigured by the Poisonous Liquid.

Special to The Review.

Rochester, N.Y., Dec. 24—Crazed by jealousy, William Crowley, a boarding house keeper, this morning attempted to kill his wife, formerly Miss Minnie Beatrice Hartley, of King street, Peterborough, Ont., by forcing a cup full of carbolic acid down her throat, after which he drank a quantity of the acid, dying at once.

Mrs. Crowley is in a critical condition. If she recovers she will be badly disfigured. Mrs. Crowley's mother, now Mrs. Wilder, came here from Peterborough three months ago.

Crowley, a few days ago threatened to kill his wife with a razor.

[illegible] filled purse and a suit of clothes. Mr. Clarke is very popular with all the frequenters of the cosy rooms, who joined in expressing the hope that he might live to enjoy many more happy returns of the glad holiday season.

—Will the person who is known to have taken a ladies' chatelaine bag, containing a sum of money, off the counter in the Fair this morning, return the same at once to Box 414, Peterborough, and save further trouble.

Mr. Alex. Clement made the presentation and the recipient acknowledged the honor in a suitable speech wishing the donors the compliments of the season.

—The Beaverton Express says:—"A meeting was held in the Hamilton house parlors, Tuesday evening to consider the advisability of forming a company for the establishment of a flax mill in this vicinity. A number of our representative men were present and it was decided to go on with the enterprise. The company as provisionally formed is to have a capital of $10,000 in shares of $10

—There is on exhibition in the window of Mr. H. S. Macdonald, a water color production by a lady amateur artist who is a talented Canadian. The painting is entitled "The land of the midnight sun" and was taken off the north coast of Norway from a spot which is the furthest inhabited point in the world. The picture was presented to Mr. John Green, who prizes it highly.

—The boss turkey of the present Christmas season may be seen hanging in front of Mr. W. E. Baker's store, and is attracting great attention. The size of the bird recalls the tales naturalists tell about the dodo and the great auk. The turkey was a young bird, as indicated by the absence of what is known as the "baseball" extension of the breast bone, and in its beautifully clean condition, ready for the pan, it tips the scale at 26 lbs. With full feathers and crop it would likely have weighed 28 pounds. The turkey is one of twelve sold to [illegible] by Mr. Owen Traynor, of [illegible], and will be shipped by [illegible] Brockville.—Lindsay [illegible]

I BELIEVE

Red Rose Tea

is the best tea in Canada, and that a great many people who drink it say it is the best tea they ever used.

I KNOW

It is however easy to make statements about what we believe. I think it is better to give definite, positive reasons why an article is believed to be the best, and if any article has real merit, it should be easy to give convincing reasons.

This is just what I propose to do. In the successive issues of this paper I will publish a number of facts and reasons why I believe Red Rose Tea is the best tea in Canada, and why you should use it.

The reasons will be interesting and educative about tea—well worth reading.

Before you read many, I think you will want to try the tea and if you buy a pound, the tea itself will do the rest.

SATURDAY, DEC. 24, 1904.

CHRISTMAS IN PETERBOROUGH.

Once more Christmas, the festival of Christ's nativity, is at hand marked by the customary ceremonies and the gladdened spirit of the holiday.

The Christmas feeling is in the air. It is in the home; it is in the heart; it is everywhere. The gospel of peace and good will is once more proclaimed and on Sunday—from every pulpit in the land, will the old, yet ever welcome, story of Christ's nativity, be told again and congregations and people will join in the hymns of praise and thanksgiving to an adorable Creator, for all his manifold blessings, while from organ and choir loft will come forth the sweetest of music and the brightest of carols. Yes, Christmas is the grandest, most glorious holiday of all the year. Its celebration symbolizes the greatest event in the world's history, and in all Christian lands is observed by appropriate religious rites.

Christmas is the merriest day of the whole season, yet characterized probably, by more of the true spirit of Christ and deep devotion than any of the other feast days of the church. The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man is recognized by all Christian nations, as the people listen to the wondrous story of old—peace on earth, good will from Heaven.

Joy, love and gratitude combine to fill the auspicious day hallowed by so many homecomings, so many family reunions, so many Christmas trees and so many gifts. It is the great season for the giving and receiving of presents, the expression of good wishes, the occasion for cordial greetings, the grasp of hand with hand, and the exchange of esteem and affection.

To the children it is a day never to be forgotten, for mythology has created that sweetest and prettiest illusion—Santa Claus—and he who seeks to undeceive the plastic minds of the young by the narration of cold, hard, facts, would ruthlessly and rudely dispel one of the cherished and most hallowed dreams of the world.

To the older person another Christmas marks the passing of the years, but the heart is light and gay, as around the family fireside, or gathered at the family table, many a household, the members of which may be separated by time and distance, assemble once more and exchange greetings and gifts, recalling the days of old, and recounting experiences that tend—although the reunion may be short—to heal all breaches of the past, to remove prejudice and misunderstanding and to strengthen in sentiment and disposition the weak or faint-hearted, to alleviate the trials and difficulties of daily life, which, for the moment, are forgotten, in the joy and happiness of the holiday.

But at this season it is well to remember that there are those with whom fate has not dealt kindly, those pinched by poverty, victims of ill-health, wasted energy or unbridled passion.

Let us out of our plenty seek to make them and their homes happy, to lessen their sorrows and lighten their cares. It was Christ Himself who said, "The poor ye have always with you," and "He who gives a cup of cold water in the name of a disciple, shall receive a disciple's reward." Let the true blitheness of the yule-tide season reign supreme; let it manifest itself on every side. May we do everything in our power, and, in proportion as we have been prospered, to brighten this day of all days, to make it significant and emblematic of all that is good, sweet and pure, endeavoring to have for a season at least that peace, harmony and fellowship which should prevail over all the earth.

In Peterborough the merchants have enjoyed a large trade, factories, with scarcely an exception, are busy and prices for all produce indicate that times are prosperous. Those societies which have for their object and there are many of them—the distribution of Christmas cheer, the gladdening of those homes darkened by sorrow, or the brightening of some life, whose pathway has been crossed by much shade and little sunshine—should receive generous support and hearty encouragement.

May the observation of Christmas Day, 1904, be more general than ever, may more of peace and good will prevail, may we cultivate more brightness and buoyancy. May the holiday be marked by more reunions, true happiness and seasonable gifts, more of the spirit of sacrifice and devotion, of affection and fellowship, of kindly benevolence, loving deed and gracious remembrance, than ever.

The Review wishes its many readers and friends a merry, merry, Christmas, and many returns of the glad holiday season.

HANDSOME CLOCK WAS HIS PRIZE

Mr. J. A. Storey, of Implement Fame, Makes a Record

TRIBUTE TO HIS ASSISTANTS.

The Prize Was The Second Offered by the International Harvesting Company, Valued at $25.

Mr. James A. Storey, Peterborough, agent of the International Harvester Company, Toronto, is a winner. A few days ago he was the recipient of a very handsome eight day clock. He was for a while at a loss to account for it, but it suddenly occured to him, that the company of which he is the representative offered a gold watch, as a first, a clock as a second, and an arm chair as a third prize to the agents who sold the three largest amounts of their implements in the Toronto district. Mr. Storey has been successful in landing second prize, and to-day he is receiving well merited congratulation. In a letter to the company in which he acknowledges receipt of the prize, Mr. Storey pays just tribute to Mr. L. W. Henderson, the salesman and district representative of the Company, who is a gentleman of wide experience in the business, and is in every way a most capable official for this position. To him Mr. Storey pays well deserved compliment, and he also commends Mr. M. H. Pierce, the efficient blockman. With such a staff the work has gone forward rapidly, and the past year stands as a record breaker.

The clock is a square one of marble with columns of the same material set in gold capitols. It is an eight day movement, and the very handsome prize is valued at $25.

In a letter to the International Harvesting Company, Messrs. Henderson and Pierce write as follows:—

Gentlemen,—We, the undersigned salesman and blockman on the Peterborough Block, have learned with satisfaction of the success of Mr. J. A. Storey, in winning the second prize offered by you to local agents for the season of 1904. We feel that in Mr. Storey we have a workman worthy of his hire, and will always with pleasure remember his untiring effort to land at the top of the ladder. We jointly express to you our our own thanks for the able assistance you have given us to land this beautiful prize on the Peterborough block, and wish you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. We are very truly yours

L. W. HENDERSON.
M. H. PIERCE.

Mr. Storey's friends will be pleased to learn of his success.

DO NOT WALK ON THIN ICE

If You Have Catarrh You are in Danger --It Breeds Dyspepsia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Aside from the extreme offensive and odious nature of the disease, catarrh is also very dangerous if left to run its course unchecked. The constant droppings into the throat, which are mostly swallowed during sleep, cause poisonous disorders of the throat, stomach and lungs, which rapidly develop into dyspepsia, laryngitis, bronchitis and consumption. When these diseases become established, especially the latter, the result is too well known to need pointing out.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a certain and absolute cure for catarrh in all forms and all stages. Catarrhal conditions are always of the same nature, whether they exist in the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder, and these tablets act on all alike. They cleanse renovate and purify the entire system of all catarrhal poisons and by thus going to the very root of the disease, effect thorough and permanent cure. This is the only way to treat catarrh, as local applications, such as sprays, ointments, inhalations, etc., afford only temporary relief and the malady takes hold again with increased vigor.

An Indianapolis physician says "I prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets on all occasions because I find they are most thorough and effective in their work. I have tried a great many prescriptions, my own and others, during 30 years of practice, but have never found anything quite so satisfactory in all respects as these tablets. I have known the most stubborn and virulent cases of catarrh to yield time after time to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and I do not hesitate to prescribe and recommend them."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle. It will pay you to give them a trial and get away from the suffering, humiliation and danger caused by catarrh.

SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

Pupils of Section No. 8, Douro, Hold Closing Exercises.

The pupils and teacher of S. S. No. 8, Douro, celebrated the close of the term by giving an entertainment on the afternoon of the 22nd inst. The programme, which consisted of readings, recitations, songs, drills, etc., was ably carried out by the pupils under the able management of their teacher, Miss Moher. A number of prizes were given to the most successful pupils in writing. Quite a number of the parents and others were present. The trustees are to be congratulated upon having secured the services of Miss Moher for another year.

My mother has the prettiest feet,
Of any lady on our street.
She's most particular about,
Her rubber shoes when she goes out,
And GRANBY RUBBERS-trim and neat,
Are just the ones for pretty feet.
There are two special features about GRANBY RUBBERS,
THEY LOOK WELL, AND THEY "WEAR LIKE IRON."

AN ENJOYABLE BANQUET.

The Retiring Grand Knight of the Knights of Columbus Entertains.

Mr. D. O'Connell, the retiring Grand Knight of the Peterborough Council of the Knights of Columbus, entertained the members to a banquet at Long's Palm Gardens on Thursday evening. There were about twenty present, and the excellent dinner was greatly enjoyed. Mr. L. M. Hayes, the Grand Knight elect, was chairman, and he proposed, in a felicitous speech, the health of Mr. O'Connell. That gentleman responded in an eloquent manner, reviewing the history of the Council since it was formed two years ago, when he was elected as the first Grand Knight.

Speeches were made by Rev. Father McColl, District Deputy; M. O'Brien, Dr. Coughlin, Dr. McNulty, Mr. H. LeBrun and Mr. James Lynch. All referred in terms of eulogy to the services rendered the Council by the retiring Grand Knight.

The usual toasts were honored and the banquet closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

GOOD CHRISTMAS TRADE.

Merchants Report Satisfactory Conditions —Some Say a Falling Off.

"We have not seen any panic yet," observed a well known George-st. merchant last evening when asked as to the condition of business. "Still, we are satisfied, taking everything into consideration," he continued.

Enquiry among the merchants goes to show that a good steady business has been experienced during the past week, but there are those who express the opinion that this year's Christmas trade does not measure up to that of twelve months ago. It is hardly fair to look for an explanation of this until the season has done its best. Undoubtedly the merchants will to-day be kept on the jump by the very large crowds who have flocked hither to do their Christmas shopping. As far as the heads of business houses are concerned, the charge cannot be preferred against them that they have not recognized the full import of the season. The display windows all evidence this fact, and are suggestive of magnificence, range and up-to-dateness. Nothing is lacking in a grand demonstration that makes for the delight of the Christmas time.

The very soft weather of yesterday was regarded by merchants in the light of a discouragement to trade, it being their opinion that business is brisk according as the weather has that characteristic. The sleighing in the centre of the town does not now amount to much, but in the country it is still fairly good. It appears that this time the weather prophet has made a sure guess, for some weeks ago he told a George-st. merchant that there would be a big thaw on the 23rd. This came sure enough, and with it developed that blue feeling which tells the man of business that there is nothing doing.

The Christmas fever however is on, and when it has taken hold the peculiarities of the weather are scarcely worthy of consideration. To-day there is a large influx in town, a good market and everything to encourage the development of the broad Christmas smile.

Stomach and Liver Troubles

Mr. Alex. M. Finn, Inkerman, N.B., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for derangements of the kidneys and liver and stomach troubles, and can testify that they did me a good deal of good. I can heartily recommend them to anyone suffering as I did."

SAMPLES OF CHOICE GRAIN.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—By instruction of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture another distribution will be made this season of samples of the most productive sorts of grain to Canadian farmers for the improvement of seed. The stock of distribution is of the very best and has been secured mainly from the excellent crops recently had at the branch Experimental Farm at Indian Head, in the North-west Territories. The distribution this spring will consist of samples of oats, spring wheat, barley, Indian corn and potatoes. The quantity of oats to be sent this year will be 4 lbs., and of wheat or barley 5 lbs., sufficient in each case to sow one-twentieth of an acre. The samples of Indian corn and potatoes will weigh 3 lbs. as heretofore. A quantity of each of the following varieties has been secured for this distribution:—

Oats.—Banner, Wide-Awake, Improved Ligowdo, Waverley, Goldfinder, Abundance and Thousand Dollar.

Wheat.—Preston, Red Fife, Percy, Stanley, Huron, Laurel and White Fife.

Barley—Six-rowed.—Mensury, Odessa, Mansfield, Claude and Royal. Two-rowed.—Sidney, Invincible, Standwell and Canadian Thorpe.

Potatoes.—Carman No. 1, Early White Prize, Canadian Beauty, Uncle Sam, American Wonder, Bovee, Early Andes and Late Puritan.

Every farmer may apply, but only one sample can be sent to each applicant, hence if an individual receives a sample of oats he cannot also receive one of wheat, barley or potatoes, and applications for more than one sample for one household cannot be entertained. These samples will be sent free of charge through the mail.

Applications should be addressed to the Director of Experimental Farms, Ottawa, and may be sent in any time before the 1st of March, after which the lists will be closed, so that all the samples asked for may be sent out in good time for sowing. Parties writing should mention the sort or variety they would prefer, with a second sort as an alternative, and should the available stock of both these varieties be exhausted, some other good sort will be sent instead. Those applying for Indian corn or potatoes will please bear in mind that the corn is not available for distribution until March or April, and that potatoes cannot be mailed from here until danger from frost in transit is over.

Director Experimental Farms.

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS--1904.

Address to the Electors.

WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Having received, at the hands of a duly constituted convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the West Riding of Peterborough, the nomination for election to the Legislative Assembly of the Province, I have the honor to submit for your consideration my views respecting some of the important questions which may be expected to influence the Electorate at an early date.

SECRECY OF THE BALLOT.

This is a matter of paramount interest to every elector. It has from time to time been a boast, whether rightly or wrongly, that certain Conservatives have supported the Government candidate, it being openly asserted that this boast was born of actual knowledge. The form of ballot now in use makes this possible, and leaves it open for unscrupulous politicians to coerce voters over whom they are supposed to have some power. It has always been, and still is the policy of the Conservative party to render the ballot absolutely secret.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.

To assert that the party now in power is as free from corrupt practices as the Opposition, is so idle and so opposed to the evidence that it requires no answer. The Government cannot escape the responsibility of the many atrocious acts which have come to light; the names of the recognised agents have appeared so often in connection with these transactions, and though the perpetrators have so flagrantly gone "unwhipped of Justice," no sane person will fail to condemn the authorities who have wilfully become accessories.

ADMINISTRATION.

The affairs of the Province have been so conducted that the expenditure has increased enormously out of proportion to the current revenue. Extravagance has been rampant, contracts for supplies for the public institutions have been awarded without competition; orders without number have been given to party friends, and for the purpose of securing the support of political opponents. The business of the Province has been under a management [illegible] Government, by virtue of its long lease of power, has become imbued with the idea that the people's money is to be spent for the pleasure and aggrandisement of the party in power. It is time that this state of things should be changed.

OPPOSITION POLICY.

It has been untruthfully stated that Mr Whitney and his followers are unable to, or have failed to pronounce a definite policy. No statement could be further from the truth. On the contrary, Mr. Whitney's policy is well defined with regard to the following among other matters:

1st. The Educational Department; the appointment of an advisory council from among the expert educationists of the Province.

2nd. The administration of the liquor law free from political influence.

3rd. The reservation of the timber, (except pine) for the settler.

4th. A secret ballot for the protection of the voter.

5th. Breaking up the School Book Monopoly.

6th. Localization of the mining offices.

7th. Public ownership of revenue-bearing franchises for the benefit of of the Province.

8th. Branch agricultural colleges.

9th. Better inspection of factories and labelling of prison made goods as prison made.

10th. To enact proper labor legislation for the prompt settlement of disputes.

11th. Encouragement of systems of sewerage in towns and villages.

The Liberal-Conservative party confidently appeal to the electorate at this time in the history of the Province, in the firm belief that the great heart of the people is with them in the determination to place in power men untainted by such debased associates as have brought the fair name of this Province into undeserved disrepute.

Gentlemen, if the principles which I have attempted to briefly outline commend themselves to your judgment I ask your support and influence in favor of myself as the Liberal-Conservative candidate. In my humble way, if elected, I will, to the extent of my skill and power, assist in giving effect to these principles.

I have the honor to be,
Yours respectfully,

T. E. BRADBUR

Indigestion

It isn't always the stomach's fault that food is not digested. Torpid liver brings Constipation. Bile gets in the stomach. The kidneys become affected. The whole process of digestion is weakened. No wonder you feel so uncomfortable after eating.

Fruit-a-tives
or Fruit Liver Tablets

make digestion complete by making the liver strong and active. They cause more bile to be excreted, thus effectively curing Constipation. They tone up the stomach, regulate the kidneys, build up the whole system. Made from pure fruit juices, their medicinal action is intensified by a secret process of combining them.

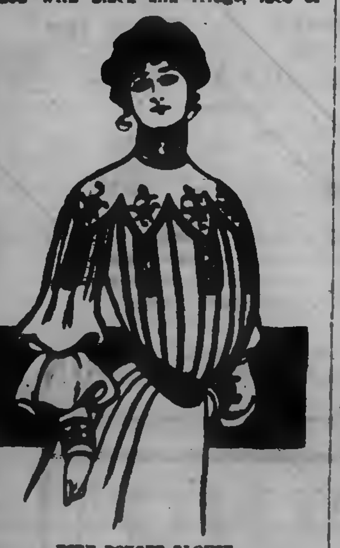
FREAKS OF FASHION.

Dresden Buttons and Mother of Pearl Still a Favorite Trimming.

Dresden buttons will be used on costumes of the Louis periods and are being imported both in large and small sizes.

The Japanese tendencies are still with us in the dress world and will play an important part in the coming winter fashions.

Little jackets of fine crimson cashmere made in semi-sack design and finished with black silk fringe, lace or passementerie are worn this fall as supplementary wraps. They accompany any style of toilet, being especially favored in the case of white dresses.



ECRU PONGEE BLOUSE.

Gold and mother of pearl trimmings, in spite of the fact that they have had a long day in the matter of popular favor, will be in evidence this winter for trimming on evening gowns.

Cut steel, black and beaded effects are mentioned among the new fashion items for costumes.

The illustration shows a blouse of ecru pongee made with an indented yoke and straps embroidered in festoons with pale blue silk and tiny flowers done in the same shade. The sleeves are plaited at the top and puffed into an embroidered cuff. The ceinture is of blue ribbon.

Married Men Live Longer.

Mortality among bachelors from the age of thirty to forty-five is 27 per cent, while among married men of the same age it is 18 per cent. For forty-one bachelors who attain the age of forty years there are seventy-eight married men who attain the same age. The difference is still more striking in persons of advanced age. At sixty years of age there remain but twenty-two bachelors for forty-eight married men, at seventy eleven bachelors for twenty-seven married men and at eighty three bachelors for nine married men.

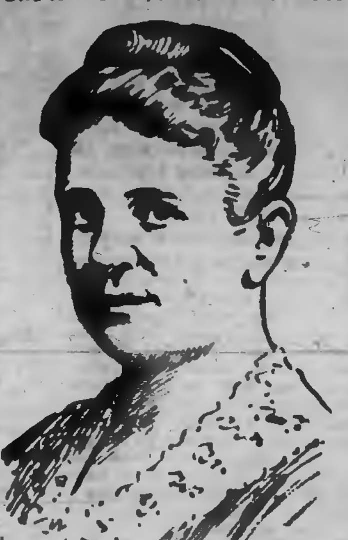
POTTERY BY A WOMAN.

Miss M. L. McLaughlin's Remarkable Success In Porcelain.

With the varied and beautiful art pottery that has developed and is being produced in different parts of this country both by potteries and by individuals the public is more or less familiar; but, while it is a matter for national pride and is known and fully acknowledged by artists at home and abroad, comparatively few are acquainted with the interesting fact that an exquisite porcelain is being made in the United States and that from first to last it is the result of a woman's genius.

This ware is a hard paste porcelain called Losanti and is the production of Miss M. Louise McLaughlin of Cincinnati. It is her second triumph in the field of ceramics, for it was she who in 1877 discovered the secret of underglaze decoration of the Limoges faience and a year lated produced and exhibited at the Paris exposition pieces of true faience with successful underglaze decoration. Her first piece of this ware is now in the Barbee collection of the Pennsylvania Museum of Fine Arts.



MISS M. LOUISE M'LAUGHLIN.

One of her finished pieces of this ware and style of decoration, which is called by the French "pate-sur-pate," technically termed "slip" decoration, was made about the year 1880 and is now in the Cincinnati Fine Art museum. It is well known to amateurs under the name of Ali Baba vase and is considered by expert authorities as destined to have a historic value as marking a stage in the development of American ceramics.

In view of this what shall be said of the second achievement of this ardent potter, who, not content with the first glory, plans and accomplishes a greater and far more difficult feat by producing an absolutely new porcelain, the formula for which is the result of her own unaided experiments continued through a number of years?

An authority on art pottery says: "Before definitely fixing the composition of this highly original ware Miss McLaughlin experimented with eighteen different bodies and some forty-five glazes. The recipe now employed gives its maker perfect satisfaction, her work for the future lying in the development of color effects and in the perfecting of details such as translucence, openwork employed in an orginal way, designs with or without inlays of glaze and inlays used in the body. Among these details the one most striking to the lay observer is the openwork, which appears in spots and never in the jacket form, as in the Sevres or in the round perforations of the 'eyelet' china. Miss McLaughlin's openwork effects, like everything to which she touches her hand, are original with her."

It is well for the world and for art that women of means and of leisure should be seized with the spirit of initiative which leads to creations of this character. Here is a woman who has discovered, created and produced. —Chicago Record-Herald.

The Selfish Girl.

No matter how attractive a girl may be in face and figure, if she is thoroughly selfish all prudent people will shun her. No careful person is likely to be charmed with the girl—

Who never thinks of any one but herself.

Who never makes an effort to oblige others and yet expects to be waited on hand and foot herself.

Who never will own that another girl is pretty, but who endeavors instead to find some defect in her to point out to others.

Who never does a stroke of housework, but selfishly indulges in gayety and amusement, while her mother slaves to keep affairs in order.

Who never takes any notice of children, but considers them "little nuisances," "plagues," who ought never to leave the nursery.

Who never confesses she is in the wrong, but sticks to her point through everything.

Who spends all her money on dress, sweets or some luxury for herself.

Who never bestows a kind word on those beneath her in position.

Who never, above all, could love or seriously consider the comfort of any other person but herself.—Gentlewoman.

Cooking a Tough Chicken.

A tough chicken is made into a delicious dish when cooked after this recipe: Cut up the fowl and remove the skin and the large bones. Brown the pieces in oil or drippings, taking care that they do not scorch. They should be delicately browned, and only cooked enough to preserve the juices. Make a sauce with a tablespoonful each of flour and butter, adding slowly a quart of white stock or broth. Season the sauce with salt, cayenne and enough kitchen bouquet to give it piquancy. A little sherry is sometimes liked. Cut up a little bacon into cubes, add a small onion sliced and put them into the casserole. Put in the chicken, pour the sauce over it and cook for two hours or more if the fowl is very tough in a very moderate oven. About half an hour before serving take off the lid and add half a can of button mushrooms. If these are not at hand substitute a few blanched oysters.

Dirty woodwork or any other part of the house that requires cleaning can best be cleaned by using

Character and Independence.

Every self respecting woman holds herself in proper esteem and believes that she is an independent entity, with rights and privileges which others are bound to recognize. She conducts herself as if she was a force and factor in life and occupies a prominent place in the world. This self respect is essential to the success of all. It is only when carried to the extent of making one unduly conceited that it should be frowned upon. We like to see a self respecting man or woman going through life as if every action was ordered by a clear, intelligent mind of some particular purpose. If the person did not show this power of self importance and assurance nobody else would show respect or esteem.—Household Ledger.

The Eyelashes.

Do not clip your eyelashes with the idea of improving them. By this treatment they are often made stubby and coarse. You should also be careful, if you wear glasses, that they do not press against the lashes and so stunt their growth.

After a severe, long illness a woman's hair often becomes dreadfully matted and for this reason is sometimes cut off. It is said that if bathed with alcohol the tangles can be easily cleaned out.

A bad figure and a poor carriage are often due to laziness. Walk with the shoulders back, the chest elevated and the hips back if a good carriage is desired.

Thin people who wish to gain flesh should eat a light lunch before retiring. An empty stomach feeds upon the flesh of the body.

"Where light and air cannot come the doctor must," is more true than most people suppose.

MEN OF 30 LOOK LIKE 60

We meet in daily life men and women who look twice their age through nervous diseases. The stomach, liver and kidneys, when affected in the least way call on the nerves for support and in consequence we see men and women with wrinkled faces, distracting look and nervous movements of the eyes, mouth and hands. To effect a cure and build up the nervous system use the great

South American Nervine Tonic

It restores the affected organs to their usual vigor and strength and makes the nerves steady and strong. It is an admirable remedy for Dyspepsia Indigestion, Neuralgia, Nervousness, and Sleeplessness.

THE MIRROR.

Some Things That Would Be Avoided by Studying It.

It should be remembered that there is an enormous difference in mirrors. The mirrors of our great-grandmothers charming though they may be, cannot be truthfully said to be satisfactory reflectors to the maiden of today.

The shape of a glass and its frame have a great deal to do with the beauty of the reflection of the face within, and a heart shaped glass is the most becoming of all. Again, some glasses have a green or yellow tinge which adds an unhealthy glow to the face.

But, on the other hand, a woman should not aim to have a glass which hides or glosses over her imperfections. She should have a pure mirror of large dimensions set full in a good light, and in this make a thorough examination of herself, for thus she will appear to a close observer.

Then let her take a small diminishing hand glass. In this she can judge as to how she will look to a casual passerby.

But, above all, let her have a long glass that can reflect her full figure. How many women are seen with sagging skirts and dropping under petticoats or unsightly strings hanging beneath who would have been spared much conscious or unconscious criticism had they possessed a mirror large enough to admit a full length view.

SLEEP FOR CHILDREN.

The Youngsters Should Retire and Rise With the Chickens.

There are many who will agree with a well known doctor who declares that half of the ailments of children arise from insufficient sleep. He recognises that the same difficulty exists in the case of adults, and in a recent conversation upon the subject said: "It is not only children, but adults, that are falling into nervous insanity from this cause. They live too fast, and it affects people of all ages. St. Vitus' dance, which is one of the most wearing of diseases, is the consequence of lack of sleep, although it is often wrongly ascribed to lack of proper nourishment. Children live in such a rush that they are worn out before they arrive at maturity."

"What would you do to remedy this state of things?"

"I would keep them in bed and give them plenty of sleep and tonics. I would make the youngsters go to bed with the chickens and get up with them. In addition I would see that they get a two hours' nap in the afternoon. Plenty of sleep is the panacea for most of the ills of childhood, particularly those of a nervous nature."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Never put fish in your refrigerator unless you wish to spoil the butter.

Yacht mops are great conveniences for dusting the bare floors so universally used now.

An undercover of rubber sheeting or marbleized oilcloth under the linen cover preserves the top of a washstand.

Brush alcohol in which a little collodion has been dissolved over the silverware to keep it from tarnishing. The thin invisible coating the solution leaves can readily be removed by dipping the article in hot water.

An excellent way to brighten smoky looking, slender necked glasses or caraffes is to fill them with water and a number of bits of paper. Shake hard, and when the contents are removed the glass will be found to glisten like new.

Rice Blancmange.

Boil half a pint of rice in as little water as possible, till all the grains lose their form and become a soft mass. Next put it into a sieve, drain and press out all the water. Then return it to the saucepan and mix it with a large half pint of rich milk and a quarter of a pound of powdered sugar. Boil it again till the whole is reduced to a pulp. Then remove from the fire and stir in while hot a wineglass of rose water. Dip molds into cold water, then fill them with the rice and set them on ice. When quite firm and cold turn out the blancmange and serve it in dishes with a sauce tureen of sweetened cream flavored with nutmeg, or it may be eaten with boiled custard or wine sauce. If preferred, the blancmange can be molded in breakfast cups. Always dip the molds in lukewarm water for a moment before turning out.

A Shabby Bedroom.

A good way to completely transform a bedroom when the furniture has become old and shabby is to give everything a coat of enamel paint. White is always pretty for a sleeping room, and a dainty room can be made by having all the furniture, woodwork, picture frames and boxes painted with white enamel. Get a pretty little rosebud spotted muslin and of it make bedspread, dresser covers, curtains and cushion covers. You will find that with very little trouble and small expense you will have a bower so dainty that any one might envy you.

For the Linen Closet.

For each shelf and drawer of the bed linen closet make pads to fit, consisting of two thicknesses of cotton batting covered with cheesecloth and sewed together around the edges. Before doing this spread thickly between the layers of batting lavender flowers with which a little orris powder has been scattered. A delightfully delicate odor of lavender and violets will permeate the contents of the closet, and the bedrooms will always be faintly suggestive of those flowers.—Ladies' Home Journal.

VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS

BRIGHT MERRY CHRISTMAS AND ITS MANY KIND FAVORS

What is Being Done to Make Day Happy One in Various Benevolent Institutions.

Children's Aid Society Will Distribute Many Baskets of Comforts ---Christmas Trees at the Shelter, at the House of Providence, at the Protestant Home and at "Hazelbrae"---Preparations Being Made at the Hospitals for Appropriate Celebration.

"At Christmas-tide the open hand
Scatters its bounty o'er sea and land,
And none are left to grieve alone
For love is heaven and claims its own."

—Margaret E. Sangster.

Peterborough's charitable institutions will see that the happiness of the Christmas time will not be conspicuous by its absence among those who come immediately beneath their care. Preparations have now been going on for some time, and though the effort is individual, there is but one object in view—the thorough enjoyment of the day of days, and realisation, to as great a degree as possible, of the significance of "Peace on earth, good-will toward men." The Hospitals, the Homes and other institutions have been decorating and otherwise making ready for a fitting celebration of the occasion, and there will be no heavy hearts within their walls.

THE CHILDREN'S AID.

Mr. George Cochrane, of the Children's Aid Society, will this afternoon distribute thirteen well filled baskets to families who, it is felt certain, would not otherwise have the constituents of a substantial Christmas meal. A consideration of the contents of the basket goes to show that there will be few creases in the anatomies of the families who will receive these favors. There are about eight pounds of good beef, a good quantity of sugar, tea, raisins, candies, current bread, white bread, and other appetising things in each of the baskets. The little folks will be remembered, and gifts such as delight childish hearts may find their way into the baskets. In some cases comfortable clothing is also distributed. The agent states that not a few of the families have a very low status so far as possession of wordly goods are concerned, but that the Society will do the best it can to scatter good cheer among "the least of these."

At the Children's Shelter on Monday evening the little folks will be delighted with a grand Christmas tree, which will contain the favors of many a kind heart. Besides the children at present there, others will be asked to attend, and the occasion bids fair to be one of genuine delight. The Shelter has been decorated for the event, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry, who are in charge, have done much to make the undertaking a success.

SALVATION ARMY.

"The hands that fall down" are also being upheld in this glad Christmas season by the Salvation Army. Enquiry at the barracks goes to show that for some time now this institution has been giving very material assistance—such as food, clothing and money—to eight or ten families in unfortunate circumstances. All of these, oddly enough, are people who have within a year or so came out from the Old Country, but who have not yet taken hold to such an extent as to be able to stand alone. To such as these the helping hand of the Army is willingly extended, irrespective of "order, breed or birth." No special Christmas demonstration will be made, but there will be rallies at the barracks during Sunday.

BARNARDO'S CHILDREN.

"Haselbrae" is a home-like place and there are now living there about fifty little people who were sent out from the Old Country, here to blossom into Canadian citizenship. Those in charge at the Peterborough branch of Dr. Barnardo's Home are making preparations to give the fifty children entrusted to their care an enjoyable Christmas. Those who are scattered here and there throughout Canada will not be forgotten, and the fact is that some 1,800 cards conveying Christmas greetings to these bright young people have been mailed from "Haselbrae" during the past few days. On Monday evening a Christmas tree will be held at the Home, and this will undoubtedly delight the young people, who will receive suitable Christmas gifts from Santa.

THE PROTESTANT HOME.

The residents at the Peterborough Protestant Home are not to be forgotten. Not a few of these have advanced quite far along the pathway of life, but every effort will be put forth to make their Christmas a very happy occasion. The Home has been prettily decorated and arrangements have been going forward looking to the holding of a Christmas tree, which will shed appropriate presents to the 25 people who are at present living there.

This evening a Christmas tree for the old folks will be held at eleven o'clock and a happy time is anticipated. Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmot will sing. On Sunday morning through the kindness of Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot cabs will be sent to the home so that those inmates desiring to attend church may do so.

HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE.

Evergreens in rich profusion adorn the interior of the House of Providence, and everything betokens the happy Christmas time. The twenty or more people who have their residence in that institution will again feel upon their heartstrings that throb of pleasure which is peculiar to this time of year. There will be a Christmas tree on Sunday evening, and it will contain many things appreciable among those in whose honor it has been erected. Christmas will be a joyous occasion in the Peterborough House of Providence.

ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL.

Ferns, flowers, maple leaves, pressed ferns and evergreens have been used in carrying out a very striking decorative effect in the wide halls of St. Joseph's Hospital, and here also the Christmas spirit reigns supreme. It will be a day on which to forget illness, and the plan is suggestive of that object. There will be a Christmas tree in every public ward, and the idea in view is to enthrone happiness wherever possible.

NICHOLLS HOSPITAL.

The interior of Nicholls Hospital evidences that there are those in charge who appreciate the full significance of Christmas. The corridors have been richly adorned in evergreens, bunting, flags and flowers, the wards have had their appearance rendered more attractive by pleasing adornment, and wherever it is possible and appropriate, the handiwork of the decorator is there seen. The effect produced is one altogether delightful. A Christmas tree has been raised in each of the public wards, and the favors suspended therefrom are such as are calculated to meet with the appreciation of the patients, and to assist them in developing a frame of mind that does the season no injustice. Christmas dinner is the special occasion, and the information received is very cheerful—that there is not now in the hospital one person incapable of eating a genuine square meal. On Sunday morning Christmas hymns will be sung. Every arrangement has been made looking to an enjoyable celebration of the occasion.

CHARITY BOARD.

So much for the work of the institutions, but there is a body which has under its supervision a small portion of the community dependent, one might say, upon its kindness. This is the Central Charity Board, and many a kind act has been performed by this organization for those who are in need.

Even the residents at the castle on the hill will be given a taste of Christmas. At least such preparations are being made by the kind hearted officers in charge, that, when carried out, will remind the incarcerated unfortunates that Christmas joys are not altogether denied them.

The King's Daughters of St. John's church are also doing a grand work at this time of year, and, if they were not inclined to "blush to find it fame," could account for happiness that has been brought to many a home through their kind efforts.

Many other benevolent organisations are active at this time of year, and there is every reason why the glad anthems of the Christmas season in Peterborough should re-echo with the most impressive tones of praise, thanksgiving and joy.

CHRISTMAS MARKET

Lots of Poultry and High Prices—Buyers and Sellers Out in Full Force.

The bright frosty weather and the fact that this was the last market before Christmas brought in a large number of farmers this morning, although the bad sleighing kept some at home. Many of the farmers have put on their wheels again.

There was an abundance of poultry, especially of geese, but the supply was not any greater than the demand and contrary to the expectations of many people the prices were if anything higher than at last Saturday's market. Turkeys sold freely at 16 and 17 cents a pound. Geese were higher selling at from $1.00 to $1.50. There were not many ducks, the price ranging from $1.20 to $1.40 per pair. Chickens brought from 60c to 90c per pair. What butter there was sold around 20c per lb, while fresh eggs brought 30c a dozen. There was a big supply of beef which sold at 5 and 6 cents per lb. Pork brought 7 and 8 cents and potatoes 70 and 75c per bag.

MR. SWITZER HONORED

Presented With Teacher's Bible by His Sunday School Class.

A few pleasant hours were spent in the George street Sunday school last night by the members of Mr. W. C. Switzer's ladies' Bible class, consisting of about 30 members. Mr. Switzer was presented with a handsome teacher's Bible, accompanied by an appreciative address. The address was as follows—

Dear Teacher,—We, the members of your Bible Class in the George street Methodist Sunday school, feel that we cannot let this opportunity pass without in some manner expressing our sincere confidence in your ability to expound to us from Sunday to Sunday the blessed truths contained in that greatest of all books, the Bible.

We feel that we have a teacher who has always taken a deep interest in his class, and endeavors not only to teach us the ways of truth and righteousness, but shows us by the example of a true Christian character that the ways of the just are indeed ways of pleasantness, and we assure you that it is our earnest desire that you may still feel it a pleasant duty to labor among us.

As a further expression of the high esteem in which you are held by us we ask you to accept this teacher's Bible, and our earnest prayer is that you may long be spared to use it as a "Lamp unto thy feet, and a light unto thy path." We wish you and Mrs. Switzer a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

The recipient made a grateful reply and spoke of the kindly and helpful relations that had always existed among them. Rev. Dr. Crothers also made a short address.

An enjoyable time was spent in social intercourse, and at the close refreshments were served.

HONORED THEIR TEACHER.

Miss Stewart's Sunday Class Presented Her With Manicure Set.

The members of Miss Stewart's Sunday school class gathered at the home of Miss Daisy Robson, Dublin-st., last night, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The time passed most pleasantly and games and other amusements were enjoyed during the evening.

An interesting feature in connection with this event was a presentation and address to Miss Stewart, the teacher of the class. The gift consisted of a handsome silver manicure set. The address was as follows:—

Dear Miss Stewart,—We, the members of your Sunday school class, feel that we cannot let this joyful occasion pass by without expressing in some tangible form, our appreciation of your kindness and services towards us.

In your capacity as teacher we have always found you kind, sympathetic and ready to do any service in your power for us, and we feel that we have derived considerable benefit and happiness from our contact with you.

We ask you, therefore, to accept this gift as a slight token of our esteem and affection towards you. We wish you a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Miss Stewart was completely taken by surprise, but thanked her class for the gift, and hoped that the pleasant relations between teacher and scholars might long continue.

THE CHRISTMAS MUSIC IN THE TOWN CHURCHES

Special Preparations Made to Celebrate the Day in Mass, Chant, Carol and Anthem

Over nineteen hundred years ago the great message of Peace was delivered to the world. It was delivered through Him who voiced the thought of one almighty power the source of all goodness, the fatherhood of God, and the universal brotherhood of Man. It is only once in every six or seven years that the celebration of Christmas falls on Sunday, and tomorrow in all the churches of Peterborough will the most notable event in the history of the world—the birth of Christ—be commemorated.

The sacred edifices have been appropriately and artistically decorated with evergreens, flowers and plants to lend beauty and impressiveness to the services, which will be of the most solemn, yet joyful, character.

The discourses will have special reference to the nativity of Him who came to redeem a lost and sinful world, to heal all sorrows, bind up all wounds, and shed gladness and light over all the earth. It is eminently proper that Christians should raise their voices with one accord in notes of praise and thanksgiving to an all wise Creator for the blessings and comforts He has bestowed upon the race.

The great festival of Christmas will be marked by the rendering in all the churches, of carols and chants, anthems and other impressive ceremonies in proclamation of that "peace on earth and good will to men" which signalized the birth of Christ.

The various church choirs have been practising diligently for weeks in the preparation of special music, and this year's services of praise promise to equal, if not surpass those of other years. Following is the music which has been handed in by the different choirleaders:

ST. ANDREW'S.

The following Christmas music music will be rendered by St. Andrew's Presbyterian church choir, under the direction of Mr. Mark M. Wilson:

Anthem "Let us go unto Bethlehem" Kempton

Evening

ST. LUKE'S.

On Christmas Day the following services will be held at St. Luke's:

The Holy Communion will be celebrated at 7 a.m., 8 a.m., and 11 a.m. The rector will preach at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services. E. Brundrette; "Spartan March," Bogetti, organ voluntary by Mr. J. L. Armstrong, organist. At the evening service Christmas carols will be sung.

ALL SAINTS'.

Special music has been prepared by the choir as follows;—Christmas carols Festal TeDeum (Reed); anthems, "Emmanuel," (Spinney), "Glory to God in the Highest" (Cooke); Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis (Woodward in D); Fourfold Amen (Neukomm). The Rector will preach at both services, in the evening concluding the series of sermons on "The Second Coming of Christ."

At Charlotte street Church the following Christmas music will be given:—

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

The special Christmas services at St. John's Church will be of a bright and festival character in harmony with the day. Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8.30 a.m. and 12.15 p.m. The Christmas music will include Christmas hymns, anthems and a carol, the choir being assisted by Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmot.

INSTALLATION OF NEW 'PHONES

Delay Caused by Inability to Get Cables.

CIRCUITS NOW BEING STRUNG

Company's Automatic Switchboard is Now Complete and Will Soon be Placed in Position—Exchange to Open Feb. 1st.

The completion of the installation of the new automatic telephone system has been considerably delayed, owing to the Cable Company being unable to deliver the cable at the time specified by them for its arrival on the ground.

The order calls for a large amount of work, as altogether about eight miles of lead covered cable will be used in the installation of the system in town. This cable is of the large conductor type and this, together with the all-copper pole lines, insures probably the most perfect talking circuit ever created in this country.

It will require about twenty days for the Cable Company's workmen to fulfil their contract of placing the cables. A large staff of men, who are thoroughly familiar with this work, will be employed.

Linemen are now engaged in stringing the copper circuits and this will be completed at about the same time as the cable work.

The Company's automatic switchboard for Peterborough is now completed and will be shipped here in a short time, when it will be placed in position for operation.

The work of installing the subscriber's instruments will commence soon, and it is expected that the exchange will be in operation about the first of February.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Cresolene tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

GOOD CHEER SOCIAL

Y. M. C. A. Boys Had Big Time Yesterday Afternoon—Fine Programme.

The Y.M.C.A. boys had a big time yesterday afternoon at the Good Cheer Social. The idea of the social was to cultivate the good cheer spirit of unselfishness among the boys, and each boy came armed with a gift of some kind. The result was quite a large collection of clothing, books, etc., which were to-day sent to the Children's Aid Society for distribution among boys of the town who would not otherwise have Christmas cheer. The programme of the Social was unique and in charge of Max Dobbin, convenor of that committee.

Readings were given by Mr. Holmes and Herb. Johnston and Prof. Millner played a selection. The reading of the "Spouter" the official organ of the department, by Mr. F. Turner provoked round after round of merriment.

At the conclusion of the programme every boys name was called out by Santa Claus Armstrong who handed each boy a bag containing apples, candy and "somethin' else."

HURLED TO DEATH.

Workmen Struck By Train On Railway Bridge.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—Two workmen took a short-cut to their work yesterday morning over the St. Henri Bridge of the G.T.R., over the Lachine Canal. With their coat collars turned up round their ears, they did not hear the approaching Cote St. Paul train, and Cleophas Montpellt was hurled to the ice below and was killed. His companion stepped aside in time to avoid the train. Montpellt leaves a family and sick wife at home, who could not be told of her husband's death for fear it would kill her.

Another fatality also took place at 259 City Hall avenue, when Miss H. Malcholsone set fire to her clothing while removing hot ashes and burned to death.

Foot Crushed; Arm Broken.

Toronto Junction, Dec. 24.—William Keaney, 21 years of age, and a fireman on the C.P.R., while preparing last evening for a run to Havelock in the city yards at the foot of John street, was knocked down by an engine. Both feet were very badly crushed and his right arm was broken.

Runaway Killed Him.

Peterboro, Dec. 24.—Michael Cadogan, who was severely injured in a runaway accident, recently, died in St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday. He was about 69 years of age, and was a resident of Ennismore all his life. He leaves a wife and four children.

His Life For His Cash Box.

Winnipeg, Dec. 24.—John Currie, an old resident of this city was cremated in his house, which was destroyed by fire a few minutes after midnight yesterday, and residents of adjoining buildings had a narrow escape from sharing his horrible fate. Evidently, he sacrificed his life in attempting to save a cash-box, which was found under his head. The victim was 77 years of age.

Fatal Rear-End Collision.

Paris, Dec. 24.—During a dense fog which completely disorganized traffic, the London-Boulogne express ran into the Lille express, outside the North station, smashing the last carriage of the Lille express. Six corpses have been recovered, and it is feared that more are under the engine. A score of wounded have been taken to hospitals. All the victims are French.

To Loosen the Cough

AND BRING ABOUT A THOROUGH CURE OF COLDS, USE

DR. CHASE'S SYRUP OF LINSEED AND TURPENTINE.

It is sometimes dangerous to stop a cough.

The aim should be to loosen the cough, relieve the tightness and pain in the chest and aid expectoration so that the obstructing and irritating mass may be passed out of the air passages.

This is exactly what is accomplished by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

It is not a mere cough mixture, and not intended to stop the cough, but rather to cure the cold.

If you have tickling in the throat, pains and tightness in the chest, sensations of irritation, of oppression, or suffocation this great family medicine will afford almost instant relief and thoroughly overcome the cold which gives rise to these symptoms.

Not only is Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine a positive cure for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, asthma and severe chest colds, but is also a preventive of all diseases of the lungs.

It has time and again proven its right to a place in every home, and is the standby in thousands of families.

Mrs. F. Dwyer, Chesterville, Ont., says:—"My little girl of three years had an attack of bronchial pneumonia. My husband and I thought she was going to leave this world, as her case resisted the doctor's treatment. I bought a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine from our popular druggist, W. G. Bolster. After the first two or three doses the child began to get better and we are thankful to say is all right today, after seven weeks' sickness."

SYDNEY CREW RESCUED.

Taken From Little Schooner While It Was Sinking.

New York, Dec. 24.—The fate of the little 79-ton Sydney, C. B., schooner Josie M. Calderwood, which sailed from Dalhousie early in November, was first learned yesterday, when the German steamer Barcelona came in with a story of a thrilling rescue at sea. The capatain and four men composing the crew of the Calderwood were taken from their little craft after a frightful experience, when they were ready to abandon hope. The schooner, herself waterlogged and hopeless, was fired and was ablaze from water-line to main truck when the Barcelona steamed after her. The Barcelona came upon the Calderwood when she was three days out from Baltimore on Nov. 27. Strong gales with hurricane squalls had prevailed for 48 hours, and the seas were running mountains high when the signal of distress set by the Calderwood crew was sighted. When the steamer was within hailing distance the crew of the Calderwood begged to be taken from their sinking vessel. A lifeboat manned by an officer and four seamen was sent away from the steamer after a terrible struggle in the turbulent sea and rescued the crew of the Calderwood. Before leaving the sinking vessel the torch was applied, and it is believed that the hulk remained above the surface but a few hours.

According to the story told by the rescued men, the Calderwood had fared badly in a long succession of heavy gales. Wrenched and twisted by the wind and waves, her seams had started early in the voyage, and for days the crew had been at the pumps without rest. On the 27th the pumps became choked, the water gained rapidly and the crew was about to take to the little boats when the Barcelona hove in sight.

INVENTED STORY THROUGH FEAR.

Duck Hunter Confesses That First Story of Shooting Was Wrong.

Toronto, Dec. 24.—After shooting his companion accidentally while duck shooting last October, a young man named Thibaudeau of West Kent, fearful of blame attaching to himself, declared that John Pigeon had died through the accidental discharge of a gun held in his own hands. The gun had fallen into the water. It was dragged for and when brought to the surface it exploded. It was a single-barrel gun. A Government detective went up and had a talk with Thibaudeau, who told the truth. He had shot a duck and laid his own double-barreled gun in the boat. Pigeon had the oars. In some way the gun went off. The boys were close friends. Nothing further will be done.

THE COLONIES UNFAIR.

Question of Contribution to Imperial Defence of First Importance.

London, Dec. 24.—(C.A.P.)—The Yorkshire Post says the question of contribution from the colonies is of the first importance. The fiscal question might without much loss be set aside until there has been an impartial and careful investigation into our industrial and material condition, but the country cannot long continue to bear the overwhelming proportion of the cost of Imperial defence, while young and wealthy colonies, with populations enormously better off than ours, do not contribute anything like their fair share.

480 Miles in Two Months.

Montreal, Que., Dec. 24.—The C.P.R. people state that they have succeeded in laying down 480 miles of track in less than two months. Some of this is new work, while a great deal is re-laid rails, the feat being brought about by the Government stipulating that the $7 duty should go into effect on all rails imported after Nov. 29, or which are not laid by February 28.

Sale Ratified By Court.

New York, Dec. 24.—Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court yesterday signed an order approving the sale on Dec. 22 in St. Regis Falls, N.Y., by Charles Girish, special master in chancery, of New York and Ottawa Railway Company to John Carstensen, who bid the property in for $1,000,000.

Resisted Vaccination.

Manderville, Ga., Dec. 24.—While resisting arrest for refusing to submit to compulsory vaccination, Bose Garrett yesterday shot and killed Special Officer Gideon Matthews. Garrett fled, but was overtaken by a posse and shot by a deputy marshal, who arrested him. He probably will die.

Toronto Has Three-Cornered Fight.

Toronto, Dec. 24.—Yesterday was nomination day and three candidates for the Mayoralty were put up, namely W. D. Macpherson, Geo. H. Gooderham and Thomas Urquhart. Eleven candidates were nominated for the Board of Control and seventeen for the Board of Education.

WHOLE JAP FLEET TO GO

To Meet the Russian Second Pacific Squadron.

All the Vessels About Port Arthur Prepared to Do Battle On Notice From Admiral Kamimura of Approach of Baltic Fleet—Trenches Evacuated By Japs Without a Fight—Russian Attack On Lamuting Repulsed With Loss.

London, Dec. 24.—Telegraphing from Tokio, the correspondent of The Daily Express, says he learns that in the event of Admiral Kamimura (who is reported to have gone south with a squadron of powerful cruisers), notifying it of the approach of the Russian second Pacific squadron, the whole Japanese fleet which has been operating at Port Arthur, will be ready to proceed south on a day's notice to give battle.

Japs Evacuate Trenches.

Mukden, Dec. 24.—Volunteers the night of Dec. 21 occupied Japanese trenches opposite their positions. Three trenches were evacuated by the Japanese with scarcely a fight. The victors were surprised to find a box lying in plain view which they opened carefully, fearing that it might contain explosives, but they found in it wine, biscuits and sweets and a letter in Russian, politely requesting its acceptance "from disturbing neighbors."

Repulsed the Russians.

General Oku's Headquarters, via Fusan, Thursday, Dec. 22.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The Russians along the front of General Oku's army during the night of Dec. 20th, made a determined attack on Lamuting, but were driven back with heavy loss. The Japanese sustained no casualties.

Dismounted Russian cavalry attacked the cavalry on the extreme left of the Japanese line on the night of December 20-21st, but were repulsed, with heavy loss.

Small detachments of Russians nightly attack the Japanese outposts, and patrols, but with no success.

TOOK A SPY'S RISK.

Russian Newspaperman Has Returned to Tell the Tale.

Moscow, Dec. 24.—V. E. Crazuesky, correspondent of The Rusaky Slava, has just arrived at San Francisco, after a long and hazardous trip through Japan, where he traveled as an American journalist, under the name of Percy Palmer. He undertook the journey to ascertain the real situation of affairs in the enemy's country, taking the risk of discovery and execution as a spy.

He had a complete American outfit and arranged to have letters forwarded from various cities in the United States. He has telegraphed to The Rusaky Slava from San Francisco that he visited Yokohama, Tokio, Sasebo, Osaka, Kioto, Shimonoseki, Nagasaki and Matsumasi, photographed the Russian prison camp, examined the hospitals, fortress and troops and met and entertained high Japanese. Crazuesky is bringing home a mass of material, which will make many interesting disclosures. He says his most dangerous moment was when he faced 3,000 Russian prisoners. If he had been recognized by one of them he would have received short shrift.

THE TOWN IN DANGER.

Scouts Killed and Situation in Island of Samar Is Serious.

Manila, Dec. 24.—The Pulajanes have ambushed and killed at Dolores, on the Island of Samar, a lieutenant and 37 enlisted men of the 38th company of native scouts. Two thousand Pulajanes, it is reported, threaten the town of Dolores, and the situation is said to be critical. Lieut. Abbott, in command of the scouts has requested that aid be sent him.

Suicide As a Joke.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 24.—Abraham Bramason was held for the grand jury yesterday on the charge of having attempted to commit suicide. Bramason is 22 years of age, and it is charged that he turned on the gas jet in his room for the purpose of killing himself. When arrested he said he had meant to play a joke on his relatives.

FRANCE THREATENS.

Situation in Morocco Extremely Grave, and Can Only Be Averted By Sultan's Satisfactory Explanations.

Paris, Dec. 24.—The Foreign Office considers the situation in Morocco to be extremely grave. The Sultan's dismissal of his French and other military advisers has been followed by a number of other acts showing his intention to interrupt the execution of the French policy.

Accordingly the French Minister at Tangier has been instructed to secure the immediate withdrawal from the Moroccan capital of the French Consul, the commander and all the members of the military mission and all French citizens, unless the Sultan vacates his previous offensive action, and offers a suitable explanation.

The French Minister has been instructed to communicate this to the Sultan at the same time he notifies the Consul, military men and citizens to prepare to depart.

The officials here say that no definite military or naval steps have yet been taken, as these await the Sultan's response to the Minister's demands, but a demonstration in force will follow if a suitable explanation and reparation are not promptly given.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

"Will—will—he live?" came falteringly from Laura's pale lips, while her dark eyes were fixed beseechingly on the doctor's face. They were the first words Laura had spoken since she had fainted, and the doctor thought that he now understood the case.

"Live!" he answered. "To be sure he'll live. He's a fine plucky fellow, and will soon be on his feet again."

He had heard the gossip, we may be sure, about the Giffords' visit to Harewood, and about Sir Ralph's calls at Red House. He had scarcely listened to it, but now he was interested.

"So this poor young woman has fallen in love, I suppose," he was thinking, as he stood a few moments longer by Laura's bedside. A change had come over her appearance; her dull eyes had brightened, a flush had risen to her white cheeks.

"Could you give me something to make me sleep?" presently said Laura, in a low voice; "my head feels so strange."

The doctor gave her another dose of the composing draught, and then left her for the night. George came out of the dining-room as he was crossing the hall to leave the house.

"How does she seem now?" he asked, anxiously.

"I think she is a little better, but she is feverish and low. No one must speak to her to-night, Mr. Gifford. I have given her a composing draught and I hope she will sleep."

"Very well," said George, and then the doctor shook hands with him and went away.

"Poor fellow," he thought, as he wended his way to his own home, where an affectionate, bright-faced little wife was anxiously waiting his arrival.

But Laura did not sleep for many hours. An ineffable sense of joy and relief flooded her whole being. She tossed from side to side; strange fancies came whirling into her brain, and an intense restlessness took possession of her. Not until the gray winter dawn did she sink into a heavy slumber, and when she awoke she was still weary and her limbs racked with pain.

During the next few days she had a sharp attack of nervous fever, and the doctor noted the eager, anxious look in her dark eyes whenever he entered the room.

"My patient at Harewood is going on very well," he would say in answer to the unspoken question, and once he ventured to speak of her to Sir Ralph Woodland.

"That pretty wife of Mr. George Gifford's is ill," he said.

"Ill?" repeated Sir Ralph, sharply.

"Yes, she fainted last Wednesday morning, and I was sent for, and has been very low and feverish ever since," answered the doctor.

After this Sir Ralph used to ask each day how Mrs. Gifford was going on. His own injuries, though severe, were doing well, but he was impatient and eager to be up again. But about a week after his accident he was startled one afternoon by his servant coming into his bedroom and telling him that a lady wished to see him.

The blood rushed to Sir Ralph's dark and somewhat haggard face at this announcement, and a wild hope swept through his breast.

"A lady?" he repeated. "What is she like?"

"I can not say, Sir Ralph," answered his servant. "She's got one of those thick black veils on and I could not see her face."

"Show her up," said Sir Ralph.

He never doubted it was Laura. He had thought of her so constantly since his accident, so longed to see her, that he believed that she had come to him, and his heart beat and throbbed, and his strong hands trembled. A moment or two later a rap came to his room door, and his servant entered.

"The lady, sir," he said, and then there followed him into the room a tall, slender woman's form, dressed in a long black cloak, while her face was thickly veiled.

But in an instant—with the intuition of love—Sir Ralph saw it was not Laura. Something in the walk, though his visitor was graceful, lacked a certain dignity which was one of Laura's characteristics. The servant discreetly left the room, closing the door behind him, but also discreetly lingered in the corridor outside. Then the lady sprang forward and rushed to Sir Ralph's bedside.

"Oh, Sir Ralph!" she cried, "this is terrible! What I have suffered since I heard of your dreadful accident!"

Sir Ralph started violently in bed, it was the voice of Patty May that sounded in his ears.

"And—why have you treated me so?" continued Patty, removing her veil with some caution, and showing her wealth of golden hair. "What have I done that you should return my letter? That—that you should seem to wish our—friendship to end?"

"Why are you here? This is no place for you," answered Sir Ralph, sternly, and he pulled the hand away from her which Patty had caught, and deliberately buried it in the bedclothes.

"Why," said Patty, with a little sob, "because I could not bear to think of you suffering alone, Sir Ralph Ralph! what have I done that you should turn away from me?"

Upon this Patty fell down on her knees by the bedside and if ever a man felt himself in a predicament, Sir Ralph certainly did at this moment.

"This is absurd," he said, trying to move himself farther from the side of the bed by which Patty knelt. But his broken arm in splints, and his bruises and bandages made this most difficult, almost impossible. There he lay at Patty's mercy, as it were, and he felt furious at the situation in which he found himself.

"What have I done?" repeated Patty, in a voice broken by sobs. She was really crying, for she had truly liked Sir Ralph, but her tears did not add to his amiability.

"You had better go at once, Miss May, you are only making us both ridiculous," he remarked, angrily.

"Ridiculous!" repeated the weeping Patty, "when you are so ill and I am so unhappy! Why are you so hard and cruel? Only tell me what I have done."

Sir Ralph was silent for a moment, and then he said, with great bitterness, "By the untruths you told me; you parted me from the woman I loved—the woman I wished to make my wife."

"If you mean that horrid Miss Ingram," said Patty, with an instantaneous change in her voice and manner, and lifting her head, "I told you nothing but the truth. A young man did come to see her, and she did go about with him."

"Yes, her family lawyer, whom she married."

"I heard she was married," answered Patty, in a relieved tone. "Well, there was no harm done, then I suppose she was engaged to him then?"

"No harm done!" repeated Sir Ralph, savagely. "Yes, there was harm done—worse than harm!" He forgot all about the absurdity of the situation—forgot a pretty girl was kneeling by his bedside, and that he could not get away. He only remembered that Patty had parted him from Laura—that she had brought infinite pain, sorrow and remorse to both their lives.

"It was worse than murder," he went on, passionately, his dark face flushing and his eyes glowing. "You murdered the reputation of an innocent girl, you wrote both the anonymous letters that you pretended to be so shocked at—you know you did, and you lied when you told me Miss Ingram had left her rooms with a young man. The whole thing was a hideous falsehood and invention, and now, when you know the truth, I wish, I request you to go away."

Patty rose to her feet pale with passion.

"You are a brute to speak to a woman so!" she said. "I wish you were dead; I could strike you dead!"

"You had much better go away," answered Sir Ralph, coolly. Then he rang a hand-bell which lay near him, and his servant appeared at the door of the room the next moment. "Jameson, show this lady out," he said.

Then Patty turned on him like a fury.

"If ever I can do you any harm," she said, vindictively, raising her hand as if she would strike him, "I will. I will live to make you pay for the insults you have heaped on my head this day."

"You have done me all the harm you can do," answered Sir Ralph. "Good-morning."

And without another word Patty went away.

CHAPTER XXIV.

After Patty May had quitted Sir Ralph's room with hasty and irregular footsteps, a sudden change of mood came over her, and she burst into loud and hysterical sobs.

"Oh, miss, be quiet, for goodness' sake," said Jameson, who was Sir Ralph's valet, in a half-frightened whisper; "all the people in the house will hear you, and the doctor's orders are that Sir Ralph has to be kept quite quiet."

"I don't care!" sobbed Patty. "He's treated me shamefully, most shamefully!"

Patty screamed this out at the top of her voice. She was going down the front staircase at the time, her yellow hair dishevelled, her eyes swollen and stained with tears, altogether a most distressful-looking woman, when to Jameson's consternation, he saw the butler in the very act of opening the front door of the house, and perceived that Mr. George Gifford from Suffold was standing outside.

"Oh, miss, please be quiet!" he prayed, hopelessly. But Patty took no notice of his entreaties. She strode recklessly on, scarcely glancing at the butler or the gentleman on the entrance steps, who were both naturally astonished at such an apparition in the house of a sick man. But Patty passed them without a word, followed by the trembling Jameson, who beckoned to the driver of a cab, who was seated on his box a few yards off. The man drove up at once, and Jameson hastily opened the carriage-door and handed the weeping Patty in.

"Where shall I say to, miss?" inquired Jameson.

To Cure Catarrh the Germs must be Killed.

Japanese Catarrh Cure does it.

Catarrh is a germ disease, like typhoid fever and smallpox. It is a minute germ that weakens the membranes lining the nostrils, starts up inflammation and ulceration, takes away taste and hearing, and in the advanced stages affects the lungs, kidneys and liver.

Japanese Catarrh Cure kills the germs, and cures. It is the only remedy that reaches every part of the affected surfaces. Hundreds of testimonials prove that Japanese Catarrh Cure is the never-failing cure for Catarrh.

Mr. Frank Downs, Port Hope, writes:—"I have been subject to Catarrh for over three years, and could get nothing to help me. A friend advised the use of Japanese Catarrh Cure. I purchased a package from my druggist and got relief after three applications. I followed up the treatment, and am thankful to say, was soon completely cured."

ROSS LOSING HIS GRIP

His Address At Barrie Was Distinctly Disappointing.

Less Than a Thousand People Heard Him, But He Was Given a Hearty Reception Considering the Number of Empty Chairs—Devoted Less Than Five Minutes to the Great Question of Temperance Legislation.

Barrie, Dec. 24.—Last night Premier Ross enunciated the new policy framed by the convention of the Liberals held in Toronto a few weeks ago. He offered no new material, and his address was somewhat disappointing, because it was expected that he would elaborate some of the essential features of the platform. The Premier glided over the issues raised and his reference to the important question of temperance legislation did not occupy more than five minutes of his time at the end, and this was after he had expressed a desire to close. At this time the audience called for him to continue, and when he said he would discuss the Government program in respect to the temperance question there were many cries of approval.

The opera house seats 1,000 people. The body of the building was not filled, the balcony was fairly well filled, mostly with ladies, and no more than a dozen boys occupied the gallery. The boxes were empty. A dozen prominent Liberals sat on the platform. Two flags and a picture of the Premier, with a motto, "Ontario's Honored Premier," were the only decorations. The reception given Mr. Ross on his appearance was hearty, considering the many empty chairs.

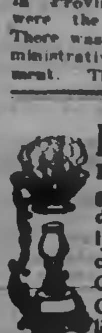
Tu Quoque Argument.

A good deal of the Premier's speech was a reiteration of the charges of corruption against the Conservatives. He was shocked at the failure of the Conservative Conference to resolute in favor of electoral purity, as the Liberal Convention had done. The Conservative policy enunciated at the conference was largely imitation. The conference itself was an imitation of the Liberal Convention. The Conservatives had declared against bonuses to railways, but Mr. Ross said this had been the policy of the Government for some years. They had, however, departed from this line, in so far as aid to railways projected into new settlements was concerned. The Government had taken up the question of free text books. This was one of the planks adopted by Mr. Whitney's followers. Mr. Whitney had appropriated the idea of a Minister of Mines from the Government, which had a director of mines already. Mr. Ross declared that the Government had been in favor of Government ownership from a time antedating the birth of the Conservative party. He said that the municipalities should own every public service required for the municipalities. On the subject of the development of Niagara Falls power, he claimed that the Government had done wisely in charging a rental. It was the policy of the Conservatives to make this power "free as air," but Mr. Ross said he required revenue. The Government had compelled the railways to contribute a greater share of taxation, but until the commission named during the last session had reported on a scheme this question would be left in abeyance.

More Filling Up.

"Fill up the hinterland and regain what had been lost in the representation of the Province in the Dominion Parliament," was the burden of a great portion of the speech. It was to the credit of Sir John A. Macdonald that he built the C.P.R. The Liberals were the small men then and decried the expenditure, but in Provincial affairs the Liberals were the men of the large ideas. There was no charge against the administrative record of the Government. The Department of Agriculture had done well in encouraging the farmers to greater efforts. He did not object to Mr. Whitney's policy on agriculture, but found fault with the past record of the Opposition.

The Premier spoke a little over two hours and went over much of the ground traversed at Napanee, necessitating a somewhat discursory explanation of the subjects that it was expected would form the main portion of his speech.



Don't wake baby

Did you know you could give medicine to your children while they were soundly sleeping? You certainly can. It is called Vapo-Cresolene. You put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp, and place near the bed. The children quietly breathe-in the vapor. There is nothing equal to it for whooping-cough, croup, colds, cough, sore throat, and all other troubles of the throat and chest. It is economical, pleasant, safe.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everbody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realise its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purposes.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says:—"I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefitted by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

—Mr. Lawrence, who has been, in the Standard Bank, Campbellford, some months left Tuesday for Ailsa Craig, where he will be connected with the bank there.

The Jury Disagreed.

New York, Dec. 24.—Fainting in her father's arms, Nan Patterson yesterday heard the announcement that the jurymen trying her for the murder of Caesar Young had disagreed. The jury stood six for acquittal and six for conviction, but no juryman was in favor of a first degree verdict.

Cheats the Hangman.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—John Kay, a 15-year-old boy, who was under sentence of death in New Westminster for murdering a native hunter to get his rifle and knife, is dead. News to that effect has been received by the Department of Justice. The boy was to have been hanged Jan. 13.

TO SMUGGLE IN CHINESE

Plan to Evade the Law Made Known to the Yankees.

Ship Them to Liverpool and Then Tranship Them to New York via Halifax, St. John Or Rouse's Point Similar Scheme Successful Years Ago. But Was Stopped By the Erection of Detention Houses.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 24.—Information has reached the immigration authorities of a scheme by which it is proposed to bring into this country Chinese who in the regular order of events, might be refused admission.

The proposition is to take the Chinese from China to Liverpool and then ticket them through to New York via Halifax or St. John and Rouse's Point. The particular desire of the promoters of the plan is to have the Chinese enter this country through Rouse's Point which is on the Canadian line near the border of New York and Vermont. At Rouse's Point no detention house of the immigration service is located, and the Chinese entering the country there would not be subject to the investigation of a regular board of immigration inspectors.

They would be detained, however, by United States marshals, but this proceeding would bring the cases, in due course, before United States commissioners. Each Chinaman would be provided with papers indicating that he was a resident of this country and had a right, therefore, to return to it. Such papers, the immigration officials assert, are not difficult to obtain.

The same scheme was worked successfully years ago along the Canadian border until broken up by the establishment of detention houses, where the applicants were held pending a rigid inquiry into the nature of the evidence they submitted, and this plan will be followed at Rouse's Point if the scheme is not abandoned.

Charged With Smuggling.

New York, Dec. 24.—Charged with having smuggled 943 pounds of tobacco into the United States from Canada, and indicted by the Federal grand jury in Michigan, B. P. Hyman yesterday surrendered himself to United States Commissioner Shields and was held in $1,000 bail for examination. The charge is made that Hyman took the tobacco, valued at $3,000, from a bonded warehouse in New York, shipped it to Canada and then smuggled it across into Wayne County, Michigan. Hyman denies the charge.

Confiscate U.S. Yacht.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 24.—The American yacht Mischief, which put into Mira Bay, C.B., some weeks ago under stress of weather, was seized yesterday by customs officials on the charge of smuggling. She had fifty cases on board when seized, and probably will be confiscated.

VICTIM MAY DIE.

Quarrel At Morrisburg Ends With Very Serious Stabbing.

Morrisburg, Dec. 24.—Alfred Jannack and Jas. Markell, of this town, got in an altercation Thursday which ended in Jannack stabbing Markell in the shoulder. The man with the knife was arrested, and given a hearing before W. B. Cook, J. P. The witnesses for the prosecution were Mrs. Jas. Markell, wife of the wounded man; George Markell, his brother, and Dr. Ford, who gave evidence as to the wound, which, he said, was a dangerous one, one and a half inches long and two or three inches deep. Markell was unable to appear, owing to his injury.

His wife and brother did not see the stabbing, and could only swear what the injured man had told them. They said Jannack had called at the home of Markell, whom he said had promised to go to the woods with him. Mrs. Markell stated that when the prisoner inquired at the house for Markell, and was told that he was in the wood-shed, he became wild in his manner. On reaching the wood-shed he asked Markell if he was going to the woods, and, the latter replying that he was not, Jannack became angry, and, as Markell raised up with an armful of wood, stabbed him in the back, upon which Markell knocked him down twice with a stick of wood.

The prisoner, who had no witnesses, pleaded guilty, but said that he had acted in self-defence, as Markell had called him a liar and knocked him down twice before he stabbed him.

Jannack, who is 18 years of age, was committed to Cornwall Jail to wait his trial, and was taken there by Chief Hopper. His weapon was a big-bladed jackknife. Markell's wound has become considerably inflamed, and he may die.

BATTLING NELSON'S $10,000.

Charges "Ted" Murphy, His Manager, With Theft.

San Francisco, Dec. 24.—"Battling" Nelson, the pugilist, applied Thursday night for a warrant for the arrest of "Ted" Murphy, who has been his manager, alleging that Murphy has left the city, taking with him $10,000 belonging to Nelson.

Stockton, Cal., Dec. 24.—"Ted" Murphy, who is accused by "Battling" Nelson of the larceny of $10,000, has been arrested here on a Santa Fe train. Two hundred and fifty dollars was found on Murphy by the police. Murphy was greatly surprised at his arrest. He said that he did not have Nelson's money, and that Nelson had bid him good-bye at the depot when he left San Francisco.

MONTREAL WANTS A LOT.

An Interesting Controversy With the Militia Department.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The Militia Department owns thirty-three acres in the centre of Montreal, known as Logan's farm. Part is occupied by stores and buildings; the rest is used by the city for park purposes. The department proposes erecting barracks on the site, but the city has asked to be indemnified and also to be presented with St. Helen's Island. The latter property is worth $1,500,000, whereas the value of the militia land used by the city is only $200,000.

Arranging Peace Conference.

Washington, Dec. 24.—That the further interchange of views preparatory to the formulating of a program for another peace conference at The Hague be affected through the International Bureau, under the control of the permanent administrative council of The Hague, is the suggestion offered by United States Secretary of State Hay in a second circular note to the powers.

A City Marshal Killed.

Cleveland, Miss., Dec. 24.—Albert Thomas, the City Marshal of Merigold, has been killed by Robert Bess, a young man highly connected. Seven men have been lodged in jail at Merigold for alleged connection with the crime. Mayor W. A. Sanders is included among the prisoners. Details of the tragedy are meagre.

17 Sentenced to 170 Days.

Kishineff, Dec. 24.—Sentences were pronounced yesterday upon the persons found guilty of participating in the anti-Jewish riots here in May, 1903. Seventeen of them were sentenced to 170 days' imprisonment, two to 80 days and 11 were acquitted.

Icelandic Church Burned.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 24.—The beautiful new Icelandic church on Nena street, erected last summer, and occupied only a month, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—Robert Milliguen has contributed a further sum of $1,000 to the Winnipeg General Hospital.

What Sulphur Does.

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, researches and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins, while experimenting with sulphur remedies, soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any rate persons who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers," will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers, a far safer, more

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The Furriers will play in Campbellford on Monday.

The executive of the City Hockey League will meet on Tuesday evening in the Y.M.C.A. Business of importance will come up.

The T.A.S. will practice this evening between 7 and 8.

The secretary of the O.H.A. has sent out the forms to junior clubs covering the declarations as to age. Clubs should return these promptly to the secretary, as games cannot be played until the O.H.A. age certificates are issued.

Among those from whom this year's Belleville junior O.H.A. team will be picked are Holton, Conly, Townsend, Allen, Brennan, Hamilton, Weller, Hinchinton, Campbell and Pepper. The last player ought to be pretty hot stuff.

The following junior teams are asked to be at the Brock street rink on Monday morning between 10 and 11 for a workout:—

Goal
Fitzpatrick ...... Thornton
Point
Moore ...... Gilmour
Cover
Parker ...... Saunders
Centre
Gross ...... Campbell
Rover.
McFarlane ...... Long
Right Wing
Smith ...... Quinn
Left Wing
Hall ...... Carmichael

The juniors will be carefully looked after this year, as it is felt that from them must come the material for the seniors.

The following senior teams will practise on Monday morning between [illegible] and 12:—Goal, Wasson; point, [illegible]gher; cover point, Cavanah; [illegible], Crowley; centre, Parnell; right [illegible], Morgan; left wing, Graham. [illegible] Ferguson; point, Winch; cover [illegible]; rover, Todd; centre, [illegible] Nicholls; left Queen's College and Peterborough will play an exhibition hockey match at the Brock street rink on Wednesday evening next.

The next games in the City League will be played on Thursday, Dec. 29, when the Furriers meet the Verniers and the Earl Grey's stack up against the T.A.S.

THE RING AND MAT.

Only a small crowd saw the wrestling and boxing bouts at the opera house last evening. However, those who were there saw a good entertainment, the boxing events being fast and well contested. The wrestling between Gauthier and A. Wood, of Toronto, was also an interesting feature.

Mr. W. McGee, of town, performed the duties of referee in a satisfactory manner.

The first event was a six-round boxing bout between Dickson and Harris, both of Toronto. Dickson had the advantage in weight, but Harris was faster and cleverer. He boxed very aggressively and was given the decision.

D. Belland and W. Galley came together in what was to have been an 8-round bout. Galley unfortunately, met with an accident which put an end to the contest. The pair had fought half the first round and were mixing it up fiercely when Galley fell, after a hard jolt in the ribs. His right arm doubled up beneath his body and was dislocated at the elbow. It was a very painful injury, and the unfortunate man suffered considerably before the arrival of Dr. King, who set the arm. The bout, of course went to Belland.

In the next event George Gauthier was to throw A. Wood, of Toronto, twice in 30 minutes. It was a good contest with Wood on the defensive all the way through. Gauthier, after 10 minutes' hard wrestling gained the first fall. The second fall was shorter, the Peterborough man gaining it in 6 minutes. Gauthier's win was very popular with the crowd.

The final event was a boxing bout at 122 pounds, between Pete Barrie, of Toronto, amateur welter weight champion of Canada, and W. Greene, of Birmingham, Eng., who made such a good showing at the recent tournament in Toronto. The bout was hotly contested while it lasted, and Greene, though lacking in weight, put up a game fight. It was to have gone 10 rounds, but a right swing on the jaw put the Englishman down and out in the third round.

Another of these athletic evenings will be given in a short time and should be better patronized than last night's entertainment, which deserved a bigger crowd.

Mr. M. H. Wilkes, manager of last evening's good boxing and wrestling bouts at the Opera House, will likely put on another of these athletic evenings in the course of a few weeks. He is anxious to arrange a benefit for W. Galley, who broke his arm in a contest with Belland last night.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

A CHRISTMAS GIFT.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—By order of the Synod and direction of the Bishop of the Diocese, the offerings in all Anglican churches on Christmas day are to be given to the clergy. Would it not be a graceful token of "good-will" for the other congregations in town to remember those who minister to their soul's weal in a similar manner.

Yours sincerely,
GOOD-WILL.

MR. LANGFELDT EXPLAINS.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—The letter in your last issue, signed, "One Who was There," will convey to the public a wrong idea. I admit that the behaviour of the audience, at least a part of it, was ungentlemanly, not because they wished to insult me, but because they did not know any better. One must make allowance for young people, who, living in the back country and not seeing much of the refinment of educated people, behave themselves roughly. But as to the statement "that I was received with insolence and abuse," it is entirely misleading. I received a good hearing; there was absolute silence; I met with a hearty reception. Of course the manners of some of the people were bad, but that is all, and I make allowance for it. As chairman of the meeting I was able to control the audience, it is not likely that I would allow a few hoodlums to insult me or to break up an entertainment.

I regret very much that any publicity has been given to this incident. I have no doubt that the writer of the letter meant well, but, unfortunately, it magnifies what I consider merely bad manners.

Yours truly,
E. A. LANGFELDT.

DEFENCE OF MR. HOSSACK

Peterborough Man Replies to Examiner's Attack on Worthy Clergyman.

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—I hope the Review will not think I am taking a liberty when I ask them to publish this article, as I felt very sorry when I read the mistaken facts in the Examiner the other evening. I am sure if the staff of the said paper knew Mr. Hossack well, they could not help but admire his many fine characteristics. I do not wish to enter into any political discussion, as my political education has been very much neglected, but my knowledge of Mr. Hossack is not unreliable. I was a member of his church in Parkdale some years ago, and later on in Deer Park, of which congregation I am still a member.

I have always been taught to uphold right, even when "Truth is on the scaffold, and wrong upon the throne." Mr. H—— did practice law for a time previous to taking a theological course. This is a world of change, and if Mr. Hossack's ideas changed why should men of lesser ability try to purloin his good name. His deeds have proved that he has done much good in the most holy of man's vocations. I know of many cases of persons in Toronto, who for various reasons, some through reverse circumstances, others from strongly inherited tendencies, would not enter a religious edifice. Mr. Hossack acquainted himself with the class, and proved to many that life was worth living, and by being true to themselves they could not be false to anyone. He daily sought out people of doubtful character and many a one has gone to his church, feeling skeptical, morbid, or anything but contented with their portion; he has besought them to go on, take courage, "the end of life is better than the beginning, and the portals of Heaven are worth striving to enter into at the last great day. Mr. Hossack retired from the ministry in Parkdale on account of ill health. He had throat trouble and his physician recommended a change to the higher part of the city, away from the lake; hence his removal to Deer Park. While living quietly there, a firm of lawyers, the members of which were active workers in the church, sought his advice on some legal questions. Mr. Hossack's name was then published as being back to law. Some poor little souls in miserable little bodies, grabbed this fact and published it to belittle Mr Hossack, but those who knew the facts of the case smiled. Mr. Hossack did not bother enlightening these poor moths, who tried to portray him wrongly. During his stay in Deer Park the Presbyterian pulpit became vacant. The members of the church hesitated before asking Mr. Hossack to fill the vacancy. Mr. Hossack, in the meantime, attended service in the church and was pleased with the Dear Park people of all denominations, while they all liked him; finally the board of managers summoned up courage to ask him to become their pastor. (No salary was mentioned, and the stipend was not large for a man of superior ability; only a little over $2,000 per annum. However, he filled the church; persons who never thought of attending church came and listened to him talk to the people, and went away feeling, "it was good for me to be here." I have often sat in our pew and contrasted the difference in the large crowds who thronged to hear him in Parkdale and the small congregation gathered in the picturesque little kirk in Deer Park. I could not help thinking, "Surely this man has found a pearl of great price." Some time ago Mr. Hossack received a call to one of the largest churches in St. Louis, offering him $4,000 per annum and a beautiful manse free. Mr. Hossack left himself in the hands of the Presbytery to decide whether he would go or not. They concluded that his services were needed on Canadian soil, and he remained, and is still pastor of the Deer Park church.

In whatever sphere Mr. Hossack should see the Divine hand directing him, his life and deeds will be for the uplifting of humanity, the enlightening of the ignorant, and preparing all for the last great change. His presence in any community would make the people feel, "It is not all of life to live, not all of death to die," that away beyond the dim unknown standeth the Almighty, keeping watch over His own.

Yours, etc.,
PETERBORONIAN.

The pictures are distinctly striking—a little girl playing with her doll. The child is Margaret Connal, the winsome daughter of Mr. James H. Connal. The pictures were enlarged on ground glass from cabinet size photos, and to add vividness to the protraits, an electric light is placed at the back of each transparency. Mr. Roy is being warmly complimented upon his strictly up to date photographic productions.

MAN AND THE HORSE.

Animal Conquest Marked One of the Epochs in Civilization.

The conquest of the horse by man and its final utilization for all purposes which are discharged by steam and electricity today marked one of the great turning points in the history of civilization. In the great earth and sand preglacial deposits of Europe the true wild horse is as widespread, though not as varied, as in America. It is not at this stage associated with the remains of man, because no preglacial man except the pithecanthropus or trinil man of Java has been found. In the interglacial or postglacial period the remains of man and the horse are first found together. The first association occurs in the middle of the paleolithic or rough haplement period. The discovery of all the possible uses of the horse came very gradually, however, for there is abundant proof that man first hunted and ate, then drove and finally rode the animal.

The prevailing drawings of the paleolithic horse represent him as hog maned, with no forelock to conceal the low bred Roman nose. A second type in the Mouthe cave, a bearded horse with long, bristling mane, long ears and convex forehead, is regarded by M. Riviere as another species. But it is not clear to my mind that these drawings represent more than the summer and winter coats of the same animal. Besides these Roman nosed types, to which Ewart traces the modern cart horse, there are others with small heads and flat noses, which Ewart associates with the Celtic pony and possibly with the origin of the thoroughbred. Other cave drawings, reproduced by M. Capitan, leave little doubt that the ass was known in Europe. It is also certain from abundant evidence in the caves of France that there was a larger horse toward the south perhaps, while the smaller breeds may have frequented the colder northern regions.—Century.

Christmas 1904

Raising Christmas Funds

I WAS going home to spend Christmas. As I had no children—indeed, was not married—holidays, especially Christmas, bored me. I wished the season were over and the new year begun. The train pulled out of the station, and I took up a newspaper.

Suddenly my paper was crushed back on my face, a pair of small arms were thrown around my neck and the round face of a boy about four years old was thrust within an inch of my nose. By what right he assumed to treat a perfect stranger in this demonstrative fashion I could not conceive.

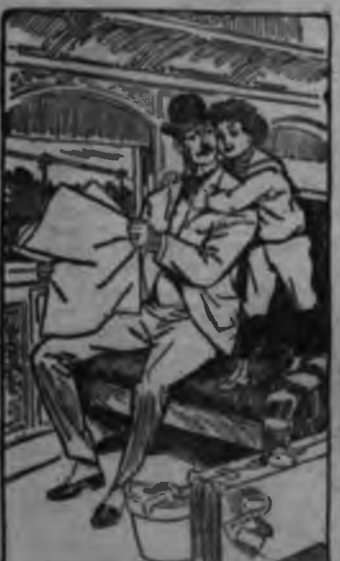
"You little scamp, what do you mean?"

"I'm goin' home to spend Christmas."

At that moment the conductor came along for tickets and told me that the boy had been put in his charge. He was to meet his father at St. Louis.

The little imp unclasped his hands as suddenly as he had clasped them and made a dash for the door. I dashed after him, reviling the parent who would put a child his age in the care of a conductor, and dragged him back. This I did a dozen times during the day. When not trying to get on the platform he was trying to sell an old knife (no blades) to the passengers to raise Christmas money. At first they put him away, some of them impatiently, others gently, but he was so persistent and got up such remarkable financial schemes that at last every one in the car was laughing at him.

There was something in this irresponsible naturalness that won my heart. At nightfall, since there was no one to pay any attention to him, I called the porter, fed him and told him to make up the child's berth, which happened to be directly opposite my own. Then the boy got sleepy, and I told him the sandman was coming around to weight his lids, and if he didn't keep awake till he was undressed he wouldn't see the old fellow. I wished to keep him awake till the porter could undress him. Nevertheless he fell asleep in my arms, and as the porter was busy I concluded to undress him myself.



A PAIR OF SMALL ARMS WERE THROWN AROUND MY NECK.

"Wake up!" I said, shaking him.

He opened his eyes. "Has the sandman been around?" was his first question.

"I should think so; long ago. It's bed time."

It was a hard hunt I had all over his little body for buttons, but I found them. His shoe laces were in a knot, but I untied them and put him to bed in his undergarments. Giving me a hug like a bear cub he fell back on the pillow and was asleep before I could cover him up.

Before turning in myself I took a look at him to assure myself he was all right. Drawing the curtains, the [illegible] fell on his face. What a picture of innocence! Where was he going? He didn't know. Who took care of him? He didn't care. Perhaps the parent who had sent for him was at that moment anxious about him and regretted letting him come in such a way. I had a dread that he would wake up in the middle of the night with colic. But if his parent worried, if I worried, there was [illegible] who was not in the least troubled about him. It was himself.

In the night I dreamed that I was being garroted. I awoke and found myself tightly clasped around the neck. I put my hand up to discover what was choking me and felt a tiny arm with a hand on it no bigger than my watch and five soft little fingers. A stream of lamplight came in where the curtains hung loose. It revealed the boy sound asleep. How he got there I didn't know, and I doubt if he knew himself.

The next morning he resumed his negotiations with the passengers to raise Christmas money, but the most impudent thing he did was to ask me if he had not lent me 3 cents the night before. This to me, who had spent money for him and had taken such care of him!

I felt a touch on my shoulder and turned my head. A gentleman in the seat behind me, with a benevolent face and a twinkle in his eye, was looking at me.

"One can admire even impudence," he said, "if it amounts to genius. This boy is certainly a genius of effrontery. He ought to be encouraged. What do you say to a collection for him for Christmas?"

By way of reply I dropped a silver dollar in my hat and gave it to the speaker, who duplicated the coin and sent the hat through the car, the passengers passing it from hand to hand. When it came back it contained $8.50. I let the child handle it, then took care of it for him till his arrival at his destination. When we stopped at a station on the outskirts of St. Louis a man boarded the car and, coming up to the boy, took him in his arms and kissed him. But the one who can become familiar on short acquaintance is not likely to permit familiarities in others. The child planted his fist right between the eyes of his captor.

The man explained to us that he was the boy's father and his child had been away long enough to forget him.

I took the father's address and during the day (Christmas) went to the house. I found very nice people in impoverished circumstances. Their boy had taken home with him the wherewithal to buy a Christmas dinner.

QUEER CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Small Particles of Radium Presented by London Women.

There is this to be said of the latest fad of London society women—the giving of small particles of radium as Christmas presents—that none of the recipients can complain of having received a cheap gift. To give radium in this way costs from $10 to $50, the outfit necessary therefor consisting of a "spinthariscope" and a speck of the new metal hardly big enough to be seen with the naked eye.

Sir William Crookes, the English scientist, invented the spinthariscope, which is a kind of microscope through which small quantities of the precious stuff can be examined to better advantage. The spinthariscope sold by a London chemist who has the radium monopoly is about the size of a finger ring case and has an opening for the eye something like that in a child's kaleidoscope. By taking the apparatus into a darkened room and squinting through the eyehole one can see flashes of constantly varying light shooting in all directions, like miniature fireworks.

The idea of making Christmas gifts of radium has proved uncommonly infectious, and the run on the chemist's stock necessitated hasty communication with the firms in Bavaria and Austria who supply most of the radium that reaches England.—Washington Post.

Christmas Hints.

A simple and tasteful homemade picture frame may be constructed from common gas pipe cut into suitable length and tied together at the corners with shoe strings. A neat paperweight may be made by wrapping half a brick in paper such as butchers use and tying it with red tape. A dainty towel rack may be fabricated from a baseball bat and two cigar boxes. Shellac the boxes and sandpaper the bat. An ordinary cobblestone hand painted with lampblack and household ammonia makes an excellent door weight. A novel pipe rack for fastidious smokers may be made from a small strip of one inch plank. Bore holes in it for the stems of the pipes to pass through. A dried muskmelon shell makes an attractive tobacco jar.

THE CHRIST CHILD'S CRADLE

Part of It Preserved as a Holy Relic in Rome.

La sainte creche—the holy cradle—or the portion of it which is preserved, is in fact only a part of the grating that was placed across the stable trough in Bethlehem to hold the fodder for the animals that fed there. It became the cradle of the infant Saviour when he was laid within the rough trough by his mother and came in time to be regarded as one of the most sacred things on earth. This broken piece of the grating was taken from Bethlehem at the time of the Mussulman invasion in the year 642 and was carried to Rome, where Pope Theodosius took charge of it as one of the most precious of relics.

Whether or not the grating now shown is the true relic, it is certainly extremely old and is interesting for that reason and because of associations that have gathered about it since it became one of the mementos cherished in the Imperial City. It is one of the greatest treasures of the ancient Church of Santa Maria Maggiore.

It consists of five worn bars. These are of wood, worm eaten and gray, that looks as though it might be oak powdered with flour. The bars average about a yard in length, and the entire grating is suspended in a crystal case by silver ribbons.

This case is supported on carved gold and silver feet, and its full length is a meter, its height half a meter. It is surmounted by a beautiful enameled statue of the infant Jesus.

During the year this magnificent reliquary is inclosed in a golden case and disposed on one of the altars of the church. At Christmas time it is exposed to view, and the festival of the nativity terminates with an imposing procession in which the relic is carried, the solemn occasion being presided over by a cardinal.—New York Tribune.

Christmas Cards.

The first Christmas card ever published was issued in 1846 by a Londoner named Joseph Crandall. Crandall was indebted for his idea to Sir Henry Cole and employed the famous artist J. C. Horsley to make the design. It was lithographed by Jobbins of Warwick court and colored by hand. About 1,000 cards were sold. Such was the small beginning of what has grown to be a gigantic industry. Every Christmas after 1846 cards of some sort were put upon the market, but it was not until 1862 that they came into general favor. Then Goodall & Son of London began to publish cards inscribed simply with the words "A Merry Christmas" and "A Happy New Year" and in illuminated form, and the following year robins, holly branches, embossed figures and landscapes were added. With the succeeding years the popularity of the holiday cards increased, and the cards grow more elaborate until they have attained their present gorgeousness.

Marjorie and Mistletoe

By Hilton R. Greer

[Copyright, 1904, by Hilton R. Greer.]

Marjorie and mistletoe!
Rarer combination
Never stirred man's heart, I trow,
With sweeter expectation!
Shining spray of mistletoe,
Snowy beads a-cluster,
Lips that lure and eyes that glow
With a June day luster!

Marjorie and mistletoe,
Both suggesting kisses!
Craven he who dares forego
Such supernal blisses;
Craven he, a dullard slow,
Needing small condolence;
Wise the wight, where kisses grow,
Who plucks them nolens volens!

Sleet may beat and swirling snow
Blur the darkened window;
Crooning winds, now high, now low,
Chant a shrill crescendo;
What reck I, where dark eyes glow,
Of starless skies and stormy?
Marjorie and mistletoe
Make endless summer for me!

The Teacher's Present.

The old schoolmaster was deeply affected. His scholars, noticing the dilapidated appearance of his chair, had presented him with a new one for Christmas. "My dear boys," said the kindly old man, with tears in his eyes, "I can never hope to tell you how you have made me feel by this token of your love for me. All I can do is to thank you for the sacrifices you have made of your little purses for the sake of my comfort. If you have found me severe at times I trust you realize that it has always been for your own good." As the old schoolmaster prepared to sit down in his new chair he unconsciously ran his hand over the seat in search of bent pins.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Christmas In Canada.

Far away in Canada the Christmas is very like our own. The turkey, well stuffed with savory herbs, occupies the place of honor on the dining table, only there are hot pumpkin pies, prepared and served with a great deal of cream to keep it company. It is the Christ Child himself who is supposed to come down the wide chimneys to bring toys to good little children who are really asleep, not shamming. The gifts are generally wrapped up with huge packets of maple candy, and "doughnut dolls" are as usual as gingerbread figures used to be in old English fairs.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Four Facts About Christmas.

Spanish children have no Father Christmas. They think it is the three wise men of the east who bring them their gifts.

It is said to be unlucky to leave Christmas decorations up after Twelfth Night.

There is an island called Christmas island in the Pacific ocean, so called because Captain Cook discovered it on Christmas day, 1777.

Plum pudding was originally plum porridge and eaten for breakfast, not for dinner.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Taking Time by the Forelock.

Magazine Editor—It is time to arrange for our Christmas stories.

Assistant—I have seen to that.

"Are the authors at work?"

Gay Yuletide.

All hail the genial time of year
When every heart is kind,
When far and near there is good cheer,
And care is left behind.

Old feuds forgot, old hates aside,
Now hearty clasps of hand,
While far and wide at Christmastide
Love reigns throughout the land.

Forgive, forget, a truce to pride;
Healed are all friendship's rifts.
At gay Yuletide on every side
We're "worked" for Christmas gifts.

Holiday Customs.

At the saturnalia, the heathen prototype of Christmas, it was the Roman custom to decorate the house with evergreens. This was done to give the woodland spirits refuge from the cold.

In Atlanta, Ga., it is the Christmas custom to let free all prisoners whose only offense has been against the city ordinances.

The holly and mistletoe that we use for Christmas decorations show the survival of the customs of the Druids. In Russia branches of fir trees are used for decoration. In most parts of southern Europe evergreen trees are used, while in India the English churches are decorated at Christmastide with all kinds of flowers, palms and berries.

Mistletoe.

The eastern mistletoe is parasitic on deciduous trees as far north as New Jersey. It grows in great bunches from one to three feet across and soon disfigures a tree. The people of Atlanta, Ga., have free mistletoe. The city authorities cut it out of the shade trees that line the streets, and any one may take it away by the wagon load. The plant is in no danger of extermination, as we are satisfied with a comparatively small amount, despite its unique associations, which ought to make it in universal demand. The trade is supposed to handle about 10,000 pounds.—Country Life In America.

Christmas Eve in England.

The Little Ladybug (dejectedly)—I do hope Santa Claus will be able to distinguish between bugs and ordinary bugs!

Mamma Ladybug—Why, Gladys! What a strange remark! What is troubling you, dear?

The Little Ladybug—Why, Cissie Centiped told me she was going to hang up one whole set of her stockings!—Town Topics.

A Country Named For Christmas.

South Africa was discovered by the Portuguese, who were searching for an ocean road to India. Bartholomew Diaz was the commander of the two little ships that formed the expedition in 1486. Eleven years later Da Gama took another Portuguese fleet south. He discovered Natal on Christmas day and thus named it in consequence.

THE LESSON.

(By R-dy-rd K-pl-ng.)

Thus spake the Sage at Christmas time—his words were full of heat:
"The only thing I like to get in my stockings is my feet."

When earth's last present is given, when the gifts are bundled and tied
And we've paid the charge to express them wherever the folks abide,
We shall rest—and, faith we shall need it; lie down till we gather strength,
For we know that our Christmas presents are coming to us at length.

We know that for every trinket that we in despair have bought
That somebody else over our gift in worry has thought and thought;
That slippers and smoking jackets, and razors and guns and knives
And holiday sets of Shakspeare have shortened some other lives.

Thus spake the Sage at Christmas time:
"Ah, many men have joked
About the box of gift cigars—such men as never smoked."
And many shall say they are happy—they shall sit in a Morris chair
And puff at a fleur de rubber with a merry and grateful air;
And each of us rather slyly his flattened out purse shall touch
And look at his Christmas present, and mutter, "I spent too much."

Perhaps when the years have swiftly away to the future flown,
Then no one shall give a pre[illegible] each [illegible] shall buy his own—
Then each one shall hang his stocking aloft on his separate star
And pick out the Thing he chooses—and puff at his own cigar.

Thus spake the Sage: "At your distress 'tis not for me to scoff;
If you don't like what fills your hose then have your legs cut off."

The Christmas Tree

How It Originated, How It Is Secured For the Market, and Some Interesting Legends of the Dim Past

By WALTON WILLIAMS

Copyright, 1904, by American Press Association

THE Christmas tree goes so far back into the night of time that it is quite impossible to tell where or by whom it was first introduced. Almost every country has its legend claiming for its own the tree which bears such generous fruit. In Scandinavia it is said to have sprung from the "service tree," which germinated from soil soaked by the blood of two unfortunate lovers, a claim substantiated by the statement that at Christmastide inextinguishable lights gleamed from its green branches. In a French romance of the thirteenth century a great tree is described whose branches are covered with burning candles and on whose top is the vision of a child with a halo round its head, the tree and candles representing mankind and the child the infant Saviour.

A beautiful German story credits St. Winfred with giving the Christmas tree to the world. The story is illustrative of the gospel supplanting paganism. Before a group of converts St. Winfred felled a great oak which had been an object of the worship to the Druids. A fine young fir tree immediately appeared in its place, on seeing which St. Winfred said: "This little tree, a young child of the forest, shall be your holy tree tonight. It is the wood of peace, for your houses are built of fir. It is the sign of an endless life, for its leaves are ever green. See how it points upward to heaven. Let it be called the tree of the Christ Child. Gather about it, not in the wildwood, but in your homes. There it will shelter no deeds of blood, but loving gifts."

Many Germans hold that Martin Luther first conceived the Christmas tree. One of the most popular of German engravings represents him sitting in the bosom of his family, with a lighted Christmas tree on the table before him. Luther was traveling home one Christmas eve. The snow covered country and the trees gleaming at every point with the reflected light of the winter moon made upon the great reformer the deepest impression. Going home, he went into the garden and, cutting a little fir tree, brought it into the nursery, put some candles on its branches and lighted them to reproduce the effect of the beautiful moonlit trees in the forest.

Antiquarians connect the Christmas tree with the great tree Yggdrasil of Norse mythology or with the pine trees of the Roman saturnalia, the pagan [illegible] of our Christmas. Others look to the ancient Egyptians as originators of the idea. These men were wont to decorate their houses at the time of the winter solstice with branches of the date palm, emblems of [illegible] and of the starlit firmament. In mediaeval times there was a [illegible] but [illegible] invented an [illegible] tree. Candles were used by the [illegible] in their Feast of Lights, [illegible] at this season. The Greeks also call Christmas the Feast of Lights.

The Romans in their saturnalia decorated trees with images of Roman gods as well as with candles and burned Yule logs in honor of these gods. The early Christians, however, frowned upon all such pagan adjuncts to the Christmas celebration. With them the Feast of the Nativity was the extreme of solemnity, and they were as much opposed to Christmas trees and lights, music and laughter, as were the Puritans.

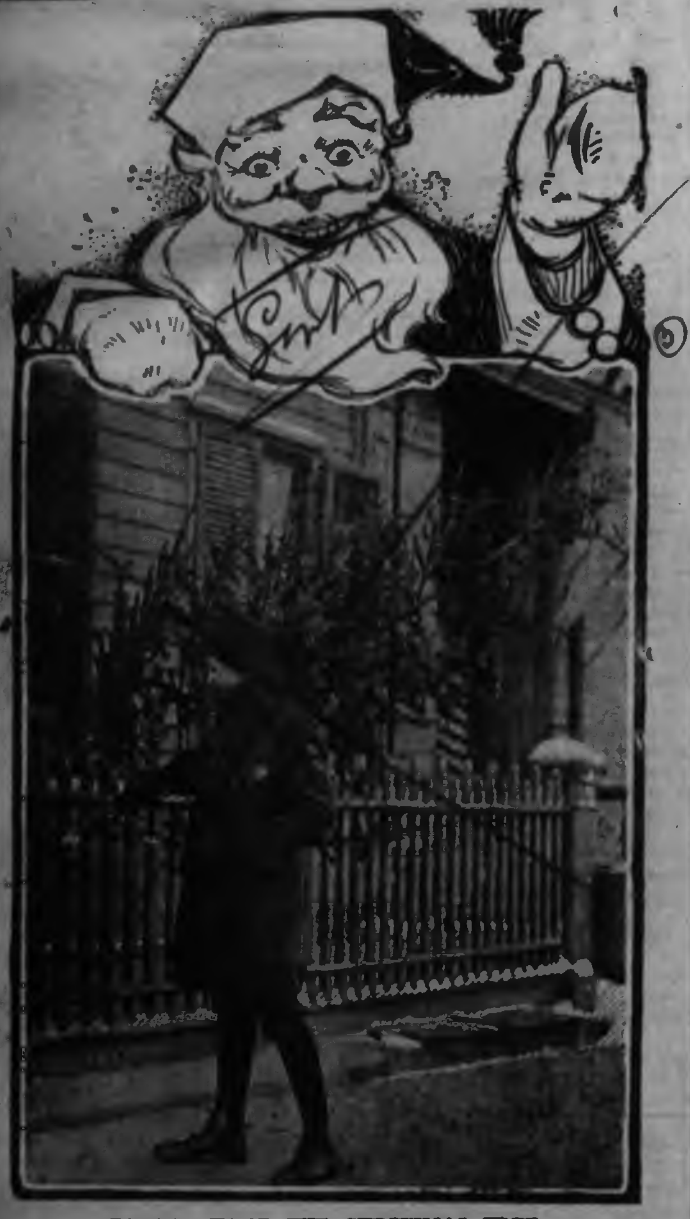
The first authentic account of the Christmas tree is not recorded until the sixteenth century. It appears in a German manuscript, and, as the Germans responded least to Latin influences of all the nations which fell heir to the Roman empire's lands, to them rather than to the Romans must be ascribed the honor of introducing it. It was the marriage of Queen Victoria to a German prince which brought the modern Christmas tree to England, and a German immigrant started the custom in America. The first Christmas tree in France was lighted in the Tuileries in 1840 by the Duchess Helena.

To view the great heaps of Christmas trees which line the market streets of our big cities just before the holidays one would fancy that scarcely a tree could be left standing of the murmuring hemlocks which constituted Longfellow's forest primeval. Every hard timber state in the Union is called upon by Santa Claus for its tribute of redolent balsam that he may have plenty of places on which to hang his presents.

There is only one true Christmas tree —the balsam fir. The hemlock proper has branches too drooping and flexible to hold a great weight of Christmas gifts, and the spruce, while otherwise suitable, lacks the spicy odor of the balsam. This is fortunate, for the tree most prized for Christmas purposes is utterly despised by the lumbermen. Before the Christmas tree industry began the fir lands of Maine were actually exempted from taxation as worthless. Now they are worth from $10 to $15 an acre.

The Christmas tree cutters begin work early, usually about the middle of October. While some of the men are cutting others follow them and drag the trees to the nearest open space, where they are bunched and tied so that they will not come apart in shipping. At the nearest depot they are loaded on cars, 2,500 trees to the car. The men receive [illegible] a day and board. It takes seven men working five weeks to get out three carloads.

The Christmas tree output depends a good deal on the weather. With an open fall, when the trees are easy to get at, the crop will be much larger than when the snow falls early and heavily. If the snow melts and then freezes on the branches it makes them brittle and they break in [illegible].



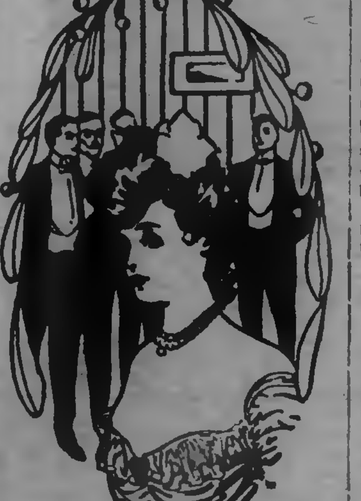
TAKING HOME THE CHRISTMAS TREE

The Mistletoe's Story

I AM only a sprig of old mistletoe.
My leaves are quite shriveled and dead
And my sap all dried up such a long time ago
That my berries they never get fed.
But I'll tell you a tale of a trick that I played
That a lovesick young man and a wealthy young maid
Should contrive to get happily wed.

It was Christmas eve, and from where I hung,
Tied up with a piece of string,
I caught many a couple, both old and young,
Kissing like anything.
But fairest of all the young people I saw
Was pretty Miss Eveline Marjory Daw,
Who was fit for the bride of a king.

Now, Marjory Daw, as you'll readily guess,
Was admired by a dozen or more,
Each of whom for a kiss of the hem of her dress
Would have given much treasure galore.
But the only young man she pretended to see
(To whose offer her father would never agree)
Was a penniless fellow named Shaw.



BUT FAIREST OF ALL WAS MARJORY DAW.

Now, Shaw tipped the butler—I saw the coin pass—
To turn down the gas in the hall
(I was hung from a bracket quite close to a glass
Not more than a yard from the wall).
Then he waited beneath me, his senses alert,
Till he heard the "swish swish" of a rustling silk skirt.
They were having a Christmas eve ball.
In a moment his arms were about the fair waist.
What cared he for the wrath of papa?

And he covered her cheek with his kisses in haste
To the strains of the piano afar.
But she, with a cry, reached and turned up the gas,
When he saw, to his horror, alas and alas,
He'd been kissing his sweetheart's mamma!
Then up came the guests in response to her call,
While papa was quite purple with rage,

And that Shaw was a cad they agreed, one and all,
Not to show more respect for old age.
But the dame, with her vanity utterly twisted
And quite unaware of the error, insisted
That the maid should be gallantry's wage.

—London Sketch.

Ferns and Autumn Leaves.

Ferns and autumn leaves as Christmas decorations add greatly to the effectiveness of the conventional holly, mistletoe and evergreens. Ferns grown in hothouses are easily obtained at holiday season, but are rather expensive. Autumn leaves are at the command of whoever has the time to gather them in the fall, for they can be preserved in all their pristine glory with little trouble. Autumn leaves pressed in books, while retaining their glorious colors, lose some of their liveliness and their natural shape, but whole branches of them may be kept intact by placing them in dry sand in any cellar where there is no dampness.

Individuality In Gifts.

The personality of the giver expressed in the wrappings about the Christmas gift adds value to the simplest offering. After all, it is the spirit of the giver rather than the gift itself which gives the greatest pleasure. The favorite ribbon, the slip of mistletoe, the color of the tissue paper covering, the card which bears the Christmas greeting, all express love and well-wishing.

Mrs. Torkins' Bright Idea.

"What are you going to give your husband for Christmas?"

"A whole lot of poker chips," said young Mrs. Torkins, "so that he can have all he wants without having to sit up all night trying to win them."—Washington Star.

HOLLY AND MISTLETOE.

Used Extensively In English Winter Festivities From the Time of the Druids.

In the middle ages we find the holly called "Christ-thorne," because tradition says Christ's crown was made of thorns. When the briars touched his brow they became pointed leaves, and the berries, which before were white, were dyed scarlet with his blood.

The holly trees bristle with thorns to the height of ten feet; above this the leaves are smooth at the edges.

There is an old rhyme:

"Holly and ivy, box and bay,
Put in the church on Christmas Day."

This was religiously done each year and the greens allowed to remain until February 2nd, when all the branches must be carefully removed, for if so much as a leaf of a berry should be left, death was supposed to visit the family in who a pew it was found; so that the mothers, ever mindful of this tradition, made sure that the church was thoroughly cleansed of every green scrap before any of the family ventured inside.

The wood of the holly is close grained and elastic; it is whiter than any known wood, but when very large the heart wood becomes brown and hard; it is used extensively for whip handles.

Birds can eat the berries without suffering, but upon people they act as a violent emetic.

The American holly is not so dark and glossy, and its berries are less bright than its English cousin, but it is easily grown in dry, loose soils, and especially thrives on the Atlantic coast.

From the time of the Druids until now the mistletoe has always played an important part in English winter festivities. It is a parasite, and in America is generally found at the top of some oak or gum tree right in the middle of a large pool of water, as brittleness makes it easy to break off.

The people of ancient times used to pay the Druids handsomely for a bit of the precious plant to hang around the neck as a charm against witches.

It was considered sacred because the berries grew in clusters of three, an emblem of the Trinity. The chief priests, robed in white, cut the mistletoe from the oak with a golden sickle.

In Australia a sprig is laid over the door sill to drive away the nightmare.

In Bavaria it is tied with palm and savin to a hazel stick and hung above the entrance of dwellings so that no witches may come in.

GAME BIRD COOKERY.

Roast Duck With Trimmings—Prairie Chicken—Delicious Salmi.

When about to roast a duck, see to the fire first. A hot oven is the first essential. The old axiom, "Dress your duck and allow a slow cook to walk through a hot kitchen with it," gives the idea it is intended to do—that a duck well done is a duck spoiled. If the oven is very hot, twenty-five minutes will roast the duck an even brown; but, if your palate dictates, another ten minutes' roasting will do no harm.

The duck requires no dressing. A slice of lemon and a spray of parsley may be put into the body before it is placed in the oven. Some cooks rub the duck inside and out with a clove of cut garlic. Others place a spoonful of uncooked cranberries in the body of the bird. The berries will burst and give a delicious flavor to the meat. Dust the duck with a teaspoonful of salt and half a teaspoonful of pepper before placing it in the oven. Baste twice with a little stock or butter and hot water while it is cooking. With a canvasback serve a celery salad or celery mixed with sliced oranges and dressed with a French dressing.

Prairie chickens make good eating. If young and tender, roast them like ducks, but if old braise them. Pluck and draw and lard with thin strips of fat bacon. Brown them nicely in a pan and dredge with two tablespoonfuls of flour. Add to every three birds a pint of hot water, a small onion, chopped fine; a carrot, cut small; two outer stalks of celery, a teaspoonful of salt and a small bit of red pepper pod. Cover closely and let simmer one hour and a half to two hours. Remove the birds on to a hot dish, strain the gravy, add six pitted olives, give one boil and serve. Pass a tart jelly and hominy or rice croquettes with the birds.

For salmi of game use the breast and other nice pieces of roasted birds, cut in neat slices. Place the bones and other trimmings in a saucepan with sufficient water to cover. To a pint of water add half a clove of garlic, half a bay leaf, a spray of parsley, a teaspoonful of celery salt and a dash of cayenne. Let simmer half an hour, strain, add a few mushrooms or a chopped olive and a tablespoonful of butter rubbed with a tablespoonful of flour. When hot lay in the pieces of game and as soon as the sauce comes to a boil serve at once.—Boston Cooking School Magazine.

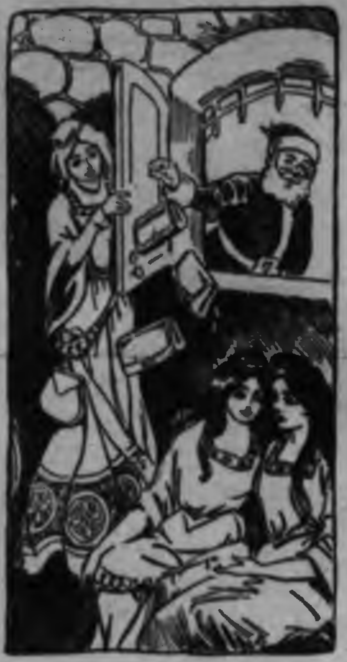
Saint Nicholas The Good

AT this season of the year it is easy to guess who it is that holds the first place in the hearts of the children of America. Today dear old Santa Claus may be out of sight, but he is undoubtedly not out of mind. He is probably receiving hundreds of letters daily—via the fireplace or through the register routes—telling of the fond hopes that are fixed upon some especial toy, and in the meantime, as if to bring the thought of this genial old saint ever freshly to us, on the streets and in the shops we can see men dressed like Santa Claus.

In the midst of all this holiday turmoil how many children ever stop to ask who Santa Claus really is, or who he was, for he died centuries ago? I know that some little girls and boys are longing to say now:

"Oh, we're too old for that sort of thing. We know there is no such person as Santa Claus. Our presents are given us by our fathers and mothers. We know all about it."



HE THREW THREE PURSES FILLED WITH GOLD.

So far as the presents are concerned, perhaps they are right, but when they push dear old Santa Claus out of the way as a myth they are quite wrong, for Santa Claus was once as much alive as any little girl or boy who reads this.

St. Nicholas lived about the year 300 A. D., and he was a bishop of the early Christian church in Asia Minor. The name Santa Claus is merely a different form of his real name, just as Carl and Carlos are varying forms of the name Charles, and Maria and Marie are of Mary.

During his holy and useful life St. Nicholas was very good to all the little children he met, giving them presents and making them happy in every possible way. He is, therefore, to be remembered at this season because it is especially the children's feast day, and his memory should be kept more green in our hearts than the greenest leaves of the mistletoe that decorate our homes.

One story told of St. Nicholas relates how he found three lovely maidens who were very unhappy because there was no one to take care of them, and they were so poor they feared they might starve to death. The good old saint, hearing of their grief, went and tapped softly on the window of their home. When it was opened he threw three purses filled with gold into the window and hid before the girls could see who it was that sent this unexpected gift.

The next night he did not go, but the night following he tapped softly again and threw three more purses into the window. He waited a like time and then threw them a third present, but did not hide quickly enough, for they saw who it was—the kind old bishop who loved children so tenderly. Of course, they were very grateful for helping them out of their trouble this way. Some people think that the custom of giving presents originated from this old legend.

In Germany they keep the feast of St. Nicholas on Dec. 6. At this time some one dressed in the traditional costume worn by Santa Claus, gives presents to the children who have been good and sorrowfully says "I have nothing for you" to the naughty ones. —Philadelphia Ledger.

A Confession That Failed.

"So you concluded to dispel the Santa Claus myth from the mind of your youngest son?"

"Yes," said the thoughtful citizen. "You see, I thought that it would be better to hurt his feelings than to countenance deception in any form."

"And were his feelings hurt?"

"Not at all. He looked at me pityingly and said he guessed I had been one of the bad boys to whom Santa Claus did not pay any attention."—Washington Star.

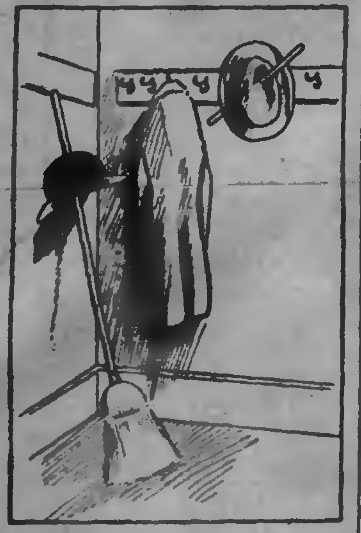
FOR YOUNG FOLKS

A PRACTICAL JOKE.

Good Trick With a Hat Which Will Raise a Laugh.

Practical joking, as a rule, is objectionable and not to be encouraged, but in the following no evil results can possibly accrue, and the "victim" often enjoys the joke as much as those who planned it. You might try it on your papa some time, but don't under any circumstances use your mamma's hat, for you might disarrange the trimming, and that might be a bad thing for both you and the hat. The trick is performed as follows:



THE HAT AND STICK TRICK.

Take an old brush and saw off some six inches of its handle. Into the shorter piece insert a needle headforemost and, placing the hat centrally between the two pieces, press the needle well home. Now, apparently, the handle passes through the crown of the hat, the needle keeping all securely in position. Place in a corner or elsewhere and await results.

Another way of playing the same trick is to take any piece of stick, roughly paint one end, saw through the middle and fix "through" a hat with a needle exactly as before. Hang this on a peg, as shown in our illustration. The victim, thinking his hat ruined, will be most angry at first, but as soon as he tries to release his hat the trick is discovered, and his frown is certain to give place to a smile.—Exchange.

A GAME FOR BOYS.

The Way the "Master of the Drawbridge" Is Played.

The "master of the drawbridge" is a game for boys that requires little preparation.

With a sharp stick a piece of ground about nine feet wide and about twenty feet long is marked off. This represents the drawbridge of the castle of Sir Montgomery of Skye. One of the players is the warden of the castle gate. He stands on the bridge. At the other end of it stand the players, who represent foemen desiring to enter the castle.

They can only go on the bridge one by one. The foemen wheel their imaginary steeds and gallop up and down, making feints at charging to bewilder the warder until suddenly one of them spurts and races up the bridge. Once he is there he must not run off the bridge again, but he may dodge the warder in any way he pleases so long as he stays on the bridge. He may run zigzag or retreat or duck or do anything else that may enable him to slip past the guardian of the castle.

The warder must touch the foeman three times before he can claim that he has made a capture. If he does it the captured foe becomes warder and the old warder joins the besiegers.

Big Name For Little Doll.

The children of the Passamaquoddy tribe of Indians play with a doll not more than a couple of inches high. In fact, it is smaller than the word which means doll, for this word is "amakudabekanek." One had almost rather go without make believe babies than to be obliged to call them by such an outlandish name. Don't you think so? Just fancy a wee papoose crying, "I want a amakudabekanek!"

A Clever Dog.

Rags, a dog owned by a bookkeeper in a tannery at Middletown, N. Y., daily carries the deposits to the bank, allowing no one but his master and the bank officials to handle the purse. Although friendly and playful with everybody at other times, the moment he gets the passbook he forgets all play and attends strictly to business.

Curious Tree of Tibet.

In Tibet there is a most curious tree known as the tree of the thousand images. Its leaves are covered with well defined characters of the Tibetan alphabet.

A Certain Boy.

He doesn't like to go to bed,
And getting up is worse;
To washing, too, I've heard it said,
He's just as much averse.

And as for school and studying
When he would rather roam,
He hates it more than anything
But doing jobs at home.

I must admit that it is true,
Though 'tis a sorry boast,
Whatever he is told to do
Is what he hates the most.

I do suppose that if he chose
What he should do all day
He'd play and eat awhile, and then
He'd eat awhile and play.

—Ann Fitzhugh Maclean in Men and Women.

Did Him Good.

"Stimpkins is a mean man. I don't believe he ever did anything that did anybody any good."

"Yes, he did."

"What was it?"

"He fell down one time, and it did me good to see him."

The Compromise.

She—How sweet of you to own that you were in the wrong!

He (absentmindedly)—Yes. Mother always taught me that it was easier to give in to a woman than to argue with her.

CHRISTMAS HUSTLE SETS IN

The Express Offices and Post Office are Busy with Christmas Mail.

These are the days when the employees of post offices and express companies have to get a hustle on. The Christmas season is now in full blast and it is a common sight to see wagons loaded up "mountains high" with parcels which unmistakably contain the favors of the time when everybody has the gift fever. Enquiry at the express offices indicates that the infection has caught well, and the respective staffs have become acquainted with the significance of a "move on."' The questions that have to be answered by an express clerk during the day at this time of year, would make an information bureau look sick. Where is such and such a place? How much will this be? Is there anything here for me? What are you going to soak me for this? Will you be open Christmas? These are some of the ordinary queries which the clerks have hurled at them. But there are others, remarkable for their absurdity. The express clerks are those to whom the old truism, "Patience is a virtue," is particularly applicable these days. The local offices have taken every precaution in anticipation of the big rush, and are giving an excellent service.

But to the staff of the post office Christmas appears as a strenuous time. The mails are very large and bulky, and it requires some fast work and considerable care to have everything work like machinery.

People may say that this is going to be a dull Christmas, but if they knew anything about the rush at the post office, they would be assured of the fact that the gift germ has been working along on the same old plan and on a mighty big scale. They say at the post office that not a few letters come addressed to Santa Claus. As this gentleman has not yet taken up residence in town, these epistles are forwarded to the dead letter office.

WHITE HOUSE GIFTS.

How Santa Claus Comes to the President's Family.

Wagon loads of gifts are received at the White House at Christmas time. They come from all parts of the country, the majority of them from persons unknown to the president and his wife. These miscellaneous articles are the private property of the recipients, and the numerous parcels are placed in one of the family rooms for examination. They generally contain the names of the donors, and to all these notes of thanks are sent.

On Christmas eve all the employees of the house—the clerical staff, the ushers and the domestic servants—are given, through the established munificence of the president, a fine fat turkey. Fifty fowls, selected from the best in the market, are purchased for this event, so that everybody about the famous mansion has reason for rejoicing.

No one expresses his happiness with a more beaming countenance than does Jerry Smith, the old colored man who has been a member of the presidential household since the beginning of Grant's first term. Jerry was President Grant's cook, but in these days he dusts the offices of the White House and keeps things tidy there as the traditional pin.

The presidents and their advisers are usually men of advanced years, and it is to be second generation from them that the White House looks for the frolics of childhood on Christmas day.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Quaint Christmas Custom.

The burning of the ashen fagot is a curious custom observed in Devon and Somerset on Christmas eve. The fagot consists of green ash sticks cut lengthways and neatly fastened into a bundle with withy bands. At 8 o'clock in the evening this is placed on the fire with much ceremony, when the family and invited guests are gathered round the hearth. The flames lick round the bundle, and, when the first green withe holding the fagots bursts, glasses are raised and emptied to "A Merry Christmas!" The breaking of each bond is the signal for a fresh toast. Legend accounts for this custom by the story that a fire of ash wood warmed the stable at Bethlehem, while local tradition tells of a greenwood fire kindled by Alfred the Great during his lonely wanderings in Somerset.

Russia's Belated Christmas.

There are two Christmases at the Russian embassy, but the real celebration comes on Jan. 6. The fact that the joyous festival is, by reason of the use of the Russian calendar, somewhat belated does not, however, affect the enthusiasm with which the celebration is carried out. At a time when most of her American friends are removing the Christmas greens from their homes Countess Marguerite Cassini, the mistress of the Russian embassy, is superintending the decoration of a monster Christmas tree, generously laden with presents, and the distribution of these remembrances is followed by a grand dinner which is thoroughly Russian in its menu and appointments and as protracted as some of the celebrated all night feasts in the land of the czar.—Washington Times.

FEMININE FIGURES.

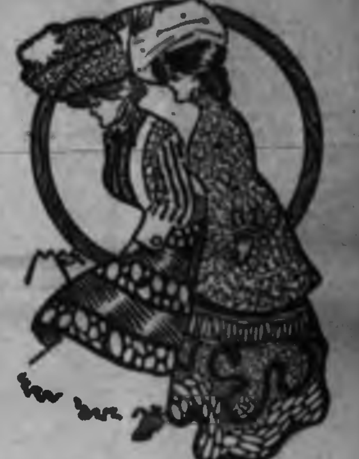
Arithmetic 'tis well to shun;
Of puzzles it has plenty.
For instance, I was twenty-one
When Madge was sweet and twenty.

Old Time, as fast the seasons flew,
Worked on me with his leaven.
I felt the weight of thirty-two
When Madge was twenty-seven.

The marvel grew to huge estate,
Madge proved of time so thrifty,
Remaining simply thirty-eight
Long after I'd turned fifty!

My brain is plunged in awful whirls
By mathematics' rigors,
And who shall now maintain that girls
Have no control of figures?

That Ended It.



Maud—What makes you treat Jack so coldly? You used to find him so interesting?

Marie—Didn't you know I was engaged to him now?

He Knew.

A popular New York actor loves to tell this story of a very precocious nephew of his:

He had arrived at the house of his sister just about the time all the children were getting ready to go to school. After a short time the little boy came in the room to bid his uncle goodby, when his mother said to him:

"Now, Charles, please tell your uncle what you are going to learn at school today."

The child replied:

"Why, mamma, if I knew what would be the use of my going to school at all?"

Time's Softening Influence.

Lawyer—Do you want a trial right away or would you rather postpone it a few weeks?

Prisoner—I guess I'll need a few weeks in which to rehearse that story you told me to tell often enough so I'll get to believe it. Also I want to let the memory of my guilt fade out a little so I can make a better witness for myself.

No Cause For Desperate Measures.

"Why don't you get him to come to the point?" her mother demanded. "I made your pa promise to me the third time he ever called."

"Well, you must remember," the sweet girl replied, "that I'm nowhere near as old as you were then."

Shark's Death by Drowning.

While herring fishing in Dublin bay on one occasion the steam trawler Royalist landed in its net a shark ten feet in length and weighing nearly half a ton. Paradoxical as it may appear, the shark had met with his death by drowning. The ropes had caught in his gills, so injuring them as to render them useless. The shark had evidently been pursuing a big shoal of herring and had driven them into the net and could not himself escape.—London Chronicle.

Filth In Tibet.

Tibet is not a country where cleanliness and godliness go hand in hand. Neither the men nor the women take any care of their persons. They wear their clothes very long without changing, brushing or shaking them, keep them on even at night, use them as dusters and towels and take them off only when they drop off of themselves. They never wash their bodies and only in quite exceptional cases wash their faces and hands.

Her Playing.

"Well, well!" exclaimed the old man. "Mandy's learnin' to play real good. Now, there's some sense in that there piece she's playin'."

"That ain't Mandy," replied his wife. "It's the man tuning the piano."

Taking Her at Her Word.

Jones—How's this, old man? I thought you and your wife were going abroad on a pleasure trip, and you're taking your mother-in-law along. Smith—Well, she's always saying, "See Paris and die," so I thought I'd let her see Paris.

A Doll's Christmas

A Quaint Tale of Life In the Nursery When Little Boys and Girls Are All Sound Asleep

......By LAWTON JOHNSON

Copyright, 1904, by C. N. Lurie

ONE Christmas eve a wax doll sat on a chair in a pretty room in which a number of children were in bed. A fire was burning on the hearth. Stockings were hanging to the mantel to be filled with toys for the children who were sleeping soundly, doubtless dreaming of what they were to receive in the morning. The face of one of them, a delicate, fair haired boy, was turned toward the doll, and she did not tire looking at it, for the face, though pale and thin, was very delicately molded.

On the mantel were two figures in porcelain. One was a boy in an old fashioned coat and knee breeches, with a sash around his waist and a cocked hat and feather. His right hand was thrust into his coat in front, and he looked like a figure of Napoleon. The other was a girl, with a short dress and a sailor hat. Her head was poised one side, and she looked very well satisfied with herself. Indeed, she was very pretty.

"How do you do?" said the girl image to the doll. "Don't you think this a pleasant room?"

"Indeed it is, but I've not see many. I was only born"— She paused to think again when she was born, but couldn't remember, so she said instead, "Isn't it a beautiful world?"

"Do you think so?" said the boy. "My sister and I have had a hard time getting into it. We were baked in a furnace, and it was so hot"—

"Well, don't tell me about it," interrupted the doll. "I'd rather hear about pleasant places."

The figures told her a great many things, but the girl was very vain of her beauty, and the boy was taken up with what he knew about the world, of which the doll knew nothing at all, so she didn't listen long, but fell asleep while they were talking.

Suddenly she awoke with a start. What was that noise in the chimney? She had scarcely time to think about it when out on the hearth popped a little figure in fur. He unstrapped a pack he carried and filled all the stockings with toys. Then he jumped back into the chimney and was gone in a twinkling. This set the doll to wondering more than ever.

Everything was again silent except the clock, which ticked very loud. There were the children asleep in bed, the little pale faced boy with his head resting on his arm, the girl image on the mantel with her head on one side thinking how pretty she was and the boy thinking how much he knew about the world. The doll soon went to sleep again.

In the morning she was awakened by a shouting. The children were running about in their night clothes, taking their toys from their stockings and [illegible] like monkeys. The fair haired boy sat up in bed and looked on, for [illegible] too delicate to get up like the other children. The doll noticed that he had great blue eyes, which seemed ever so large as he looked wonderingly at all that was going on. Then there came a knocking on the wall, and the children knew that it was a signal for them to get back to bed and not take cold, and back they scrambled, laughing and tumbling over one another, and covered themselves up.

Presently the father and mother came in and distributed the toys. The doll was for one of the girls, but the boy insisted on having it himself. Then when all were loaded with presents they carried them down to the breakfast room.

What a day it was! The children were racing about, playing with their toys, and people were coming in continually to see the presents, and the sun shone brightly on the snow outside, and the fire shone brightly within on the brass andirons and fender, and after dinner stories were told the children till they were all astonished by the number of wonderful things that happen. The boy with the light hair and blue eyes lay in his mother's arms, hugging the doll with her breast pressed against his, so that she could hear his heart beat, and she wondered why there was no such beating in her own heart. This was the happiest moment she had ever known. She was only a day old, but something told her that nothing in the world could ever make her happier.

When the children went upstairs the boy insisted on keeping the doll by him till he got into bed, when his mother persuaded him to part with it till morning. She placed it on a chair before the fire where he could see it till he should go to sleep and the first thing on awakening in the morning.

When the children were all asleep the doll looked up from the chair at the images on the mantel. She was too happy to go to sleep.

"What a lovely day I have had," she said.

"Just wait," replied the boy image, "till you have been knocked about the world awhile and you'll see." He looked as wise as an owl.

"I think it very nice," said the girl image, "so long as you are young and pretty, but I don't like the idea of getting old and cracked, perhaps having my arms or legs broken off."

The wind was rising without, and suddenly the fire blazed with a cheerful warmth. It was very pleasant for awhile, but presently it seemed to be too hot. The doll thought she began to feel a softening in her feet. She didn't know what it meant, but it frightened her. It extended to her legs; then she felt it in her arms and at last in her face and neck. A log of wood fell down on the coals, and the fire blazed higher, hotter than ever. The doll felt herself melting away.

"You're going," said the boy figure on the mantel. "It's just as well; the world isn't all like this household."

"It's just as well," echoed the girl image. "Your beauty will not have to fade."

"I don't want to go," cried the doll mournfully. "I want to stay with my blue eyed boy. The world may be full of sadness, but there must be pleasure as well, for it is here."

There was something so plaintive in her voice that even the images refrained from any further remarks. The fire blazed hotter, and the wax, which had as yet only softened, began to melt. Something spattered on the floor. It was a drop of melted wax.

Oh, that her little boy would get up and move her back from the fire! But he slept on peacefully, and as she had no voice for real children she couldn't call to him.

So the doll felt that she was melting away. Drop by drop she fell on the floor. The room, with its rich hangings, the children sleeping, the firelight flickering, the shadows and, above all, the memory of her brief existence—for, after all, a doll can only exist—seemed to be gradually fading away. She sighed to think that she couldn't have been born with a soul, to be loved and go on loving forever; that she could not grow up like a real child to see the unfolding of all the wonderful things in the world, passing from one existence to another instead of going out altogether. Then she thought that she might never have been born at all, never have had the one glimpse of the happy household, the one Christmas, the blue eyed boy and her single day of love. So she said: "I can't understand it. I will try not to murmur, but trust that it is all for the best."

• • • • • • •

And then—and then she awoke! The horror of melting had only been a dream. She had fallen asleep before the hot fire, but some kind hand had drawn the chair back, and in a few moments she was again clasped in the fond arms of her blue eyed boy.

CHRISTMAS IN MEXICO.

How the Day Is Celebrated In the Land of Dias.

In Mexico Christmas eve is observed, as in Spain, with the Noche Buena. The streets and plazas are thronged with people. Of all the shop windows so gay and brilliant in their holiday attire none is so bright as the confectioner's. Nowhere is the confectioner's art carried to a greater perfection. At midnight of the Noche Buena all Mexico forsakes its pleasures and repairs to the Misa del Gallo, or mass of the cock, a high mass of the most imposing character, which, in every one of the magnificent temples reared by the Catholic church in the City of Mexico, is celebrated exactly at midnight on Christmas eve or morning to commemorate the Saviour's birth. All the churches have an augmented choir and a large orchestra specially engaged for the occasion. The mass is celebrated with every concomitant that can heighten its effect and grandeur.

The Gift I Didn't Get

A Christmas Poem by Peter McArthur

(10)

Copyright, 1904, by Peter McArthur

A Girl Who Calls Me Friend.

I HAVE presents by the dozen,
Meant to make my Christmas glad,
From each uncle, aunt and cousin—
Best a fellow ever had.
There's a keepsake from my mother,
Father sent a check—and yet
I am thinking of another—
Of the one I didn't get.

THERE are gifts from all the fellows,
Pipes and things a chum will send;
There's a tie, all reds and yellows,
From a girl who calls me friend.
You would think me far from slighted
If you saw them all—and yet,
I confess, I'm most delighted
With the one I didn't get.

SHE told me it was ready,
She'd prepared it long before;
I'd been calling on her steady
For at least a year or more.
She told me all about it,
And her eyes with tears were wet,
And I'm happy, never doubt it,
For that gift I didn't get.

HER attitude was altered
When I called on her last night,
But my tale of love I faltered,
And I guess I did it right.
And this little rhyme is written
'Cause I'm full of joy—you bet!
For a frosty little mitten
Was the gift I didn't get.

Christmas Bargains

The Aftermath of Christmas !

The holiday shopping is all over, and the store is beginning to settle down to normal ways again. Our Christmas business was greater than it has ever been before, and our vast stock was pretty well picked over. Of course, this picking leaves in its wake many things that are tumbled and bedraggled, and these have no place in a clean, fresh stock. So we've put them out and put hurry-out prices on them, just to make them tempting. Intrinsically, just as good as ever, merely lost a part of their good looks, that's all, and for this you get the reduction on

Men's Mufflers, Ladies' Mufflers, Ladies' Silk Waists, Ladies' Silk Skirts, Muslin Pillow Shams, Ladies' and Gent's Silk Handkerchiefs, Fancy Rafia Baskets, Bevel Plate Hand Mirrors, Fancy Handkerchief Boxes, Ladies' and Children's Coats, etc.

HOW CROWLEY ENDED HIS LIFE

After Attempting to Murder His Wife in Rochester.

FURTHER DETAILS OF CRIME.

Former Peterborough Woman Victim of Brutal Husband, Who Tried to Pour Carbolic Acid Down Her Throat—Couple Quarreled Often.

Fuller particulars of the Rochester tragedy in which William Crowley sought to muder his wife, formerly of Peterborough, are now to hand.

A Rochester despatch says:—Jealous over the attentions paid his wife by boarders in the house they lived in, at 82 North Fitzhugh-st., William Crowley, 34 years of age, early this morning attempted to muder his wife, aged 28, and then killed himself by taking poison. The woman is in a hospital, her face burned by carbolic acid that the husband dashed in her face after he had vainly tried to force it down her throat.

Mrs. Crowley before her marriage was Miss Minnie Beatrice Wilder, of Peterborough. She came here five years ago and obtained employment as a restaurant cook. About two years and a half ago she met the man who attempted her murder. They were married a year ago last September. The wife opened a lodging and rooming house at 76 North Fitzhugh-st. The husband was a man of idle habits and was a hard drinker. He quarreled over the attentions certain boarders paid to her, and she had him arrested for assault, but relented and would not prosecute.

PARTY DECIDED HIM.

They moved into the house where the tragedy occurred two weeks ago. A party was held there last night, and at that time Crowley decided to murder his wife. At 5 a.m. he dragged her from bed in her night clothes and grabbed her by the throat.

"Kiss me good-bye, because I am going to kill you and myself," he said. She got away from him and partly dressed herself. Crowley obtained a bottle filled with carbolic acid and, entering the room, he grabbed her by the throat and threw her to the floor. Kneeling on her breast he pulled her tongue out and tried to pour the liquid in her mouth. She fought herself free and crawled on her knees to a door which opened into the room of another lodger. Beating on the panels of the door with her fists, she called for help. Her husband dragged her away.

CONTINUALLY QUARRELED.

Boarders ran to the rooms of the couple and tried to force open the door, which was blocked by Mrs. Crowley's body. Breaking down the door, the lodgers got into the room. The husband was dragged away from his wife and she was carried to a room for treatment.

While the room was empty for a moment Crowley drank the contents of the bottle of acid and fell to the floor. He died at 6.20. The woman will live, although her features will be disfigured. It is believed that some of the liquid got into her eyes. Mrs. Wilder, mother of the young woman, joined her daughter in this city about three months ago. She says that the couple quarreled continually.

In connection with the foregoing despatch it appears that the woman's mother is Mrs. Hartley, who formerly resided on the corner of Chamberlain and Park-sts. She left here some months ago to reside in Rochester with her daughter, Mrs. William Crowley.

SUCCESSFUL BALL

Given by the Karnot Hockey Club last Evening.

The dance given by members of of the Karnot Hockey Club last evening in the Old Labor Hall, Water-st., was highly successful in every particular. There was a very good attendance and about fifty couples tripped the light fantastic until an early hour this morning. Mr. W. McCallum was the caterer for the occasion and served a delightful supper at 12 o'clock. The ball was thoroughly enjoyable, and the management of the team are to be congratulated upon its success.

The Karnots will hold an "At Home" in the near future.

SUCCESSFU SMOKER

Good Entertainment in T. A. S. Hall last Evening.

A crowded house saw the smoker in the T.A.S. hall last evening and all were fully satisfied with the entertainment. The programme consisted of wrestling bouts and exhibitions of bag-punching, interspersed with recitations, songs and dances. Mr. J. A. Sharpe made a very efficient chairman.

Mr. Jas. Browne opened the programme with a solo "When the blue sky turns to gold" and was forced to respond to an encore. He rendered some other enjoyable solos during the evening. Mr. D. Quinlan proved himself a very clever step-dancer, giving several exhibitions of the art.

Mr. Jas. Callaghan was also seen in a well rendered step dance. Several exhibitions of bag punching by Mr. Jack McDonough added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening.

The wrestling bouts between local amateurs were all closely contested and aroused much interest. A ten minute bout between L. Dorris and B. Kirke was won by the latter in seven minutes. Mr. Jas. Dorris contributed two amusing recitations which were greatly enjoyed.

REASON No 1
WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Red Rose Tea

Because it is composed of both Indian and Ceylon teas.

The tea bush is indigenous to Assam in Northern India, and botanists are of the opinion that it is the parent species of all the cultivated varieties in India, Ceylon, China and elsewhere. In a wild state, it grows to a height of fifteen to twenty feet, but the cultivated shrub is only three to four feet high.

Assam being the natural home of the tea bush, it is not surprising that this and other districts in Northern India produce the richest, most pungent teas grown in the world—teas that command higher prices than even the finest Ceylons; but Ceylon teas are very flavory and fragrant, and seem to be specially made to blend with the richer, more syrupy tea of India. When combined, the Ceylons give point and piquancy to the liquor; the Indians, richness and strength.

The distinctive characteristic of Red Rose Tea, that rich, fruity flavor, is obtained by blending these fine Indians and Ceylons; and another very important feature of Red Rose Tea, viz., its uniformity of flavor all the year round, is secured the same way, something not possible to obtain where Ceylon or Indian teas are used alone.

The Blue Label is recommended, and unless you like very strong tea, use only three-quarters as much for a drawing as you use of other teas.

PEN POINTS.

Begin to put those New Year resolutions in shape.

Well! the candidates are off. Can you back the winners?

Thirty-two men nominated for aldermen and only twelve to be elected. It looks as if there will be a great number of "also rans."

Do not forget the public meeting in the Opera House on Thursday evening, when questions of the greatest interest to the ratepayers of the town will be discussed. Both the waterworks and bridge by-laws will be reviewed, and all ratepayers will be at perfect liberty to ask questions. Turn out on Thursday night next.

The Review congratulates Mayor Best on his election as mayor of Canada's largest town by acclamation, and trusts that he may display in his new position the same fidelity, earnestness and sound judgment which he has during his long career in the Council. There is no reason why Mr. Best should not make one of the most capable and creditable chief magistrates Peterborough has ever had. Many friends will wish him success on his well deserved promotion. Here's hoping that the coming year may be the best and brightest in the municipal history of the town.

We hear a great deal from the Liberals through the Liberal press of the administrative ability of the Ross Government. No one denies that; in fact, any intelligent leader or government can govern such a country as Canada; yes, Canada can govern itself. But Mr. Whitney has never had a chance of showing what he is able to do in the way of managing the affairs of this province. Yet, after all, it would be far better to lose thousands of dollars by reason of the lack of administrative ability on the part of an honest government than to have the treasury filled by a government that is absolutely dishonest and corrupt, and that stoops to the political debauchery, such as stamps the Ross Government. Surely there are enough honest and upright men in this fair province to tell the "political juggler" that character and honest principles are more valued than riches. Remember Ross, the Minnie M., North Renfrew, B. Lott, West Elgin, and many other shady transactions.

At Napanee the Premier used the time-worn argument that one party was as bad as the other, and supported it by the usual references to ancient history. "Since Confederation there have been 36 Liberals unseated and 40 Conservatives." The frauds and corrupt practices of a quarter of a century ago are of little interest to this generation. This year four supporters of Mr. Ross were unseated, in North Perth, in North Norfolk, in North York and in Sault Ste. Marie. All but North York were bad cases, and Sault Ste. Marie the worst since West Elgin. On the other side the petitions against Opposition members in Muskoka and Centre Bruce were dismissed, and in the latter case the honesty of the election was remarked upon by the judges. In North Renfrew both parties spent money freely. The record is — four protests against the Government sustained, no protest dismissed; two protests against Opposition members dismissed, one member resigned. In addition to this the trial of the protest against the new Minister of Crown Lands was stopped by the dissolution.—Toronto News.

At the late Conservative convention, Mr. F. M. Field, barrister, was unanimously tendered the nomination for the Local House says the Cobourg Sentinel Star. He took time to accept, but has done so, and is entering heartily into the contest. Mr. Field is a young man, born in the town of Cobourg, and who has grown up with the town, and his interests are all in this riding. He is a son of the late C. C. Field, M.P.P., who for many years, until his death, represented West Northumberland in the Local Legislature, and was a true man, honored and beloved. Mr. Field is an able man, and fully competent to represent our people in the Legislature. He will receive the united support of the Conservative party, and also get the active sympathy and support of a large number of Liberals, who will place principle above party. It is not yet known who his opponent will be, but it is expected that Mr. S. Clarke will again be dragged into the field and hypnotize the electors. But that day has passed, it is getting too risky to appease the large crop of importunate ones, and a protest will surely come, if dishonorable means are resorted to.

RESCUED THE CRUCIFIX

John Zoller Plunged Into Burning Church to Do So.

Risked His Life For the Sacred Emblem in the German Lutheran Church, Winnipeg—Second Church Destroyed By Fire Within the Week—Several Small Houses Blown Up By Nova Scotian Powder Explosion—Christmastide Horrors.

Winnipeg, Dec. 27.—On Friday the Icelandic Lutheran Church was destroyed by fire. Yesterday the German Lutheran Church shared the same fate. The fire started through the falling of the stovepipes, while the janitor was heating the building for the morning service, and the stove being filled with wood, the building was immediately a mass of flames.

For some minutes the janitor ran around telling of the fire and calling for assistance; then the fire alarm was turned in. When Chief Buchanan arrived he saw the building was doomed, but at once turned in a general alarm and put men to saving adjacent buildings.

During the fire John Zoller dashed into the burning building, and at the risk of his life, rescued the crucifix, which had been given to the church by the Ladies' Aid Society as a Christmas present.

Last night a meeting of the parishioners was held, and it was decided to at once rebuild a larger church. The loss was $7,500, one-third covered by insurance.

Cars Passed Over Head.

London, Dec. 27.—Yardmaster Navin of the G.T.R., who resided with his wife and three children at 277 Grey street, while crossing the track near Waterloo street, was struck by a freighter and thrown to the ground, the car passing over his head, causing instant death. Navin stepped in front of a car standing on the track alone, when a Pere Marquette engine, with three coal cars, struck the other end.

One passenger and six employes were killed and two passengers and eight employes were slightly injured. The dead all resided in Indiana or Illinois.

Ran Into Hog Train.

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 27.—The Boston and Albany passenger train, known as the "Governor's Special" train, was wrecked between Springfield and Westfield yesterday morning by colliding with the rear end of a hog train. The engine of the passenger train went down a steep embankment, carrying Engineer Merritt and Fireman Wheeler with it, the former, crawling from the wrecked cab, badly injured. His legs were scalded, he received bad scalp wounds and internal injuries are feared. Fireman Wheeler was not much hurt although buried by the coal of the tender. None of the passengers were seriously injured.

Would-Be Murderer Suicides.

Quebec, Dec. 27.—A tragedy occurred Christmas Eve, in a pork and bean shop, kept by a man named Beaupre. A man named Spenard, stepson of Dr. W. Belanger, of Beauport Asylum, after having taken some drinks with a soldier of the garrison, named Charley Beaupre, cousin of the shopkeeper, quarreled with and shot him. Thinking that he had killed his man, he shot himself through the head on St. Valier street. Beaupre's wound is not serious; the bullet slipped on the ribs of the right side, and went away under the armpit. Spenard was a bachelor, and 40 years of age.

Took Strychnine.

Arnprior, Dec. 27.—A young man, Fred Whalen, employed in the lumber yard here, committed suicide on Saturday night in his room at Reid's Hotel. He took a large dose of strychnine.

Ald. McLeod Breaks Arm.

Hamilton, Dec. 27.—Ald. MacLeod met with a serious accident last evening. About 9 o'clock he fell on the slippery walk on Merrick street and broke his arm. He was taken to the city hospital.

FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Not an Unusual Instance

"I used Pyramid Pile Cure and have not had any trouble since. I have been a sufferer with piles for twenty years. I think it is the best remedy on earth for piles. Hoping this may help others to use this remedy," Mrs. J. D. Teller, R. F. D. 28, Sparta, Mich.

It is a singular fact that although many women suffer from piles or hemorrhoids, they frequently do not have proper treatment because of a delicacy women have in mentioning such a subject. Especially is this the case with those who have no husband or brother in which they can confide; and a physician is seldom consulted until the pain and agony incident to piles becomes unbearable.

Thousands of women have suffered longer than did even Mrs. Teller, always experiencing slight or temporary relief, if any, from the various remedies used and finally settling down to the conviction that a cure in their cases was impossible. Pyramid Pile Cure has come as a boon to all such, as it seldom, if ever, fails to effect a permanent cure. It is sold by druggists for fifty cents a package, or will be mailed by the makers to any address, upon receipt of price. Absolute secrecy is guaranteed, and no name is ever used without the consent of the writer.

It is suggested that those interested write to Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book describing the causes and cure of piles, as it is free for the asking.

REVIEW LETTER BOX

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir:—Having seen posters calling a meeting of the ratepayers, for Thursday evening next to discuss civic questions of all kinds, with the candidates (who, of course at this season of the year, are prepared to promise great and sweeping reforms) it seems to me that one of our crying evils or grievances is the lack of better service in connection with our mail delivery. Anyone, who has had an experience in the rush at the post office during the last few days, and even at intervals during any day, must realize that some move should be made to relieve the pressure, which has become intolerant, even to box holders, who, under the present system are taxed $2.00 each for the privilege of having a P. O. Box, which they may endeavor to reach at the risk of their lives.

Now, while this matter was up before the council once before, we believe it was dropped after considerable discussion, the chief opponents being the merchants and business men, whose places of business were within a very small radius of the post office and who could drop in frequently for their mail, not so, however, with the ordinary citizen, the working man or mechanic, who under existing conditions is almost compelled to pay an extra $2.00 for for a P. O. Box.

This latter, of course is a luxury which costs the laborer just as much as the business man, who would in all probability have as much mail in one or two weeks, as the laborer would have in the year.

Now, my opinion is just now, our aldermanic candidates should give us their opinion on this matter (especially so, the agent or correspondent of the Labor Gazette, which by the way is published by the Postmaster-General's Department in Ottawa.)

My own opinion is, however, that we should have a free mail delivery, and that our new council should agitate the matter and try to secure it, and relieve the pressure that has existed for a long time. True, they may say our post office is to be enlarged and improved. We are aware the promise was made, but that was prior to November 3, 1904, and lest it should be forgotten, we would say let it be soon. A place of Peterborough's importance can readily accept of any little acts of kindness (or probably justice would be a better term) which the Government may bestow on a long suffering people. Thanking you for the space, I remain,

HON. MR. ROSS HAS DEGRADED LIBERALISM IN THE PROVINCE

Rev. D. C. Hossack, of Toronto, Writes an Open Letter to the Premier---Broken Pledges and Desertion of Principle.

A Political Contortionist Clinging to Office by Corruption—His False Attitude on the Question of Temperance—Responsible for the Evil Record of the Government—Too Weak and Vacillating to Remain Premier—Refusal to Punish Political Transgressors—Corruptionists Retained as Organizers and Agents—Bad Day for Liberalism When Premier Came Into Power—

Rev. D. C. Hossack, pastor of Deer Park Presbyterian Church, writes the following open letter to Premier Ross.

The Hon. George W. Ross, Premier of Ontario:

Honorable Sir,—You are appealing to the people of Ontario for their judgment upon your stewardship. I desire to express my opinion in advance of the general verdict. What I have to say you should hear. Your position, and the occasion, make you a fair mark for criticism. My remarks may awaken you to a sense of your true position and enable you to see yourself as your are; but, knowing you as I do, I have my doubts.

While I have no personal end to serve by this letter, I confess that I would like the public to see you, as I see you, for, as you appear to me, I verily believe you are. Little as you may think it, I have thought about you many times, and my views in this correspondence are based upon a long acquaintance with the public affairs of this country. My views are not mine alone, for I believe they are entertained by thousands of others in this province. You may not heed my opinion, but I have decided that you shall at least hear them.

Knows Him Twenty Years.

More than twenty years ago I became acquainted with you as a public man. On that occasion you met Sir Leonard Tilley, on the hustings, in the Town Hall in Cobourg, and as Sir Leonard had the reply you were badly worsted. You had at least the sympathy of a young lad who was there in company of his father, a Liberal of the old school, and who was determined to bring up his boy in the way he should go. I need not say that I was that lad. This incident occurred, as I have said, more than twenty years ago, and I have ever since watched your career. I voted for you and your colleagues and supported you until, with a narrow majority, you began to live by your wits, and my conscience would not permit me to support you any longer.

Looking back I am of the opinion that when I began to watch your career I was prejudiced in your favor, and I suppose the explanation is that I was cradled in Liberalism; not the Liberalism of your Government, but the old-fashioned Liberalism of purity. I believed then that the Reform party, in this country, had its origin in purity. My literature was the Bible and The Globe. You will perhaps remember what The Globe was then I was taught that Baldwin and Lafontaine and the other great Liberals of that school were politically the anointed of the Lord and that George Brown, Alexander Mackenzie and Edward Blake were politically their lineal descendants. Liberalism then stood for representation by population, purity in elections, constitutional Government and equal rights to all.

Ontario Liberalism.

Liberalism in Ontario has undergone a very radical change, and is not what it was a generation ago. It no longer stands for purity, constitutional government and liberty. It no longer stands for the people against monopoly, but for monopoly against the people. In fact the Liberalism of a generation ago has perished, and I am bound to say, and I do so with regret, that I know of no individual who is more responsible than yourself for the departure of the old Liberalism of purity and the advent of the new Liberalism of political debauchery.

Your friends are accustomed to make excuses for you. Let us examine some of them. It is said that you inherited all the evil of your regime as Premier, and that therefore you are not to be blamed for it. You have been in the Government for twenty-one years, and during that period you have been responsible for the deeds of the Government. No one holds you responsible for the record of the Government before you became a member of it in 1883, but from that time to the present you cannot deny your responsibility or escape the record. In addition it may be said that the scandals previous to your becoming Premier were insignificant when compared with the saturnalia of political corruption which has characterized your term of office.

Your friends state that you are not responsible for the evil record of the Government, that Messrs. Gibson, Davis and Stratton may deserve blame, and ought to retire from public life, but that you are not only quite innocent, but do not even suspect corruption until you read the daily papers. I need not say that if ever such a theory of responsibility should prevail, responsible Government would cease. But you cannot be quite so innocent as your friends pretend. There were some shady transactions of which you had knowledge. You knew that negotiations were on with Mr. Gamey, for you had in your possession his letter promising you support. A short time before you received it he seemed unwilling to surrender this letter without a consideration. After you received the letter he was able to exhibit the money. You knew that North Renfrew was disfranchised for a year and a half, and the best proof that you were aware of your guilt was your feeble attempt, at Pembroke, to justify your course. You knew the Legislature was called to delay the trial of the election protests. You knew you made a base appeal to the electors of North Hastings to elect your candidate, Lott, and, by the way, you never uttered a truer word than when you said that Lott was a "curious fellow."

Broken Pledges.

The blame for broken pledges in regard to temperance legislation cannot rest upon your colleagues, for you alone must answer to that charge. Years before I first heard you, on the hustings, you were advocating prohibition; you have been speaking in favor of it ever since.

You will remember the plebiscite of Jan. 4, 1894. There was a large majority of yeas upon the question: "Are you in favor of the immediate prohibition by law of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage?" Shortly after this vote, a convention was held, in Toronto, and a deputation was appointed to wait upon the Ontario Government. It was received by Sir Oliver Mowat and four of his colleagues. Among other things, Sir Oliver said: "The recent vote removes all difficulty in the way of prohibition being demanded by the people." When he closed his speech, he read to the deputation the following statement: "If the decision of the Privy Council should be that the province has the jurisdiction to pass a prohibitory liquor law as respects the sale of intoxicating liquor, I will introduce such a bill in the following session, if I am then at the head of the Government.

"If the decision of the Privy Council is that the province has jurisdiction to pass only a partial prohibitory liquor law, I will introduce such a prohibitory bill as the decision will warrant, unless the partial prohibitory power is so limited as to be ineffective from a temperance standpoint."

Premier Delighted.

The evening of the same day, a mass meeting was held in the Horticultural pavilion. To this meeting the deputation reported. You were present and delivered an address, a part of which The Globe reported as follows: "The result has exceeded his expectations. He expected a majority, but not such an overwhelming one." "The verdict of the people has been accepted by the Government heartily and by me gladly." He was glad the Government were able to express themselves in a way to satisfy the delegates. "It is what you had a right to expect. It is what it ought to do, and," he added, "It is the only kind of a Government I would be a member of."

You will remember the events which followed. Sir Oliver Mowat, in May, 1894, announced, in London, that his policy was to go as far towards prohibition as the power to legislate would permit. A. S. Hardy, when Premier, declared to a deputation that his Government, and you were a member of it, "had not receded from the position of their predecessors, that they considered themselves bound by the pledges of their predecessors." On Feb. 13, 1901, you, as Premier, stated to a deputation, from the Dominion Alliance, that your Government had declared itself upon prohibition and would not recede from that position.

On Nov. 22, 1901, the judicial committee of the Privy Council gave judgment, upholding the Manitoba liquor law, and declaring it to be within the limits of the power of the province. Then you became acquainted with trouble and you have never been without it since. Then began that long game of dodging the temperance issue.

Delays and Excuses.

Not long ago the sincere advocates of the movement to close the bars were cheered by the news that you would reorganize your Cabinet. Their time had come. You had personally made such a strenuous fight against your rebellious followers that now, when you knew the mind of every one of them, you would bring into the Government the men who would give you the necessary support upon this great moral question. You waited a long time; you made a most deliberate selection. Mr. A. G. Mackay and Mr. George P. Graham were chosen. The great convention met, the temperance question was introduced. Mr. A. G. Mackay and Mr. George P. Graham wrecked the temperance resolution while you looked placidly on. After all these years of solemn pledges and temperance speeches, when the crucial moment arrived you said not a word for the temperance resolution, but allowed it to be defeated. Under these circumstances, one is led to ask the questions. Why did you have a change in the Cabinet? Was there design in bringing in Messrs. Mackay and Graham? for you knew their views on temperance, and since the convention you have expressed your delight at the action which was taken. So nimble have you been that it may be difficult for one who does not know you well to decide where you now stand in regard to temperance. However this may be, there can be no doubt about your sense of humor. Your speeches have always been lighted by it, but your latest production—your temperance manifesto—indicates the greatest development of this quality. "Time's noblest offspring is the last." I doubt if your closest friends imagined that within you played such a fountain of humor as would enable you to solemnly declare to the temperance people that your sacred pledges had been fulfilled by the tricky device of the referendum.

Is No Horatius.

When one views your present position and then reads your speech delivered in the Horticultural pavilion, he is inclined to do a deal of thinking. He wonders what kind of expert political contortionist you are. You remember your speech. "The verdict of the people has been accepted by the Government, heartily, and by me gladly," and again. "It is the only kind of a Government I would be a member of." The only kind of a Government you would be a member of—a government pledged to prohibition. Messrs. Mackay and Graham are with you. What kind of a Government are you in now?

When one views your solemn pledges, fervid speeches, continued membership in temperance societies your manifest dread of both the liquor vote and the power of moral sentiment, your long continued game of dodging,—your whole tortuous course with its inglorious fiasco at the convention, what is one to think of you? Notwithstanding all your brave speeches, your are no Horatius at the bridge; no patriot and sun-crowned statesman, under whose benign influence freedom broadens down from precedent to precedent. If the honest and observing elector should view your course, in regard to temperance, with charity, he will conclude that you are at least too weak and vacillating to remain Premier of Ontario.

"Deplores" Corruption.

It is sometimes said that you and your colleagues are not responsible for the corrupt acts of Liberal organizers and agents. You have, on several occasions, encouraged this theory by declaring that you were not in favor of corruption, and would stop it, if you could. I think the word you used was "deplore." You deplored the corruption. Once at least you exclaimed, "righteousness exalteth a nation." On other occasions you took high ground in regard to political purity and denounced political rascality in the abstract. The sworn statement of Mr. Hale, your candidate in Renfrew, would indicate that an enormous sum of money was promised for his election by one of your ministers. Of course, Mr. Stratton denies this, but Mr. Stratton denies nearly everything. There is no doubt that Mr. Hale's statement is correct; he has not found it necessary to make many denials. The evidence in the Sault inquiry involved your Government. The evidence in the West Elgin case touched your Government. Beside all this, when you "deplored" the scandals, one would think you would have tried to stop them. It seems never to have occurred to you to refuse to retain office by a majority obtained by corruption. It did not even occur to you to give the courts time to determine whether you held office by corruption or the will of the people. If you "deplored" the evil I would have thought you would not have hastened the meeting of the Legislature, but rather delayed it that the truth in regard to your election might be known.

When you "deplored" the evil why did you not prosecute the culprits? You did not have the excuse of not knowing who they were; the judges named them. You and you alone controlled the machinery of the law. When a private individual tried to bring the villainy of the Government before the public, the courts were used to frustrate his efforts. At the Sault certain men were named for corrupt practices. The Controverted Election Act says that "it shall be the duty of the Crown Attorney to prosecute such persons." The Crown Attorney at the Sault not only neglected to do his duty, but declined to enforce the law when appealed to by a private prosecutor. The Attorney-General, who holds office at your pleasure, far from insisting on the Crown Attorney at the Sault enforcing the law, himself refuses aid, when appealed to by the private prosecutor. When the private prosecutor went to the courts he was opposed by the recognized counsel of your Government. Why did you not have the Crown Attorney at the Sault dismissed when, notwithstanding his oath of office, he refused to do his duty? Why did you not ask the Attorney-General to resign and choose a successor who would do his duty if you were sincere when you "deplored" the evil and were of the opinion that "righteousness exalteth a nation?"

Protection to Culprits.

Your protection of the culprits is strong evidence that they are working for you, and that, in some way, they receive their pay from you. Under your administration the law refuses to punish the man who transgresses in order to keep you in power, but the same law will move with alacrity and ferocity, as in the Callaghan case, against one who will dare to say anything against you or your Government.

Callaghan, in an affidavit, made statements more or less damaging to your Government. At once he was prosecuted on a charge of theft which had no connection with the affidavit. Of intent to steal, in my opinion, and in the opinion of many competent to judge, he was not guilty. There are many judges who, if it had been their duty to try the case, would have so directed the jury. It was a case in which the Crown might have taken a most lenient view. But the Crown had seventeen jurors challenged in its effort to convict this man, whose real offence was that his statements reflected upon your Government. Such is the administration of justice under your Government. Such is the barbarism of Russia. It has been your custom to pose as a patriot and reformer while you "deplored" political corruption and expressed your desire to stop it. You have used many apt quotations in your speeches; let me suggest one for future use. It is this: "When Dr. Johnston defined the word patriotism as the last refuge of a scoundrel, he had not learned the infinite possibilities of the word reform."

Keep Them in Favor.

Not only have you not prosecuted the offenders who have been named by the judges, but you have not repudiated them and have retained them as organizers and agents of the Liberal party. Why did you not drive out of the party the Sullivans, the Boles, the Sutherlands, the Vancees, the Gilligans, the Hewitts, the Pritchetts, the Cahills, the Lewises, the Palmers, the Wildfongs, the Jacksons, and other agents who have been engaged in disreputable political work for the Government? You are now receiving the benefit of their labors and are holding office on account of what they have done. You "deplore" the evil and declare you would like to stop it, and, at the same time, you are very careful to retain an Attorney-General who will not move against the evil-doers. You make loud professions and continue to be a receiver of stolen goods, filched from the liberties of the people, by the worst gang of political desperadoes which has ever figured in Canadian courts. I have often wondered what was your candid opinion of yourself.

A section of the Liberal press is making a great effort to have you judged by what you promise rather than by what you have done. Doubtless you would prefer this test. This was partly the object in calling the Liberal Convention. The press is calling for a forward movement, and you have requested the people to forget the ugly past. Forgetting seems to be a favorite occupation with your Cabinet. You have desired to seal the black record of your administration with "seven seals." I presume you employ that phrase because seven is a Bible number, and you like the phraseology of Scripture, or because the seven members of the Cabinet wish to have part in hiding and sealing the disgraceful record. The public will not be mislead, however, and will judge you by your record. What a record for a Liberal Government! It is said that when a man is about to be drowned the events of his past life pass through his mind. You are now in very deep water and I would like to recall some of the events which will probably soon be flitting through your mind, if the procession has not already started. The following are a few of them: the Maybee pamphlet your speech at Madoc in favor of Lott: the West Elgin frauds: the burning of the ballots: the concealment, by the Government, of the burning of the ballots: the Macnish confession: the appointment through the influence of Hon. E. J. Davis of Cummings as deputy returning officer, and the subsequent naming by the judges of Cummings for fraud. the offer to buy Donald Sutherland, M.P.P.: the purchase of perjured evidence in the South Oxford trial: the offer of $10,000 to Mr. Boyd of North Grey: the offer of patronage to Mr. Gamey: The Globe interview with Mr. Gamey, which the Hon. Mr. Stratton prepared: Mr. Gamey's letter, promising support to your Government, and found in your possession: Captain Sullivan's $9,000 timber limit: the payment during the election of men at the Sault: the disfranchisement of North Renfrew: the sworn testimony of Mr. Hale, and the immense sum sent to North Renfrew as an election fund; the guilty ignorance of Mr. Stratton and Mr. Davis when in the witness box: the Sault election and the Minnie M.: the refusal of the Attorney-General to prosecute offenders; your pledges to the temperance people, and how you kept them.

Evil Day for Liberalism.

I think you would hold a higher place in Canadian history if you had never been Premier, or had been defeated at the last general election. It was an evil day for Liberalism, for Ontario, for public morality and for yourself, when you came into power.

In the approaching contest you may have the support of the now, veteran machine, the personnel of which has not, greatly changed, and which moves from riding to riding, helping you with its nefarious work, while you publicly deplore its misdeeds and solemnly declare to a confiding public that "Righteousness exalteth a nation;" you may have the aid of many people who have been deceived in the past, and who will again thoughtlessly vote for your Government, which is Liberal in name and the opposite in principle; but there are thousands of Liberals who will not support you and who now hang their heads in shame to see the flag of Liberalism trailed in the dust, that you and your colleagues may retain power by chicanery and corruption. Ninety per cent. of the Liberal party are right at heart, and would like to do what is best for the Province; but they have too often lost sight of the principles upon which their party was founded, and have been deceived by the men who hold office and call themselves Liberal leaders.

You are a good speaker. You have a cheerful jaunty style, which is quite attractive. On the stump you are, I think, one of the most expert political conjurers of our time. I would rather hear you speak than read your speeches. While you are lacking in literary instinct you have a stock of standard quotations, and you use some of them and paraphrase others so that your speeches sound well. Macaulay is a favorite of yours. How often have we heard you appeal to the brave days of old when none was for a party and all were for the state. With your stock of poetry you have concealed many a weak point and bridged many a dangerous chasm in your argument. I have a quotation in mind which I will commend to you. It will be more appropriate in the coming contest than "common rights and equal laws, the glorious dream of Harrington, and Sidney's good old cause." It is this:

"Nor florid prose, nor honied lies of rhyme
Can blazon evil deeds, or consecrate a crime."

The Hour Has Struck.

I have personally no ill-will towards you. We have not often met, and, on these occasions, I have found you courteous. We have never had any intercourse, which could be the foundation for either a difference or an agreement. Were it not for your public career I would not have entered upon this correspondence. My occupation has made me more reticent upon public questions than perhaps I had a right to be, but there are, however, times and occasions when a man must not sacrifice his citizenship, when he must be true to his country, no matter what happens to party, and when he must speak out, even at the risk of personal loss. Such a time has arrived, and, therefore, do I write to you.

I may be mistaken, but I think the hour has struck for your political departure. Looking back to the day when, as a boy, I heard you speak in the Town Hall in Cobourg, now more than twenty years ago. I am constrained to say, and I assure you it is with sincere sorrow, that I believe that your career has not fulfilled its early promise, that you have duped and besmirched a great political party, which once stood for purity, and that you have about completed a rather dark page in Canadian history.

No Difference.

No distinction is made as to the kind of piles that Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid cures.

The names Internal External, Bleeding, Blind, Itching, Suppurating, etc., are simply names of the different stages through which every case will pass if it continues long enough.

Piles are caused by congestion or stagnation of blood in the lower bowel, and it takes an internal remedy to remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid is a Tablet taken internally.

It is a permanent cure, and no case of Piles has ever been found it failed to cure. Money back if it does.

THE SPEECHES.

Mayor-elect Henry Best was the first speaker. He thanked his nominator and seconder. He would use his best efforts to show himself worthy of the confidence reposed in him. He said he did not propose to discuss details of municipal work, but would do so at the public meeting on Thursday night. He thought, however, it would be better to increase the tax rate and pay for local improvements out of current income.

Mr. G. M. Roger, the retiring Mayor, was called upon for a speech. He congratulated his successor on his election. Mr Best had had long experience of the most practical kind in municipal affairs, as he had been for a long time chairman of the Board of Works and had always devoted himself assiduously to the affairs of the town.

He discussed and explained the two by-laws which are to be voted on on Monday, January 2. He thought that the time had come for the paving of the central portion of George street.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson thought the town had had enough expenditure.

Ex-Mayor Yelland also thought the Council had been going too fast. The town was $700,000 in debt already. Too much had been thrown away foolishly.

J. J. Hartley thought that all ratepayers were anxious for the welfare of the town. He was against spending money unnecessarily, but there were times when some expenditure must be made. Mr Adam Dawson and others spoke briefly and the meeting closed.

OTONABEE

There was a large attendance at the nomination proceedings in Otonabee and great interest was taken in the outcome. Mr. J. Fife was reelected Reeve by acclamation.

For Councillors the following were nominated—W. J. Porter, John O'Grady, jr., Robt. Humphries, T. Walsh, W. B. Stewart, Chris. Howson—four to be elected.

Of the old Council J. J. Moord retires and J. Dayell goes to the County Council.

NORTH MONAGHAN

Nominations in North Monaghan were held in the town hall yesterday and there was a good attendance. Mr. Geo. W. Bennett, returning officer presided, and the following nominations were received:

For Reeve—John McIntosh, proposed by John Holmes and David Doig.

Joseph Madill, proposed by John Armstrong and Adam King.

Robert A. Dobbin, proposed by Richard Lillico and James Fowler.

FOR COUNCIL

John Holmes, proposed by W. G. Howden and Thos. Williams.

Geo. H. May, proposed by Osway Carver and John Armstrong.

John Brown, by John Armstrong and Adam King.

R. Fowler, proposed by John Lynch and R. Sanderson.

Jonathan Smith, proposed by John Armstrong and Adam King.

James Morrow, proposed by John Armstrong and Adam King.

Mr McIntosh, withdrew from the reeveship leaving two in the field, the present Reeve, Mr. Madill, and Mr Dobbin. The six men nominated for Council will run.

After the nominations were closed, Mr. Geo. W. Bennett was elected chairman, and the candidates for municipal honors were afforded the opportunity of addressing the electors in support of their candidature. The reception given each was exceedingly cordial and great interest was shown by the ratepayers in the respective aspirants. The tone of the meeting showed a lively, yet friendly, rivalry for the seats of honor. Mr. T. M. Hunter, the retiring County Councillor, and Mr. Paul Costello, a candidate in the Bridge north Division, spoke and were given a splendid hearing as well as all the other speakers.

SMITH.

Nominations in Smith township passed off quietly. There will be a contest. This, together with the fact that local option is to be voted on will make the coming campaign pretty lively. Mr. F. J. Ball, returning officer, presided at the nomination proceedings in the town hall at Bridgenorth, and afterwards a public meeting was held, at which addresses were delivered by all the candidates.

Those nominated are as follows—

For Reeve—Robert N. Scott, James G. Armstrong.

For Councillors—Matthew J. Ball, Richard White, John H. Garbutt, Joseph C. Harvey, William J. Northey, Thompson Braden, Thomas H Graham.

LAKEFIELD.

The nominations in Lakefield passed off quietly yesterday. E. A. Tanner and S. J. Moore were nominated for the Reeveship. For Councillors—F. J. Burgess, A. J. Kidd, R. Lennox, Robt. Duff, G. A. Baptie and J. W. Cornish.

For school trustee the following were elected by acclamation:—Dr. J. R. Fraser, R. G. Clifford, C. A. Tanner and J. W. Ridpath. There will be a contest for reeve and councillors.

DOURO.

The following is the result of the Douro nominations—

FOR REEVE.

ESCAPING GAS GAVE TROUBLE

Misses Lee, George Street, Had Rather Close Call.

LEAK NOW BEING REPAIRED.

Residents Have Been Complaining for Some Time—The Smell for While Back Has Been Unbearable.

The second serious accident which has taken place recently in connection with leaking gas occured on Sunday night at the residence of the Misses Lee, at the corner of George and Smith streets. For over a month residents in that neighborhood have been complaining of the odor arising from the escaping gas and wondering when the Light and Power Co. were going to take steps to remedy the evil. Not only those living near the spot, but also those who have had to pass the place have noticed the bad smell.

The Misses Lee have frequently complained to the company about the matter and several unsuccessful attempts were made to stop the leak. Gas was detected in the cellar of their residences and in those of several other houses in the neighborhood. The culmination of the affair occurred Sunday evening.

The two Miss Lee are the only inmates of the house. Miss Adaline Lee on her return from church found her sister, Miss Emma, sitting near the coal stove. Miss Adaline retired for the night, her sister saying that she would not go to bed for a while as she felt very comfortable where she was. Shortly after her sister had retired, Miss Emma began to experience a drowsy feeling which she could not shake off. She was soon so overcome with the gas that she fell to the floor unconscious. Her sister upstairs was also affected, but managed to get down stairs and open some of the windows to let in some fresh air. The neighbors were also called in and Dr. Scott summoned. The inmates recovered, but still feel the effects of the gas. They are at present unable to remain in the house as the gas is still escaping. The Light and Power Company are attending to the matter to-day and it is expected that the leak can be stopped.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, DEC. 27, 1904.

A FALSE ALARM

Park Street Merchant begins Business At an Early Hour.

A good story is being told these days of a Park-st. grocer. It appears that one of the members of his family whose work calls her forth from the house at seven o'clock was accustomed to use the first C. G. E. car that came past in the morning as an alarm clock and arise in time to catch the next one.

In order to keep ice from accumulating on the rails the street railway company kept their sweeper running all last Friday night. The inmates of the grocer's household heard what they imagined to be the early C.G.E. car pass by. Accordingly the family arose, had breakfast, the grocer opened out his store and prepared for business, and the working member of the household sallied forth and started off for the factory where she was employed.

She had proceeded some distance in fact nearly to the post office, when she happened to glance up at the illuminated face of the clock and nearly fainted. The clock registered 2 a.m.! Sadly turning about she made her way home. Here she found the grocer waiting patiently behind his counter for the customers that came not, and wondering a little at the dulness of trade on the day before Xmas. The sad news was broken and after the first shock had passed away the family once more sought the charms of Morpheus resolving to be more careful in their choice of alarm clocks in the future.

Tired all the Time

Mrs. George Beattie, Carr's Brook, Colchester, Co., N.S., writes:—"Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time, and did not seem to have life or energy enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good, and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends."

You know the action of fruit.

Apples, on the kidneys—oranges, for stomach and appetite—prunes and figs for the bowels. But—fresh fruit won't CURE these organs when diseased: they can only HELP to keep them well.

Fruit-a-tives
or Fruit Liver Tablets

can—and DO—cure. They are fruit juices—but changed chemically and medicinally, by our secret process. So remarkable is this convertion, that "Fruit-a-tives" cure all Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Skin Diseases, where the fresh fruit would have no effect on the trouble.

MUST PROVE CHADWICK IN OHIO.

Sheriff Refused Requisition Papers By N.Y. State Authorities.

Albany, N.Y., Dec. 27.—Sheriff Barry of Cuyahoga County, Ohio, who expects to arrest Dr. LeRoy S. Chadwick, husband of Mrs. Chadwick, when he lands in New York to-day, on the charge of forging the name of Andrew Carnegie, met a check in his plans yesterday when he failed to obtain from Gov. Odell the requisition papers necessary to permit the transportation of Dr. Chadwick to Ohio for trial.

He called at the executive chambers in the capital yesterday morning, but was informed by Judge John T. Boyce, the Governor's pardon and requisition clerk, that his papers were defective in that they failed to prove that Dr. Chadwick was in the State of Ohio on March 6, 1903, when the alleged forgery was committed.

Sheriff Barry decided not to try to correct his papers now, but to go on to New York and arrest Dr. Chadwick and arrange for his requisition afterwards.

CUT OFF WATER SUPPLY

Pere Marquette Railway Trains Tied Up By Four Towns.

It Is Claimed That By the Railway Neglecting Local Freight Traffic Leamington, Merlin, Kingsville and Wheatley Are Almost Out of Coal—Must Be Rectified Or Prosecution Will Follow Says Hon. Mr. Bernier.

Leamington, Dec. 26.—Because the Pere Marquette Railway has neglected, it is claimed, its local freight service, as a result of which the town is almost out of coal, the civic authorities cut off the railroad's water supply Saturday, causing a tie-up of four freight trains at this place.

The town has been borrowing coal to keep the waterworks in operation, and last week a car of the fuel arrived in Walkerville for the town, but it has lain there ever since, it is claimed, and all efforts to have it brought down have proven futile. Friday night the council ordered that the water supply to the road be cut off, excepting passenger trains, until the road gives better freight service.

The towns of Merlin, Kingsville and Wheatley have taken a similar step.

Prosecution Threatened.

In a report to the railway commission, at Ottawa, Inspector Lalonde, who has been investigating the complaints of shippers in Essex and Kent Counties, regarding the freight service provided by the Pere Marquette, declares that in order to boom their thru freight business it has been the custom of the company to daily cancel half a dozen of the eight or nine trains scheduled to run between important centres, and the others were run hours behind time. Hon. Mr. Bernier has wired the company from Ottawa that this must be rectified or prosecution will follow.

A Bad Showing.

In nine days there were supposed to be nine mixed trains for local traffic daily or a total of 81. The number actually run was only 24, all more or less late, and 57 trains were canceled. During the same period of time 70 thru freights, drawing in all 1973 cars, passed over the two divisions. The chief train despatcher explained the frequent cancellation of trains by saying there was not enough motive power and that engines were set off for repairs.

OFF TO NEW YORK.

Hon. Mr. Prefontaine Sent By Sir Wilfrid Laurier to Meet Dansereau.

Montreal, Dec. 26.—(Special.)—Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived at noon to-day and went to the Windsor Hotel, where he was met by a large body of politicians. Among the first to be received was Hon. R. Prefontaine, who was closeted for some time with his chief, and then left, apparently on a serious mission. He went out and lunched with W. Blumehart, ex-proprietor of La Presse, and a particular friend of Sir Wilfrid's.

To-night Hon. Mr. Prefontaine went to New York, in company with Thos. Cote, late of La Presse, and Dunn, the Montreal broker and ex-partner of J. N. Greenshields. C. A. Dansereau, who was to arrive in Montreal this mornin, was held in New York to meet these gentlemen on neutral grounds. Dansereau will not come back to Montreal before Friday next.

Nothing has transpired of the real object of those ministerial errands, but there is no doubt about its relation to The La Presse deal.

A Parent Compromise.

Sir Wilfrid also met Hon. Messrs. Gouin and Turgeon and all the local M.L.A.'s for the district to-day at the Windsor and talked over the Parent matter. It is understood that a compromise was reached whereby Premier Parent will stay till the end of next session, after which Hon. Mr. Turgeon will become leader.

Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier are expected to reach Quebec to-morrow morning. They will remain there a couple of days.

TORONTO MOTHER SEEKS RUNAWAY.

Mrs. Sarah Corkwell Searching For Daughter in Indiana.

LaPorte, Ind., Dec. 27.—Mrs. Sarah Corkwell of Toronto, Canada, arrived at Marion, this State, yesterday in search of her daughter, Anna Corkwell, aged 22, who disappeared from her home last August, and of whose whereabouts nothing is known.

The aged mother received information a few days ago that her daughter was attending a school at Marion, and she at once let Toronto for the Indiana city in the hope of inducing her to return. Mrs. Corkwell spent several hours yesterday hunting for the girl, but failed to find any trace of her.

The police will continue the search to-day, and failing in the effort to find the girl, Mrs. Corkwell will visit other Indiana cities.

Valorous, But Discreet.

Belgrade, Dec. 27.—The newspaper Oppositia came out yesterday with an editorial vigorously demanding that the regicides of King Alexander and Queen Draga be executed, as were the murderers of Prince Michael in 1868. The paper was promptly confiscated. Its editor writes articles from the safe vantage point of Zemlin, Hungary.

Inventor of Gold Brick Dead.

New York, Dec. 27.—Word has reached this city that Thomas O'Brien, the notorious confidence man and alleged inventor of the "gold brick" swindle, is dead, in the French penal settlement, at Cayenne, where he has been serving a life sentence for the murder of his partner, "Kid" Waddell, in Paris, in 1895.

A Prince On His Travels.

Calcutta, Dec. 27.—Prince Inayat Ullah, son of the Ameer of Afghanistan, attended by a considerable suite, has arrived here. He will pay Viceroy Curzon a ceremonial visit to-day.

HIS WILL AND HERS

BY DORA RUSSELL

Author of "The Broken Seal," "The Last Signal," "Footprints in the Snow," "On Golden Hinges," Etc.

"The railway station at Uphill," answered Patty in a choked voice, naming the station nearest Harewood.

The cab-driver nodded and drove away, and Jameson turned round and slowly ascended the steps leading to the house on which George Gifford and the butler were still standing.

"The lady seems to be in great distress, Jameson," said George Gifford, speaking to the valet, who grinned uncomfortably at his master's visitor.

George Gifford smiled, and so did the butler, but none of the three men pursued the subject.

"Then Sir Ralph is really going on all right?" said George Gifford, addressing the butler, who, remembering the handsome gratuity George had slipped into his hand on leaving Harewood, was naturally inclined to be very civil.

"Yes, Mr. Gifford, as well as he possibly could," answered the butler. "It was an uncommon bad accident, sir; but Sir Ralph is pulling himself together again, and the doctor hopes he will be up in no time. But won't you walk in, Mr. Gifford? Perhaps Sir Ralph would see you."

"No, not to-day, thank you," said George, and again he smiled. "Just tell him that I called to inquire how he is going on, and that I am extremely pleased to hear such accounts."

Then another little friendly transaction took place, and half a crown was transferred from George's pocket to the butler's, and George walked away, with a somewhat grim smile on his face, thinking of Sir Ralph's visitor.

It was only human nature to tell the little episode at home. When George reached Red House he went upstairs to inquire how Laura was feeling, and when he entered, the nurse left the room.

The fever had passed away, but she was very low and weak, and the expression of her face was very sad, and her dark eyes full of mournfulness. She smiled gently as George approached the couch on which she was lying, and held out a very thin white hand, for she had not seen him before during the day.

"Good-afternoon George," she said.

"Well how are you feeling to-day, Laura? Come, you look a little better, and I hope we will soon have you downstairs," answered George, taking her hand.

Again Laura smiled that gentle, shadowy smile.

"Thank you, George," she said.

"I've been to Harewood, to inquire after Sir Ralph," continued George, "and he's going on all right too. But a very funny thing happened, Laura, when I was there."

"What was that?" asked Laura, with her eyes fixed on her husband's face.

"Well, just as I arrived there a good-looking, weeping damsel, evidently in great distress, was going away. Jameson, the valet, was escorting her, and there had apparently been a scene upstairs. I fear our friend must be a gay young man!" And George laughed.

"What was she like?"

"Oh, tall, with golden hair, and would have been pretty, I suppose, if her eyes had not been red with crying. And she looked a little vixen, too, I thought. I expect Sir Ralph will have his hands full."

"I think it must have been a girl called Patty May," said Laura, still quietly. "Sir Ralph told me about her; she is very anxious to marry him."

"To marry him!" repeated George, incredulously.

"Yes; she is his old tutor's niece, if it is the girl I mean."

George gave a little whistle; it was a queer story, he thought, and he thought also that it was an odd thing that Sir Ralph Woodland should confide his love affairs to Laura.

But he did not say this. And presently he went downstairs, and into the library, as it was not yet time for dinner, and there Anna Lindsay joined him. She had done her best since Laura's illness to make everything comfortable for George, and George secretly thought that she was a more experienced housekeeper than poor Laura, and that the dinners had been decidedly better than usual during the last few days.

"How do you think Laura is looking to-day?" said Anna, who knew of George's visit to his wife's room.

"Much better," answered George. "If it were not such abominable weather I think she should go to the sea for a week or two, and that would quite set her up."

"You think she wants a change?" said Anna, slowly.

"I think every one is the better for change after an illness. By the by, I walked over to Harewood this afternoon to inquire after Sir Ralph."

This was the first time that George had mentioned Sir Ralph's name to his cousin since the day when she had told him that Laura had fainted when she heard of his accident.

"Well?" asked Anna, looking quickly up in George's face.

"Oh, he's going on all right, it seems. He had a fair lady to visit him to-day, seemingly."

"A fair lady?"

"Yes." And then George told the story over again that he had told to Laura upstairs.

"How disgraceful!" cried Anna, indignantly.

George shrugged his shoulders.

"Young men will be young men, you know," he said, "and I suppose Sir Ralph is like the rest."

"Did you tell Laura?" inquired Anna, eagerly.

"Yes," answered George; and then he dropped the subject.

His cousin's words about the beginning of Laura's illness had greatly disturbed him, though, he always told himself, without reason, and therefore he never encouraged Anna Lindsay to talk about Laura. He wished to lead a quiet life, and knew that Anna, not unnaturally, was jealous of Laura.

"Her fainting was just the commencement of the fever, of course, and I hope now she will soon be well," he repeated to himself, and to every one who inquired after Laura. Nevertheless days went on, and weeks, and still Laura did not get well. It was as if some blight had fallen on her, sapping away the life from her young life, and wasting her beauty like a faded flower.

The winter wore on apace. Gloomy November merged into a bleak, stormy December, and still Laura languished, though the doctor declared all symptoms of fever were gone. She used to sit in the drawing-room in the afternoons, and made some attempts to continue her writing, but it was more to rid herself of Anna Lindsay's company than for any work she could really do.

"I can not write if any one is in the room," she once said, irritably, and Anna Lindsay took the hint. She also continued to act as housekeeper, and Laura was too listless to interfere with her.

Then one day, about the middle of December, George came into the drawing-room where Laura was sitting alone, and told her that he had again been over to Harewood to see Sir Ralph Woodland on business.

"And how is he?" asked Laura.

The room was only lighted by the firelight, and George could not distinctly see the face of his young wife, who was sitting in the shadow, as she made this inquiry.

"Oh, he says he's nearly well again, but he looks ill, haggard and ill," answered George. "He's been out; and, by the by, he said he was going to drive into Suffold to-morrow, and that he would call on you."

The fingers of Laura's thin white hand, which was lying on her dress, contracted as George spoke, and a slight shudder passed through her frame.

"I asked him to stay to dinner," continued George, "but he declined. He's talking of going up to town."

George was pleased that he had asked Sir Ralph to dinner, and not allowed "any folly of Anna's" to prevent his doing so. He wished to keep on good terms with his client, and felt sure that as Sir Ralph had declined to remain to dinner, and as he was going up to town so soon, that all Anna's insinuations were absolutely without foundation.

"I wonder he has not gone before," said Laura, slowly, as if she had been thinking; "it must have been so dreary for him being ill so long all alone at Harewood."

"Unless he had the yellow-haired young lady to console him," laughed George.

But Laura did not laugh or smile. She sat very still a little while after George left the room, and then began to wander up and down the floor restlessly, with her brow contracted as though in deep thought. She had never gone into dinner since her illness, nor did she do so this evening. She retired to her own room early, and old Mr. Gifford, George, and Anna Lindsay had their rubber with a dummy as in the days before George's marriage.

The next morning George went to the office early, and Laura did not see him before he left Red House. And all day Laura was in a state of great, but suppressed, excitement. She looked so ill that Anna Lindsay thought that she was going to be laid up again, and this idea was by no means unpleasant to Anna's mind.

She made a pretense of dining in the middle of the day, at lunch-time, and Anna noticed she ate absolutely nothing.

"You eat less and less every day, I think, Mrs. George," she remarked.

"I certainly do not feel very hungry to-day," answered Laura, with a wan smile. "I think I shall try to write this afternoon," she added, for she wished to rid herself of Anna Lindsay's company.

"Then in that case I'll go and have tea with Mrs. Masterman," said Anna. "She invited me yesterday when I met her; she expects her mother."

This was a welcome announcement to Laura.

Thus, if Sir Ralph came she would be able to see him alone, she thought. And this actually happened. At half-past three Anna put on her best bonnet and went away, and just about four o'clock Laura heard a carriage stop at the door of Red House.

SIEGE OF PORT ARTHUR

Whole Advanced Position Taken By Jap Right Wing.

Brilliant Capture of Kekwan Mountain Vividly Described A Real Feat of Arms—Mines, Hand Grenades and Rifles in Most Furious Fight of Siege—Togo Reports Main Strength of Enemy Completely Crushed.

Tokio, Dec. 27.—The following report was received from the besiegers at Port Arthur Sunday morning

"A body of our right wing surprised the enemy at Housanytantun (Housanyentao), and Siaofantun (the latter about six and a half miles northwest of Port Arthur), at 10 o'clock Saturday night, and occupied the villages, and subsequently dislodging the enemy, occupied the whole of Taliuchiatun (about five miles northwest of Port Arthur), at 3.55 o'clock this morning

"Our repeated attacks during the past few days were uniformly successful, and now the whole of the enemy's advanced positions fronting our right wing is in our hands."

CAPTURE OF KEKWAN.

Most Furious Fight of Port Arthur Siege—Real Feat of Arms Replete With Brilliant Daring.

Headquarters of the Japanese Third Army before Port Arthur, Dec. 20.—(Via Yinkow, delayed in transmission via Tientsin, Dec. 26).

Since the general assault of Nov. 26-27 against the forts of Rihlung and Kekwan Mountains, resulting in furious fighting and great loss of life, and described at length by the Associated Press correspondent in a despatch filed Nov. 26, the Japanese have been engaged in tunnelling under the northern fort of Kekwan Mountain. The main tunnels ran under the north wall of the fort from the moat for a distance of 40 feet, and there were four short branch tunnels. On the morning of Dec. 18 seven dynamite mines were laid, the object of which was to destroy the north wall and so give the Japanese access to the fort. The fort had so long resisted the assaults of the Japanese that it was considered necessary that the explosion of the mines and the subsequent attacks should be carefully planned. General Samejima, commanding the left division, asked for volunteers who would be prepared to capture the fort or to die in the attempt. Two entire battalions answered the call. The first battalion remained in the caponiere galleries during the explosion of the mines, while the second battalion was in a parallel, close to the wall of the counterscarp.

In order that the dark blue uniform of the men might not show against the brown of the soil, which would be turned by the force of explosion, the attackers wore brown woollen underdrawers over their trousers and brown sweaters over their tunics. Instead of a cap, each man wore a brown woollen headpiece, which extended to shoulders, leaving only the face visible. Every man carried a rifle and dynamite grenades, while a lighted slow match was attached to his cartridge belt, with which to ignite the fuses of the grenades. In this peculiar garb, with the lighted matches at their waists, the troops presented a strange appearance. The soldiers of the battalion in the caponiere gallery, who were distinguished by white badges on their arms, were to make the second assault. General Samejima personally conducted these assaults at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of Dec. 19, after the explosions had taken place.

Havoc of Explosion.

The first mine exploded without warning, and the explosion was not entirely successful, owing to the heavy concrete above the mine. The explosion of the second mine followed immediately, and this was succeeded by five smaller explosions. The sight was wonderful in the extreme. Huge clouds of brown earth and debris of all kinds were thrown two hundred feet in the air, and it looked as if the whole fort had been set heavenward. When the clouds of earth had settled down the snow for some five hundred yards around the fort was covered with brown earth, pieces of timber and blocks of concrete.

The explosions made two large breaches in the north wall of the fort through which the Japanese in a most swarmed. They charged so rapidly that 50 of them were either killed or wounded by the falling debris. The Japanese succeeded in gaining the ramparts and charged the interior of the fort, but they were repulsed by a portion of the garrison from behind a wall at the rear of the fort, which had not been touched by the force of the explosion. Behind this wall there were four field guns and three machine guns.

From Hole to Hole.

In the meantime the Russians had [illegible] reinforcements of some 300 to the fort through the covered wall at the rear The second battalion of attackers were unable to advance immediately, as the sapping trenches from the parallel to the moat were filled with debris When this debris had been excavated the battalion gained the moat and reached the ramparts through the breaches that had been made by the explosion. The commander of this enterprise realized that any attempt to gain the interior of the fort would end in disaster if his whole force advanced in one body, so he disposed his men along the wall and ordered them to gain the lower level of the interior of the fort by twos and threes and to find cover in the holes which had been made in the surface by the Japanese shells, and these offered good cover from the rifle and machine gun fire directed from the rear of the fort In these holes 150 of the attackers had found cover by 5 o'clock in the morning

Advancing carefully the Japanese approached the Russian defences in the rear of the fort, and by working from hole to hole under cover of darkness the entire battalion gained the interior of the fort, notwithstanding the desperate resistance made by the Russians The final charge made against the wall of sand bags proved unsuccessful, but charge followed charge until midnight, when the last corner of the Russian defences was captured.

Fiercest of Fight.

The fighting was desperate in the extreme, with bayonet and dynamite hand grenades, and the entire garrison was killed with the exception of a party of 20, who escaped through the covered wall, which they destroyed behind them by exploding four mines, and thus prevented the Japanese from pursuing them Though the numbers engaged and the area of fighting were small, both assaults and defence were more furious than any in the previous history of the siege of Port Arthur With the exceptions noted, the garrison died fighting to the last man, with wonderful determination.

The final rushes of the Japanese were irresistible Their wounded refused to retire, and insisted on continuing the fighting, saying that they had vowed to take the fort and that they must succeed.

Four field guns and three machine guns were captured, and over 300 Russians were killed. The skillful manner in which the second assault was executed prevented heavy losses and insured the capture of the fort, which, though not the largest, is one of the strongest of the eastern fortified ranges.

Important For Both.

The fort is important to the Japanese, as it opens a way up the gorge between it and the eastern end of Kekwan Mountain, and is the easiest point at which to pierce the principal line of fortifications for the purpose of gaining a foothold on the higher hills of the ridge.

The stubborn resistance made by the Russians was due to the fact that the captured fort was the key of the position at this point of their western flank.

PORT ARTHUR BLOCKADE.

Togo Reports Main Strength of Russians Completely Crushed and Work of Jap Fleet Practically Over.

Tokio, Dec 26.—Admiral Togo telegraphing under date of Dec 22, says:

"After 203-Metre Hill was occupied as a result of a gallant and desperate attack by the besieging army the bombardment of the enemy's squadron by a siege and other heavy guns became effective. In consequence the battleships Poltava and Retvizan were sunk and subsequently the battleships Pobieda and Peresviet, the protected cruiser Pallada and the armored cruiser Bayan were sunk. The battleship Sevastopol escaped the land bombardment, left the harbor, Dec 9, and anchored near Chentao Mountain. She was attacked there continuously by our torpedo boats and heavily damaged. The main strength of the enemy is completely crushed. Only a weak gunboat, the Otvashai, and several torpedo boat destroyers remain afloat Under the circumstances our combined fleet has been removed as unnecessary from the blockade of Port Arthur, which has been maintained since May 1. I have arranged for a closer watch for ships attempting to run the blockade, and then watch the remnant of the enemy's squadron.

Mines Were Damaging.

"During the blockade we suffered from the enemy's mines, both laid and floating on the high seas, and from dense fogs The Miyako, Yoshino, Hatsuse, Kaimon, Heiyen and Saiyen were sunk, and many gallant and loyal officers and men were killed, but we succeeded in maintaining the blockade. When the enemy emerged from the harbor our fleet successfully engaged them and finally with the valuable support of the besieging army succeeded in crushing nearly all the enemy's squadron.

"Our second squadron so heavily damaged the Vladivostock squadron that it has been unable to leave port.

Where Credit Is Due.

"All this success is gratefully attributed to the brilliant virtue of our Emperor. During the blockade all the ships under my command splendidly accomplished the work, and duty assigned to them. Especially to be noted are some of those who were engaged in the difficult and risky task of blockading or who tirelessly accomplished the work of laying mines in the presence of the enemy, others who, braving all dangers, were engaged in the work of clearing mines away, and others still who were posted to watch the enemy and guard against the enemy's ships, their combined works strongly contributed to the accomplishment of the blockade. I deem it my duty to especially mention my recognition of the valuable services rendered by the officers and men."

Mobilization Causes Disorders.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 27.—While the new mobolization is proceeding quietly in most places, disorders are reported to have occurred in Poland. The most serious disturbance was at Razon yesterday, where one colonel was killed and a gendarme wounded. There has also been considerable rioting at Bakhoug, where 6,000 conscripts pillaged a few houses and fruit stalls. No one, however, was killed.

Killed About 100.

Mukden, Dec. 27.—Volunteers who crossed the Shakhe River on Friday, surprised a force of the enemy, killing about 100 and taking 15 prisoners. The Russian losses were trifling.

Sails For Port Arthur.

Yokohama, Dec. 27.—The steamer Manchu, bound for the neighborhood of Port Arthur, left here yesterday. She carried as passengers ten naval attaches, four peers, seventeen members of the House of Representatives, one Secretary of the Diet, and a lieutenant-commander. There will be no press representative on board during the voyage, which it is expected will occupy three weeks.

MAKES LIBERAL PROMISES.

Student Situation Acute in Moscow—Kuropatkin Favors Broader Zemstvos.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 27.—An Imperial Ukase issued last night makes decidedly liberal promises under a number of heads.

It promises a full and equal enforcement of existing laws.

Assures the Zemstvos of the fullest possible measure of self government, and the enforcement of the laws now existing in their behalf

Promulgates a scheme of workman's insurance.

Extends the liberty of the press.

And promises a full legal trial of all persons accused.

M. Witte seems again to be high in the favor of the Emperor, and is almost a daily visitor at the Tsarkoe Selo.

There seems to be no evidence of a cessation of the agitation in different parts of the country in favor of liberal reforms The situation is most acute in Moscow, where the university is closed and other societies are in a constant state of ferment.

It develops that the social revolution party in Moscow before the demonstrations of Dec. 18 and 19, practically issued a warning condemning to death Grand Duke Sergius and Police Master Trepoff, if, during these demonstrations there should be a recurrence of their police brutality, which was witnessed in St. Petersburg Subsequently the students decided not only to cease attending lectures, but to demonstrate on the occasion of the burial of the victims of the rioting of Dec. 18 and 19, to ally themselves with the labor movement and to take up arms in their own defence.

Gen Kuropatkin, according to an interview with Prince Dolgorouky, head of the Moscow Red Cross detachment at the front, has added his voice in favor of broader activity of the Zemstvos. This may be fraught with immense significance later.

TO INCREASE JUDGES' PAY.

Delegation Asks Premier and Sir Wilfrid Laurier Acquiesced.

Montreal, Dec 27.—A delegation of the Montreal Bar waited upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday at the Windsor, asking the Government to increase the pay of the Canadian judges

The deputation was composed of Justice Lamothe, batonnier; Senators Beique and Dandurand, Thomas C. Casgrain, G. Langelier, A. Geoffrion, W. J. White and Henry J. Gilchrist

The deputation reminded Sir Wilfrid that the Board of Trade, the Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Bankers' Association have all memorialized the Government on this question, and it was held, they added, by all classes of the community that the judges were under-paid, and that the time had come for the Government to act in the matter.

Sir Wilfrid told the deputation that he had always been of their opinion, and had expressed himself so when leader of the Opposition. He would take the matter into consideration.

DO NOT WALK ON THIN ICE

If You Have Catarrh You are in Danger —It Breeds Dyspepsia, Bronchitis and Consumption.

Aside from the extreme offensive and odious nature of the disease, catarrh is also very dangerous if left to run its course unchecked. The constant droppings into the throat, which are mostly swallowed during sleep, cause poisonous disorders of the throat, stomach and lungs, which rapidly develop into dyspepsia, laryngitis, bronchitis and consumption. When these diseases become established, especially the latter, the result is too well known to need pointing out.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are a certain and absolute cure for catarrh in all forms and all stages. Catarrhal conditions are always of the same nature, whether they exist in the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder, and these tablets act on all alike. They cleanse renovate and purify the entire system of all catarrhal poisons and by thus going to the very root of the disease, effect thorough and permanent cure. This is the only way to treat catarrh, as local applications, such as sprays, ointments, inhalations, etc., afford only temporary relief and the malady takes hold again with increased vigor.

prescribe Stuart's Catarrh Tablets

An Indianapolis physician says "I on all occasions because I find they are most thorough and effective in their work. I have tried a great many prescriptions, my own and others, during 30 years of practice, but have never found anything quite so satisfactory in all respects as these tablets. I have known the most stubborn and virulent cases of catarrh to yield time after time to Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and I do not hesitate to prescribe and recommend them."

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle. It will pay you to give them a trial and get away from the suffering, humiliation and danger caused by catarrh.

Starving in Luxury

Many people with plenty, suffer from ruined stomachs and must sit idly by and watch others enjoy their meals. Late suppers, too much rich food, and irregular meals, have placed them in this terrible condition. The stomach is the seat of many ills and should receive your best care if you wish to keep all the faculties clear.

Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets are a sure cure for all such ills. They clarify the stomach and assist the digestive organs in performing their duties. They are made from pure Pineapple extracts, easy to take and certain in results. A tablet before and after each meal will work wonders in rebuilding your stomach. Don't put it off for tomorrow—ask your druggist today for this sweet-flavored, sure-curing Pineapple tablet.

A remarkable remedy for all skin diseases:—Dr. Agnew's Ointment. It relieves and cures the severest cases of Eczema, Salt Rheum, Tetter and other Skin Diseases.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 27.—The tug Reid returned yesterday from Caribou Island, having on board Lightkeeper W. D. Demers and his helper, Fred Pelletier, who, after tugs had made three visits to the island and returned each time without having been able to land or get any sight of the men, had been almost given up for lost. The men themselves had come to the conclusion that they were to remain on the island for the winter, and were preparing to do their best towards subsisting upon a half-barrel of flour and a large quantity of fish. A large crowd of people was at the dock to greet the lightkeepers on their return.

Seven to One

That is about the ratio. About seven times as many persons are injured as die from all causes yearly.

Accidents are a more prolific cause of death than any disease except lung diseases.

Twice as many people are accidently killed as die of old age. Does it not seem reasonable to you as a business man that it would be to your interest to carry an accident policy?

YOU are subject to over two hundred diseases, and liable to accidents without number.

Official figures prove that One Man in Five carrying an Accident and Sickness Policy makes a claim for indemnity each year.

YOU have no guarantee that you will not be the One Man who will be disabled this year.

CZAR ISSUES HIS UKASE.

Leaves Question of the Constitutional Assembly Untouched, and Jewish Religion Is Without Specific Mention.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 26.—Nicholas' long expected ukase was issued tonight. The document deals, under eight heads, with practically all the subjects brought to the emperor's attention by the memorial of the congress of zemstvos's presidents held here last month, and while not specially pledging the government to carry out the various reforms in their entirety as demanded by the memorial, promised that each shall be referred to the council of ministers, with orders to report promptly on the fullest measures of relief which can be accorded on the various subjects.

One question not touched by the ukase is that of the constitutional assembly. Neither is the Jewish religion specifically mentioned, tho freedom for all creeds or sects, whether Christian or otherwise, is among the subjects which will be dealt with.

Among those competent to express an opinion, it was considered to be a document, the ultimate value of which depended largely upon the interpretation given by the various committees as to the measure of liberty which it is possible to grant under the various heads named. It has not met the fullest wishes of the liberals, but on the other hand it is regarded by the reactionaries as promising entirely too much in the direction of liberal reforms.

HOCKEY GOSSIP.

What the Puck Chasers Are Doing, or Are Going to Do.

The supporters of the Farriers are confident that they can trim anything in the City League. Their line-up for the season will be as follows: Goal, Thornton; point, Blade; cover point, Squires; forwards, Smith, A. Long, H. Long, Nicholls.

At present it looks as though Karnots, T.A.S. and Farriers will qualify for the semi-finals as they should easily win 50 per cent of their games. The Colonials will be heard from, however in this regard.

To-morrow's game with Queen's should be one of the best of the season. The opening game last year was with the same bunch, and the locals won by 6-3 after the hardest kind of a game. The visitors will be as strong as last year. "Marty" Walsh who put up such a star game on his previous appearance will again be seen at rover.

The juniors are shaping up well and will make the other teams in No. 2 district go some. The team might be strengthened however by taking on some recruits from the City League. Their first game will be on Jan. 2 with Belleville.

Both teams will be away from home on Jan. 2. The seniors playing in Smith's Falls and the juniors in Belleville.

Lindsay's City League is not progressing as favorably as the local one. Dissension between the officers seems to be the cause of the trouble.

The Farriers, of the local City League, lost a tightly contested game in Campbellford yesterday afternoon with the Trent Valley League team of that place. The game was well played and a good deal closer than the score 8—4, indicates. The Farriers line-up was as follows:—Goal, Thornton; point, Blade; cover point, Squires; forwards, A. Long, H. Long, Nicholls, W. Armstrong.

Queen's will be very strong to-morrow night and will play hockey from the drop of the hat. The locals are not saying anything, but will give the fast collegians the game of their lives.

The Marlboros played in Galt last evening. Mercer was not on the team.

Remember the game to-morrow night. It will be one of the best of the season.

The Young Nationals trimmed the Aberdeens yesterday morning quite handily by a score of 3—0. The winners were superior in combination and shooting.

The local seniors will play in Smith's Falls on Monday, January 2nd. That game with to-morrow night's contest ought to put the team in fine shape for the first O.H.A. game on January 6th with Port Perry.

The Karnots will play at Bobcaygeon on Friday night with the Trent Valley League team of that place.

An organization meeting of the George street Young Men's Guild will be held tonight at the Y.M.C.A., to elect officers and committees in connection with the hockey club of the Guild.

THE RING AND MAT.

Mr. W. H. Wilkes, manager of Friday evening's good boxing and wrestling bouts at the opera house, will likely put on another of these athletic evenings in the course of a few weeks. He would like Green to meet Barry again, as the little Englishman sprained his thumb in the second round Friday evening, and, of course, was considerably handicapped. Mr. Wilkes would also like to match Harris, of Toronto, with any local man at 112 or 115 pounds. He is anxious to arrange a benefit for W. Galley, who broke his arm in a contest with Belland on Friday night.

SHOOTING ACCIDENT.

One Boy Mistakes Another for Rabbit—Ed. Barrie Receives Five Shot.

A shooting accident, which might have been attended with serious results, but which fortunately was accompanied with only slight injuries, took place yesterday afternoon in Emily township. It appears that Ed. Barrie, 667 George-st., and Willie Denoon, who lives in North Monaghan, near the Roman Catholic cemetery, were paying a visit to Mr. Ruth, the former's uncle, in Emily.

Yesterday they started out on a rabbit shooting expedition in the woods near Mr. Ruth's place. They became separated, and shortly after Denoon saw something moving in the bushes, and thinking it was a rabbit, fired. It turned out, however, to be his companion, Barrie, who was struck in five places. The boy was brought to town, where his injuries were looked after by Dr. Eastwood. He was found to have received two shots in the leg, one in the arm, one in the hand, and the fifth through the back of his collar. He is getting along nicely to-day and no ill results are feared.

CHRISTMAS AT ST. PETER'S.

Splendid Musical Services Rendered By Efficient and Well Trained Choir.

The special services in St. Peter's cathedral on Christmas were decidedly attractive and very largely attended. The choir, under the skilful leadership of Miss N. Lewis, was never heard to better advantage, the various masses being especially well rendered. Miss M. Doherty ably presided at the organ. The following is the musical portion of the services:—Solemn High Mass at 5.30; Pontifical High Mass at 1.30; Battinau's Mass in F. The solos were taken in excellent voice by: Sopranos, Misses A. Simons, L. Hallihan, M. Carveth, M. Moher and H. Kane; altos, Misses L. Coster, J. Delaire, J. Clancy, N. Simons; tenors, Mr. G. Hill and Mr. McGregor; in the evening at 7, musical vespers—Mattfield's, the solos being contibuted by Misses L. Hallihan, A. Simons, L. Coster, J. Delaire and Mr. F. Pope; O Salutaris, by Gaul, Messrs. J. Weir, G. Hill, Misses Simons and Coster; Millard's Tantum Ergo, Miss L. Hallihan taking solo; chorus by full choir.

PONTYPOOL METHODISTS.

Held Successful Anniversary on Sunday and Monday.

The anniversary services in connection with the Methodist church at Pontypool were held on Sunday. Rev. W. B. Tucker, of Orono, preached in the morning, and Rev. Mr. Oswald, Presbyterian minister, of Pontypool, at night. Last night a concert was held and a large attendance was present. Rev. N. D. Drew, the pastor, presided. The programme—an excellent one—was contributed by Miss Richardson, elocutionist, of Lindsay; Master Young, boy soprano, of Pontypool, and Miss Clara Belleghem and Mr. R. N. Jolliffe, vocalists, of Peterborough. Rev. Mr. Oswald gave a short address, which was well received.

AT BROCK STREET RINK.

Number of Skaters Yesterday Surpassed All Previous Records.

That the Brock street rink this season is more popular than ever was demonstrated yesterday when the rink had the greatest day in its history.

The number of skaters on the ice was largely in excess of that of any day since the rink was opened, and the ice was in splendid condition.

A gas stove has been placed in the ladies waiting room and other improvements have been made which add to the comfort and convenience of those patronizing the rink. The old arc lights have been discarded and in their stead ten enclosed arc alternating current lights have been installed and the rink is now one of the best lighted in the province.

The season tickets are selling rapidly many finding their way into the stockings of the youngsters for Christmas.

The management is doing everything possible for the comfort of the rink's patrons and that their efforts are appreciated is amply evidenced.

DEATH OF MR. T. J. BYERS.

It will be remembered that about two months ago Mr. T. J. Byers was severely injured by a runaway of his team, at the north end of the town, and he was taken to the Nicholls Hospital with a broken leg, one arm fractured and suffering from internal injuries. While the injury to his limbs seemed likely to be overcome, he did not recover as speedily as was looked for, and lately seemed worse. On Sunday he passed away, succumbing to internal troubles following on the accident. Deceased was a teamster and contractor by occupation, well known and respected, and leaves three sons and two daughters who survive him, all of town. The funeral will take place to-day, the body being interred at the Emily cemetery at Omemee.

THROWN OUT AND INJURED.

On Saturday afternoon as Misses Florence and Annie Burnham, daughters of Mr. Z. Burnham, Otonabee, were returning home from a Christmas shopping trip, they met a serious mishap. When approaching the G.T.R. crossing at Downer's Corners the horse broke away, having been frightened by an approaching freight train. The animal started to cross the track, but was turned by the train and ran for some distance along the track, overturning the vehicle and breaking away from it. The young ladies were thrown out and Miss Florence had one arm pretty seriously injured. Her sister escaped with a bad shaking up. Mr. L. Dormer, who saw the horse racing away, came to their assistance and hitched up his team and took the young ladies home.

SUDDEN DEATH.

The death occurred suddenly yesterday of Mrs. James Scriber, who lives in Smith, just outside of the town's limits. The deceased was in good health until Sunday, having been at the Christmas market on Saturday. Death was due to heart failure.

The late Mrs. Scriver was sixty years of age, and was respected by all with whom she came in contact. A husband and large family mourn her death.

The death occurred on Saturday night of Mrs. Margaret O'Donnel, 681 Stewart-st., town. The deceased was formerly Miss Margaret Whibbs, of Douro, and was thirty-five years of age. Her husband survives her. The late Mrs O'Donnel was well known in Douro where her amiable qualities and kindly disposition had won for her many friends. The funeral took place yesterday morning from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Joseph's Cemetery, Douro, for interment.

LITTLE LOCAL LINERS

—The livery men were happy yesterday. There was just enough snow in town to make sleighing and all the stables did a record business.

—A report of the successful Christmas tree and entertainment at the Salvation Army hall last night is held over until to-morrow.

—The majority of the merchants report being well satisfied on the whole with the volume of Christmas trade. Many of them did a larger trade than last year. Considering that the weather conditions were not any too favorable the past week, the results were good.

The death occurred on Saturday of Mrs. Sarah Tucker, an inmate of the House of Providence. Death was due old age, the deceased being sixty-nine years of age. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

—The river and all the ponds were covered with skaters yesterday. It was a great day for the children and older ones too. The Brock street rink and the street railway rink were centres of much interest, while the curling quarters were alive with knights of the stone and broom.

—The Sunday School class of young ladies taught by Mrs Robert Mann in George street church on Sunday presented her with a very pretty fern dish as a mark of appreciation. Mrs. Mann was taken by surprise, but expressed her thanks in an appropriate manner.

—The C.G.E. Anglers' Club on Saturday night presented their genial chef, Mr. John Trombley, with a valuable gold watch and chain and an appreciative address. The recipient made a grateful reply. A more extended notice of the presentation will be made to-morrow.

Mr. R. E. Layfield, who was nominated as a candidate for aldermanic honors wishes to say that, while he appreciates the honor done him and thanks very heartily the mover and seconder of the nomination, that his time is so fully occupied with the duties of his position he is obliged to decline.

—The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Deyell, of Otonabee, will be grieved to learn of the loss they have sustained in the death of their daughter, Violet, which unhappy event occurred on Saturday. The deceased was twenty-six years of age and had been ill for some time. The funeral took place this afternoon.

—Archbishop Gauthier has announced the appointment of Rev. Father Dennis A. Twomey, pastor of Tweed, as successor to Mgr. Farrelly, of St. Michael's Cathedral, of Belleville, which edifice was destroyed by fire one week ago. Father Twomey has a hard task ahead, but as he is one of the most efficient priests in the diocese of Kingston, there is no doubt his efforts to restore the Belleville church will be successful. Father Twomey is a native of Ireland. For 22 years he has been a priest. He was educated at the Grand Seminary in Montreal. For a time he was rector of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston. Twelve years ago he was appointed pastor at Morrisburgh, and for the past four or five years has been pastor at Tweed, which church debt has been reduced from $35,000 to under $20,000.

1905 Dress Suits.

In dress suits particularly, the beauty, grace, and style are not alone the work of the designer and cutter—The most artistically cut garment can be properly made only by a high grade workman.

The Semi-ready method of having their tailors work only on the class of work in which they are most proficient—goes far in producing their excellent Dress Suits. The same tailor cannot excel on Overcoats and Dress Suits both. We have men who, from one year's end to the other, tailor only Dress Suits.

The Semi-ready Dress Suit is made of Vicuna finished Worsteds. The goods are manufactured by Sir Titus Salt, Bart., and Joshua Garnet & Sons—who make the highest grade of these cloths in the world.

The suit is easy, graceful, and properly balanced. The collar is rather long—lapel rolls well to the bottom with graceful convex crease—the skirt sits gracefully over the hip and adheres to the side of the leg.

Christmas Bargains

The Aftermath of Christmas !

The holiday shopping is all over, and the store is beginning to settle down to normal ways again. Our Christmas business was greater than it has ever been before, and our vast stock was pretty well picked over. Of course, this picking leaves in its wake many things that are tumbled and bedraggled, and these have no place in a clean, fresh stock. So we've put them out and put hurry-out prices on them, just to make them tempting. Intrinsically, just as good as ever, merely lost a part of their good looks, that's all, and for this you get the reduction on

Men's Mufflers, Ladies' Mufflers, Ladies' Silk Waists, Ladies' Silk Skirts, Muslin Pillow Shams, Ladies' and Gent's Silk Handkerchiefs, Fancy Rafia Baskets, Bevel Plate Hand Mirrors, Fancy Handkerchief Boxes, Ladies' and Children's Coats, etc.

CHRISTMAS WEDDING.

The Nuptials of Miss Minnie Hamilton and Mr. John Speer.

A very pretty wedding took place this afternoon at the residence of Mr. Francis Hamilton, 174 Hunter street east, when his daughter, Minnie, was united in marriage to Mr. John Speer, of the Fifth Ward.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. G. Lewis, pastor of Mark street Methodist church, in the presence of a large number of friends of the young couple. The drawing room was prettily decorated for the occasion, the nuptial knot being tied beneath an arch of smilax and evergreens.

The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Speer, sister of the groom. The latter was assisted by Rev. E. B. Cook, of Dunsford. The bride looked charming in a gown of Swiss batiste, trimmed with lace and chiffon. Her going away gown was of brown cloth with satin and applique trimmings and she wore a Persian lamb coat with sable trimmings. The bridesmaid was attired in Swiss organdie. The numerous and costly presents which were received testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

At 4.30 o'clock about thirty-five guests sat down to a delightful wedding repast, prepared yb Mr. Harry Long. The bride and groom will leave on the 9 o'clock train tonight for Port Hope and Toronto. They will take up residence on Munroe ave. on their return.

"DADDY" TAYLOR HONORED.

His Manvers Friends Present Him With Handsome Cane and Address.

This morning when Mr. Wm. Taylor, better known as "Daddy," was at Manvers Station, his many friends in that vicinity took advantage of the opportunity to show their appreciation of his many sterling qualities by presenting him with a handsome gold headed ebony cane, with the following inscription engraved upon the handle—"Presented to Mr. Wm. Taylor by his Manvers friends, 1904." The presentation was made in the station waiting room by Mr. Wm. Porter, while Mr. W. H. Cook read the address. A score of Mr. Taylor's friends were in attendance.

The address was as follows—

Mr. Wm. Taylor,
Manvers, Ont.:

Dear Friend,—We, the employes of the C.P.R. Co., and your many friends of the community, cannot allow you to enter into your well-earned retirement without some expression of our esteem towards you and your good work.

While the Company has recognized your faithful services, we have felt your abounding good nature and willingness to meet the public needs calls for some expression on our part and we therefore beg you to accept the accompanying gift as a tangible token of our appreciation of your many happy qualities and the unfailing kindness you have shown to all cast in your way.

When we remember that such characteristics have been expressed by you for over twenty years in your position as pumpman at Manvers Station, we feel that you have been thoroughly tested and have never been found wanting.

We wish you yet many years of life and better still that the same spirit may ever characterize your dealings which have so marked them in the past.

Signed on behalf of the Company W. H. COOK.
Signed on behalf of the community WM. PORTER

Mr. Taylor made a very eloquent and witty speech and thanked his friends for their many kind words and beautiful gift.

REASON No 1
WHY YOU SHOULD USE

Red Rose Tea

Because it is composed of both Indian and Ceylon teas.

The tea bush is indigenous to Assam in Northern India, and botanists are of the opinion that it is the parent species of all the cultivated varieties in India, Ceylon, China and elsewhere. In a wild state, it grows to a height of fifteen to twenty feet, but the cultivated shrub is only three to four feet high.

Assam being the natural home of the tea bush, it is not surprising that this and other districts in Northern India produce the richest, most pungent teas grown in the world—teas that command higher prices than even the finest Ceylons; but Ceylon teas are very flavory and fragrant, and seem to be specially made to blend with the richer, more syrupy tea of India. When combined, the Ceylons give point and piquancy to the liquor; the Indians, richness and strength.

The distinctive characteristic of Red Rose Tea, that rich, fruity flavor, is obtained by blending these fine Indians and Ceylons; and another very important feature of Red Rose Tea, viz., its uniformity of flavor all the year round, is secured the same way, something not possible to obtain where Ceylon or Indian teas are used alone.

The Blue Label is recommended, and unless you like very strong tea, use only three-quarters as much for a drawing as you use of other teas.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 28, 1904.

PEN POINTS.

Let every Conservative see that his name is on the voters' list of 1904. If it isn't, you will have to register.

The fact that you registered last October will not entitle you to a vote in the present contest. You will have to register again.

It is rumored that Mr. R. R. Gamey, M.L.A., will be brought to East Peterborough to take part in the election contest in that riding.

One striking feature of the personnel of the nominees for municipal honors is the number of young men—all bright, active and energetic—who are coming to the front. It is a good sign.

Don't forget the public meeting in the opera house to-morrow night. There will be a full and frank discussion of all municipal matters now engaging the attention of the ratepayers.

Well! the municipal aspirants are off, and out of the nineteen whose names will appear on the ballot, the ratepayers will have a wide selection from which to choose the men whom they desire to look after their interests during the coming twelve months.

The Review is pleased to recognize that the standard of representation on the Board of Education is not deteriorating in quality. Messrs. Dr. Burnham, William Pringle and R. B. Rogers, the three trustees whose terms of office had expired, have been returned by acclamation, which is ample evidence that they have pursued a straightforward independent course. The new trustees, Mr. Ackerman and Dr. Morrison, are to be congratulated upon the honor conferred upon them. They should make efficient representatives, having good business ability, sound judgment and a thorough acquaintance with the educational needs of the town. The coming year will be an important one in the history of the Board, as the work of erecting the new Collegiate Institute will be undertaken, and several other projects disposed of.

It is pleasant to note that in the coming contest in West Peterborough the candidates have pledged themselves to do everything in their power to prevent bribery and corruption, and that no person either giving or receiving a bribe will be protected by them. They will see that any guilty party or parties are prosecuted with the utmost rigor of the law. The workers for both candidates have also been requested to do all in their power to ensure a straight, honestly fought contest in every respect. Messrs. Bradburn and McWilliams have also pledged themselves that neither personally or through another will they give or lend any money during the election, and their respective friends having implicit confidence in them, believe that they will live strictly up to their promises.

A very practical suggestion, arising out of an interesting lecture on "The Medical Inspection of School Children," delivered by Dr. Charles Hodgetts, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, at the Canadian Institute, was that a committee or commission, representative of the medical and teaching professions, should be appointed by the Government to consider the whole system of inspection. He gave a good deal of useful information as to the practice adopted in such countries as England, Scotland, the United States and Germany, and said that so far as New York was concerned, the visits of the medical inspector were made daily before 10 a.m., when all the children numbering 5,000 each for 150 inspectors, were marched past, and the eyes, ears, nose, mouth, hair, etc., examined, and all suspicious cases sent to the office for further examination. If any of them were found to be defective an exclusion card was sent to the parents, and should it be deemed expedient, the cases were visited by one of the staff nurses.

It is high time to do something to relieve the crush and congestion at the post office. Such a state of affairs is not creditable to the town nor to the post office department. This is a matter which should not be any longer delayed, and if a second wicket will relieve the pressure, let it be provided at once. The federal member of parliament made frequent references during the late campaign about the improvements that were to be made by the Government to the building. Surely it is time these were under way. The daily scenes at certain hours remind the onlooker of a football match or a bargain counter crusade. Last night letters appeared in the evening papers protesting strongly against the existing state of affairs and calling for a free delivery service throughout the town. Kingston, Brantford, and even Barrie boast of such a service, and it is important that the Town Council take this matter up, and press it to a successful issue. It will, of course, be some weeks before such a service can be properly inaugurated. In the meantime there is no good reason why these long promised repairs and added conveniences to the building should not be provided. There is nothing to be gained by delay, and the Government, which was heralded in the recent campaign as a government "that does things," should be up and doing in this matter.

Test the Kidneys

Allow the urine to stand in a glass vessel for twenty-four hours and if at the end of that time it is clouded or has left a sediment at the bottom of the vessel you may be sure that your kidneys are diseased. As a means of invigorating the action of the kidneys and making them strong and healthy, there is no preparation so prompt and none so thorough as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

HAD A MERRY TIME

Children and Parents at Salvation Army Christmas Mill.

There was a lively time at the Salvation Army Hall Monday night, the building being crowded to the doors. The Santa Claus fanning mill, which was run by a windmill proved to be a decided attraction. Paper, rags, straw, etc. were fed in at one end and came down a long chute being turned out in dolls, toys and gifts of all kinds. The apparent manufacture of goods on the platform was very cleverly done, and as the presents were deposited on the platform by the mill, Santa Claus (who was personated by Lieut. Penfold of Millbrook) distributed the donations to the children. He also took part in the march out on Monday night. Some of the children were given choice prizes for regular attendance during the year. Capt. Richards, of Omemee was also present. Adjt. Jennings presided and Lieut. Salter ably assisted in the proceedings. The following programme was ably rendered:—
